Thousands Trampling Rich Earth of Eastern Maine To Save State's Potato Industry

By DON HOYT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HOULTON, Me. (CP) — Thousands of men are trampling the rich earth of eastern Maine's Aroostook county as laborers from Canada and the United States work to save the state's potato industry.

The 6,000 Canadians join 32,000 Americans picking potatoes from dawn to dusk over seemingly endless rows. They earn from 17 to 20 cents a bushel to help American farmers keep their heads above the flooded market.

Maine fields are expected to yield close to 70,000,000 bushels or 28,000,000 barrels of potatoes this year and many state farmers are faced with heavy losses unless the market improves.

PRICES LOW

The market price now is between 90 cents and $1 a barrel. It costs about $1.65 to produce.

"Digger's our biggest headache," said one Maine farmer. "When you figure on diggin' you have to have pickers. When you don't have enough, that's when 'it hosts.'"

The Canadians, 4,000 from Quebec and the rest from New Brunswick, are all that can be obtained by Maine under an Ottawa-Washington agreement to protect New Brunswick growers.

"There is little dissatisfaction over the working ability of the Canadian laborers although some northern Maine farmers complain that inexperience of workers from Quebec City has hurt.

The man from the woods or farm or fishing village is in better physical condition than the one from the city," explained Elliott Barker, manager of the Maine Employment Security Commission office in Caribou.

SOME "SKIP AROUND"

Barker, who bosses placement of the pickers and sees that the Canadians have recrossed the border by Oct. 31, says they have a reputation for skipping around before they're dissatisfied with conditions."

He added: "But that's not a big factor when you consider the number here."

Stocky Kenneth Elliott is one Maine farmer who prefers Canadian laborers. "They come to work and like to work," he said. "And they want to earn a dollar."

There are 10 New Brunswickers helping Elliott and his brother-in-law harvest 6,000 barrels from his hilly, 90-acre potato farm a few miles from here.

Elliott, like many small growers, knows that this year may decide whether he stays in the potato business or goes under.

"We're harder hit here than we have been in years," he said.

"We're growing more potatoes than the consumers can handle and prices are booming for what we have to buy. It's worse than depression."

GAMBLE PAID OFF

Elliott's gamble that a crew of Canadians wouldn't "come and go" in a repetition of past experience has paid off.

"I've had no trouble so far," he said.

Among his pickers he has tough-fisted farmers who operate timberjacks and windrowers through his stream into Maine through the northern New Brunswick entry point at Edmundston.

They work in the fields at 6:30 a.m. By 5 p.m. they have picked from 40 to 100 barrels and head for home, too tired for anything but sleep.

Elliott's men are boarding themselves, earning 20 cents a barrel for their work with the prospect of a bonus if they stay until the crop is harvested. Some farmers provide their workers with meals, paying them 17 or 18 cents a barrel.

Elliott gives his men a house with beds and cooking utensils. Each pays $2 to one of their number who buys groceries and does the cooking.

NEW BRUNSWICK COOK

Aubin Poirier of Eel River Bridge N.B., is the cook for Elliott's men. The $2 he gets from each man will probably bring his wages to a par with the pickers.

The life discourages many. Head comes from a rickety shack set in a comfortless kitchen. Kerosene lamps provide the only light. Washing is done at an outside pump.

"Those things don't matter much," said one lumberjack. "You get used to them."

But the day of the picker may be nearing an end. More small farmers are thinking of turning to mechanical pickers to avert the danger of losing their crops with a partly harvested crop and no pay.

Said one grower: "The picking problem's getting worse. I can't risk much more. You never know what's going to happen until it's too late."

15 Per Cent of U.S. Share Of $900,000,000 Project Completed, Work on Schedule

The Canadian share of the St. Lawrence from Montreal to Prescott, Ont., is being transformed as power shovels, bulldozers and dynamiters push the seaway project toward completion in 1958. On the U.S. side, similar changes are under way. In a three-part series, a reporter tells how the U.S. part of the joint undertaking is coming along and describes some of its effects on New York state's "north country."

By RUSSELL ELMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MASSENA, N.Y. (CP)—Under the glare of bright arc lights, U.S. engineers work through the night to keep abreast of Canada in the massive joint St. Lawrence seaway-power project.

This summer, some 3,000 laborers, working two 10-hour shifts, have completed about 15 per cent of the U.S. share of the $900,000,000 project. Their work generally is on schedule and is costing less than anticipated.

Last September the south shore of the St. Lawrence river—just north of this small northern New York state industrial town and a little southwest of Cornwall, Ont.—was rural pastureland. Today a series of great, brown diggings mark the beginnings of two huge dams, two 800-foot locks, the 27-foot seaway canal and new highways.

In the total amount of work done, however, the U.S. is still considerably behind Canada. Canadian construction on the seaway was already well advanced before the U.S. started work last fall.

EARLY LEAD

"Canada got an early start and has built a lead but I'm sure we'll catch up," says Lake Shiel, U.S. resident engineer on the seaway. "We're still a little behind at some contracts but mostly everything's on time."

Hale says that next summer the labor force will be increased to 7,000, when actual construction of the locks and powerhouses begins. He predicts the U.S. will complete its work in time for the first ship to pass from the ocean to the Great Lakes through the seaway as scheduled in 1959.

Both Hale and Bill Latham, chief U.S. engineer on the power project, say costs are running lower than expected. They ascribe this to stiff competitive bidding for contracts and to use of better equipment by more experienced operators.

So far construction is most advanced on the two seaway locks and the large Barnhart island and Long Sault dams. About $30,000,000 to $35,000,000 worth of equipment is in use.

Elsewhere, digging has begun on the main channel of the seaway, linking the locks with the St. Lawrence. Railroad sidings have been built to handle materials brought in or construction work and a new highway connecting Masena and Cornwall is already open in parts.

CHANNEL DRIED

A 3,200-foot long, 185-foot high cofferdam, built last year by Canada from the Canadian mainland to the north side of Barnhart island in U.S. territory, has diverted the flow of the St. Lawrence. The north channel of the river now is dried up so that construction can go ahead on building the powerhouse that will supply 1,880,000 kilowatts of electricity when completed in 1958.

On each side of the international boundary, which cuts through the middle of the project, Canadian and U.S. workmen are digging the foundations of the powerhouse in the rocky riverbed. Work appears to be progressing here at an equal rate on both sides.

At the Grass River lock, the first in U.S. territory on the seaway, more than 1,000,000 cubic yards of soft, heavy marine clay has been dug up. So difficult is the task of removing the sticky clay that the scrapers and bulldozers are continually wearing out their tires—costing $2,200 apiece.

The most spectacular operation is probably being undertaken by three men on one three-mile section of the Long Sault seaway cut, which runs parallel to the Long Sault rapids.

The three, using a mammoth drag-line excavator, have contracted to remove 2,800,000 cubic yards of earth in a year. Not only are they ahead of schedule but they are also doing a job which the U.S. army estimated in 1942 would take 75 men with three bulldozers.

A TRANSPARENT CASE

NEW ALBANY, Ind. (AP)—Mrs. Marie Lewis Wednesday was fined $12.50 for disorderly conduct after police found her walking near the Ohio river, wearing only a piece of transparent plastic. She said her husband, Stephen, yanked off her dress while they were sitting in a parked car and that the piece of plastic was the only covering she could find. Lewis said he didn't do it.

NEW ZENITH HEARING AIDS

Zenith Radio Corporation today introduces a new 3-transistor hearing aid, priced at $50, that has all of the power and performance of many hearing aids selling for more than $200. It was announced by Mr. E. Hitchon of Hitchon Radio, hearing aid dealer here in Belleville.

The new instrument will operate for a battery cost of about ten cents a week, as compared to a battery cost of from one to two dollars per week for vacuum tube models.

Mr. Hitchon said that development of the fifty dollar 50x was a major achievement in Zenith's long crusade to lower the cost of hearing.

"Zenith entered the hearing aid business in 1943 to take the racket out of hearing aids. They made good hearing possible for hundreds of thousands by consistently marketing superior hearing aids at half the average price of comparable competing instruments and by pioneering new technical developments to reduce operating costs."

He said that Zenith had welcomed transistors for hearing aids because of their better performance and operating economy, but had regretted their high initial cost.

"When the company brought out its first transistor hearing aid for $125.00", Mr. Hitchon stated, "Zenith pledged its hard of hearing to produce lower priced models as soon as possible, even though the average price of competing instruments at that time was more than $250.

"That promise has been kept. Fourteen months ago the Chicago manufacturer introduced a new 5-transistor model for $100, and last December introduced the 75x for $75, which equalled the post war price of the company's vacuum tube models.

"Now Zenith has produced the 50x, to bring the cost of a superb 3-transistor instrument substantially below the post-war price of the firm's vacuum tube hearing aids."

Mr. Hitchon said the 50x will open a new world of hearing for countless thousands who because of the high cost have had to do without hearing aids, even though they needed the aids to keep their jobs or make business progress, and to enjoy once more the company of their friends and families.

"The 50x has all the outstanding clarity, efficiency and operating economy of our other transistor aids," he asserted. "Its savings in battery costs as compared to vacuum tube instruments will save its purchase price in a year or less, and give users the superior performance of this new transistor instrument."

Zenith's traditional after-purchase protections apply to the new instrument, he said. These include a ten-day home trial and money-back guarantee, a one-year warranty and five-year service plan.

Prized Field Gun Found Perched On Stonehenge

SALISBURY, Eng. (AP) — Royal artillerymen confessed today that they lost a field gun —and found it perched on the highest ledge of Stonehenge, the ancient Druid monument in Salisbury Plain.

The 250-pound gun, prized trophy of the gunnrs' mess, disappeared at night from outside the guardroom door. At dawn it was seen glinting in the morning sun. There was not a sign of how it had been lifted to the 15-foot-high stone ledge.

The gunners hinted a certain neighboring regiment had better keep a double guard on its trophies for the next few weeks.

S.J. Hungerford, Former President Of C.N.R., Dies

FARNHAM, Que. (CP)—Samuel James Hungerford, Canadian railway executive and former president of the CNR, died Friday night in this eastern townships community after a lengthy illness. He was 85.

A native of nearby Bedford, he moved here at an early age and joined his father, a blacksmith, in shops as a machinist-apprentice when he was 13. Entering his long climb through the ranks he worked in seven provinces and in the United States.

He was president of the CNR from 1934 to 1941; chairman of the board of directors from 1936 to 1942; first president of Transcanada Air Lines from 1931 to 1941; and president of the crown corporation, National Railway Munitions, during the Second World War.

When he began his railway career, wood-burning engines were still in use. The work week had recently been shortened to 59 hours from 72. He received 12 promotions before becoming president of the system.

HEADED WAGE COMMITTEE

His achievements with the company include the invention of a number of appliances, including a simplified type of super-heater for locomotives. He also headed a committee that brought about the first wage-rate agreement in the country.

After five years as an apprentice he was made a journeyman machinist and worked in Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba before he was named chairgeman for the CPR at Montreal Station in Montreal. He then worked as a foreman at Farnham, Megantic, Que., McAdam Junction, St. John, Cranbrook, B.C., and Calgary before becoming superintendent of shops at Winnipeg.

He moved to Toronto with the CNR in 1915 and two years later became general manager of Eastern Lines. In 1920 he became vice-president of operation and maintenance and moved to Montreal in 1922.

When Sir Henry Thornton retired in 1932 he became acting president and was named president in 1934. He resigned in 1941 and became president and director of National Railway Munitions.

SECURITY OFFER NOT GOOD UNLESS GERMANY IN NATO

British Foreign Office Corrects Macmillan

In a speech to the Conservative party conference at Bournemouth Friday Macmillan said the Western foreign ministers at the conference at Geneva this month would offer Russia a security pact against a revived Germany unless Germany chooses to join NATO or prefers to remain neutral."

Hours later a foreign office correction said: "We would not offer powers would offer such guarantees only if a reunited Germany should decide to join NATO or prefer the united nation stay neutral the West would have to reconsider its position, an informed source said.

Fear Thousand Perish in Floods In India's Punjab

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — More than 1,000 persons are feared to have died in floods in India's Punjab State, according to newspaper reports here tonight.

The reports say the figure mentioned, say the casualties were heaviest in the Gurdaspur district of the Punjab and that Jammu and Ravi rivers have burst their banks.

A thousand head of cattle are also reported to have been swept away.

Flood waters flowed into the outskirts of the Indian capital today, swirling through low-lying hutments near the western city limits. Delhi's Jumna river has been rising steadily for the last week.

Thousands of refugees from flooded villages in Gurdaspur District are pouring into the city in bullock carts piled high with mattresses, cooking pots and whole families perched on top.

Hundreds of trains with refugees clinging to the steps have helped bring flood victims to the city.

Gurdaspur and Amritsar have been evacuated from marooned villages by boats. Many refugees have also stayed behind perched on rooftops and in trees to guard their property.

India's air force planes are dropping bags of food to marooned villagers.

Thanksgiving Day Was First Proclaimed in April of 1872

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thanksgiving Day on Monday is for Canadians a renewal of a custom that had its origin in annual harvest thanksgiving festivals celebrated in the early days of Christ. Its main theme remains as always—that of giving of thanks for the harvest yield and for the year's blessings.

Canada's first Thanksgiving Day was on Monday, April 15, 1872, when Confederation was not quite five years old. That first Canadian Thanksgiving Day was proclaimed to give thanks for restoration of health to the then Prince of Wales, later to become Edward VII.

Since that year the holiday in Canada has been celebrated in various months. But for a little more than 20 years now it has been observed on the second Monday in October.

It was established as an annual event in 1879, when the government of the day—Sir John A. Macdonald was leading his second ministry—proclaimed Thursday, Nov. 6, as a day of thanksgiving for an abundant harvest.

Since then it has been a harvest celebration with few exceptions. In 1887 it was held on June 21 to mark the 50th anniversary of Queen Victoria's accession to the throne. In 1897 it was again held in June, on Victoria's diamond jubilee. In 1902 Thanksgiving Day was proclaimed for Aug. 9, to coincide with the coronation of King Edward VII.

Another exception was in 1935 when a general election was held Oct. 14. Thanksgiving Day that year was put off until Thursday, Oct. 24.

For a few years after the First World War, Thanksgiving and Remembrance Day were jointly celebrated on the Monday of the week in which Nov. 11 fell. But after protests from veterans' groups against this practice was dropped in 1931.

This year Canadians are giving thanks for bigger crops than a year ago. The 1955 wheat crop for Canada is estimated at 498,000,000 bushels, compared with the 10-year average to 1954 of 445,000,000 bushels. and nearly 20,000,000 bushels higher than last year.

And the warm, sunny weather across the prairies resulted in a crop of exceptionally high quality.

Worst Commercial Airline Crash in U.S. Kills 66

A rescuer holds a propeller as he looks over part of the wreckage of a United Airlines DC-4 after it crashed into face of a mountain peak in Wyoming, killing all 63 passengers and three crewmen aboard. It was the worst commercial airline crash in U.S. history. The westbound plane, bound for San Francisco from New York, shattered itself against the peak about 50 to 75 feet from the top of the mountain, which is about 40 miles west of Laramie, in low snowy range. Howling winds, which some officials said may have contributed to the tragedy, caused temporary delay in retrieving bodies. (Central Press Canadian.)

Mexican River Falls 10 Inches

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The ramjaging Panuco river has fallen 10 inches as flood-conditions Tampico, but the threat of epidemics haunts the stricken city.

The river still stood 18 feet above flood stage today as 150,000 persons were pumped into only a small area of the important Gulf of Mexico port to revive total normal population: 118,000.

Cases of typhoid, dysentery, pneumonia, diphtheria, malaria and bronchitis are increasing.

Spy Tried to Bribe Security Guard Of British Diplomatic Messenger

LONDON (AP)—The foreign office says a Moscow spy—unidentified—tried to bribe a British courier's security guard to betray his country's diplomatic secrets.

A spokesman Friday told reporters of the bizarre efforts at various stations of an incident were obtained from the British newspaper and some British newspapers.

The security guard since has resigned from his government's service "of his own accord and not for any reason connected with the incident," the spokesman at the foreign office said.

The spokesman told this story:

A British security officer whose job it was to guard the Queen's messenger (diplomatic courier) on the Moscow-Berlin run was approached by a man who identified himself as "an intelligence agent" in the Soviet capital late in August.

The agent offered a large sum in dollars if the security officer would connive in substitution of a diplomatic bag by another bag of similar appearance, size and weight."

The spokesman said he was unable to say definitely whether the agent who made the bribery attempt was Russian or not. Nor could he indicate how much money was offered. The spokesman also declined to give a precise reason for the resignation of the security officer.

Given 20 Years For Bank Robbery

TORONTO (CP)—Former miner Arthur Aronson, who pleaded guilty to two charges of armed robbery was sentenced Friday to two concurrent 20-year prison terms.

Aronson, 34, was charged with robbing a downtown branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce this year. He showed no emotion when he heard the sentence and stood with hands still in his pockets before being led away.

The bank robberies netted $10,000, police said. The first, Jan. 26, amounted to $6,000, and the second, May 19, $2,300.

In the second robbery of the Metropolitan Bank branch at Dixie and John Hannam, 24, was killed when the bank manager, William Jackson, opened fire on Arnason and his confederate, Lloyd Simpson, 22.

Confused Battles Continue Near Spanish Morocco

BY CARL HARTMAN

BABAT, French Morocco (AP) —Confused and difficult fighting continued today near the Spanish Moroccan border, where about 3,000 Moroccan rebels are engaged in hit-and-run tactics.

More French reinforcements have been pushed out from Fez to aid troops already in the area, reformed by the outposts of Boured, Aknoul and Thi Ouali.

Up to 4,000 French and North African soldiers in three groups, each consisting of one to three battalions, already have been engaged in operations much like punching a feather pillow.

COLLECT WOUNDED

Each day columns push out and establish contact between Bourad and Aknoul, deliver supplies and collect the wounded. On the next morning they find that rebel marauders have the road under fire again, and they have to repeat the operation.

Thi Ouali, the third village in the triangle, way reached by road Friday for the first time since it was besieged at the first of the week.

A French officer with experience in fighting the Communist-led Vietminh in Indochina said: "Until these rebels surrender or are destroyed we cannot say the situation is settled."

The French reported that one of their Moroccan units Friday night encountered two truckloads of rebels fording the Moulouya, river, which forms the frontier between Spanish and French Morocco. The rebels were forced back into Spanish Morocco.

New Westminster Bank Robbed By Blond Bandit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Transportation depots and border points were being watched today in the hunt for a blond bandit who robbed a bank of $2,300 at gunpoint in neighboring New Westminster.

The bandit frightened a woman teller at a branch of the Bank of Montreal into handing over the money.

The holdup happened 55 minutes after an attempt was made to rob a downtown branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here. The successful robbery took place 12 miles away.

Police believe the same man was involved. Identical descriptions were made.

A note was passed to the teller: "This is a stick-up. Touch the alarm."

The first attempt was foiled when the teller walked away from the counter with the note. The man disappeared.

Police said they believe the bandit escaped in a car parked near the New Westminster bank and he disappeared from sight on foot.

CAUGHT BY TRAIN

HAMILTON (CP) — A woman whose skirt caught on a moving freight train was pulled to within six inches of a train wheel Friday night before the train stopped. Trainmen freed Mrs. J.S. Bellingham after she was knocked down as she passed the caboose. Her skirt caught under the rear wheel and pulled her down. Trainmen had to cut her skirt to free her. She was treated in hospital for leg bruises.

CANADA, RUSSIA BEGIN TALKS ON EXPANDING TRADE

Pearson Meets Kabanov Foreign Trade Minister

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Canada and Russia began talks Friday on expanding the present small-scale trade between the two countries.

Before leaving by train for a brief visit to Leningrad, External Affairs Minister Pearson met with Ivan Kabanov, the Soviet foreign trade minister Friday morning.

The talks were carried further in the afternoon by C. Mitchell Sharp, associate deputy trade minister, and George Ignatieff, Russian-born head of the external affairs department's defence liaison division.

A Canadian spokesman said that during the talks, in which the Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov took part, there was an exchange of views on a possible plan for the Soviet Union to buy goods Canada wants to sell, including wheat and newsprint. In return, Canada would buy machinery for operations of exports to Russia and on Soviet imports into Canada.

TO FOLLOW UP

The spokesman said there also was "some mention of metals, but this was not followed up very far."

Pearson, who spent two days in Moscow before leaving for Leningrad on the Red Arrow first-class train, said after the talks: "We just got acquainted with the discussion of principles or which might be built an increase of trade between our two countries."

Canadian sources stressed the point that there was no question of production of the countries limited to their respective possibilities for a big increase in trade.

These sources described the initial trade discussion as "fruitful" and said that "certain points of contact were found." These sources did not believe that a concrete agreement would arise from the talks but "a basis would be laid for future trade."

Mrs. Pearson, who did not accompany Pearson to Leningrad, will continue the tour alone in the meantime.

A Canadian spokesman said that it was probable that Pearson would return to Moscow briefly to meet Soviet Premier Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev, Communist party secretary, who are on holiday in the Crimea. One report was that they are at the Black Sea resort of Sochi.

The meeting will be the climax of Pearson's week-long visit to the Soviet Union. Wednesday he will pick up the ashes of Lester Pearson at Rostov on the Don and then proceed by plane to Basra, Iraq, on his way to Baghdad where he will attend the Colombo plan conference.

Storm Causes New York Deaths

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Two men were killed Friday night in automobile accidents directly attributable to a gusty thunderstorm which swept across western New York state and finally blew itself out over Rochester.

Dead are John Kissel, 81, of Bowmansville, and George Hamlin, 76, of Batavia. Both men, police said, failed to see a train before their homes when they were struck by automobiles. Visibility in Buffalo at the height of the storm at the time of both accidents, and the drivers of the cars were not held.

'Refreshing, Ordinary, Questionable' Way Librarians See Four Novels

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

"Refreshing," "popular," "ordinary," and "questionable" are the descriptions given the reactions of four libraries to novels by Sheila Mackay Hamilton and Frederick Rolfe.

Mr. Cook, former rector of Fleshberton, condemned the novels along with Mrs. Hamilton's at a meeting of Fleshberton residents. He asked them to remove the books from the library shelves.

A majority at the meeting agreed with Mr. Cook but no decision was made regarding any future action.

Hamilton's chief librarian, Frieda Waldon, praised Mrs. Russell's "The Lamp is Heavy" as a "refreshingly realistic work." She said readers should read it.

"You cannot judge a book by isolated passages," Miss Waldon said. "That would result in ruling out practically all modern literature."

But the Lindsay public library decided, after reading Mr. Cook's letter, to withdraw Mrs. Hamilton's "The Living Earth" as questionable and Rolfe's "Hadrian the Seventh" as indecent.

A. T. Lacey, library board chairman, said: "After the book is reviewed thoroughly before it is decided whether it will be returned.

Librarian Mary Riley said "The Living Earth" has been removed from the library and has drawn no complaints.

He said "The Living Earth" is on the shelves of the Fort William library and "will remain there."

"Some of our directors have read the book and found nothing out of the ordinary about it," said Mr. Donovan.

Tot, 3, Balances On Rim of Roof To Survey City

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Several women at a west Philadelphia boarding home looked out their windows to the roof of a nearby four-store apartment building Friday night and screamed.

Bruce Wayne Bolez, three years old, was balancing himself on the rim of the roof, surveying the strange scenes of a new city. The tot came here Friday, he says from Lake City, Fla., where he was born and raised on his maternal grandparents' farm.

The youngster was snatched away from the roof by Joseph Kehoe, 31, a resident of the apartment building. Kehoe turned Bruce over to police and he was finally reunited with his distraught mother, Mrs. Pauline Bolez, 22, who said the youngster disappeared after they went to take a nap together.

Pearson's Visit To Russia Gets British Applause

LONDON (CP) — Two British newspapers have applauded Lester Pearson's visit to Russia.

The Daily Express says the Canadian external affairs minister's trip is an "excellent development" and that "better days" will between East and West. It is the "evidence of Canada's increasing prestige and influence in the world."

The Manchester Guardian says that probably no Western foreign minister has been better fitted by Pearson to "respond to and encourage the slow, slightly tentative gestures which Moscow has recently displayed, and it adds that reports indicate Russians about the visit seem to bear out this idea.

Pearson's personal, cheerful gaiety is perhaps of a less rugged, earthy character than that of (Nikita) Khrushchev (Russian party chief), but the two could be expected to maintain a cordial, lively level of dinner-time conversation," the newspaper says.

Pearson and Mrs. Pearson established here speak of Pearson and Russian leaders as exchanging in about a "coexistence cocktail," 50 per cent vodka and 50 per cent Canadian rye.

The average cost of a prescription is just about the cheapest a good meal. This is a tribute to the pharmaceutical industry that spends millions on research yet keeps ultimate costs so low.

Some medicines appear to be expensive. Judging by appearances a dozen capsules may not seem to be worth at least six dollars. Your physician knows their higher cost and true value. When he prescribes them for you he knows that your eventual cost will be much lower because they will do you more good in less time. Trust his judgment. We will cooperate by pricing them fairly.

Y's Men's Club Hears Report On Convention

On Thursday evening the Y's Men's Club heard President Bill Hutchison give a report on the 31st Annual International Y's Men's Convention which he and Mrs. Hutchison attended at Philadelphia in August. During the convention he heard reports from delegates in which the work of the Y's Men's Clubs all over the world was described.

Workshops discussed the many phases of club work including youth programs, education, fund raising, support of the Y.M.C.A. etc. Extension of the movement was discussed and it was disclosed that 43 new clubs had been chartered during the previous year. Mrs. Hutchison was greatly inspired by the enthusiasm and sincerity of the gathering and returned with many new ideas for Belleville club activities. The speaker was introduced by Bob Clarke and thanked by Reg. Edwards.

Wrong Name Used in Story

TORONTO (CP) — Through an error, the name of Gordon MacDougall should have been substituted for that of three children burned to death in a Minico fire last August, was incorrectly used in a Canadian Press report Friday, Oct. 7, on an inquest into the deaths.

Robert Cameron, a neighbor, testified at the inquest Thursday night that he found Thomas Gulgan, owner of the home, sitting in a hedge putting on his socks. He testified McGulgan said "to hell with them" when Cameron asked where his wife and children were.

In the CP story, MacDougall's name was inadvertently used instead of McGulgan's in the summary of Cameron's evidence. The Canadian Press regrets the error and apologizes for any embarrassment or inconvenience caused Mr. MacDougall.

THE WAY OF THE CROSS LEADS HOME

I must needs go home by the way of the Cross,
There's no other way but this;
I shall ne'er get sight of the Gates of Light,
If the way of the Cross I miss.

I must needs go on in the blood-
sprinkled way,
The path that the Saviour trod,
If I ever climb to the heights sublime,
Where the soul is at home with God.

Then I bid farewell to the way of the world,
To walk in it nevermore;
For my Lord says "Come", and I seek my home,
Where He waits at the open door.

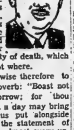
Chorus:

The way of the Cross leads home,
The way of the Cross leads home,
It is sweet to know as I onward go,
The way of the Cross leads home.

This favorite hymn appears in most hymnals under the name of Jessie Brown Pounds, who wrote its matchless words. But she was still Jessie Brown when she produced it.

Years later, she was married to the Rev. John E. Pounds, who then was serving as pastor of the Central Christian Church in Indianapolis, Indiana. She continued her hymn-writing after her marriage and added one of her most popular songs, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere", to her already long list of poems.

Long before meeting Mr. Pounds, however, Jessie Brown had become widely known through her writing. She wrote books and stories for children, libretti for cantatas, and religious poems.



You will find her name bobbing up again and again in your favorite hymnals as the author of such creations as "Anywhere With Jesus I Can Safely Go" and "The Touch Of His Hand On Mine". For many Christians and hymn-lovers there are no more precious verses than those of her first of the cross, with its swinging chorus:

"The way of the Cross leads home,
The way of the Cross leads home;
It is sweet to know as I onward go,
The way of the Cross leads home".

A Lift For Living

Greeting the Unpredicable

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

When we speak of "being prepared for the unexpected," what trains of thought start in our minds? I imagine it sets us thinking about the uncertainties of life — the accidents which can befall, the calamities which can come crashing around the corner or even the possibility of death, which lurks we know not where.

It would seem wise therefore to quote the old proverb: "Boast not thyself of what tomorrow for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth." But let us put alongside this old proverb the statement of St. Paul to whom almost every unexpected thing did happen. Out of all his experiences, which the world would call tragedies, he could still say, "in all these things we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us."

In the light of these two statements, what can we say about our policy toward the unpredicable?

A person who lives too much in the shadow of impending disaster becomes anemic, just as does a plant which stands too much in the shade.

OVERSHADOWED BY FEAR

St. John Irvine once sketched the story of a certain Mr. Timms, a London clerk, who was overshadowed by the fear of losing his job. The thought of what might happen to him if he lost his position became his burden by day and his nightmare by night.

The longing for marriage came to him but he checked it with the thought of what might happen to his loved ones if he should lose his livelihood.

Finally this depressing mood took its toll of his health and he fell into a fatal illness. When at last he learned from the doctor that he was passing the end, he was overheard saying to himself, "Thank God, I am safe now." Thus was drawn, in exaggerated fashion, the weakening effect of living under the shadow of expecting the worst.

NEGATIVE-MINDED

Do we not all know the vital difference between the negative and the affirmative mind? The negative-minded person approaches every opportunity by way of its obstacles. On the other hand the affirmative-minded man leaps over his hurdles with a will to believe in himself, in his comrades, and in his job. He faces with faith the unknown, as did the aged Abraham who went out at God's bidding, though he knew not whither he went. The same man realizes with St. Paul that "God hath not given us the spirit of fear, but of power and of love and of a sound mind."

Yes, the Hebrew-Christian philosophy of life, as given in the Bible, is to live in expectation of the best.

Yet despite our hopefulness, unpredicable troubles do come. This fact troubled Ecclesiastes some 2,500 years ago. Looking around at his fellow men, he said, "The race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor favor to men of skill—but time and chance happeneth to them all."

Robert Blatchford, British journalist, was once asked to give the secret of his professional success. He answered, "Luck." He explained that in his boyhood a situation arose which caused his mother to change her residence. By what seemed a purely fortuitous circumstance she chose a certain city for her home. By moving to that city Blatchford eventually met the woman who became his wife and a very decisive factor in his life.

CHANCE BEREFT

Furthermore, when he began to earn his living he went to reside in a boardinghouse where a newspaper man lived. A chance meeting with the fellow boarder led to the choice of a journalistic career. Thus, in both his marriage and his work, Blatchford felt that his course had been shaped by chance or good luck.

Here Blatchford was exaggerating a half-truth. Lives are not shaped by luck. A worthy life shapes the element of luck. A gambler counts on chances. A good farmer faces the chance of an unpredicted drought but goes on to develop fortitude and resourcefulness.

When critics said that Louis Pasteur discovered the principle of vaccination by chance, he replied, "True, but chance favors the trained mind."

And remember, while we term unpredictable things "good luck" or "bad luck," God does not run His universe by chance. If we could view His side of the picture, we would see His purpose in all things. But if God revealed it all to us in advance, how could we develop faith, hope and love?

Who Was This?

By A. A. M.

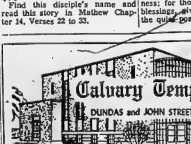
What was the name of the disciple who, when he saw Jesus walking on the lake of Galilee cried:

"Lord, if it is you, bid me to come to you!"

The day before Jesus had preached to thousands on the hillside. After feeding them at the end of the day, Jesus directed his disciples to get into their boat and go ahead of him to the other side of the lake, while he dismissed the crowd. After the people departed to their homes, Jesus went up to the hills by himself to pray.

After a time the wind and the waves beat upon the boat in which the disciples were trying to rest. In the fourth watch, when the disciples were straining on the waves towards them, they were all terrified. Some even thought Jesus might be a ghost. But He re-assured them with these quiet words: "Take heart! It is I. Have no fear."

It was at this dramatic moment that this disciple made his request for Jesus to tell him to come to him. Jesus answered: "Come!"



The disciple got out of the boat and started towards the Master. But when he saw the wind, and the tempestuous waves, he was afraid. Immediately he started to sink. "Lord, save me!" he gasped.

Immediately Jesus reached out His hand and caught His sinking follower. As He did so, the Master gently reproached his disciple with these words:

"Why did you doubt, O Man of Little Faith?"

When the two of them climbed into the boat, the wind died down and the sea became calm. The disciples looked at each other in wonder. They said to Jesus: "Truly, you are the Son of God!"

Find this disciple's name and read this story in Matthew Chapter 14, Verses 22 to 33.

Having Fun With Trees

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Mummy, come with me and see the big maple at the end of the street!"

Jimmie's eyes were bright with excitement, "It's got all red and yellow leaves last night! If you hurry, I won't be late for school." Mrs. Cleaver left her breakfast dishes and went to see the magic which had taken place over night. "I don't like my work being interrupted — but if I don't go, Jimmie will be disappointed, and he's so small!" she thought.

Encourage your child not only to appreciate the beauty of trees and their value, but to know the various kinds. Learning to identify all the trees in your area can form a fascinating family project. You are likely familiar with the common trees near your home. But on a hike do you notice the different kinds of oaks, maples, birches? Can you tell a white oak from a red oak? a sugar maple from a Manitoba maple? a Lombardy poplar from an aspen?

You will discover some excellent tree guides in your public library. The inexpensive paper-covered book, "Forest Trees of Canada" (Department of Mines, Ottawa) is well worth buying.

Perhaps you have noticed in parks, little labels on the trees and you have taken a look at one of them and then said in disgust:

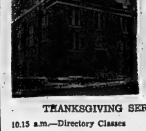
"Oh! That is Latin. Why in the world can't they use English and be sensible!"

SENSIBLE LATIN

It is better to be sensible that Latin is used for scientific names. Every tree has a common name, likely several common names, and different names in different parts of the country. Instead of calling a certain tree a sugar or hard or rock maple it is name a tree saccharum nigrum. Acer is the genus or group name and it signifies that this particular tree belongs to the maple family, whereas the second part of the name is the species name, telling to which member of the maple family this tree belongs. This system does away with the confusion which arises from the use of common names.

Pupils in some classrooms collect and press leaves, while others gather twigs from different trees. This makes children more observant. Sometimes a boy or girl can recognize a tree quickly when it has leaves. But in the winter, when the bare limbs against a sky are very beautiful, they do not know the usual signs of the different species.

Photographing trees is an interesting hobby. Making spatter-prints with leaves is another fascinating hobby or activity. Blue-prints of leaves, when developed properly, keep their appearance longer than pressed leaves. The best pictures and prints can be mounted or framed and used to decorate a wall in a den.



ENTICING HOBBY

The study of trees is an enticing hobby — the more you know the more you want to know. Unlike the wild flowers, and many of the birds, our trees are with us all year round. There are so many interesting tree discoveries. Children can find out the age of a tree which has been chopped down by the number of annual rings in the cross section of the stump.

The fun of our forest heritage by fire each year is tragic." Boys and girls are taught forest conservation in school. Parents should set a good example on a trip in their cars with camp fires.

They should also encourage an appreciation of beauty, of growing things, trees and flowers and birds. In a family where a father and mother take time to go for drives and walks with their children, these youngsters will grow up with eyes open to the beauty of line and color.

Years ago, Thomas Fuller pointed out "many favors God gives to us receive not for want of hearing, through our own unthankfulness; for though prayer purchases blessings, giving praise doth keep the quiet possession of them".

DOGS FOR POLICE WORK

The program is an experiment, said to be the first of its kind in U.S. city police work. Its aim is to provide a solution for the shortage of police officers in many communities.

Commissioner Marguerite C. Johnson of Dearborn, says that the dogs will be trained to jump through a plate glass window, fetch out a suspect and disarm him, enter a burning building in search for victims and scale a 14-foot fence and stand guard.

Dogs have been used before in police work, chiefly in wartime. The Nazis used vicious dogs to herd the prisoners in their notorious concentration camps. Practice like this has given dogs a bad name in police work. There is one big drawback to a dog; he is not equipped to distinguish between a criminal and an innocent by-stander. It is difficult to suggest how the dog could be trained to understand that every man is innocent until the courts have found him guilty. Using dogs in some of the ways suggested by Commissioner Johnson would almost certainly lead to abuse.

At the same time there is a simple way in which dogs can be used in police work and it is surprising that they have not been widely utilized. Commissioner Johnson said: "Instead of having two policemen on a beat we can send out a dog and an officer." In many cases a dog would not merely be as good as an extra policeman but better.

Not all cities send out policemen in pairs, as Dearborn does, for instance. Indeed, in the majority of small Canadian centres the policeman is alone as he makes his rounds; in some instances he is the only man on the force.

A few years ago, at Green Scoundrel, a stray collie "adopted" the police force. Where he came from, nobody knew. He just wandered into the police station and made himself at home. The policemen fed him—and after some strange reason they never did get around to noting that he was not equipped with a dog licence tag.

Soon the dog started to make the rounds with the policemen on night duty. Then, probably, these police men merely regarded him as company. Soon, however, he was not merely a companion, but a member of the force.

"I'm telling you," a constable would say, "it's mighty nice when you are walking down a dark alley, to have 'Chief' along. You know that nobody can come up to you from behind, or there is anybody lurking in the shadows, 'Chief' knows it—and let's you know it. It is a comfortable feeling."

Dogs, any kind of dogs, could easily prove invaluable to policemen if used in this fashion.

Probably, though, few police commissions would approve an item in the budget for the purchase, training and feeding of dogs of this type. The only way for police departments to acquire them would be in the same way as "Chief" joined the Green Sound force. Kindness and a blind eye to the fact that the dog lacks a licence would be all that would be required.

FOUL BAWL

As the emotional turmoil of the Dodger victory subsides only one jarring, searing memory remains—the graceless and monotonous chantings of praise for the product of the radio and television sponsor.

This most recent and most glaring exhibition of what the advertising pooh-bahs in New York call the "hard sell" was advertising with little merit.

No one can really muster a case against advertising between innings. Even a good word between half innings has at least the excuse of giving the poor inning on the field. But completely pointless references to the sponsor's products following grounders, fly balls, close up pictures of sweaty athletes and double plays were very exasperating to the listener.

To have a narrative of thrilling action and dramatic situation interrupted for a passing reference to a commercial product was an act which bordered de-bunk fans. Building goodwill through advertising is necessary for most companies but is impossible if the advertiser insists on ruining an audience's enjoyment in the process. Perhaps the growing custom of tuning out the commercial prompted the ad agency to insert player endorsements of this and that into the running commentary of the game for no discernible reason except to frustrate the listener who likes to get a word in edge-wise between innings.

Having to sit still for this type of merchandising as one of the prices mere mortals have to pay for modern entertainment. A spirit of revenge, of course, could cure this type of thing in short order.

Wise men and television announcers start stealing the play from the players as they did in the broadcasts of the World Series it is time to rule "foul bawl."

WORM PRESERVE

Wisely, we think, the Board of Governors of the University of Western Ontario declined to give a contract to two who applied for private rights to gather dewworms inhabiting the campus. The applicants estimated that a rate of half a dollar a thousand they could reap a harvest of $2,500 a year.

The Governors, showing a wealth of agricultural sagacity, decided that worms under the sod are worth more than on a hook; they aerate the soil. After all, if you have countless thousands of little pals helping you for nothing, why trade them off to strangers for other strangers to feed to fish? (London Free Press.)

Why choose with good to stay?
Strive for the best.

Better to gain.

Lieut. Col. J. Vincent Doyle was presented with an engraved silver tray at a happy gathering in the officers' mess of the Argyll Light Infantry Regiment last evening; the occasion was the completion of forty years service with the regiment. Lieut. Col. E. A. Geen, the commanding officer, made the presentation, and following a few informatory remarks, he called upon Major Hubert Jones, the president of the mess, to make the presentation. Former commanding officers of the regiment, Lieut. Col. Daniel Ketcheson, Col. David Barrager, and Col. Nelson Weatherhead, D.S.O., were present and all made reference to the excellent service rendered by Lieut. Col. Doyle to the regiment and on active service overseas during the Great War.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Loneliness is very often the beginning of an interest in outdoor nature. John Burroughs, whose writings on birds and animals are sure to be found in your public library, (and here's wishing you many a happy hour. Burroughs the naturalist—the man who knew the wild birds never walks alone." That comes close to what I am going to say.

In the big cities and towns of our era, we pass, every hour of the day, thousands and thousands of strangers whose names we do not know, whose home or place of work we have no idea of, whose lives are as remote from ours, and as mysterious, as though they were all Greeks or Egyptians, the modern way of life makes strangers of even of the neighbors who live next door to us. And for some unaccountable reason, the bigger the world gets, the lonelier it grows.

Ideas, facts are multiplying around us so, it is a little frightening to suspect how little we know. And this is a new state of affairs for human nature, because for countless centuries our species lived in small and friendly communities and had little trouble accommodating in our minds what little there was to be known or needed to be known. We are strangers now, sometimes, to ourselves.

But there is an escape possible, back into a more intimate world. If we cannot know the names of all the thousands of our fellow beings, we can know the names of trees or rocks or small, unimportant animals. And we can greet them by name when we find them. In a world full of strangers and strangeness, it is curiously warming to be able to recognize creatures that are not strange at all, but familiar. It does not take very long to become an old friend of nature. It can be done alone, with little more than a look or two and a walk in the country. But since there are, in a great many Canadian towns and cities, increasingly active and popular clubs and associations of amateur field naturalists, bird watchers, botanists, wild life students at a score of different subjects, it is a simple matter to join them and find willing guides full of the pleasantest human history. It is not, in their company that loneliness will vanish. It is in the company of the living things to which they will introduce us.

Surplus Woes

(Boston Post)

Sooner or later the grain surplus must be disposed of. And sooner or later the United States will be accused of dumping on world markets. But whatever is or is not done the national elections of next year will be fought and won in the farm states, where grain bins spill grain the farmers can't sell at a profit except to the government.

Hobbies of the Famous

(Montreal Gazette.)

Otto Dientz was an important businessman in New York at the turn of the century. But if any of his business associates had seen him on Saturday afternoons in summer, they might well have been astonished.

They would have found him outin the crowds beyond the call of the Hudson. He would seem to be carrying a cane. But what appeared to be a cane was only the light frame, from which was drawn a tan umbrella. Upon coming to certain bushes, he would open the umbrella and tap the branches with a stick.

It might seem an odd Saturday afternoon occupation for a prominent New York businessman. And it was all the more odd, in its way, because Otto Dientz, walking the wooded paths, would be attired in a gray summer suit, polished shoes, and derby hat. He looked as if he had stepped from a bandbox."

But it was his truly chosen pursuit, and, with him, none other could compare. Not that Otto Dientz was the first man to find an entomologist, but he was the smaller kinds of beetles. Neatly in his vest pocket were a couple of glass vials, and he would carefully drop the choice specimens he had gained from his inverted umbrella.

These Saturday excursions of Otto Dientz were as unexpected as the private passion of a many, another man, who has found in his own time the things that claim his perfect zest.

Ezri Kitchener, the grim connoisseur in the city of the arts, the great moustache, had a private passion, for he was a collector of china. By the time he was sent to India as commander-in-chief in 1902 his china collection had become quite a good one. Later, when he died in 1916, it had some excellent pieces from the Chinese dynasties.

Margaret Countess of Jersey, in her memoirs, "Fifty-one years of Victorianism," tells of the visit paid by Lord Kitchener to her home in Osterley Park. He wanted to see Lady Jersey's cabinets of celestial china. She invited him, and he helped her arrange her pieces.

He was particularly determined to separate the Chinese pieces from the Japanese ones, which he considered to be far inferior. This separation was to him as the separation of the sheep from the goats, and something far more important, he said, on which to call campaigns and battles long ago.

Not Twain But Warner

(Timmins, Daily Press)

Someone is always seeking to debunk a celebrated action which over the years has grown to the status of a minor legend but which all the time has been parading in plain sight before us. For example, there is a widely held view Mark Twain is responsible for crediting to the effect that while everybody talked about the weather nobody did anything about it. At the same time that has been a favorite peg for many writers, who like to hang the current story of the climate's vagaries and unpredictable to work it into their stuff.

Of course the statement fact (so far anyway) that there is such a tag attached to the history of the United States, allows the resourceful reporter some scope, even if he is not quite sure, to put it to the correct source. Also, writing about it will attract a literary speciality and no untrained hand can turn out a good article on it. Then, as abounded we have the authority of that same Mark Twain, who is the favorite target of the American humorist has his own words to say on the matter. Quotations, that should place it beyond argument.

Charles Dudley, whose real name was Samuel Clemens stems to have been a pretty fair hand at this business himself, if he is to be judged from an appearance in Hollywood a few years ago, a showing of the New England Society of Los Angeles, in that year. Some of his remarks about the characterizing the native haunts of the dinner guests have been preserved for prosperity by the writers present. The gist of what was that there was a sumptuous variety about it which compelled the stranger's admiration — and regret.

He said further he had counted one hundred and thirty-six different kinds of weather in those regions inside of twenty-four hours, and he intimated it also has broken the compass in this neighborhood as was a commonplace enough occurence there. He spoke of probable nor-east to sou'west winds blowing in the forenoon and sou'-sou'-east and eastard and points between; high and low barometer, sweeping around from place to place, probable areas of snow, hail and drought, succeeded or preceded by earthquakes, with thunder and lightning.

What he did not say, then or at any other time, was that crack about the weather so commonly associated with his name. The credit for it goes to the same chap who observed it, and it applies only to strange bedfellows, about what small gratification may be had compared with what they might be, and that the things generally talked about can be done. He worked for the Hartford Press and Courant and it was in an editorial in that Connecticut newspaper the ill-fated remark about doing something the weather was penned by Charles Dudley Warner.

Mencken Like Sam Johnson

(By William Manchester in Saturday Review)

Henry L. Mencken, the Baltimore sage and intellectual, is celebrating his 75th birthday, is a Mencken like Sam Johnson, the 18th century scholar and sharp tongued observer.

Johnson, a man happier in a state of subordination and dependency all his life, but who entered his company in that situation. Each was a lover of good food and drink, of good conversation with men and playful banter with women. Each was a master of talk unless he could dominate the conversation.

Neither believed there were two sides to any question; both strived to present a single point of view when the left was advancing; each was a master controversialist; each could be terribly wrong. Both admired the city extravagantly and despised the countryside, and each selected as the target of his abuse a type of gentleman at the height of provincialism. For Johnson it was Scotsmen; for Mencken it was "corn fed baked, unwashed Kansas".

They were gargantuans both, with both, neurotics both — the one fearing and driving away the other, an inveterate scrubber of hands who was obliged to wash basin by his desk that he might work without frequent trips to the bathroom. Each was hard on incompetence, stern with cant, brutal with dishonesty.

Dear Doctor Dog-in-the-Manger

From 'way down south says she has had one difficult delivery and one easy one. She had her second baby at home and wishes she could have her third, soon to arrive, at home. But she can't find a doctor who will attend confinement in the home.

I can only infer from the postmark that the lady lives in a town or village as small that its name is not in the gazetteer, not in the medical directory and not on the map. It may be that a doctor is there who will not attend a confinement in the patient's home just can't spare the time from his practice. If so, then why does the doctor not refer the lady to a doctor who does attend confinement at home? Again it may be that there is no other doctor in the vicinity. This lady's complaint reminds me of the difficulty the young Chicago couple had finding a doctor who attends confinement at home. They didn't like the idea of being thrust apart by hospital regulations and routines. They were in earnest about it, so they didn't give up just because several doctors brusquely refused the engagement and told them a hospital was the place for them to have a baby. Finally they found a doctor who not only accepted the engagement but delivered the baby without the use of anesthetics, by natural childbirth, at home.

The complaint reminds me also of the difficulty many followers have had trying to find a doctor who treats infected tonsils with diathermy (electric — coagulation), or one who gives office (ambulant) treatment for hernia (rupture, breach), or one who gives ambulant (painless injection) office treatment for internal piles.

Formerly I tried to help these people choose the method of treatment they wanted, by naming doctors in their own communities who were skilled in these modern methods. But the task of compiling and maintaining such a directory became so laborious and so costly that I had to discontinue that service.

It is not at all likely that the Chicago doctors canvassed by the young people who, wanted to have their home were unaware that some of their colleagues attend confinements at home and practise natural childbirth if patients prefer — and I'm in a position to tell the old timers that a friendly consultation instead of prospective mothers do prefer this method.

This dog in the manger attitude of the old timers in the profession, in regard to the wonderful strides improved methods developed since they finished studying, is not the same plane as the bitter prejudice and intolerance of the professions against homeopathic doctors, in the past, and for osteopathic doctors even now.

MADE NEW

There has been much discussion over the origin of the word "sincere." One explanation is that it comes from two Latin words, "sine" meaning "without" and "cercus" meaning "wax." It is said that in the pottery shops of Ancient Rome, a label bearing the words "sine cera" was often placed above pots and vases, meaning that they were without wax, that is not patched up old vessels, but newly made.

A vessel old, complete, not newly made and not a thin veneer thing patched up with wax—that may be the meaning of the words from which the English word "sincere" is derived. If it is, it speaks volumes. For the Bible is clear in its teaching that God's grace is not it.

something designed to patch up defects, but to make over the man. It is man plans for betterment of the world always involve patching. The whole history of philosophy is the best we can expect to do with humanity is to keep the patient out of hand altogether. Evil, it is therefore contented, is some thing to be patched. The idea is not to stop evil at its source—that would deny someone his pleasure—but to patch up the victim after Satan has manhandled him.

God does not come into the world for the purpose of making people over. The man is in Christ, he is a new creature." Christianity knows nothing about the patching up process and has no interest in it.

TODAY'S TALK

GET THE THING DONE

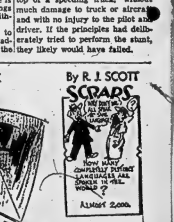
I wonder how many of us have plans we fully intend to work out but which we let go by without completion? It isn't enough to merely start an idea. The important thing is to get it going—then to get the job done.

No matter what the task may be, don't be satisfied with it until you get the thing done. There is satisfaction in the completed job. You can then go on to the next one with enthusiasm and pride. Get the thing started. That is one half of success. The other half is getting the thing done. In other words, be finishers.

There is a multitude of smattering jobs there are. Things entered into without purpose or ambition—just hurrying to get them done, regardless of the finished product. Put your heart into what you do. Think it out. Get the thing done.

Really great creative work at a clean desk most of the time. His bed designed work. He sees that those under him get the thing done, whatever it may be. There is a personal pride in getting things done neatly, accurately, and without waste of time.

Elbert Hubbard's "Message to Garcia" should be required reading in every schoolroom in the land. It's the story of a soldier who was selected by President McKinley to take an important message to the leader in the Cuban General—somewhere in Cuba. He asked no questions as to the message, strapped it to his body—and he was off. He found the leader, delivered the message, and left for home. He did what he was asked to do—to get the thing done.



What a prize is that worker who only has to be told once to do certain job. He goes without argument, gets the thing done. Often times he finds that others turned down as "impossible." There are no alibis to put in the don't-let-the-thing-done Club. Every-one is on his own, and the pride of each is to get the thing done the most efficient manner and in the shortest time.

Engine Lubricating Problems

By EUGENE MILMOE

If the oil filter of a car is cleaned or replaced frequently, then why is it also necessary to worry about regular oil changes? This seems to be a favorite question with some car owners, so let's take a closer look at engine lubricating problems.

The all- important filter does a fine job of cleaning oil and protecting your engine from heavy deposits of grit, dirt and sludge. Unfortunately, it cannot filter out everything. Water, acids and tiny particles of dust, metal and carbon will still collect in the oil, and some gasoline may also seep into the crankcase to cause dilution. To rid your engine of these additional contaminants, periodic oil changes are needed.

From H.A.: "There is a hum from the automatic transmission on my 1953 car. Friends who own this same model tell me they have also noticed this noise, but they say it is nothing to worry about. Should I take it to a mechanic?"

(A) I think you should. a slight hum is considered more or less normal with this type of transmission, but if the noise is excessive, it may indicate worn transmission parts.

FREQUENT LUBRICATION

H.D. asks: "Is it necessary to have differential parts lubricated often?"

(A) Most manufacturers advise inspection at 1,000 mile intervals to make certain the lubricant is kept at the correct level. Insufficient lubrication will encourage rapid wear and damage to gears and bearings.

S.L. writes: "I own a 1955 convertible with automatic drive and hydraulic valves. As my owner's book specifies, I am using a detergent oil. However, I have been told it is wrong to use this type of oil until the car has good 5,000 miles. I now have a little more than 3,000 miles on the speedometer. What do you say?"

(A) Continue to follow the manufacturer's instructions—he knows what is best for your engine. Detergent oil helps keep it clean, and is especially recommended to prevent gumming and sticking of hydraulic valve lifters.

ENGINE ROUGH

From N.S.: "My 1950 sedan is in excellent shape. I just had a valve job, new plugs, points, etc. put in, but the engine still seems to be a little rough at low speeds. What else might be causing this?"

(A) A rich fuel mixture is often to blame. Check carburetor adjustment and make sure the air cleaner is not clogged.

M.R. asks: "My 1954 V-8 engine doesn't use much oil and I can't find fault with the gas mileage. In fact, it runs well, except that it gives off some light blue smoke whenever I coast down a hill. Can you tell me why the car looks like an oil hog at such times?"

(A) Even on a light new engine coasting downhill will increase cylinder vacuum so that oil is drawn up past the rings and into the combustion chambers, where it burns off.

Coastal Shipping Restrictions Could Do Harm

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal freight-forwarding company said Fri. any change in Canada's coastal trade laws could hamper development of the Canadian northland.

The brief submitted by Gillespie-Munro Limited to the royal commission on coasting trade was one of four presented today during the three-man commission's fourth day of hearings here.

Unlike the three previous days when a majority of the briefs demanded a change in federal shipping laws to bar foreign, including British, flag vessels from Canadian shipping, all four of today's submissions demanded that British ships be allowed to continue inter-port-Canadian shipping.

Gillespie-Munro said has for the last several years been responsible for organizing the movement of freight to Canadian Labrador and Arctic points.

St. Margaret's Little Helpers Make Offering

On Wednesday afternoon, the Little Helpers gathered at St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill for the fourth annual service and party.

The little guests, accompanied by their mothers or grandmothers, were welcomed by Mrs. Robert J. Davis, secretary of St. Margaret's "Little Helpers" branch and her assistant, Mrs. W. Todd.

The rector, the Rev. L. Arthur Page, conducted the service, during which the children deposited their mite boxes in a decorated basket on the chancel steps. This offering was dedicated to the work of the missionaries.

The children joined in singing the hymns "Jesus Bids Us Shine" and "Jesus Loves Me," accompanied by Mrs. L. A. Page at the organ.

A story in colored slides was presented by Mr. Page. It was entitled "Who Are Little Helpers and What Do They Do?" and told the story of Valerie, a Little Helper, whose mother explained where the pennies from the mite boxes are used.

During a brief intermission, Mrs. Todd conducted an action game entitled "Ten Little Helpers". This was followed by a second film entitled "Jesus, the Friend of Children."

PROMOTION CARDS

Four of the children, who had reached their seventh birthday, were presented with promotion cards by Mrs. Davis. They were Claire Watson, Dipne Stovin, Eric Davis and Neil Brown.

The leader of the Junior W.A., Mrs. D. Allan, invited the girls to this organization and briefly outlined the work of the Junior W.A. to the gathering.

The children then gathered around flower-centred tables for chocolate milk, fruit bread, cookies and ice cream. The ladies also enjoyed tea prepared and served by the members of the W.A. under the leadership of the president, Mrs. C. Karkheck.

Weddings

ASHLEY—WARD

A lovely fall wedding was solemnized on Saturday, September 17, at high noon, in Tabernacle United church, Bellleville, when Shirley Madeline Ward of Madoc, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard E. Ward, became the bride of Donald Grant Ashley of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Ashley. The Rev. R. A. Rowley, pastor of the church, officiated before fall bouquets of white gladioli and asters, spersed with ferns. White satin bows marked the guest pews.

Miss Vivienne Fowler, LRSM, (London) church organist, rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Beverley Shaw, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love".

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Leonard Ward, the bride was lovely in a pure white bridal gown of nylon tulle, Chantilly lace, and satin, fashioned with molded bodice having a Chantilly lace yoke buttoned down the front, and tiny, upstanding collar, the long, sheath-like sleeves ending in illy-pointed over the wrists. The bouffant floor length skirt of satin was caught with tulle, and her cathedral-length veil of scalloped, tulle illusion was held by a white pill-box enercusted with sequins and seed pearls. She carried an arm bouquet of American Beauty roses, tied with white satin ribbon.

Miss Vivian Donovan of Belleville, as maid of honor, was gowned in misty blue taffeta over an underskirt of nylon net in waltz length, fashioned with fitted sleeveless bodice with portrait neckline accented by a satin folded scarf of net. She wore a matching halo headdress of ruching and net, and carried a nosegay of yellow, mauve and white 'mums centred by a single yellow rose.

Miss Patricia Plane of Madoc, and Miss Helen Ashley of Belleville, were senior and junior bridesmaids, respectively, to the former in mauve and the latter in green, fashioned on similar lines of taffeta and nylon net with fitted front buttoned bodices having long sleeves and Peter Pan collars. The waltz length skirts were enhanced by bands of lace pointed at front and back. They wore matching floral bandeaux of net, and carried nosegays of yellow, pink, white and green-tinted 'mums tied with rainbow-hued ribbon.

Little Miss Jane Ashley, cousin of the bridegroom, was a sweet flower girl, frocked in pale pink nylon net over taffeta, featuring a tiered skirt of frills, tiny frilled puff sleeves and miniature frilled collar. She wore a little matching floral headdress and carried a tiny nosegay of variegated 'mums.

Mr. Warner Rice of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, and the ushers were, Messrs. Harold Ashley of Niagara Falls, N.Y., Ray Ashley and Douglas Wareham, both of Belleville.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at the church parlors. The bride's mother, attired in a light grey ensemble, with navy accessories, and corsage of mauve and white 'mums, received, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a light brown ensemble with moss green accessories and corsage of yellow 'mums.

For the wedding trip to the Eastern United States, the bride chose a grey suit with peacock blue hat and scarf;- grey patent shoes and purse, and red rose corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Ashley will reside in Belleville.

Guests were present from Niagara Falls, N.Y., Madoc and Belleville.

St. Julien I.O.D.E. Sponsors Bridge; Fashions

A successful bridge and fur and millinery fashion show was held in the Odd Fellows' Hall by the St. Julien Chapter IODE, on Wednesday evening. The guests were welcomed by the Regent, Mrs. L. B. Fonger.

Mrs. Harold Bateman won the high prize for bridge, Mrs. Jean Smoke, second - prize, Miss Olive Innes, low prize, Mrs. W. W. Shand won the euchre prize.

While a delicious luncheon was being served the fur fashions were shown. Mrs. J. E. Forrester as commentator gave fine descriptions of the lovely fashions.

The hats for this season are either deeper, covering most of the hair, or brief, showing practically all of the new fall hairdo's.

The fabrics are velour, velvet, beaver-like, merri-sole, fur-felt, feather, satin and sequin. The colors that are complimentary to the season's loveliest furs are black, brown, avocado green, beige, pink, mink, winter white, coffee, red, grey, ice blue and pure white. Famous names in millinery such as Stetson, Tallored by Okun, Biltmore, Lady Beatrice and Betmar, were among the collection.

"Little Furs" such as jackets, capes, and stoles have become most important in the wardrobe of every well-dressed woman.

One of the feature jackets was of a fine quality, Fouke dyed cape seal skin. This is one of the more extreme styles of the 1955 season, that indicates a trend in future fur fashions. The back is quite roomy. There are cuts in the sides. The collar is a narrow shawl and the sleeve is tailored back and is finished with a small cuff.

DRESSIER OCCASIONS

For dressier occasions the cape-jacket is also in evidence. One of these was shown in the new charcoal grey shade of northern muskrat flank. Another was of Russian Squirrel in a lovely shade of wood. It is lovely for any occasion where the well-dressed women appear.

Another was a choir-boy clutch-cape in fine New York dyed Russian squirrel. The deep collar is reminiscent of the choir-boy gown, from which the style derives its name. A lovely set of baum-martens in the most popular four skin arrangement was shown. A fur scarf in martens, minks, kolinsky, or sables completes the well-dressed appearance of any woman.

A full length coat of mink-dyed ranine back Eastern Ontario muskrat was shown by the junior model. The back of this coat has the new slenderizing panel with side flares. It also showed the new slenderizing lines in the-sleeves.

In the popular black-dyed Persian lamb was featured in a magnificent coat with a rippled back. A new collar with a deep notch in the back, new tapered sleeves and one of the new bright-line jings. A forty-inch model in black dyed Persian lamb had a softly rippled back, the collar in a small Johnny style, and the cuffs are called "flower-pot". Many more luxurious furs of all types were shown.

MODELS

The models who graciously showed these beautiful furs were: Mrs. Ed. Buchanan, Mrs. Gordon Vince, Mrs. V. R. Carrigan and Miss Margaret Ann Weddell.

The winners of the door prizes were Mrs. Cliff Clarke, Mrs. P. E. Hart, Mrs. Earl Hickey, Mrs. Mabel McDougall and Mrs. Fatterson of Stirling.

Noted Evangelists Draw Many To Y.F.C. Rally

One of the major highlights of the current Youth for Christ fall season, was exhibited in a stirring fashion on Thursday evening, by the talented Palermo Brothers of Minneapolis, Minn.

The meeting was held in the First Pentecostal church.

Taking advantage of the privilege were people present from West Huntingdon, Madoc, Redcersville, Plainfield, Enterprise, Picton, Selby, Hallowell, Stirling, Thomasburg, and Bowmanville, as well as Belleville.

Mr. Jim Blackwood, Y.F.C. director of this area, opened the service, after which Mr. Craig Corner led in a lively song service.

Host pastor for the evening, the Rev. A. L. Ellis of the First Pentecostal church, led in prayer, including a special remembrance of Phil Palermo's wife, who is undergoing major surgery.

Mr. Blackwood introduced to the audience Phil and Louis Palermo, TV, radio and recording artists. The delight of the congregation was quite evident as these consecrated Italian brothers played instruments on the guitar, bone, accordion, electric guitar and mandolin, accompanying themselves on such numbers as "I'm Drinking at the Springs of Living Water", "Lead Me", "Keep Your Mighty Hand on Me"; "And Can It Be That I Should Gain" and "Brothers in the Lord".

INTERNATIONAL TOURS

Mr. Phil Palermo spoke on their recent tours for YFC international, when they visited Italy, Japan, England, Ireland and Brazil. Of particular interest to the congregation were the references to the affect Billy Graham's London and Scotland campaigns had on North and South Ireland. He stated that there were more souls saved through the Billy Graham stations, than in the actual visible audiences. At the closing service of the Palermo brothers Ireland campaign, more than 50,000 persons were in attendance, with a 6,000 voice choir and included 2,500 shipyard workers who marched across the city en masse.

Speaking of their Italian campaign, he spoke of a young man who entered their YFC rally and there accepted the Lord as Saviour. Under the sponsorship of Billy Graham, this young man came to the United States and prepared himself for the ministry. Today he is pastor of an entirely Italian Protestant church in Niagara Falls, Ontario.

Mr. Palermo told the audience that the Youth for Christ organization is active in 79 countries of the world.

His Scripture text was Matthew 5:21 "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of My Father which is in heaven."

Speaking briefly, he exhorted every young person present to make Christ the "Power, Purpose and Pattern" in his or her life.

Thanks are due Mrs. Bev. Potter, who was pianist for the evening, and to all those who also participated.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

PARSONAGE WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am planning to have a very small informal wedding, in late November. Is it proper to have the wedding in my parents' home rather than in the parsonage?

2. Should we invite the minister to the dinner, or isn't this necessary? We are inviting only the closest relatives to the wedding and to the dinner . . . C.

1. Yes . . . if this is your wish, and if there is no church regulation against it.

2. Since you are inviting only closest relatives to the dinner, it is not necessary to invite the minister . . . and I am sure he would not accept to be invited.

PLANS FOR WEDDING UNDER UNUSUAL CIRCUMSTANCES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our daughter is to be married here, to this large city where my husband and I came to live seven years ago. The bridegroom and the groom - to - be this parents are dead) have never lived here, and our present circle of friends are mostly strangers to them. (All the bridegroom's relatives and friends live 200 or more miles from here.) Because of all these circumstances we intend to have an extremely simple wedding here, and the former parish priest will perform the ceremony at an early Mass. Present will be only bride and groom, the witnesses (best man and maid-of-honor), our daughter and V, perhaps an older couple, and possibly the father of the groom, if she can arrange to come. Afterwards we will have an intimate breakfast at a hotel here.

1. Under the circumstances I mention above, will it be correct to send formal announcements of the marriage? Is it correct to have them printed (I hope so in view of the quantity we need, at least 300)? And do I understand correctly that they should be sent out the day of the wedding?

2. Also, under these circumstances, would it be correct for us to announce the engagement in the newspapers here about three weeks before the wedding date, omitting the date, hour and place of the wedding, or should we mention these details?

3. At the wedding breakfast, what seating arrangement? The priest at my right and the best man at my left? Where the groom's sister, if she comes? Where the mistress of honor? The older couple seated side by side? My husband opposite me? — R.

1. Yes . . . the thing to do is to plan to send formal announcements of the marriage, a generous number, to all relatives and friends, possibly some acquaintances and neighbors, present, and former, probably to co-workers of the couple. The announcements should be engraved . . . not correct to have been printed. Since you have so very few wedding expenses, I hope you can have these engagement items done with perfection, so that all will be happy and proud to receive the news in this impressive way. The initial expense is in the engraving of the plate (you might choose Script, always in excellent and traditional taste, and less expensive than the shaded letters) . . . you will probably find that you will be able to order 200 for approximately the same price as 150, then you could include even more friends. And yes, they should be ready . . . engraved, addressed, stamped . . . so that they may be mailed immediately after the ceremony has been performed.

2. Yes . . announce the engagement when your daughter chooses to have it announced, three weeks before the wedding date if she wishes. Since there will be no invitations, she may wish to have the information published. Ask her too if she would like this announcement to the newspapers in the city where she now lives, and also the newspapers in the place where her fiance lives.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

SELECT SHOES WITH CARE — FOR BEAUTY'S SAKE

Choose shoes with care and there'll be no trouble about as you put on your next shopping spree.

This is the season of the year which most women find highly exhilarating. Why? Because it's a time for shopping—and what woman doesn't love to shop? First, of course, there are all the wonderful new fashions to clothe us and then there's furniture. It's the time of year when women are inspired to renovate everything—their homes, their wardrobe and their bomes (so, brisk as the fall air itself, they step out to prowl the stores, to window-shop, to return home laden with their fabulous treasures. But they won't get far if their feet hurt.

Downtrodden feet, forced into the wrong kind of shoes for trudging through miles of store aisles, take a merciless revenge. Not only do they take a beating in aches and pains, but they etch grim lines around the mouth and, worse still, conjure up an expression of long suffering. And gone is the appearance of sparkle and gaiety with which the shopping spree began.

You can, however, enjoy these sprees if you do your shopping in shoes built for walking. You will find that you tire less easily than in frivolous high heels with comfortable stitling most of the time, you can afford to spend your office hours in beautiful non-supporting shoes. But if you stand or walk as part of your job, you should be as finicky in the selection of shoes as a professional dancer. And, whichever your occupation, you should have shoes for pleasure. In the case of the sedentary worker, the pleasure shoes would, naturally, be for walking (if not for pleasure, then for health reasons). And, in the case of the active worker, there should be some indulgence in shoes that are the exact opposite of those they use in daily wear.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WAKE UP AND EARN

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm married to man who handles all the money. He pays rent, gas and electricity, insurance, etc. and gives me so much to spend on the table and so more. I have nothing left to call my own, and it's a pretty empty feeling to be broke all the time. But my husband thinks a woman doesn't need personal spending money. There's no use arguing with him. It does no good.

I can't go to work on the outside because I am not well, and I thought perhaps you would know of some way I could earn a couple of dollars a day at home.

Please don't tell me to get books at the library on how to start your own business at home, because I've done that already. But you can't start anything unless you have a little capital first, and I haven't one red cent I can call my own. — Mrs. D.

Dear Mrs. D.:

Before you're going to be able to earn even "a couple of dollars a day at home," I think you'll have to change your attitude a bit, and realize you've got in use your head, your imagination and your initiative to turn the trick. Nobody can drop work right into your lap. You'll first have to reckon up the things you already know how to do, and do well; then the things you might learn to do, and would like to do. Then you must find out if any of those things can find a market, and where.

You're pretty foolish, too, to dismiss "books at the library" so airily. I'm quite certain you have not studied many of them, if any at all, since you had, you'd know that, in them, you'll find stories of women who have earned money at home having "a second cent" as capital.

Let me ask you this: You say you're not well enough to go out to work. Are you really so unwell that you're unable to be a babysitter? That takes absolutely no capital except a little commonsense and dependability. If a schoolgirl can babysit, can't you?

On my desk at the moment are four books on how to make money at home. Let me quote you a few sentences from them:

"A simple sign in a window, "Mending Done," brought in callers to a Milwaukee widow."

"An eastern suburban village woman takes care of plants for people going away from home.

Confined to her home by a handicap, Mrs. M.F. "assumed responsibility of mailing Christmas and other greeting cards, as well as birthday, wedding and anniversary cards for a list of regular customers."

"If you are confined a good deal to your home, you may wish to earn money by selling via telephone."

"Without equipment or investment, a woman can start a personal packing service."

Still think it's useless to get books from the library on how to earn at home? Don't want me to tell you about the books from which I have just quoted, and which go on to tell just how women began, and made money from, the projects mentioned?

Well, that's your attitude, you're never going to get anywhere. But if you want to change your attitude, send a stamped, addressed envelope and I'll mail you a list of such books. Not only do they tell fascinating stories of earning money at home, but they explain just how it's done. Better think it over.

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I have followed your column . . . for some time and enjoy it . . . I have a problem—a friend from Nova Scotia is sending sixteen pounds of fresh lobster within the next week or two. We are having a family affair dinner when they arrive, as we all love it. I think I know how to cook them and remove the dark part, but what can I serve with it? We had lobster recently in a restaurant in the United States, and they had little paper cups of drawn butter. Do you know what this is? So much for the lobster!

I have a recipe for sweet gherkin pickle that I make every year. The first year they were superb. For the last four years they have shriveled and are quite soft. However my husband loves the flavor and insists that I make them each year. I have tried cutting down on salt in the brine, and also cut the sugar by one cup this year. They are still shrivelled. Would you have any suggestions? This is the recipe: 4 cucumbers, 4 red onions, 1 cauliflower. Scrub and soak in brine overnight. Bring to boil in 1 cup cider vinegar, 1-4 teaspoon powdered alum, 1 quart plus 3 cups water, drain and discard. Place pickles in crock. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon celery seed, mon buds and 10c allspice buds, 4 cups sugar. Bring solution to boil and pour over pickles three successive days.—Barbara B.

ANSWER:

The butter-dip for the lobster is melted butter and lemon juice. The proportions are usually 3 or 4 parts butter to 1 of lemon juice. Melt the butter over hot water and add the lemon juice before serving—add 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Double or triple the quantity for a large number of people and pass in a preheated pitcher. Melted butter is often served without lemon in it.

As I can see that you know, the case of shriveled pickles is too strong brine or too much sugar. It also can be too strong vinegar but one of the major causes of unsuccessful pickles is staleness. Cucumbers should be pickled within 24 hours of picking. (This is true of green tomatoes too.) Soft pickles are caused by too weak brine or adding salt directly to the brine during the curing process instead of placing it on a plate or a board above them or allowing cucumbers to be exposed above surface of brine, or using vinegar that is too weak, or overheating pickles in vinegar. Does that list of faults clarify your difficulty? As far as I can see your recipe is fine. The brine that they are first soaked in should be 1 cup salt to each 10 cups cold water. (A better step is to soak them 7 days in this and freshen in clear water 24 hours.)

If these suggestions do not improve your product write to me again. I am mailing you my recipe for Chunk Pickles which is similar to yours in finished product, except it does not call for cauliflower. These never shrivel or soften when cucumbers are vine-fresh.

FARMERS DON'T RECKON with real horsepower any more — a tractor can do the job better. Today's farm is an open-air factory with a specialized machine for every operation. And Canada's mechanized farming produces more food . . . and better food . . . for our needs at home and to ship abroad.

But to mass produce the many thousands of tractors, plows, combines, cultivators that are found on modern farms, manufacturers must be able to sell them by the thousands. Only by advertising can a manufacturer talk to thousands of farmers at the same time.

ADVERTISING TELLS the story of new farm machinery and equipment — and helps sell it. The more it sells, the more must be made — keeping the production lines and the jobs going. The result: newer, better farm machinery at prices more farmers can afford to pay. Advertising helped make the difference — in farming, and in our Canadian way of life.

Wellington On The Lake

THE LURE OF AUTUMN

Far beyond the fields and meadows
See the forest flags unfurled.
How their colors gleam and glimmer
Luring to a care-free world;
And the sunshine loves to linger
Where the trees are all ablaze;
And our gypsy pulses quicken—
Autumn calls to woodland ways.

And the watch we too is calling,
Calling us to seek the shore
Where in summer birds were thrilling
Feathered friends we see no more;
Playful waves to us beckon
Where the colored trees' look down
In the water's shining mirror
Glimpse their dress of red and brown.

So we'll heed the call of autumn,
Leave the duties of the day,
Joy in light and life and beauty,
While with them we can stay;
That when winter winds are wailing
Rivers voiceless, autumn flown,
Memory will hold a picture
Of the days we have known.

—Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON—The countryside, spent, indeed, under a brilliant foliage, is very beautiful at this season. It is not the vivid green of spring but a mellowed grace that comes sometimes to the human soul in later years. The woods lure the boys and girls to explore their depths and the highways to gorgeous hues beckon to the tourist. Let us enjoy the impressing cares and enjoy the beauty of autumn before the winter of our discontent.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Gibson are enjoying a motor trip through Northern Ontario.

INDIAN SUMMER

Along the line of smoky hills
The crimson forest stands,
And all the day the blue-jay calls
Throughout the autumn lands.

Now by the brook the maple leans
With all his glory spread,
And all the sumacs on the hills
Have turned their green to red.

Now by great marshes wrapt in mist
Or, put some river's mouth,
Throughout the long, still, autumn day
Wild-fowl are flying south.

TRENTON (Special) — A party of duck hunters from the Hamilton district had their experience cut short even before it started early today when their car went out of control near Carrying Place.

Four of the five men in the car were taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital, where two were admitted and two others treated as out patients.

Admitted to hospital with head injuries, cuts and bruises were James Bennett, 32, and Mervin Bakis, 21, with shoulder injury. Treated for cuts were Richard McDermott, 21, of Dundas, driver of the car, and Wilfred Lord, 30, also of Dundas.

Sudden Downpour Filled Sewers To Over-Flowing

TRENTON. (Special.) — Last night's sudden downpour of rain, which fell between 7 and 8, overflowing, caused flooding in the Victoria and Wilkins street districts, Trenton.

Sewers leading from Murray township and from the new building development area converge at this point and sufficient pressure is created by the flow in this area to a depth of about 18 inches. Trap doors held up until the water subsided.

Councillor Joseph Gould was Johnson Commissioner, and Gould rain donned his shorts and waded in with a rake to clear the catch basins to allow the water to drain away.

The area about Fraser Park and the town library was also flooded by the sudden downpour.

Garden Notes

Salvaging Plants for Winter

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Before killing frosts blacken garden greenery it is time to think of it in-doors for futurity's sake. Geraniums can be saved and be the source of bedding material for next year. Dig them up with a good clump of soil and pot them in old pails or tubs. Or, you can hang them upside down in a warm cellar. If you put them in tubs, or pots, and this is the best method, water sparingly. Once every two weeks, or less, will be enough if the basement is not too dry. Keep the plant alive but dormant. Do not encourage growth.

Do not put plants in the living-room or the bedroom. They have to be kept cool and not too dry. They will not be attractive much longer.

Along about the first of February make cuttings about six inches long. Plant in sand, five seeds or deep in rootsand, a rooting hormone which is quite inexpensive and excellent for rooting all kinds of cuttings. Or, water the soil, sand, or vermiculite in which you plant the cuttings with half a cup of vinegar to one quart of water at the time of planting.

ADJUST WELL

Small shabby plants will adjust better to outdoor conditions than large lush plants. Feed them after they are set out to encourage stocky plants. Do not be afraid to prune back any plant that becomes too straggly. In fact, it is best to nip back the tips of all growing plants. Repeat if necessary after the plants have been set out.

Small succulents, snapdragons and other annuals may be potted and brought indoors for blooming for several weeks. Select only small plants which developed late. Put them in the shade for a day or two until the plants have adjusted themselves to the change from sunny-window. Keep as cool as possible and water sparingly unless the house atmosphere is very dry. Remember their outdoor conditioning. Keep very well with a moderate amount of water this past dry summer.

Plant, say five, seeds of heavenly blue or Scarlet O'Hara morning glories in a large pot and keep watered until the plants sprout. They provide less moisture. Nip out center growth to keep plants dwarf. In a semi-sunny window you will have a good show of blooms for weeks.

Seaway Putting New York State's Forgotten North on Map

By RUSSELL ELMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MASSENA, N.Y. (CP)—The St. Lawrence seaway is putting New York state's "forgotten" north country on the map.

The north country, probably best known to Canadians living in central Canada than to most Americans, stretches along the south shore of the St. Lawrence river from Massena, near Cornwall, Ont., to the Thousand Islands.

Separated from the rest of the state by the Adirondack mountains, this rich dairy-farming land has been rather of the beaten track for vacationers. Apart from the Thousand Islands resort district, few facilities exist for tourists. Massena, one of the chief towns in the area, is still without a hotel.

Construction of the St. Lawrence seaway, however, is rapidly changing the picture. The traditionally conservative north country people, with the full backing of the New York state government, have gone out in a big way to attract tourists and publicize the seaway.

GREAT ATTRACTION

New York Governor Averell Harriman says: "The seaway and power development, together with the planned public parks, will constitute one of the great tourist attractions in the U.S."

After the seaway is completed in 1959, the north country is looking forward to an industrial development. Most of these plans, however, are still in the talking stage.

Meanwhile, the St. Lawrence Valley Association of Chambers of Commerce, representing Massena, Potsdam, Ogdensburg, Waddington and other north country communities, has begun an extensive promotion campaign. The association, for example, recently helped sponsor a tour of the seaway construction work for newspaper men from all over the eastern U.S. and Canada.

Massena, the closest town to the major part of the seaway construction, is paying careful attention to the needs of tourists. Offsetting the lack of hotel accommodation in town, motels are springing up in the outlying areas.

In summertime, the Massena Chamber of Commerce runs a tourist information centre catering particularly to Canadians, since Massena is considerably nearer Ottawa and Montreal than any large U.S. city.

Road-signs welcome the visitor to the district telling where to get seaway information and how to reach the specially-built observation points. Three overlook stations, with ample parking space, benches and refreshment stands, have been provided for tourists.

A vast improvement program, well underway, is quickening the pooling up of the north country. This year, New York state authorized $5,000,000 in highway development. Largest ever in the Massena area.

A considerable portion of a new highway linking Massena with Cornwall is already open to traffic and much of the remaining section has been graded.

Seaway Project Strike Enters Its Tenth Day

MONTREAL (CP) — The "marathon-meeting" walkout at trucking firms working on the St. Lawrence seaway moved into its 10th day Fri. despite court injunctions and a labor-board order to the union to send the men back to their jobs.

Union leader Paul Fournier added fuel to the seething dispute Thursday night by charging that Miron et Freres, the largest company involved, had given their drivers rifles.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Justice Andre Montpetit continued until Oct. 13 an interim injunction ordering truck drivers employed by Miron et Freres to refrain from obstructing or preventing workmen from going to their jobs.

Some 1,400 men are involved in the dispute, which has seriously affected work on the seaway.

"It is a shame and a real disgrace to see Canadians trying to kill one another over labor relations," Mr. Justice Montpetit said. "When unions must resort to these methods we've come to a sorry pass in labor matters."

Fourteen drivers have been arrested since the walkout started and there have been numerous reports of violence.

The union, which is seeking recognition by the companies, called its men away from Miron et Freres Sept. 28 to attend a "marathon meeting." Since then they have been joined by workers from W a l s h Construction, Desourdy, Ltd., Billet, Ltd., Beaudry et Fils, Concrete Ready Mix and Dominion Building Materials.

Fournier said Thursday night that he could not regard a telegram sent by the labor relations board ordering the union to send its men back to work as official.

"Generally speaking, we respect the board and agree with its decision but this time the board is wrong," he said. His behavior has been irrational. It did not act as it usually does."

NEXT WEEK IS FIRE PREVENTION WEEK in BELLEVILLE

FIREMEN CAN PUT OUT FIRES . . . BUT ONLY YOU CAN PREVENT THEM. CHECK YOUR HOME FOR FIRE HAZARDS NOW . . . TOMORROW MAY BE TOO LATE. FIRE IS NO RESPECTOR OF PERSONS . . . REMEMBER A LITTLE CARE NOW MAY SAVE A LOT OF DAMAGE LATER.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance of Belleville, has issued the following statement:

"Don't Give Fire a Place to Start" is this year's slogan for Fire Prevention Week, and we here in Belleville will join with thousands of other communities across the country in observing Fire Prevention Week which Governor-General Massey has proclaimed for the week of October 9-15.

The aim of the Belleville Fire Department during Fire Prevention Week will be to sell everyone on the idea that fire prevention is a life and death matter; that each individual owes it to himself, to his family and his community to think and act fire safe every minute of the day the year round.

Fire Prevention week is the oldest and most widely observed of all special weeks; it traditionally includes the anniversary date of the Great Chicago Fire, which on October 9, 1871, took 250 lives and destroyed 17,450 buildings at a direct loss of over $168 million dollars.

Busy Program Is Arranged For Fire Prevention Week

BUSY PROGROM etc FIRE Page

To have everyone in the city "fire prevention conscious" next week during fire prevention week is the hope of Fire Chief Gerald Vance and city firemen.

The fire chief emphasizes that the 1955 national fire prevention week slogan "Don't give a fire a place to start," would eliminate a great percentage of the fires which annually take a big toll in lives and property.

A full week's program aimed at making city residents fire prevention conscious is planned with proclamations to be read from church pulpits on Sunday.

In the schools, children are being asked to write essays on fire prevention week and to draw posters, while in addition there will be fire prevention drill in all schools.

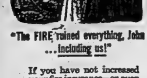
Wednesday evening there will be a parade at 7:30 with city bands and fire fighting equipment owned by the city department taking part.

Open house will be held every day and evening at the city's two firehalls with citizens invited to visit their local stations. The week will also include general inspection of the business district and industrial area and also inspection and fire drill at the Belleville General Hospital and inspection of factories.

Free inspections of residences which could possibly lead, to remedying conditions that might lead to a fire in the home, will also be carried out by the department on request by the tenant.

"Let's make every week fire prevention week" is the wish of every fireman.

CHECK HOMES FOR HAZARDS



The best time to call-the fire department is before the fire. Fire hazards in the home can be controlled through good housekeeping practices and the members of the fire department will be happy to assist any householder who wants to learn exactly what's safe and what's not.

How to Save Yourself If Fire Starts

Fires on the farm and in the country take more than 500 Canadian lives annually. Many of these victims could have saved themselves—but they didn't know how. The Association of Canadian Fire Marshals and the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs gives this advice on how to save yourself from fire:

If you are trapped in a smoke-filled building, remember that the air is clearer near the floor. Protect your face from heat and flame.

Feel doors before opening them. If they are hot, deadly heat or flame may be on the other side. If you are trapped on an upper story, don't jump unless it is the last resort. It's a good idea to figure out a way of escape from each room before a fire occurs.

"The FIRE ruined everything, John ...Including us!"

If you have not increased your fire insurance—or even worse—if you have no fire insurance on the contents of your home, a serious fire could be disastrous, particularly since replacement costs are so high.

Eisenhower Passes Important 2-Week Milestone to Recovery

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

DENVER (AP)—President Eisenhower early today passed satisfactorily the most important milestone in his struggle for recovery. His progress was so heartening that his doctors approved his first major business conference since his heart attack Sept. 24—a foreign policy meeting next Tuesday with Secretary Dulles.

It was Saturday two weeks ago that the president awakened in pain at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. John S. Doud, around 2 a.m. His physician, Maj.-Gen. Howard M. Snyder, later reported that he had suffered a heart attack.

The passing this morning of the first two weeks, which physicians have described as the period of greatest danger after a seizure of coronary thrombosis, gave rise to hopes that the president may be able to flew to Gettysburg, Pa., within two weeks to begin a month of convalescence.

Vice-President Nixon was to fly in from Washington this afternoon for his first meeting with the president since Eisenhower's seizure, along with Dr. Paul Dudley White, Boston heart specialist; Maj. John Eisenhower, the president's son; and Sherman Adams, the president's chief deputy.

Dr. White, who examined the president especially after the attack, is returning for a new examination and a round of consultations with bedside doctors.

It will be on the basis of these consultations that decisions will be made on the extent to which Eisenhower may gradually increase his schedule of conferences.

The conference, in the president's sickroom at Fitzsimons Army hospital, will centre around the agenda for the Geneva meeting of foreign ministers which Dulles will attend Oct. 27. Topics such as unification of Germany, European security, disarmament and increased East-West contacts are on the agenda.

Nixon's visit is described here as more social and personal than anything else. Doctors have ruled out any discussion of controversial or complicated problems of any nature for the time being.

Disarmament Sub-Committee Adjourns for Geneva Parley; West Is Cautious in Praise

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The UN disarmament sub-committee adjourned Friday night until after the Geneva foreign ministers conference. Western delegates were cautious in their appraisal of what had been accomplished at the meetings here, which lasted more than five weeks.

Canada's Health Minister Martin said that although the gap between East and West remains considerable, "on the major elements of a comprehensive disarmament plan we are no longer faced by irreconcilable proposals."

Martin expressed "some regret," however, that greater progress had not been made. He criticized Russia for making "no agreeable advance" on its May 10 disarmament proposals.

Jules Moch of France openly criticized the sub-committee for its "insufficiency of achievement." One of the reasons he gave for lack of progress was the multiplicity of plans the sub-committee had before it.

Britain's Anthony Nutting said that while progress had not been great the meetings were marked by an absence of propaganda that represented a significant advance over previous discussions.

Harold Stassen, President Eisenhower's disarmament envoy, said there were hopeful signs.

Stassen announced the composition of a nuclear task force which the United States has established as a means of developing nuclear weapons. He said the group will include some of the most distinguished nuclear physicists in the U.S. and will be headed by Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, director of the University of California radiation laboratories.

Nutting proposed that a group of scientists from Canada, Britain, the United States, France and Russia be set to work trying to find a way of detecting clandestine storage of such weapons.

Martin said it was encouraging that there has been no appreciable advance on the Soviet side from what is substantially the position outlined in their May 10 proposals."

There included a demand for outright prohibition of the use of nuclear weapons and a plan to establish arms inspection posts at key communications centres.

The United States has given qualified approval to the nuclear ban—provided it does not apply in cases of defence against aggression. Russia says such aggression would have to be determined by the security council, where it holds a veto.

At sub-committee meetings, Martin pressed Russia's Arkady Sobolev on how much freedom the Soviet - proposed inspection teams would have. He has said he did not get a satisfactory reply.

Martin said Friday night "certain hard scientific facts" throw doubt on the practicability of guaranteeing a complete prohibition and elimination of nuclear weapons now. However, scientists have changed the situation. "We might even now devise a comprehensive disarmament program providing for a very substantial easement of the threat of nuclear weapons."

Concluding, he said, "We have now, I should hope, completed the exploratory period and the time for detailed examination and substantial confrontation is . . . immediately before us."

Early Agreement On Relief Help Seen Probable

OTTAWA (CP) — Early agreement between the federal government and at least eight of Canada's 10 provinces on unemployment assistance is seen probable.

Talks on unemployment relief, in conjunction with the federal-provincial fiscal conference, ended Friday with a federal informant reporting only Ontario and Quebec still are a bit cool to the federal plan.

This entails the national treasury assuming half the cost of jobless relief in any province when its unemployment reaches .45 per cent of its population.

It was learned that Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island also may have installed a draft agreement along these lines and that Alberta has given its okay, subject to some minor changes.

OPPOSE BASIC CHANGES

Most official provinces signified at this week's talks that they intend to join if certain changes—not basic—are made in the plan.

Ontario wants a 50-cents-per-capita payment from Ottawa before what the central government is willing to contribute towards the cost of relief for those not covered by unemployment insurance.

Quebec was reported promised to say shortly whether it will sign an agreement.

Changes suggested by provinces will be considered by the cabinet and federal sources said, so final agreements may be effected before the start of winter's seasonal unemployment. There were indications the federal proposal would remain substantially intact after the cabinet deliberations.

Many Harbors Are Competing To Get in on Shipping Boom

By RUSSELL ELMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MASSENA, N.Y. (CP) — The shores of the St. Lawrence river and Lake Ontario have become New York state's new coastline.

Half a dozen harbors are competing to get in on the expected shipping boom when the St. Lawrence seaway is completed in 1959.

Oswego, oldest freshwater harbor in the U.S. and once one of the busiest, is already expanding its facilities on the Great Lakes, is already exporting and importing.

This Lake Ontario port at the head of the New York state barge canal will handle in 1955 some 4,000,000 tons of cargo, mostly grain, oil and coal. About 1,000,000 tons of coal will pass through Oswego from the Pennsylvania coalfields en route to Canada. A port authority, headed by Arthur Mengel, Oswego shipping expert for Republic Steel Corporation in Cleveland, has been set up to co-ordinate harbor development. Oswego's six-award grain terminal, with 1,000,000-bushel capacity, was recently opened to ships of foreign as well as domestic registry. It is the only terminal east of Syracuse, largest city in central New York. Oswego has a rich historical past. Three railroads serve the port.

About 35 miles west of Oswego on Lake Ontario is Sodus bay, possibly the finest natural harbor on the lake. Here the port authority has announced plans for a shipside road dock, through which some 2,000,000 tons of coal are shipped annually. In possible anticipation of future development when the seaway opens, the authority and private interests have acquired large holdings in the area.

The large manufacturing city of Rochester also has a small port, along the Genesee river.

Arrest 4 of Peron's Aides, Demand Paraguay Oust Him

By BRUCE HENDERSON

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Juan D. Peron, Argentina's deflated dictator, today sought refuge in Paraguay as a controversial exile in neighboring Paraguay. The new Argentine government is demanding that Paraguay eject him out of South America because of his political remarks.

And in the drive to call other Americans of the old regime to a stern accounting, the provisional government Friday arrested four of Peron's ministers and 10 generals as they left asylum in foreign embassies.

Rear Adm. Armando Mendez San Martin, who as education minister spearheaded the Peronista campaign against the Roman Catholic Church, left the Uruguayan embassy and gave himself up.

WENT TO MINISTRY

Jorge Antonio, who is reported to have made a quick fortune during the regime of his friend Peron, also walked out of the Uruguayan embassy and drove to the interior ministry, where army and navy officials arrested him.

The government had denied Antonio a safe-conduct pass to exile, charging him with "common offenses" which could lead to life in prison on conviction.

Paraguayan authorities held a two-hour top-level session Friday in Asuefon on Argentina's demand that Peron be expelled from Paraguay. There was no immediate announcement of a decision.

Britain and U.S. Mistrusted, So Malay Says Canada Holds Key to Problems of World

SASKATOON (CP)—A Malayan serving as a student executive in Canada says this country holds the key to the world's future.

Lewis Perinbam, executive secretary of World University Service in Canada, said here Friday night Britain is mistrusted because of past behavior, and that many people mistrust the United States because of economic imperialism.

Speaking to 45 students and professors representing nearly 30 universities and colleges, Mr. Perinbam said that Canada, with tremendous resources and freedom from blame is in a position "to provide the key to the solution of the international problem."

Delegates are in the second day of their three-day 10th-annual conference. Committee meetings and round-table discussions continue today.

CAUGHT IN WEB

Mr. Perinbam said: "We must get Canadian students involved in the progress of the world—caught up in the web of humanity—until they realize they do not really exist except in terms of other people."

Outlining the activities of WUS, particularly in Asia, he said:

"We must realize that ultimately the fate of the world lies in the hands of these people. They will be the leaders and the decision as to how they lead their people can be profoundly affected by the kind of help they receive from Canadians and others who are so well off.

"It is useless for us to talk of defending or protecting democracy. What we must do is to extend and strengthen it wherever we can."

World University Service this summer will exchange students and the Caribbean. Five students will study in Britain on WUS scholarships.

States Britain Gets No Credit For Wise Policy

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Longmore said Thursday night it was Britain's policy to grant self-government to colonies and protectorates as soon as the nationals were capable of taking over.

Sir Arthur, visiting Montreal in connection with the work of the Imperial war graves commission of which he is vice-chairman, told the Royal Empire Society that Britain has "never received credit or recognition for her colonial policy."

"Members of the Empire Society resent the derogatory remarks of leaders of newly-independent countries, who speak so ungratefully of their 'struggle for freedom' and their 'delivery from depression'," he said. "They forget the many years of wise British rule, the training their leaders have received, the financial assistance they have been given."

Sir Arthur said British rule is "still necessary as a necessary stabilising factor.

TROUBLES

"In Burma, it was Britain which maintained the balance between the rival tribes of the north and south. When self-rule was rushed there, the two factions clashed. It is important that the country is now in a state resembling civil war.

"The situation in Cyprus is even more explosive. In all the solution to turn the island over to the Greeks, the question' of Greco-Turkish minorities is ignored. If Britain abandoned Cyprus, as she is being urged to do, the Turks and Greeks would be at each other's throats in a fortnight, or sooner."

NOBODY WAS CURIOUS

NEW YORK (AP)—A man left $190 on a subway seat Friday and —maybe you won't believe this— it was still there after the train had travelled nearly the length of Manhattan. Max Rosenthal accidentally left behind an envelope containing the funds as he was changing trains. He frantically notified subway officials, who sent word ahead to check the train.

BONUS RETRIEVED

PLAINVIEW, N. Y. (AP)—Mrs. Helen Tomko bought two heads of cabbage at a supermarket Friday and got a big gift bonanza. She had barely reached her car before three store employees came racing after her to retrieve a small package mistakenly dropped in her grocery bag. It contained $6,000 in store receipts.

LEAVES HOME IN STYLE

DETROIT (AP)—A 12-year-old boy who was scolded for a bad report card ran away from home Friday—in his father's Cadillac. Police, checking reports of an erratic driver on the highway, found the boy propped behind the steering wheel on a pillow, his eyes barely above the level of the dashboard.

St. Croix River Study Proposed By Joint Board

OTTAWA (CP). — The International joint commission, whose task is to settle disputes arising over use of waters flowing between Canada and the United States, has concluded its semi-annual meeting with one new reference and several old ones still to be carried out.

The new job, which the commission announced at the end of its week-long meeting here, is a study of the St. Croix river along the New Brunswick-Maine boundary.

A six-man engineering board will meet later this month in Fredericton and Augusta, Me., to plan preliminary strategy for the investigation, aimed at making better use of the river's resources.

Meanwhile the commission found no unity for Canadian and American views on the eventual use of the Columbia river in the West.

WOULD DIVERT RIVERS

Canada currently is studying the economic feasibility of a plan to divert the Kootenay river into the Columbia at one point in British Columbia and the Columbia into the Fraser at another as a means of developing hydro-electric power on the Pacific slope.

Len Jordan, head of the commission's U.S. section, said Canada would result in "very great injury" to U.S. interests downstream in the states of Washington and Oregon.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, head of the Canadian section, said it would not result in injury. There the case rests. The commission statement said studies of the Columbia will continue "to reach an understanding on the problems of mutual concern and benefit."

The commission expressed great satisfaction that vessels plying the Detroit river in the Windsor-Detroit area now pull out their objectionable smoke pots when they are out of the time they spend in the neighborhood—about 50.7 per cent as they did in 1950.

WOMEN PERKING UP

TOKYO (AP) — Red China's women are looking a bit more chic these days, a visitor reports. "I was agreeably surprised," said Shirley Caren, Ceylon's minister of commerce, trade and fisheries. "There was a definite trend . . . to more feminine attire . . . a greater inclination toward use of cosmetics and makeup."

GETS MARRIAGE VIEWS

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — An informed source reports Lord Home, Britain's Commonwealth minister, will discuss next Friday to discuss with Prime Minister Bandaranaike's attitude to the possible marriage of Princess Margaret to Group Capt. Peter Townsend. Lord Home is making a tour of Commonwealth countries.

WANTS RUSSIA TO PAY

LONDON (AP) — Adrian M. Conan Doyle, son of the creator of Sherlock Holmes, says the Russians owe the Doyle family $1,400,000 in unpaid royalties. Doyle said 10,000,000 copies of his father's books have been published in Russia over the last few years, and that it has all been "quite unauthorized." He said Holmes is extremely popular in the U. S. S. R.

Freak Accident Killing One Will Be Probed

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — An inspector from the department of transport will meet with local CNR officials to launch an investigation into the freak accident of a freight engine near Ingersoll Friday.

Pritchard was killed after jumping to the rails after a side rod connecting two sets of drives wheels broke off, pierced the firebox and released steam into the cab.

Laur was still on the critical list in hospital here, while Campbell was in "good" condition in Ingersoll Hospital.

Campbell told his attending physician that when the steam blew into the cab he felt someone brush past him and leap.

He said that had been his first impulse too, instead he found his door open, grabbed an arm rest and scrambled between the cab and tender.

RETURNED TO CAB

He said he clung there precariously with hands, chest and face scalded, until the steam in the cab began to thin out. Then he climbed in, fell across to the engineer's side and grabbed the brake lever.

The train stopped a few car lengths short of the Ingersoll station.

W. H. Hughes, master mechanic of the London district, will head the investigation into the cause of the accident.

"In all my 40 years of railroading," Mr. Hughes said, "this is the first time I've ever seen an accident of this kind. It certainly was a freak.

"When the broken rod went down it struck the ties and bounced upward, flying backwards and forward as the wheel moved forward," he said.

"It ripped along the boiler and back into the firebox, punching a hole through the heavy steel casing. Steam gushed through the hole, through the firebox and into the cab."

Mr. Hughes said that engine parts, including side rods such as the one that cracked, are removed every three months thoroughly cleaned and tested for cracks.

Wants Reckless Drivers Reported

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney General Roberts said today motorists should report instances of "flagrant disobedience" of traffic laws to his office in a bid to reduce the number of highway accidents.

He said that, although the information could not be used to lay charges, the law breakers could be warned and then watched in future.

Provincial police patrol cars will be concentrated on the most dangerous Ontario highways as another step to cut down the increasing death toll on highways, he said.

Chihawks Joy Brief; Rangers Give Notice With 7-4 Victory Over Birds

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THE HOLIDAY

So now for the longish week-end. A lot of you guys and gals took off last night. Be careful and see that you come back in one piece Monday night or Tuesday morning. Which reminds me of the item seen on the rear of a fortune's truck which read: "Go ahead and pass me. Remember, the next load may be for you."

So happy hunting, fishing, footballing, hockeying or just plain loafing. Whatever you do, be careful. You can break your leg in the dining room as well as on a highway. It's far better to read your friends notice in the social or sports column than have your friends notice it in the obituary section. You're a long time dead. Don't extend the limit.

* * *

MUCH ADO!

He was a grey-thatched Queen's alumnus. There was a silver sheen on his well-thatched noggin' but from bright eyes there reflected the red, gold and blue of his old Alma Mammy.

He stroked a stubbled chin, and a smile crept slowly over his face. We waited. Not for long.

"I know," he said, "the newspapers have been full of squibs, cracks and columnar stuff about this guy, Gus Bracia, the quarterback bunny the cute Gaels pulled out of a last-minute hat."

He flicked a long ash from an expensive looking stogy. The smile broadened. "I'm wondering," he began, "just who will benefit most by the ex-Temple player's appearance with Queen's."

Before we could interrupt he held up a hand. "Just a minute," he said hastily, "I will admit the Gaels have the benefit of a quarterback who stands out as the best in the college union. But," and he hesitated to expand the smile into a wide-faced grin, "Who grabbed the publicity glory—and the big gates that likely will follow it."

"Five gate you ten," he said bravely, without a quiver in his voice, "that Varsity capitalizes to the utmost on the pre-game fuss about Gus. The Blues' Stadium will likely be a-humpin' this afternoon when the much-touted Gus appears with the Gaels."

"And why?" He asked himself the question.

"Because the canny Varsity front office, seconded by McGill and Redmen publicity relations hounds jumped on the Bracia tidbit with all the abandon of a hungry fox on an unsuspecting but fat feathered bidder. It was right down their alley. And they made the most of it."

According to the blurbs coming out of Toronto, London and Montreal, Bracia is a superman who is a Red Grange, Doak Walker, Doc Blanchard and Glen Davis, all wrapped in one quarterback bundle. That may be an exaggeration, but Bracia's performance against McGill gave the Reds the blues, the Blues, a problem, and the Mustangs a touch of the heaves."

"The front office of the Universities of Toronto, Western Ontario and McGill, unwittingly or not, aided and abetted the publicity fuss exploded by public relations men. Staid professors, eh, so genteelly, brought up the question of eligibility. But with tongue in cheek, it appears, because an edition or so later, they were quoted as saying that Queen's authorities were in full knowledge of the eligibility rules and no doubt abided by them."

"Cute, eh," he smiled through a spiral of stogy smoke.

"But the fact remains," he went on, "that the Bracia incident has given intercollegiate football turnstiles a whirl that should turn them dizzy. Frank Tyndal may have made a tenstrike with the acquisition of the Temple star—and may come up with the ultimate champions. To use an Asquithian pun, 'Wait and see!'

"Varsity, McGill and Western acknowledge the out-of-the-blue backfield strength Mr. Tyndal pulled out of the hat. You can bet your final year in college they will go all out to turn back the Tricolor on the gridiron. And probably before record crowds. If they succeed, all well and good. I don't think they will. If they don't they will look back to the best "gate" season in many a year."

He tossed away the moist remains of the stogie. His parting shot was: "And all because a coaching Santa Claus named Tyndal decorated his own tree, and generously tossed an attendance package into the stockings of the rest of the college family."

BASEBALL QUERY

"Midget"— In answer to your query: The moment a long fly ball touches the outfielders' glove, the runner from third can race for the plate. The runner must tag up until the ball is caught, touched or dropped by the fielder. If the case you state is correct, the umpire was definitely wrong in his decision.

Blues Sparkle in First Win With Brilliant Offensives; Leafs Host Detroit Tonight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Maybe that Chicago victory over Detroit was a sort of a flash in the pan.

The Black Hawks barely had time to pat themselves on the back for defeating the high-powered Detroit Red Wings 3-2 in a National Hockey League opener Thursday night when up came New York Rangers.

Rangers, with left winger Ron Murphy scoring three goals, overhauled a Chicago lead Friday night and went on to win 7-4.

The Ranger win, before 5,980 fans at Chicago Stadium, was impressive and gave Phil Watson his first NHL victory as a coach. The former Ranger great was appointed coach last summer, succeeding Muzz Patrick, now general manager.

Murphy was riding high in the engagement. He scored his third goal-period goal and added one in each of the second and third frames. Linemate Andy Bathgate picked up a goal and four assists to jump into first place in the league's individual scoring race.

GOT TWO EACH

Forwards Bronco Horvath, Dean Prentice and defenceman Bill Gadsby were the other New York marksmen. George Sullivan and Johnny Wilson each scored twice for Chicago.

Lorne (Gump) Worsley, Ranger goaltender, backed the team, defensively as he kicked out 42 Black Hawk shots. Al Rollins made 26 saves in the Chicago nets.

Horvath's goal at 10:07 of the second period proved the decider as Rangers moved into first place. Sullivan and Wilson gave Hawks a 2-1 lead early in the period but Murphy and Prentice scored Rangers' fourth goal at 19:24 of the middle session.

Bathgate and Gadsby made it 6-2 minutes into the third before Sullivan and Wilson scored Hawks' final goals. Murphy closed out the scoring at 17:43.

The league heads into its first weekend of activity tonight. Boston is in Montreal and Detroit opens Toronto's home season.

'Lawless' Favored In Rich Futurity Stakes

NEW YORK (AP)—Lawless may bring Virginia its first Belmont Futurity since 1894 today if he can overcome an unfavorable No. 1 inside-post position.

Fourteen colts and a speedy filly were entered in the rich classic for two year olds that could produce a big horse for the 1956 Kentucky Derby.

Probable favorite at 5 to 2 in the 6½ furlong dash is the C. V. Whitney entry of Career Boy and Head Man, two of the 10 stakes winners in the classy field.

Then, there are such highly regarded juveniles as Mrs. Amos Bigelow's Nail, the Maine Chance Farm's Busher Fantasy, Elmendorf Farm's Prince John and the lone filly Doubledodgdare from the Claiborne Farm.

Lawless is a brown son of By Jimminy-Little Rebel, from the Brookmeade stable of Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, Upperville, Va. Horsemen were giving him special attention because heavy rains have left the track sloppy, conditions the Brookmeade colt favors.

If all 15 start, this 6th Futurity will be the second richest with a gross purse of $135,125, the winner netting $100,425.

Frank Boucher Heads New Regina Regals

By DON HANRIGHT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

REGINA (CP) — At the helm of Regina Regals, 55 - year - old Frank Boucher finds himself in a professional hockey post that has not been used for 30 years.

Part of his job as manager-coach will be selling this city of 80,000 the high-class senior hockey it last enjoyed in 1925. But with 10 veterans in the New York Ranger fold, he says he can count his troubles —all small—on one hand.

Regals, new entry in the Western Hockey League, were pieced together by Boucher and owner Jim Piggot of Saskatoon. A half-dozen veterans form the core. The rest Boucher ranks as amateurs.

"I made out better than I expected in getting players, considering we have no major league ties," he says. "We'll do all right. In fact, I'm sure we'll make a darn good showing."

SALES POOR

Meanwhile, Regina's ticket agencies report season-tickets sales "going very poorly." So far, they've sold only 20. But Boucher is confident sales will pick up after the football season.

In addition, Regina fans have a well-established penchant for junior hockey. Regina Pats, who boast one of the few all-homebrew lineups in the Western Junior Hockey League, will be back rocking the good support they've had in the past.

Canadian Yacht Wins First

RYE, N.Y. (CP) — Bunting Crocker finished first in his yacht Flare to give the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto a 1-0 lead in a best-of-three international sailing series against the American Yacht Club of Rye.

The Canadians, sailing in 210-class boats instead of their usual dragon class, also took fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh place in the seven-race windward-leeward-windward race on Long Island sound.

Two more races will be sailed today and if necessary the final two of the series will take place Sunday.

Argos Change Ford For New Model

TORONTO (CP) — Henry Ford, backfield star this week by Cleveland Browns, was signed Friday night by Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union.

To make way for Ford, a 190-pounder, and tackle Cas Wituski, who joined the Seamen last week, Argos have asked waivers on import halves Howard Graves and Jim Shirley, and Jack Harper of Toronto.

"I honestly don't know how they (Cleveland) could cut him," Swiacki said. "I saw him against Green Bay Packers in an exhibition game and he was great. He's an excellent runner and excellent on short passes. He's good on pass defence and every punt. He was returning all the punts and kickoffs for Cleveland."

"Just a Kid" Riders Give Cold Shoulder To Verbal Blast of Ex-Coach

Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Executives of Ottawa Rough Riders have given the cold shoulder to a verbal blast by John Idzik, released last Monday as backfield coach of the Big Four Football Union club.

Idzik said in an interview Friday night that the club, in effect, fired the head coach when it released him after Riders were humiliated 40-0 before their home fans by Hamilton Tiger-Cats last Saturday.

Generally, when a football club loses by a 40-0 score they fire the head coach," Idzik said. "Well, in my case they did fire the head coach."

He added that, in his opinion, Chan Caldwell was head coach in name only.

CALDWELL TALKS BACK

Although club president Dave Gill and general manager J. P. (Jim) McCaffrey declined comment on Idzik's outspoken remarks, Caldwell was not so silent.

"The statements he (Idzik) made show more plainly than anything I can say why he was dismissed," the freshman head coach said.

Idzik, released with more than a year to go on his two-year contract, said he was brought to Ottawa from Tennessee by Caldwell to set up the club's split-T formation and offence and defence systems.

"Then Caldwell decided to make changes and they they backfired. I was made the goat," said the 29-year-old former Maryland quarterback, last year coach of the "B" team at Tennessee where Caldwell was an end coach.

Caldwell, 35, saw it this way: "Instead of trying to help deliver an effective offence for the team, the job for which he was hired, Idzik was constantly engaged in promoting his exaggerated ideas of his own greatness.

"He is a kid with only one year's coaching experience. We will just have to overlook him.

DETAILED REPORT

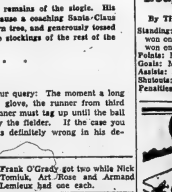
"Action speaks louder than words. After the season, I'll be glad to give a detailed list of his intolerable actions, but right now I am too busy trying to win some football games, which is tough enough as it is."

Last Monday, Gill said Idzik and Caldwell had not been getting along and that it was in the best interests of the club to dispense with Idzik's services.

McCaffrey said then that two weeks previous the club's co-captains, import guards Pete Ladzo and Dick Barwegan, asked him and the club directors to patch the difficulties on the coaching staff.

He said the two players said they represented the 32 players but did not take sides. They only wanted the difficulties ironed out.

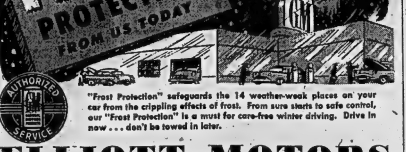
"If people think I'm being sour grapes," Idzik said, "let them watch the rest of the schedule for the repercussions.



"Fans who watched the practices know who ran the drills while Caldwell talked to the directors of the club."

Wolves Defeat Dutchies 5-1

SUDBURY (CP) — Sudbury Wolves, guided by new coach John (Peanuts) O'Flaherty, defeated the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 5-1 in an exhibition hockey game before 3,874 fans here Friday night.



The Allan Cup champions led 1-0 after one period on a goal by Pete Kowalchuk but a 10-hour bus ride told on them after that. The bus ran into a traffic snarl on a piece of washed out road near North Bay and the Dutchmen arrived an hour late for the game. The Wolves repelled with four goals in the second period and another in the third.

Frank O'Grady got two while Nick Tomiuk, Art Rose and Armand Lemieux had one each.

"I believe Mabel would be an excellent bowler if only she could throw the ball a little faster!"

A Guy Can Dream

Double Win for Argos, Riders Will Create Four-Team Tie

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eastern Canada's biggest football weekend comes up today with seven games on tap and Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders facing two encounters that could be like key to their playoff hopes.

These two teams, tied for third place with only two wins in nine starts, are on the spot in the Big Four as the league heads into the last half of the schedule. A double loss for either club could spoil the road to the third and last playoff spot a long uphill struggle.

Over in the Senior Intercollegiate League the crucial stage hasn't been reached yet but Golden Gaels and the University of Toronto Blues will be battling for first place today. The three-team Ontario Rugby Football Union has developed into a two-club race between Sarnia Imperials and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

There'll be action today and Thanksgiving Day in the Big Four with none-another-for doubleheaders. In the college loop there'll be two games today and in the ORFU the only game this weekend will be played Thanksgiving Day.

Here are the games:

ORFU: Monday—Toronto Beach at Sarnia.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Montreal Alouettes, tied for the Big Four lead with four wins and two losses each, seem under the pressure that the Argos and Rough Riders face. The Ti-Cats and Tiger-Cats have a four-point lead over the other two teams.

A double loss for both Argos and Rough Riders this weekend would definitely establish the league with two divisions with Montreal and Hamilton battling it out for first place and Ottawa and Toronto struggling for the final playoff spot in the remaining five games.

The winner of the game between Queen's and the University of Toronto Blues will take over undisputed possession of the top rung in the Intercollegiate loop.

Toronto Beaches, playing their traditional Thanksgiving Day game against Sarnia, will be seeking their first win in eight games. The Imps are in second place in the ORFU six points behind the league-leading Dutchmen.

CANADIAN DRIVER DIES

PINEHURST, N.C. (CP) — Vic Fleming, a Canadian and one of the world's best golf drivers, died here Thursday.

Fleming, born in Dundas, was 60. He won most of the sport's major races. His greatest feat was piloting Billy Burke to a winning pacing record of 1:55 for a mile at Lexington, Ky.

Fleming retired as a driver in 1946, a few months after breaking his jaw and suffering other injuries in a spill at Delaware, Ohio. Since then he had been training trotters and pacers.

He lived in Syracuse, N.Y., after leaving Dundas and then Goshen, N.Y., while driving on the grand circuit.

The funeral service will be held Monday at Milton Funeral Home, Dundas.

LEAFS SIGN CATCHER

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the International-Basketball League Friday night announced the purchase of catcher Sam Hairston from Colorado Springs, Colo., of the Western International Association.

General manager Rudie Schaffer said it is the first move toward building the 1956 club. Leafs finished in second place this year, one-half game behind Montreal Royals. Rochester Red Wings knocked Leafs out of the league finals in four straight games.

Hairston, 30, batted .350 in 1955 and drove in 81 runs in 142 games.

Schaffer also said that pitcher Pete Poce has been sold to Colorado Springs, where he was transferred by Toronto prior to the start of the 1955 season.

WON'T HIRE GOLF PRO

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto's new public golf course, scheduled to open next July 1, will have no professional on its staff, the Metropolitan Toronto parks committee decided Friday.

After the committee visited four courses in the Toronto area, parks commissioner T.W. Thompson said: "A pro gets his profit from himself. He is given a shop for nothing and takes the profit for himself."

He said many pros refuse to work for municipal courses in any event because it takes them away from tournament play.

The committee also decided that, during the first year at least, the new course will have no membership list, no reserved starting times, and no sales of alcoholic beverages. The rate of fees still is to be set but they will be on a pay-as-you-play basis.

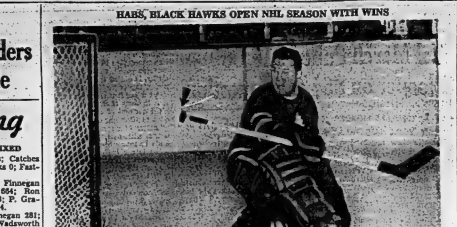
TAKE MORE TIME ON THE TURN FOR VICIOUS DRIVES



Pictured is an iron shot. Notice that in this iron shot the club has been swung short of horizontal at the top of the backswing. That's correct with iron. Particularly with the No. 3, 4 and the more sharply lofted irons. Because your stance with irons brings your hands closer together and your right foot nearer to the direction line than your left, your stance is more open. And so the position of your body naturally limits the length of your backswing. Reaching a horizontal position at the top of the backswing can only be done with the longer-shafted, straight-faced clubs and the near-square stance you use with long clubs. And remember that the shorter the shaft, the more perpendicular it should be. With the shorter shafted clubs, the more open is the stance, the closer the heels are together, the closer the right foot is to the direction line, the more you bend over. Therefore, the more perpendicular is the swing. Learn to golf the right way. You'll score better—get more thrill.

HABS, BLACK HAWKS OPEN NHL SEASON WITH WINS

Lum looks glum as the shot fired by Canadiens' Bert Olmestad whizzes by the Maple Leaf netminder in the NHL contest at Montreal. Lumley's opposite number, Jacques Plante, posted a shutout as Canadiens blanked Leafs 3-0. But it was a costly win for the Habs, who lost Boom Boom Geoffrion for at least two weeks when the slanky forward suffered two chest and side muscles and a wrenched back after being checked on the boards.

Goodyears May Disband Officers Issue Ultimatum

Kingston Goodyears may not operate this year.

A story in yesterday's Kingston Whig Standard states that the executive of the Frontenac Hockey Club, Goodyear sponsors, have given the club 48 hours to accept the financial terms offered. The alternative was that the FHC would suspend operation of a "B" entry for the 1955 - 56 season.

The sudden move, the story states, came about when player representatives reported that at a meeting, team members had decided not to accept the pay scale offered. They wanted to be paid on a salary basis similar to that of last year or they would not play.

The player delegates stated that the team believed that if the FHC did not sponsor a team, then some other group in the city would.

Using anticipated gate receipts the executive offered to advance each player $10 per game and any profits to go into a pool to be split by the players at the end of the season.

"If some other outfit" a director is quoted as saying "decides to operate the team it will decide not to, it won't run the club on our money nor with our equipment".

Prior to the passing of the ultimatum motion, a director stated the FHC had two alternatives. It could suspend operations and concentrate on junior hockey or it could fulfill its obligations and draw up individual contracts, and if the players did not sign them, the club could report it to the OHA and the team would be suspended.

It was noted that only one player had been signed this year, George Samsenko, who will be paid a fixed salary.

The Goodyears have until tonight to answer the Frontenac Hockey Club's ultimatum.

Varsity Wins Golf Title

TORONTO (CP)—University of Toronto won the 1955 intercollegiate golf championship Friday, defeating five other teams with a 328 score.

The University of Western Ontario was second with 343 and Waterloo College third with 356. Assumption College of Windsor and McMaster were tied for fourth with 362 and Ryerson finished fifth. Toronto was fifth with 388.

Panthers Wallop Oakville 25-0

OAKVILLE (CP) — Hamilton Panthers walloped Oakville Black Knights 25-0 in an Ontario Rugby Football Union intermediate game Friday night.

Panthers scored a touchdown in each quarter. Dutch Holland, Gar Webb, Jim Hainsworth and Hal Schatz scored the touchdowns with Glen Dawson converting two of them. Bill Brady and Schatz kicked singles.

ADVISES VACCINATION

TORONTO (CP)—Lands Minister Mapledoram of Ontario Friday urged deer hunters to have their dogs vaccinated for rabies before taking them into the bush because cases of the disease have been discovered as far south as Parry Sound in foxes.

Ramsey Back On Tiger List

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union said Friday they have placed end Ray Ramsey, put on waivers two weeks ago, back on the active list.

However, he will not play in the two weekend games against Toronto Argonauts, Ticat officials said.

The club said it has received permission from the Big Four officials to place Ramsey on the active list. Coach Clair Bee signed Ramsey as a scout when he wasn't picked up at the waiver price.

A league rule forbids a team to re-sign a player after he has been placed on waivers. Ticat president Jake Gaudaur said Orlawa Rough Riders and Montreal voted in favor of Hamilton's request to use Ramsey. Toronto Argonauts cast the only dissenting vote, he said.

Blues Blank Queen's Comets

KINGSTON (CP)—University of Toronto intermediates ran roughshod over Queen's Comets here Friday and scored a 35-0 win in their first intercollegiate football game of the season.

The Varsity crew showed no mercy as they picked up 25 first downs to Queen's 10. The Blues completed 16 of 25 passes thrown by Stew Winter.

Layne Blasted By 'Hurricane'

Layne weighed 202, Jackson 194½.

Outclassed through the first four rounds, Jackson fired away with both hands in the fifth.

Picton Seniors Trim BCI Jrs.

By BOB VAUGHAN

Picton Seniors defeated BCI Juniors 22 to 11 in an exhibition tilt at the Picton Fair Grounds on Friday afternoon.

Captain Ken Vogelsang was a standout for BCI in the losing cause, scoring two brilliant touchdowns.

The first half saw Picton march to the Belleville 30-yard line, where Herrington kicked a rouge into the end zone.

The second half opened with Belleville commanding a 5 to 1 lead, which they relinquished as Wayne Lindsay carried the ball to the one yard line and Kitchen plunged over for a touchdown.

Minutes later Cole made a touchdown, which Herrington converted. Vogelsang fought back as he took the kickoff and ran 90 yards for a touchdown. Then quarterback Dick Hurst made a pile 30-yard run, followed by junior kicker Doug Rollins for a rouge, to make it Picton 12, BCI 11.

The line-ups:

We know that Florida bass feed during all 12 months of the year. There is no need for them to build poundage during the fall months. Their food is always available and they can eat when they choose, yet they follow right with the same feeding pattern as that of their northern cousins.

Here in Pennsylvania, and in all the more temperate states, bass fishing takes a downward trend as the fall months approach. Then the water becomes cooler and nature tells them that they should "coast" for the long winter months when little or no feeding is done.

During the summer months, my son and I use little or no live bait. What bass we take seem to be quite content with artificial lures. During July and August the fly rod and bass bug or bass flies will hold their own more than adequately with the live-bait fishermen.

But when fall rolls around, then live bait takes over. The bass want meat, lots of fresh meat, and live-bait fishing comes into its own.

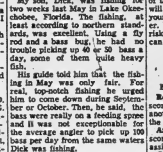
This brings to mind another pet-peeve of mine, the large-mouth and small-mouth. In the summer our best bets are bream, bass hedgeminnies, and little shiners. In the fall, however, the water is cool. The schools break up and the bass are cruising about, evidently in search of food. Thus, the more water you cover the better.

While I have never been what might be called an advocate of spinning, either in fresh or salt water, there is no doubt about it that spinning is an excellent way to fish live bait. A light monofilament line enables the angler to get that bait right down into deep water without the necessity of using heavy sinkers.

And don't forget that the Solunar Tables are every bit as useful in fall as they are any other time. Even though the bass do feed more actively during the fall, the same daily cycle of feeding periods and rest periods still is in operation. Fishing periods are better during Solunar Periods than it is at other times, and especially so for the larger fish.

So make it a habit to keep track of the daily Solunar Periods. You will find those times published for your convenience in this newspaper. By so doing, you eliminate the risk of missing what very well can be the best fishing of the day.

Solunar Notes



Bass Fishing in the Fall

BY JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman Author and Creator of Solunar Tables.)

Bass, as every bass fisherman knows, are temperamental, uncertain creatures. They go about their own ideas which, more often than not, do not coincide with the ideas of those who fish for them.

However, down through the years we have learned certain things about bass which, in general, seem to hold good each season. One of these items of information is the tendency of all bass to lay on an extra layer of fat as winter months approach. And this, strangely enough, seems to hold good regardless of latitude.

My son, Dick, was fishing for two weeks last May in Lake Okeechobee, Florida. The fishing, at least according to northern standards, was excellent. Bass on the end and a bass bug, he had no trouble picking up 40 or 50 bass a day and keep the three largest fish.

His guide told him that the fishing in May was only fair. For real, top-notch fishing he urged him to come down during September or October. Then, he said, the bass were only a feeding spree on. Hal March Pulled $16,000 Blooper on $64,000 Question

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — A new dramatic show appeared on television this week, and it promises to be one of the hand-picked best on the screen. It is "Playwright '56," appearing on alternate Tuesday evenings at NBC-TV.

Here at last is the answer to those who are tired of "The $64,000 Question" on CBS-TV. "Playwright '56" succeeded admirably this week — at least for this viewer.

Its original production was "The Answer," a dramatization of Philip Wylie's fantasy about an experimental thermonuclear bomb-blast that failed an angel to earth. Producer Fred Coe and director Delbert Mann chose a realistic approach to the fantastic theme of a dead angel. They were wise. If they'd spun it in the gossamer of fantasy, much of the great viewing audience would have fallen through their web.

Coe and his company have provided some television greats in years past. There is every reason to believe they will provide many more under the larger production budgets now available to them.

Those tuned to "The $64,000 Question" instead of "Playwright '56" saw Hal March pull one of the most expensive bloopers of all time on TV. Pat Keough, the St. Louis baseball expert, was trying for the name of the relief pitcher who finally stopped Joe DiMaggio's hitting streak at 56 consecutive games.

March first gave him a few extra seconds and then, in a supreme effort to coax out the name, said "Jim." It wasn't tough for Keogh to come up with Harry Jr. March, spoiling, said it was a slip of the tongue.

This department is wholly in sympathy with anyone getting as much money as he can on the giveaway program. But in fairness to contestants who have answered questions just as tough or tougher, $16,000 is a lot of money to pass out after two clear violations of the rules — extra time and the broadest of hints.

Bulletins from Birdland

DUCK CHARACTERISTICS

So much is known about shooting ducks and so little about the birds themselves—except their habits and general appearance in hunting season, that they may be tracked down and destroyed. What a pity that a minimum of interest is shown in such beautiful and interesting creatures!

Because of their quite different mode of life, they are in many ways unlike land birds. The females are mostly rather dull looking, apart from the iridescent of varied color in their wing patches. This patch, worn by nearly all ducks, is called the speculum. Most males are very handsome, and sport a great many colors and patters in their costumes.

On account of spending a great deal of time on, or in, water, the plumage of ducks is exceptionally dense, soft, and waterproof. They have so many breast feathers (and there is air between them, taking up room); that when swimming they sit on a regular raft about an inch thick.

Mother duck pulls out her lovely, soft, warm breast down to line her nest. All birds have a preening gland under their tails, from which they take supplies of oil to keep their feathers neat; ducks are able to get enough oil to make their plumage shed water.

Ducks' wings are not just the same as those of land birds. They are rigid, strong, usually pointed, and capable of carrying the bird at great speed. Rapid wing beats and direct flight make ducks easy to identify, geese being the only other birds with which we might confuse them. Their tails are ordinarily very short. The same may be said of their legs, which are set far back on the body. This placement is a great help in both swimming and diving, but causes them to waddle on land.

There are two groups of ducks, sea and river, besides the mergansers or fishing ducks. The feet and bills of these different kinds are not only unlike those of land birds, but unlike each others—though all have webbed feet.

River ducks have three toes pointing forward and joined by webs and a third toe all by itself. As sea ducks require particularly good appliances for swimming and diving, their hind toes have a broad flap attached to them, so that they may be used as paddles.

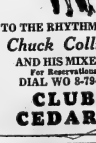
South	North
1 Heart	1 Spade
1 No-Trump	3 No-Trump
7 No-Trump	Pass

Although it was not strictly rule bidding, the south jump bid of two no-trump is worthy of an expert. It is even excusable if used by a player who thinks four aces to one is like finding uranium.

In the best systems, such a jump is forcing to at least a game. In some systems, it may be only a strong invitation to partner. Even these, however, keep it alive with almost anything above a whisper.

North had enough to make a second bid without being forced. So, his second bid of three no-trump was a bit disturbing to him. It is the next bid by south that brings on my spasm of disgust.

The south jump of two no-trump trapped north into making another bid even if his hand was considerably weaker. So, where does the guy get the idea that they have enough strength for a grand slam.



North might not have had the jack and ten or hearts. Or club ten. Or even club king. And despite what north actually has, opponents hold the missing kings and queens and interfering jacks. Nor can south boast a long and strong suit that ignores the unseen gibs.

But, opening lead from west was the diamond king and declarer rolled in the 13 tricks for a grand slam. So, all this fuss have made only makes me look ridiculous. It just doesn't make sense.

Eartha Kitt Found Fame As Singer in Broadway Revue

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "You never know you've got the talent until you try it."

So says Eartha Kitt, and she should know. She first found fame as a singer in the Broadway revue, "New Faces." Then she scored as a record star with run-away hits like "C'est Si Bon" and "Santa Baby." She became a headliner in night clubs.

She went back to Broadway as a dramatic star in "Mrs. Patterson." Now she's blossoming out as a dancer on television and is writing her life story, which will be published next year.

She discussed her combination careers between rehearsals of dances for NBC's color spectacular, "Show Biz," which hits the screens this Sunday.

"This is the first time I've really danced since I became a star," she remarked Eartha. "In night clubs there's seldom room to dance, and you can't just throw off a tight gown and start in.

TV FANS COMPLAIN

"I've taken a few steps on the Ed Sullivan show, but that's all they'll let me do. Whenever I dance they get a lot of letters complaining that I was sinuous and licentious."

It's pretty hard for her to avoid being sexy. She has a slinky, catlike grace and large expressive eyes. She looks good even in her rehearsal outfit — a man's long shirt over tight black trousers.

A couple of years ago she started writing her life story, a fantastic tale of a rise from poverty. She showed her writings to a friend, who thought it should be published.

A publisher raved over the manuscript and suggested certain changes. Eartha refused — "I just wanted it to be a simple story, not something commercial."

Another publisher offered to publish it as she wrote it, and now she's trying to finish it up.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in this section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Spirited influences augur well for school and church activities, outdoor sports, all wholesome fun that doesn't interfere with duties to God and family. Necessary work favored, too.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Stimulating rays for vigorous action. But be sure it is rightly directed — in God's service, for charity, for health programs, for children, etc. It can be a happy day for you and yours.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—This day may not be entirely favorable for bright ideas, contracts and other written matters but it is promising for Sunday interests, happy doings with family, good friends. Pray.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Your aspects are good, but there may be a tendency to overdo and tire. Be careful in this respect. Religious activities, home duties, urgent matters favored.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Though restrictive where unnecessary business transactions are concerned, this is a good day for wholesome social activities, church services, outdoor relaxation and sports.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Your day similar to Gemini's. You could catch up on good reading, music, enjoy diverting entertainment, or just rest. Start right by going to church and thanking God for blessings.

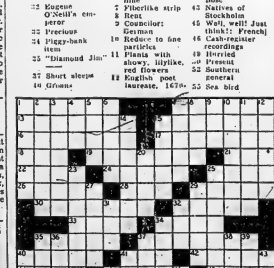
September 24 to October 24 (Libra)—Your inclinations much like Taurus'. An invigorating, benefic outlook. If you must work, do it cheerfully and time will pass more quickly. All honorable activities sponsored. Have some fun.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Recall past good efforts and how pleased they made you and others. Remember the benefits of sound advice heeded carefully.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Organize your affairs carefully, and don't leave out those important little details that make a completed whole. Be concise, but not abrupt. Start day with church services.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Don't become involved in others' affairs to the detriment of your personal ones, and to the elimination of time for small matters helpful to your personal welfare. Be logical.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Mistakes are made by everyone. Don't fret over yours; just try to prevent them from happening again. For an uplift, give good humor a play.



February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Some things may seem to go very early; others will speed along as hoped. Be philosophical, take hindrances in stride. Start your day at church where we all see things more clearly.

You Born Today are fair-minded, clear-eyed in thought and manner, rather audacious, surely brave and courageous when you should be; could so exceptionally well in scientific or religious careers. You are also suited to a trade requiring hand skill and steadiness. Many noted military and naval leaders were born in your sector. You have a splendid appetite for learning, also leadership. If true to your better instincts, you have high aspirations. You respect God's laws and are devoted to family, country. Do not indulge gloominess, destruction, or overwork.

Heroine Saved Six Sailors

By LEONARD L. KNOTT
Illustrated by David Ranson

This is the story of the forgotten heroine of Long Point. Single-handed, she saved the lives of six Canadian sailors and for a time was as famous throughout North America as today's Marilyn Bell.

November, 1854, was a bitterly cold month and as it neared its end the Great Lakes were swept by raging storms. Most of the shipping on the lakes had reached shelter but out on Lake Erie the three-masted schooner, Conductor, of Amherstburg was struggling against the wind to reach the Welland Canal. She was loaded to the water's edge with grain and the wind and the rain ripped through her sails.

Driven before a south-west gale, the ship attempted to round long Point and reach the sheltered bay. She struck heavily on the outer bar and plunged headlong into deep water beyond. Only her rigging stood out clearly above water. Captain Hackett and his six sailors lashed to the rigging and prayed that help might come to them from shore. The ship herself was a certain loss.

NIGHT OF TERROR

All through that long night of terror, the freezing gale struck at the ship and her frightened crew. Showers of sharp sleet slashed and mountainous waves over the decks.

The only inhabitants of lonely Long Point were the lighthouse keeper who could not leave his post and, 15 miles away, a trapper named Becker who lived in a log shanty with his wife, Abigail and a family of small children. Becker was away on the mainland trading his mink and muskrat skins for food and supplies.

Abigail, awakened by the violent storm, stood looking out a window towards the lake. A daybreak, she saw a smashed lifeboat from the Conductor tossed up on the beach. Wrapping a coat around her, she rushed out to the shore seeking signs of a boat in destress. After waiting hundreds of yards along the beach, her bare feet almost frozen, she saw the mastz of the wrecked schooner.

Aboard the ship, she hoped, men might still be alive. She rushed back to her cabin for matches and a tea kettle then walked, still barefoot two miles along the shore to a spot directly opposite the stricken ship.

BEACON FIRE

Soon she had great fire of driftwood blazing high, a beacon to those on board. Back and forth she walked in front of the fire all day long, hoping that the mariners, if alive, would see her and dare to swim ashore. As night fell, she went down to the water's edge and into the surf up to her armpits. Desperately, she called and waved to the men she could now see lashed to the masts. The desperate sailors saw her and realized that no boat was coming to aid them. They were strong swimmers but none was sure he could survive in that raging sea.

"Here," shouted the captain, "our choice is between certain death here and possible safety ashore. Let us swim towards that wave woman and the fire she has made for us." So saying, he plunged into the water. Watched by his anxious crew, he swam desperately. He disappeared for a moment under a tremendous wave, then reappeared, swimming weakly. Finally, he reached shallow water, stood up and was caught by the undertow which kept him back towards open water. Abigail dashed into the surf, grasped the captain by the arm and dragged him to safety.

DOUBLE RESCUE

One by one, the other sailors followed. The second to make the attempt had the same dreadful experience and was caught by undertow. Hackett reached to let Abigail risk her life again and went back into the water to rescue his fellow mariner. The two were caught by the undertow and the woman had to make a double rescue. At last, after an all-night effort, all six of the crew were safely landed ashore. There, they were revived by Abigail's hot tea and taken to her shanty for food and rest.

On their return to Amherstberg, the mariners made Abigail's story known. She became internationally famous as the heroine of Long Point, was given 100 acres of Crown lands near Port Rowan, and the name of the scene of her rescue, a purse of gold by American ship owners and a gold medal by the New York Life Saving Association. Today, only a few Canadians have ever heard her name.

CAMPBELLFORD

Traffic Problem Will Be Solved By Stop Signs

CAMPBELLFORD — The town council met on Monday night for its regular meeting, with all members present except Mayor Locke, Reeve Maybee presided in his place.

After many hours of deliberation concerning the solution to the traffic problem on Queen St. at the Baptist Church, Council ordered the installation of stop signs at all streets that converge at this point.

The report of the town solicitor, Mr. N. A. MacColl, Q.C., with respect to the hearing of the equalization appeals at Cobourg by His Honor Judge M. A. Miller, was read. Mr. MacColl's report indicated that Cobourg's assessment had been increased by $250,000 and Port Hope's decreased by 1½ per cent, or about half this amount. The solicitor for Port Hope claimed that the rural communities were too low, but Judge Miller gave his opinion that this would require proof.

TOWN DUMP

A lot of discussion regarding the town dump followed and a motion was passed that no action be taken until the property committee reached some unanimity of opinion and brought in recommendations. Deputy-Reeve Rutherford was not satisfied. The money involved to have a watchman seemed to most of the councillors to be too much for too little. Suggestions re fencing the property were not seriously entertained as offenders would just dump refuse over the fence when the gate was locked.

The approach signs to the town have been erected and the Chamber of Commerce billed for their share. They, in turn, were to collect from the service clubs the proportion allotted to each.

Several matters concerning drainage and ditching, including that brought up by Mr. Williams, Front of Front St. South, were referred to the road and bridge committee.

A traffic problem concerning the lighting of bicycles was brought before council by councillor Tatham. Regulations of importance were ordered to be published under the direction of Chief Rose.

After the passing of the pay sheet, council adjourned.

Moira

MOIRA — Mrs. Jack Wallace, Paul and Pamela; Mrs. Olive Williams and children of Frankford, were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Blake Ketcheson. Mrs. Wallace and children remained for a few days with her grandparents before moving to Blind River where her husband is employed.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus Mumby attended the Clarke — Emerson wedding, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Maxwell and family have sold their farm and moved to Napanee on a farm.

Mrs. Will Maines, Thomasburg, spent a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Donald McInavy, and baby, who just returned from hospital.

Choir practise was held at home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Foster, on Thursday night.

CRASH ACCIDENTAL

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A coroner's jury ruled Wednesday that Reginald Reid and Walter Wood died accidentally when a light plane crashed at Rice lake July 4. The pair, both executives of a marine manufacturing concern, were going to a company picnic at the time. The plane, owned by Wood, stalled about 200 feet above the ground.

Striped Kitty Has So Far Scored 2 Hits, 2 Runs, No Errors

TRENTON (Special) — One member of Trenton's animal population is making itself awfully unpopular these days. Two pedigreed pets would vouch for that statement.

Use the patter of baseball writers and you'd say the villain in this story has so far scored two hits, two runs and no errors.

Checkers, a black and white cocker spaniel belonging to this member of the Ontario Intelligencer staff, was the first to fall victim to a skunk wandering about the downtown neighborhood the other night. Needless to say the master moved the dogs sleeping quarters to a remote part of the property.

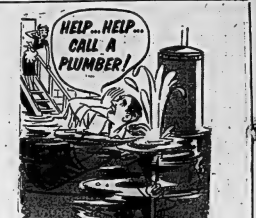
A few nights later the skunk proved to be nothing but a downright mean critter. It aroused volumes of resentment in a family whose children cherish a tiny, defenceless kitten.

Scared, the attack caused great commotion. The little ones were heartbroken because their new little friend was not allowed in the house for several days.

Parents in this case, however, did not have to explain why. Even a child a 100 feet away could tell something was wrong.

No blame has been attached to a skunk belonging to Enid Holden who lives in the same district. For one thing pet Josephine is deodorized and in the second place is in Ottawa presently about to return home with a family of kittens of all things.

ON BUSINESS TRIP



Lloyd Worrall, controller at Central Bridge is on a business trip in Chicago and will be returning within a week.

SWERVED CAR

Joe Riga, 25, of Trenton told police investigating the accident in which he was involved that it was caused when he swerved to avoid hitting a group of children walking on the road at the Campbell and John Streets intersection yesterday. Riga's car crashed into a parked vehicle owned by Eric Weber of Trenton and damaged it so that it will take $50 to pay for the repairs. Repairs to his car will cost $30.

CYCLIST INJURED

Arthur Wilson, 93 West Street, Trenton opened the door of his car into the path of oncoming traffic and as a result cyclist J. Roberts, Cedar Street, Trenton, suffered an injury to his right hand needing the attention of Dr. E. W. Dow.

At Least 68 Die Violently During Holiday Weekend

Fifty Persons Killed In Various Traffic Accidents

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 68 persons died violently in Canada during the Thanksgiving weekend as thousands headed for field and stream and the open highway in the last extended holiday before winter.

A Canadian Press survey shows 50 persons died in traffic accidents. Four persons were drowned—two each in Ontario and Quebec—and 14 died of miscellaneous causes.

The count started at 6 p.m. local time Friday.

To midnight EST there were 25 deaths in Quebec, Ontario was second eight Alberta and Nova Scotia had eighth Alberta and Nova Scotia four each; Saskatchewan, Manitoba and New Brunswick three each and Newfoundland one. None was reported in Prince Edward Island.

WEATHER A FACTOR

The toll was four greater than during the Thanksgiving holiday last year. But there were 11 more traffic deaths than in the corresponding time, the same weather over most of the country which prompted the record turnout of motorings.

The toll is well below the 96 who died in Canada last Dominion Day. Eighty-one persons died during the Labor Day weekend last September.

Four persons were killed when struck by trains.

A two-year-old boy was mauled to death by a huskie dog at Churchill, Man. in Centreville East, N.S., a two-year-old girl was accidentally shot by her brother during a game of cowboys and Indians when, police said, he fired a gun he believed was not loaded.

Ontario Deaths:

George Laird, 33, Toronto, when struck by train; Joseph Bouchard, 58, Saint John, N.B., in car-truck collision; Constantinos Thomos Gobeil, Uoelville, in highway accident.

Alper Ainley, East York, drowned near Napanee while trying rescue son who was later rescued by others. William Sardella, Dundas, accidentally shot during hunting near Owen Sound; Mrs. Kenneth Richman, Essex, when car struck Mrs. Richman's self, four months, accidentally smothered in bed.

French Assembly Debates Faure's Algerian Policy

PARIS (AP) — The National Assembly today turned its attention to troubled French North Africa for the second time in less than a week, opening a three-day debate on Premier Edgar Faure's plans to suppress nationalist violence in Algeria.

With the Communists the only faction favoring the Algerian nationalists, Faure is expected to win a grudging endorsement at the end of the debate for his policy of military action against the terrorists and guerrillas.

The assembly has approved home rule for France's other North African territories, Morocco's protectorate of Tunisia and Morocco. But unlike them Algeria constitutionally is a part of France itself. The bulk of the deputies neither want to let the terrorist get their way in most of the country which prompted the record turnout of motorings.

GRUENTHER URGES INTEGRATION OF NATO AIR FORCES

Are Behind Schedules He Warns Ministers

By EDDY GILMORE —

PARIS (AP) — Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther urged today that the five nations of Europe to integrate their air forces in most any surprise attack by Russia.

Speaking to the defence ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the supreme commander described the present air command system as "archaic."

The integrated air defence command he advocated would allow the West to be alerted and get off the ground with much greater speed than now possible.

Gruenther said the integrated command should be divided into four main areas: northern Europe, central Europe, Mediterranean and Britain.

BEHIND SCHEDULE

Under the present NATO setup the various air forces are under national control. This delays their civilian warning systems.

A spokesman present at Gruenther's address said that the ministers at his headquarters 12 miles west of Paris said the integrated plan has not been presented to all the countries involved, but added it is "a good plan to go forward rather quickly."

Gruenther told the ministers that in quality and quantity NATO was behind planned schedules, he said.

"If war should come today, Oct. 11, we would not be ready — but I can't guarantee this will always be the same in the future."

STATE OF BUILD-UP

The ministers this afternoon will hear reports by the NATO standing group officers.

The defence ministers' conference Monday heard British and American air and naval commanders warn that Russian military strength is increasing constantly, in particular its air forces, submarines and nuclear weapons.

The speakers emphasized these warnings, however, by saying they do not believe the Russians want war but do not as long as there is a strong deterrent in the West. It is on this basis that they base recommendations of their military assessments, they said, in a plea for maintain defence expenditures at present levels. However, most of the NATO countries are trying to reduce their defence budgets as a result of the Geneva spirit of smiles from Kremlin leaders and pressure at home.

Car Plunges Off Ferry Dock, Sophiasburgh Reeve Dies

PICTON.— Suffering a heart seizure as he drove his car on the McDenbald ferry, which connects Deseronto with Prince Edward County, John K. (Jack) Welsh, reeve of the township of Sophiasburgh, was believed dead as his car failed to stop and plunged over the end of the ferry and into the Bay of Quinte, about 8.15 Saturday night. The tragedy occurred on the Deseronto side of the crossing, where the ferry was docked.

The car contained the body was recovered several hours later.

Mr. Welsh had been driving to his home at Demorestville for an extended period last year following a heart seizure but had resumed his normal duties with the H. J. McFarland Construction Co., here. He would have been 47 years of age on Monday, October 24.

In 1943, Mr. Welsh, then reeve of Picton, was elected Warden of Prince Edward County, at the age of 32 years, the youngest man to hold that office. Earlier, he had served the town as councillor and two years as deputy reeve.

Mr. Welsh had crossed the Deseronto ferry about three in the afternoon and at that time did not feel well. On his return in the evening, he was alone in the car. The number of passengers allowed Prince Edward to the Deseronto side and Mr. Welsh's car was the one restricted passage to Prince Edward. When he did not drive up to the ferry, Lorne Gordon and MacDermaid went to the car and noted Mr. Welsh slumped in the car. Mr. Welsh answered his summons that the ferry was ready, but he remained motionless. Gordon Mr. McDermaid returned to the ferry and ordered it to proceed.

Suddenly the car approached the ferry at high speed. Mr. McDermaid suspected that it was but to his horror it went the length of the ferry, snapped the safety chain and plunged eight or more feet out in the Bay in about nine feet of water.

Though an alarm was immediately raised, the car and the body could not immediately be recovered, as a tow truck was called and a winch had to be secured. The body was taken to Belleville for an autopsy.

Mr. McDermaid narrowly missed being struck by the car as it plunged over the end of the engine house in the centre of the ferry was smashed and a large tank of gasoline was tunted out of place but did not explode. Automobiles and other cars were in the vicinity at the time.

The death of Mr. Welsh is mourned by an unusually wide circle of friends over a wide area. With the McFarland Construction Co., he was in charge of the truck department, surface treatment and prime dust laying. He worked closely with various municipal councils. He was experienced in municipal life added to his value as an employee of the company.

Born in the town of Picton, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Welsh, his father being a veteran CNR employee. He was educated here and fifteen years he was with the Burford Transfer Co., operating a general store in the village of Demorestville. In 1940, he joined the McFarland Construction Co.

Keenly interested in politics, Mr. Welsh served on the executive of Prince Edward Lennox Progressive Conservative Association.

He was twice a candidate for the P.C. nomination of the riding, the last time in May 1953. He was a most enthusiastic supporter of party policy.

Mr. Welsh entered municipal life in both Picton and Sophiasburgh townships. Picton he served a year as councillor, two as deputy reeve and one deputy reeve and in the latter office, in 1943, he was elected county warden by acclamation. It was during his term as reeve that garbage collection was first inaugurated in Picton. He always demonstrated a progressive outlook.

In 1951, Welsh felt he could serve his adopted township of Sophiasburgh in the municipal field and successfully contested the reeveship in 1948. In 1949 he was elected in 1954 he was given acclamation. He was also for many years a prominent roads for that township and served the interests of the rate-payers well.

Keenly interested in sports, Mr. Welsh played for many years on teams in the county hockey league. He served on the Belleville Exhibition Society's board and as chairman of the Sophiasburgh Community Centre was responsible for the erection of several modern buildings and grounds. He was a harness horse racing enthusiast. He was a member of the Belleville Automobile Driving club.

Mr. Welsh is survived by his parents, his wife, the former Beryl Covert, and by two daughters, Mrs. Ralph Lavery (Beverley), Picton and Mrs. Ronald Stewart (Gretchen), Demorestville.

The body rested at his late residence at Demorestville until Tuesday afternoon, when it lay in state at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Picton, from 2.15 p.m. until the service at three o'clock, Rev. J. G. Hornsby officiated with interment in Glenwood cemetery. Members of the county council were among many municipal officials who attended the service.

Attlee Sees Greater Hope For Disarmament Agreement

MARGATE, England (Reuters)—Labor party leader Clement Attlee today said signs are more hopeful than ever before for getting an international disarmament agreement.

"I think governments are facing up to realities," he told the 1,246 delegates to the party's 54th annual conference here.

What the world needed was a genuine agreement to disarm "down to the absolute minimum required for the purpose of internal order."

Attlee, opening a debate on the H-bomb, atomic warfare, disarmament and national conscription, said any step taken now is a move no victors. The question facing humanity was: Is it going to be allowed or be destroyed by its own intentions?

The convention overwhelmingly rejected a resolution against manufacturing nuclear weapons, but approved a resolution calling for immediate withdrawal of Britain's two-year military conscription term.

The delegates cast 5,300,000 member votes against the resolution on nuclear weapons and 1,174,000 for it. The vote followed a plea by Foreign Secretary Mrs. Phoebe Pat London delegate Mrs. Phoebe Pat that "I beg you to patent reasons for being against the hydrogen bomb" by husband, two sons and three grandchildren."

The convention also rejected a resolution calling for the International Court at The Hague to rule on the legality of manufacturing atomic bombs, and another by left-winger Barbara Castle opposing the new future Labor regime not yield "to American, Soviet or any other pressure."

FLIER MAROONED 10 DAYS ON WING OF PLANE IN LAKE

Rescued Just in Time After Foodless Ordeal

By STAN McCABE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — Rescue came just in time for a flier whose plane crashed in the Northwest Territories and left him stranded on the wing in the middle of an icy lake.

Gerhardt (Jerry) Lozie, 27-year-old former Dutch navy pilot who was co-pilot of the four-engined flying boat, was flown to hospital here Monday night. He had spent 10 days on the wing.

A hospital authority said Lozie suffered severe, prolonged exposure, especially concerning his feet and limbs. His condition was described as "generally pretty fair, now on."

"Medically he has been remarkably well," the spokesman said.

Rescuers who picked him up about 110 miles north of Beaverlodge, Sask., Sunday found the pilot, Capt. Joseph Cermak, 40, had died of exposure.

Lozie had pulled his fellow crew member from the burning wreckage he was caught when the plane was ditched. But Cermak died about 48 hours after the landing at 1:10 p.m. Sept. 29.

WENT INTO LAKE

The men were soaked when they went into the lake after going off course on a return trip from a survey flight from Yellowknife, N.W.T., to an Arctic radar station. They were on the return trip to pick up survey supplies from a submerged fuselage of the plane. It broke in two when it hit the water, but floated for the second time.

"It was a grim do, I'll tell you," said Terry Simmonds, pilot of the plane which sighted the wreck. "I won't know how that guy survived."

Lozie said Monday he was grateful for getting conditions of greater equality among nations.

He reviewed Canada's "vigorous program" of atomic research and said Canada is anxious to assist other countries in getting their atomic energy programs under way.

St. Thomas' Church Parishioners Bid Rector and Family Farewell

Parishioners of St. Thomas' Anglican Church paid a tangible tribute to Rev. Arthur Robinson, their former rector, the Rev. W. J. Robinson and family, when they met in a social gathering held in the Parish House Sunday evening.

Mr. Robinson, who preaches his first sermon in St. John's Church, Ottawa, next Sunday, was the recipient of a handsome Manly Macdonald oil painting of the Bay of Quinte, the gift of parishioners through Mr. Gordon Miller, rector's warden, among other gifts.

Mrs. Robinson was presented with a pretty corsage bouquet by L. A. Kells, people's warden.

Other gifts to Mr. Robinson included a silver pen and pencil set by the boy scouts and wolf cub packs of the church group, by W. L. Glasspoole while the boys' choir of St. Mary's presented him with a handsome fountain pen.

In a brief address of appreciation Mr. Robinson said that his beautiful painting of the bay would always remind him of Belleville. He expressed his sincere appreciation for the gifts and of the happy three-year's association he had spent with St. Thomas'. "A parson", he said, "is something like a car, it takes three years to get into high gear, I feel you good people have helped me reach high gear."

Mr. Robinson then read the prayer of brief expression of appreciation for the gift presented her.

A number of visiting clergy were present. These included the Rev. H. M. Davis, Bridge Street United Church, and Mrs. Davis, Archdeacon H. B. Cowling, Christ Church; the Rev. Everett Smith, Christ Church; the Rev. Arthur Hall, St. John's Anglican; Rev. Mr. Hale, and the Rev. J. Cantrell, who assists in the services at St. Thomas'.

WISHED SUCCESS

Mr. Davis expressed his appreciation of the fine co-operation and friendship, that had existed between Bridge Street Church and St. Thomas' congregations, and that Mr. Robinson leave because he had been looking forward to greater co-operation in the future, and that the entire congregation of Bridge Street Church wished Mr. Robinson success in his new field of endeavor.

"We feel sad in Mr. Robinson's going yet there is a feeling of rejoicing," Archdeacon Cowling said. "We of the clergy sometimes have hard decisions to make—when this was one of them. We rejoice with Mr. Robinson, a son of the diocese and we send our blessing and prayers go with him."

Mr. Miller in his presentation address expressed, he said, the feelings of the congregation in a letter he received from a parishioner, "Mr. Robinson is going along with his destiny." We can look back with happiness at the good-ness he has done and left behind him."

Mr. Kells in making the presentation to Mrs. Robinson remarked that "lasbel has been the force behind Mr. Robinson following in popular vein, "for his conscience must have bothered him."

The delegation called for federal support in providing cash loans to grain farmers at minimum interest rates and with grain on farms as security.

Imperial Bank And Barclay's To Be Joined

TORONTO (CP)—Plans to amalgamate the Imperial Bank of Canada and Barclay's Bank (Canada) were announced today in a joint statement by the presidents of the two groups.

The proposal, approved by Finance Minister Harris, will be submitted to the shareholders of each bank at their annual general meetings, which will be held in December, the statement said.

It will have to be approved by the federal cabinet before it can be completed.

The statement, made by Imperial Bank president L. S Mackeroy and Barclay Bank president H. A. Stevenson, said the name Imperial Bank of Canada will be retained if the proposal is carried through.

DIRECTORS NAMED

R. S Waldie will be the chairman of the board of directors of the new bank and Mr. Mackerry president. Other proposed officers are: H. E Sellers, J R Timmins, J H Vale, vice-presidents; and John S Proctor, vice - president and general manager.

The board of directors will consist of the present directors of the Imperial Bank and four of the present directors of Barclay's.

Colombia Subject Of First Film In Travel Series

Colombia, fourth largest country in South America, is the subject of Nicol Smith's technicolor film opening the third annual Kiwanis World Travel and Adventure series in the collegiate auditorium Thursday evening.

NICOL SMITH

Mr. Smith, no stranger to series' fans, completed his film of this fascinating country during the summer. Colombia is a photographer's delight. The capital city of Bogota, situated in the Andes at a height of 8,660 feet, is the loftiest capital city in the world outside of Tibet.

Spectacular mountain scenery including magnificent Tequendama Falls, three times the height of Niagara Falls, is matched by the seascapes of Colombia's Atlantic and Pacific coastlines.

Industries, cities, natural wonders, and the people of this great country pass in brilliant parade in Mr. Smith's artistic technicolor interpretation.

Residents Enjoy Last Holiday At Golf, Angling and Travel

Thanksgiving was a church-going turkey-eating holiday with the weather man showing a benign countenance on all and sundry after a blustery threatening Saturday afternoon.

Showers and cool air marked the beginning of the holiday but skies cleared and temperatures rose on Sunday and Monday with warmish sunshine beckoning harder citizens to outdoor picnic tables.

Tragedy, however, reared a grisly head over the province with sixty-eight people losing their lives through accidents, drowning and traffic fatalities.

The holiday marked the climax of many sports activities with King Football holding sway in the various larger centres. Many from here attended the Queen's-Varsity game in Toronto waiting over for the Queen's-Leafs hockey tussle at night.

In the city softball held sway but Saturday's coolish weather with threats of rain kept the majority of fans close to home and television sets.

MANY ANGLERS OUT

With the close of the bass season a short time away, many anglers took advantage of the long week-end to indulge in their favorite sport. The bay, Hay Bay, and other popular fishing haunts had a generous quota of angling addicts.

Golf enthusiasts attracted by the fine weather and excellent greens got in some late season games on the Bay of Quinte course, while on the bay a few yachtsmen braved the breezes to indulge in belated "white wings" sport.

Churches of all faiths were well attended with the majority celebrating harvest festivals in a general spirit of thanksgiving. Fruits of the field were conspicuous in many edifices as illustrations of a bountiful harvest.

HIGHWAYS CLOGGED

The long holiday saw highways clogged with motor vehicles as many residents took to the road for their relaxation. Fairly heavy traffic was noticed on northern routes, where the motor-going public sought last glimpses of the glorious colors of changing Nature.

And the "inner man" was not forgotten. According to city butchers and provision dealers, plus the chain stores, the mortality rate of the turkey population was higher this year than in many previous Thanksgivings. Many were "sold out" long before Saturday night and a number of people were disappointed. Prices were said to be fairly good and turkey-hungry residents took full advantage of the opportunity of indulging in a "dressed" rehearsal for the Christmas Day feast.

PLANNING PUZZLES

Sir Winston Churchill's nephew and the Toronto Board of Control have raised a couple of fine points for town planners to ponder.

First let us consider the action of The Toronto Board of Control. It refused to approve a building permit for the erection of an 11-storey apartment building in a residential area in north-central Toronto. Senator Salter Hayden, who headed a delegation of residents, said they were not trying to prevent the erection of apartments in the area, "but this one is not in harmony with the rest. This is the most horrible presentation of a building possible." This brought a reply from Samuel J. Kelner, a member of the metropolitan planning board, that a private group of citizens cannot "set themselves up as judges of aesthetics; they are not qualified to say this design does not please them."

On one point, at least, Mr. Kelner is as wrong as a man can be. The person best qualified, indeed the only person qualified, to say whether a house pleases an individual is the individual himself.

Whether or not a private group of citizens can claim the right to be judges of aesthetics would appear to depend largely on who are included in the group. One might be pardoned for believing that Senator Hayden might know as much about aesthetics as Mr. Kelner and there is some reason to doubt whether the average planning board is much better qualified to judge aesthetics than the average neighbors of any area chosen as reasonably tidy residential district. But even if planning board members were all excellent judges of aesthetics, should they be permitted to force their standards on the community as a whole? Should aesthetics be their concern? Some will reply in the affirmative; but there will be others who will give a negative answer.

For those opposed, there can be only one feasible solution to situations like that arising in north-central Toronto. The planning board and the council should lay down a rule and then stick to it. Either no apartment buildings should be allowed, and not even one permitted, or apartment buildings should be allowed to any permit granted to every applicant who meets a certain standard. In theory this is the policy already followed in most centres. Generally speaking apartment buildings are forbidden in the top classification of residential districts, and permitted in the lower class of residential areas, providing certain standards are met.

The next difficult question is to decide what point should be covered in these standards, ruling out aesthetics. The standard generally adopted by planning boards is the expenditure of a certain minimum sum on the construction of the building. This has the advantage of being easily applied. It has the disadvantage of sometimes shutting out the man with moderate means and exceptionally good taste, but permitting the man with a fat pocket-book and no taste whatever to erect some costly, but ugly, monstrosity. This does nothing to protect the investments of those who already have invested in the area, to permit the erection of cheap homes amongst expensive ones is to run the risk of having a man with little money and little taste depreciate the value of properties which others have saved years to acquire.

Money, like aesthetics, is a poor yardstick in the planning field. But if it is discarded there remain only certain standards necessary to protect the health of the occupants of the neighboring buildings. If these are the only standards enforced, the function of planning is reduced to a matter of secondary importance and the result is far from satisfactory.

What is a satisfactory standard? That is the $64,000 question which nobody has yet come up with a wholly correct answer.

And while planning experts are trying to solve that one, they might just as well consider the second dilemma which has arisen at times in London and elsewhere.

Artist John Spencer Churchill, nephew of Sir Winston, and his wife, sister of Sir Anthony Eden, have been charged with resisting drunk and disorderly. Churchill charged into a church hall near his home and complained about the noise. Now church halls, and churches, may sometimes have objected to the noise of which nobody can possess the same aesthetic standards which lead church members to maintain the noise is beautiful. Most buildings which are used by congregations which are noisy are excluded from residential districts. But most municipal by-laws—including Belleville's—permit the erection of churches in residential areas. In Belleville, schools and parks, which also are used by the people of citizens who occasionally make considerable noise, are also permitted. But there is a ban on all buildings where noise is the by-product of private enterprise. In fact, so fussy are municipalities, including Belleville, that the corner grocery store is banished from the top bracket residential area.

There is that about the whole thing certain about planning is that somebody is not going to like it.

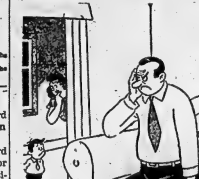
PEOPLE



People like music and dancing and song;
People like gardens the whole summer long;
People have children and most of them show
It's wonderful people they want them to grow.
To God and to countryy devoted are they,
People build churches in which they can pray.

People have habits; a few of them bad.
Women and men all some weaknesses have,
Watch them go by; both the boastful and meek.
Day after day there is something they seek.
Patient, impatient, serene or distressed,
People are eager to do what is best.

People are nations and cities and states.
They are the future that youth now awaits.
A few are dishonest; a few turn to sin,
But most of them true both without and within.
Sorrow brings heartache and tears to their eyes;
Whether people be foolish or people be wise.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Until the last eight or ten years, the aim of the well-to-do was to live in the suburbs. Around most of our big cities, a distance of fifteen to thirty miles, were located villages of a few hundred to ten thousand population. They were on highways or good roads connecting with the cities. They had well established conveniences and utilities, such as telephones and ten per cent rate to the city, power, light. Yet they preserved some of the kindlier amenities of villages, there was peace and sanctuary. The shops were amiable old-fashioned and chummy meeting places, while still stocking all the provisions you would find in a supermarket. To quit the noisy city of 1984 and build a comfortable seven style bungalow in such a suburban village was the smart thing to do. It gave you a squirey feeling. And on the highways or shrewdly selected side-roads, you could get downtown into the big city in half an hour's pleasant drive.

Alas, the prosperity and growth of our Canadian cities and larger towns has put an end to all that. The housing subdivisions have crept farther and farther out towards these hideaways of the pseudo-gentry. Indeed, in some instances the limits of these distant villages are already negotiating for inclusion into the metropolitan areas of cities. But the chief trouble lies in the traffic. For the expansion of the city limits into thousands upon thousands of acres of new suburban homes has created the approaches to the city with motor traffic. So that a journey from one more exclusive country area style of suburb have to battle their way through a veritable Hurricane Katy of traffic to get downtown. What used to take half an hour, it now takes a very exhausting hour. Nor is that all. An advanced guard of the approaching subdivision has already appeared in the automobile agent, and, in between the handsomely spaced ranch style bungalows are the first comers of ten years ago now appear whole strings of little subdivision style bungalows. And the young people who occupy them are putting on the squirey airs that were supposed to belong to those who, ten years ago, first thought of getting out of the city.

It is growing harder and harder all the time to be a really pukka squire.

Keeping Tracks

Every railroad maintains its own highway — a twin strip of steel which, on the Canadian National System, totals more than 24,000 miles of first main track. In addition, there are 1,300 miles of branch track and some 8,000 miles of rail in spurs, sidings and yards. Because these highways carry millions of tons of freight and hundreds of thousands of passengers, it is important that the maintenance of the twin ribbons of steel is where railroad housekeeping begins.

A track, once laid, may appear to be a fixture and instinctively it isn't. Like coaches, sleeping cars, locomotives and freight cars, it requires maintenance. In the 1931 five years the CNR has spent an average of about $13½ million a year for the purchase of new rail and fastenings alone.

This money buys new lengths of rail and other items to keep it in place — rail anchors, spike bars, track bolts and washers, spikes and tie plates. In the same five-year period, the Canadian National has laid an average of 690 miles of new rail per year.

Rail is made of high grade steel and manufactured in 33-foot lengths to numerous weight standards. The standard weight is 100 pounds per yard. The heaviest now used by the CNR, and in Canada for that matter, is 132 pounds. Other major standards are 115 and 100 pounds, although 90 pound and 80 pound-rail is still purchased for a few lines.

* * *

Last year the Canadian National made a test installation of "welded rail" on ten miles of track near Belleville, Ont.

This new departure in railroading practice consists of butt-welding together several rail lengths, and into continuous strips 1,170 feet long, eliminating all but the end joints. savings, in maintenance and material costs, are expected. The welded rail" installation will depend on the performance of the test strip.

Two factors will govern the choice of weight of rail: the volume of traffic and the size of the wheels. Light trains travelling at fast speeds will wear out rail as quickly as do heavier trains moving more slowly. We have both kinds.

The CNR has been using rail for about 20 years, although various factors of wear have been known for For instance, some rail laid in 1876 is still in use. Rail life is calculated mathematically on the basis of the gross tonnage hauled over the track. The 132-pound rail will wear out by about 400 million gross tons during its "life", which is roughly the equivalent of 15-20 round trips of average size. One hundred-car freight train will carry about 250 million tons, and 100-pound rail, 150 to 200 million tons. Other factors, such as curvature, salt sea air, heat and cold, also have a bearing on rail life.

Rail is under constant surveillance by sectionmen and road-masters. Each crew has a section of track to keep in running order. Some defects can be spotted with the naked eye; others are traced by using a Sperry Car. This electronic detector runs over the track and, by passing an electric current through the rail, locates the weak spots. Defective spots are also found automatically with a dash of paint, and sectionmen, following behind, replace the marked defects immediately.

Not all types of rail irregularities call for replacements. At the ends of each length for instance, a space is allowed for the expansion and contraction of steel. Heavy trains tend to hammer these ends down. Then, main line rails have been worn down 35-thousandths of an inch, they are built up again by welding.

In 1942 the CNR adopted a new method of handling rail ends. Here is how it's done: after new rail has been laid for two weeks, an acetylene flame is played over the ends until the melting point is attained. The flame is then shut off, the ends of the rail and given them much longer life with fewer repairs.

* * *

When a rail is damaged during its normal life, it is sent to one of the CNR's rail reclamation plants at Belleville, Winnipeg or Moncton, N.B. Here it is first straightened; if an end is damaged beyond repair, the rail is cropped. This, of course, reduces the rail length. Rails under 39-foot standard, but it is still possible to use them in certain sidelines where shorter rail sections are permitted.

Rails which are classified as scrap, they are returned to the steel mills where they realize the highest bidder. The value is high because steel is made from scrap metal. Steel mills are the largest purchasers. Scrap rail often finds its way back to the rolling mills down.

Much care is taken in manufacturing rail. Each length is so identified by numbers and letters that it can be traced back to the foreman in charge of the actual rolling. This is done by hot stamping a ton weight is dropped from a height of 20 feet on the hot metal on the weight standard of the rail. Should any defects appear later, further tests are ordered until satisfactory lengths can be assured. Then it's off to the mills.

Railway tracks, like the equipment which runs over them, are greatly improved in recent years. Today's heavy standards are a far cry from the wooden rails used on Canada's first line, or the U-rail which was laid in Montreal in 1847.

In maintaining our exclusive railway housekeeping — Canadian National engineers are constantly on the watch for new ideas, new advances and new methods to increase the safety and efficiency of rail transportation.

Newspaper Week In U.S.

(New York Times)

There have been newspapers in America for more than two hundred years, but it took only a decade a week honoring the newspapers of the nation is just now coming around. Originated here in 1939 under the threatening clouds of World War II, and the beady excitement locally of the New York's World's Fair, the celebration seems to have grown very slowly than might have been expected from the size and importance of trade festival among the professions and people of the land. Introduction of newspapers, the newly has become a matter of wide public interest.

* * *

Last year on its fifteenth anniversary, which was also the two hundredth anniversary of the trial of John Peter Zenger, publishers were given to memorials at Federal Hall and Trinity Church, Wall Street. Zenger as first champion of American freedom of the press and "Forum" — served the occasion well; this year the theme was given over to aggressive insistence upon the historic principle of freedom to know — "Your right to know" — with paper fights for your right to know.

* * *

Wise and insidious printers and publishers have fostered that spirit from the seeds sown and cultivated by Benjamin Franklin, Isaiah Thomas and Matthew Carey; but the more adventuresome newspaperpapers were never far behind the most daring frontier settlers. Quite naturally the pulpy and dramatic affairs which began in the cities were carried to a wilderness within a few generations. Quite so naturally the papers these farflung Journalists produced reflected the salty flavor of life and language among the rough and ready pioneers who were their readers. A member of the Pickett family from Virginia set up a paper in Oregon in 1844 called "Flumgumption; or Gleanings of the Bumble Bee Budget . . . Devoted to Scratching and Stinging the Follies of the Times."

Let's Simmer Down and Face It: Dentists Should Be Doctors

It was six or eight years ago, and I forgot just how much it cost, but I'm sure it was at least $100, for a root-canal filling in one of three things about it: (1) The dentist's skill in the use of local anesthetic, which made the whole procedure absolutely painless; (2) the dentist's admirable aseptic surgical cleanliness; and (3) the dentist's technical skill in placing the fillings in the full lengths of the canals, one of which was curved or angled, so that there was no subsequent irritation.

That tooth is still functionally efficient, and worth to me many times what the dentist charged to save it.

Many dentists in practice today are not capable of filling root canals. I suppose we can't blame them for their incompetence. It is the fault of dental education in America. Operative schools for dentists just do not inculcate the principles of asepsis.

This will put a strain on the teeth of the profession. Dental practitioners have been pressing all their canine teeth and telling me vehemently, ever since I first debuted the amazing fact that schools give students virtually the same preliminary instruction as regular medical schools do; that a person with D.D.S. or D.M.D. degree has the same right to write with the M.D. degree to call himself doctor.

The latter claim I have never questioned. Still in any emergency the call for a doctor is clearly understood.

The claim that students in a dental school get virtually the instruction as students in a medical school, in the first two or three years, is not fair, may be, and, in my judgment should be true, If it is true, I ask why maintain separate dental schools?

In view of the rights, privileges, and responsibilities a license to practise confers on the dentist — performance of operations, giving general or local anesthetics, prescribing whatever he or she thinks the patient needs, regulating diet — it would seem only common sense that he or she should be required to qualify first as a Doctor of Medicine; and then, if he or she wishes to specialize (limit practice to dentistry), have additional training in whatever postgraduate course his or her chosen specialty may require.

It should be or the dentists themselves to decide what or how many additional years during the newly graduated M. D. requires to the quality to limit practice to dentistry. This is precisely the way all the other specialties are made — medicine and surgery do it.

The dentists have been sulking for about a couple of years now, standing off from the parent profession, drawn in upon themselves, retarding scientific progress in the prevention and cure of many diseases which begin in the mouth.

Isn't it about time to shut down the dinky, wasteful outmoded separate schools and give students a broader — the opportunity to practise on an even footing with any or all other Doctors?

A LAND OF BEYOND

One of the great world heroes of a generation or more ago was the Norwegian, Fridtjof Nansen. He dedicated his life to humane endeavor. He was perhaps best known for his polar expeditions, during which he made valuable scientific observation, although he did not reach the North Pole.

During the latter part of Dr. Nansen's life, he threw himself wholeheartedly into a great moral war. He felt that Europe was in danger of becoming a pile of ruins with no one the gainer. "A civilization that sets up power as its aim and ideal," he declared, "must inevitably achieve progress for humanity. It must inevitably lead towards destruction.

Nansen served as High Commissioner of the League of Nations for ten years, giving most of his time to the welfare of prisoners and to the protection and assistance of refugees. He supervised the release and restoration of a half-million prisoners" scattered over Europe.

Just before his death he said: "We all have a land of beyond to seek in life. Our part is to find the trail that leads to it. A long trail with no one the gainer. "A civilization that sets up power as its aim and ideal," he declared, "must inevitably achieve progress for humanity. It must inevitably lead

THE REWARDS OF MATURITY

Maturity is something that is earned, and paid for as it is earned. From the wisdom of years developed not by remaining still and waiting for things to "just happen" but by constant activity. The rewards of maturity are great but they are gained by experience from youth to advanced age.

Among governments the "elder statesmen" are consulted and trusted because of their mature judgment and wide experience. They have learned by mistakes and errors. Autobiographies are written at the closing years of one's life because in them is what one has learned and what one's life is well rounded out.

People listen to the honored and experienced. They listened to the merest statements that came from Abraham Lincoln. The elder Henry Ford once said: "I'm looking for a lot of men with a little idle capacity for not knowing what can't be done." He went ahead with ideas that those about him called "crazy." Time and again he proved "impossible" things could be done!

Those who once reviled Herbert Hoover as President now listen to him because of his sound sense and matured wisdom. Few great men ever grow into greatness as quickly as did Abraham Lincoln. Nearly a hundred years have now passed since his death and his years of full activity, yet today he is honored and his counsel is sought and depended by his wisdom. We look to the years for mental and spiritual guidance.

One of the most inspiring poems ever written is Longfellow's "Psalm of Life" in which are these lines: "How to live that in the hereafter we shall rise, to rust unburnished, not to shine in use As though to breathe were life." It is a good poem, but it is not the truest. We climb to the top—not in the maturity of others! Thus it is that we, too, earn maturity.

WALLBRIDGE W.I.

Mrs. Clarence Woods opened her home for the October meeting of the Wallbridge Women's Institute.

The president opened the meeting. There were 17 members and one visitor present. A lengthy business discussion followed. Plans were made for the Hallowe'en party to be held in the school-house October 31. It was decided to send the usual donation to Trenton Hospital, and to collect for the blind.

The "games night" originally planned for November has been postponed until January.

Mrs. M. Phillips, Mrs. H. Phillips and Mrs. Th. Thompson were named as delegates to the Area convention. Mrs. M. Sine gave some current events and Mrs. H. Ketcheson conducted a contest.

Mrs. F. Tucker was in charge of the topics on "Education". Mrs. E. Phillips read "Consider Teaching." It told how a young teacher faced the trials and overcame the obstacles of her first school.

Mrs. G. Garrison read "Don't Blame the Teacher", which explained how parents can help their children in the school and thus do well in their studies. The teacher should not be blamed for "Johnny's poor marks". It should be impressed upon the youth of today the great need for a good education no matter what vocation in life they may choose.

The hostess and her committee served refreshments.

Queen Mother And Princess Back in London

LONDON (CP) —Princess Margaret and Queen Mother Elizabeth will return to London from their holiday in Scotland Thursday, almost a week ahead of Queen Elizabeth, Buckingham Palace announced Monday.

Speculative reports that an "unprecedented" and "important" statement would soon be issued from Buckingham Palace concerning the rumored romance between the 25-year-old princess and air attache Peter Townsend have appeared in the press throughout the last week.

Newspapers have given Page One space to news from Brussels that Townsend is expected to arrive in England Wednesday, a day earlier than the princess for his three-weeks' leave.

On Sunday the Sunday Pictorial said in a huge front page headline: "For Pete's sake . . . put him out of his misery."

Under big photographs of the princess and the divorced Battle-of-Britain hero, the mass circulation Pictorial described Townsend as "The man who loves Princess Margaret."

BRIDGE ST. CHURCH W.M.S.

The October meeting of Bridge St. Church W.M.S. was held in the church parlors on Thursday afternoon. Despite the inclement weather, there was a good attendance. The president, Mrs. E. Denyes, opened the meeting with an appropriate message and welcomed all present.

The secretaries' reports were given and the president reminded the members of the rally at Carmel Church on October 12 and the birthday tea this month and conducted the business meeting.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Twiddy and Mrs. Beare's group. Mrs. Twiddy presided and those taking part in the devotional period were: Mrs. Beare, leader, Mrs. Mills, Miss Clazie and Mrs. Bird. A delightful solo was rendered by Mrs. W. Burgoyne; Mrs. C. Hyde told two short stories relating to the program, and several ladies took part in a question contest.

Mrs. Twiddy thanked those who had assisted and invited all to stay for a social hour. Mrs. Denyes announced the next meeting would be the autumn thankoffering.

Duchess Ready To Publish Her Memoirs

LONDON (AP)—The Duchess of Windsor's announced intention to publish her memoirs has stirred up lively controversy in the British press.

The duchess found bitter critics and sympathizers in sections of the press today for going ahead with publication of her memoirs. The People, a pro-Labor Sunday newspaper, accused the duchess of writing the book just to get revenge by "making more disclosures about the Royal Family" for snubbing her. The paper's big front page headline said: "How Dare She!"

John Gordon, editor-in-chief of Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express, defended the duchess and declared "it is right and just" that she should tell her story of the romance with the Duke of Windsor. Gordon, describing the duchess as "that remarkable lady" said he has seen the draft of her memoirs and added:

"It is one of the most moving, dramatic and important stories in all history. And in some details, a surprising one."

Princess Royal Welcomed By Girl Guides

OTTAWA (CP) — The Princess Royal Monday made two inspections, one scheduled and the other not on the official program.

The latter came at the national gallery, where some 200 Girl Guides and Brownies were grouped near the entrance. The children gave her such a vociferous welcome that after the princess left the gallery she spent about five minutes with them.

The official inspection was on Parliament Hill where a guard of honor of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals was drawn up.

The 39-year-old aunt of the Queen was met at the entrance to the Parliament Buildings by an air-plauding crowd of about 500 and the Speakers of the two Houses, Senator Arthur Marcil, Mcl. Roberton and Commons Deputy Speaker W. A. Robinson.

HIGHEST HONORS

She signed the distinguished visitors' book in both the Senate and Commons Speakers' chambers and toured both chambers.

The princess wore the green uniform of a major-general of the Royal Women's Army Corps, of which she is controller commandant. Just before church service, she took the salute at a march past of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals. She is colonel-in-chief of the corps.

A crowd of about 1,000 watched the march past and the cathedral was filled to overflowing for Thanksgiving service.

Saturday night the princess attended a 180-century dinner in old Fort Henry given by Brig. A. W. Beaumont, honorary colonel commandant of the signal corps.

The only light was provided by candles. The 20 guests dined in the 1832 fort's officer's quarters.

SCUFFLE WITH REPORTERS

After the princess, escorted by a sentry with a lantern, entered the quarters, a scuffle broke out between the sentry and guard and two newspaper men. It was not known whether the princess heard the incident.

An officer of the guard, which comprises students dressed in 19th-century uniforms and which has no connection with the army or militia, grabbed a reporter in the courtyard about 40 feet from the closed door of the officers' quarters. He accused the reporter of trying to peek in the window of the officers' quarters.

Tempers abated after about 10 minutes.

After dinner, the princess attended a reception and ball at Vimy barracks. The 58-year-old princess danced to the music of a scarlet-coated band.

Outside, the princess wore the Canadian tartan stole presented to her earlier in the day by all ranks of the corps.

Capacity Audience Witnesses Albert College Convocation

At the first fall convocation Albert College has held in its 99 years of history, a near capacity audience filled the chapel last Thursday evening with the Principal, the Rev. A. E. MacKenzie presiding.

The annual meeting of the Board of Governors was held in the afternoon and a number of the members were present at the convocation exercises.

One of the features of the evening was the presentation of a picture to the school of the late R. J. Graham from his son, Bruce Graham. Mr. H. W. Ackerman, a senior member of the board made the presentation. The picture is to be hung at the entrance to Graham Hall, the main boys' residence of the college.

The academic procession was led by the school choir in their two-tone gowns, the gift of Mr. W. S. Gordon, Tweed. With Principal MacKenzie on the platform were, chairman of the board, E. B. Warriner; vice-principal, T. C. McMullen; associate vice-principal, H. B. Simpson; dean, J. H. MacKay, the Rev. Harry Davis, pastor of Bridge Street United church, who led in prayer, and the guest speaker of the evening, Dr. Elias Andrews, the new principal of Queen's University, Kingston.

The choir under the direction of Mr. MacKay sang "Dear Land of Home" and the Albert College hymn, accompanied at the organ by Mr. Hoare.

GUEST SPEAKER

Principal Andrews was introduced and welcomed by Mr. MacKenzie. Dr. Andrews, formerly professor of New Testament at Pine Hill Divinity Hall, Halifax, N.S., is a noted author and scholar. Speaking on the theme, "It's a Great Time to be Alive", Dr. Andrews held the attention of his audience as he reviewed the many swift changes which are taking place in the world today.

There has been a revolution in the past 25 years, particularly in Africa, China and India where they have now an entirely new concept of freedom. The people of these lands are indeed on the move. The speaker also referred to the tremendous growth taking place in Canada, and challenged the young people to play their full part in the unprecedented growth and development.

In his concluding remarks, Dr. Andrews spoke of the amazing growth of the Church in Canada, and invited all to "give their best, in order to ensure the fact that the Church will be equal to its wonderful opportunities in this land."

SEND INVITATIONS, NOT ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are having a rather small, but formal, wedding in our church here, and I plan to send formal invitations to the church ceremony and to the reception in my home. Instead of sending formal announcements to the many relatives and friends of both families who live too far away to attend the wedding, I'd like to send formal invitations. We'd like them all to know that we'd like to have them come to our wedding if it is possible; whereas to my fiance and me formal announcements seem so cold and impersonal. However, we've heard over and over again the argument that these invitations sent to far-away relatives and friends we know can't come, would mean to them an obligation to send presents. Do you think this possible interpretation of the invitations should keep us from sending them, and that instead we should send announcements to the far-away?

— M.C.

No . . . to both parts of your question. You and your bride-to-be groom's relatives and friends will be happy to receive the invitations that carry the warm-hearted message you want them to carry: "We want you to be here to have you with us at our wedding, if this is at all possible." To those who come to you, members of the family perhaps, relatives and intimate friends, receiving announcements instead of invitations would certainly make them wonder why the impersonal way of receiving the news. As to any implied obligation to send wedding presents, let nature and the relatives' and friends' own inclination take its course about this. If affection and inclination impel them to send wedding presents, they will send them, whether they live nearby or far away, and whether or not they are able to come to the wedding. In the meantime you've given them the compliment of inviting them.

GIRL MUST RECEIVE DIRECT INVITATION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I've been going steady with a very attractive boy for about seven months, and I like him very much. He has never asked me to meet any of his family until yesterday when he told me that his sister, who is to be married soon, had told him that he could bring me to her wedding. Of course I'm keen to go with him, but my mother and father insist I can't go until I get some kind of invitation from either his mother or his sister. (1) Do you think this is really necessary, since he tells me his sister has asked him to bring me? (2) Also if I do get the "real" invitation, should I take or send a wedding present to his sister?—Sue

(1) Of course your mother and father are correct in feeling that you shouldn't just go along with the boy to the wedding to which you have not-been properly invited. You must have a direct invitation from his mother. If he's really wants you to go, all he has to do is to ask his mother to send you a "real" invitation . . . or, if there are no formal invitations left, she could write you a note of invitation, or even telephone to invite you.

(2) It would not be at all necessary for you to give the bride a wedding present.

ON SEPARATE PLATE . . . SALAD WITH THE MAIN COURSE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When my husband and I give small, informal dinners, and we particularly wish to have a mixed green salad, or lettuce and tomato salad, served with the main course (steak or roast beef, for example), should the salad be served on separate plates? If so, on which side of the dinner plate should the salad plate be placed?—H.T.

Yes, the salad should be served on separate plates . . . so that the salad dressing should not be

Older People Need Good Food

By Mary Moore

No doubt about it—you are what you eat in a very real sense! And nowhere does this show more clearly than in our older people—our senior citizens, so dear to us and so wise.

I think of some of the grandmothers I know. One, is bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked and peppy, is doing a full-time job at a restaurant hostess and looking as young as her daughter. Another, whose keenness was crippled with arthritis, clearly loved by her daughter and grandchildren with whom she lives, was pushed in a wheelchair by the daughter for a whole day at the Canadian National Exhibition, and they all had a wonderful time, Grandma loaded to the chin with their purchases on her lap. But another, who is addicted to the toast and tea routine, is wrinkled, pale, overweight and listless—she could be a great grandmother if you could really tell age from appearance—but she is only 59.

The habits of a lifetime (and they are mostly eating habits) tell an irrevocable story. Healthful eating, begun in early years and continued throughout life, will decrease the length, the healthfulness and the vigor of many a life. But, says the Ontario Interdepartmental Nutrition Committee, no age is too late to start the good habits.

So ladies and gents! If you want to grow old gracefully and healthfully, take note of some of the hints and suggested meal patterns laid down for us by that Committee.

(1) Overweight is the enemy of health. Older folk should avoid heavy meals relentlessly to pursue or maintain normal weight.

(2) The use of fried foods should be restricted as fat becomes more and more difficult to digest.

(3) Protein (meat, fish, fowl, eggs, cheese, milk) is needed for replacement of body tissues to prevent wasting. Liberal amounts of protein foods should appear in daily diets.

(4) Iron is needed for the formation and replacement of the red blood pigment haemoglobin. Calcium and phosphorus are required by older people to maintain strong and healthy bones.

(5) Vitamin requirements do not decrease with age. While aged people may not need Vitamin D as young people do, they must have all other vitamins in adequate amounts. The B Vitamins are particularly important.

SUGGESTED MEAL PATTERNS FOR "OVER-SIXTIES"

Breakfast—Fruit or fruit juice, preferably citrus or tomato juice; whole grain cereal like rolled oats, cornmeal or whole wheat or rolled grain porridge, or an egg, whole wheat bread or toast, milk, tea or cafe au lait.

Lunch or Supper—Cream soup or cold meat or fish, small green salad, whole wheat bread, custard or milk pudding or fruit, milk, tea or buttermilk.

Dinner—Meat, fish or fowl, potatoes preferably with jackets on, vegetable with emphasis on yellow or green, fruit, or custard or milk desserts or cheese and crackers (being sure fresh fruit is used half of the time), milk, tea or coffee.

Snacks—Milk or cocoa, health biscuits, dried fruits or nuts, fruits or juices.

somewhere it shouldn't be! The salad plate is usually placed at the left of the dinner plate.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHAT KIND OF LIFE DO YOU REALLY WANT?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I have been married for five and a half years and had two children, one of whom passed away just a few months ago at the age of 4.

My husband is wrapped up in his work, which takes him away from 10 in the morning to 10 at night. He has no time for me. If I even go to his office, which is his own business, he tells me I'm in the way with my two-year-old, and so I go home, stare at four walls and am very finely.

Now my loneliness has led me to a married man who has paid much attention to me. I met him on my shopping tours. He also has his own business. I've been going with this man for five months, and he has promised to leave his wife. We are both unhappy, and there seems to be no other cure for either of us.

Do you think this has any chance to work out for me? — T.O.

Dear T.O.:

I'm a little puzzled as to how you could have met and developed such a friendship with another woman's husband when you tell me all you do is to sit at home staring at four walls. If you were able to provide an opportunity for yourself to go out with a married man for five months, couldn't you have used that time, instead, to engage in some worthwhile activities? In other words, it wasn't your loneliness that led you to this man, for loneliness can be overcome in many better ways that picking up strange men. What led you to him was the desire for attention you say you crave.

Well, every woman in the world "craves attention." So do men. It's a perfectly natural human feeling, and you can't be blamed for having it.

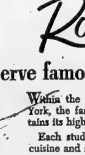
What you can be blamed for, however, is looking for that attention in the wrong place—in a place where you had no business in the world to be.

I agree that it's very hard to spend twelve hours a day alone, and I think it's most unfortunate that your husband feels he must work so long every evening. But there really isn't any reason I can see why you should be alone all that time.

Don't you have any friends among the wives and mothers in your town? If not, why don't you invite some? Plenty of women who have more children to care for than you do still find opportunities to go over for good times with their friends.

Look around you and see what your own hat to offer in the way of activities that would be practical for you. Ask some of your neighbors. Maybe you could find other young mothers who would like to take part in various community activities in the afternoon or evening and you could all take turns baby-sitting for the children in the group. Oh yes, this plan has worked out by mothers in other communities.

And here's another idea. If your husband has his own business, and has to put in so much evening work to build it up, maybe you could help him one or two evenings a week. If you can't afford a baby sitter, swap baby-sitting time with a friend. "I'll look after you to-night, if you'll do it for me tomorrow night." That sort of thing.



You ask me if I think it would "work out!" If you encouraged a man to leave his wife for you—and you leave your husband for him. Let me answer you with a query.

You are only 24 years old, with a long life ahead of you. What kind of life do you really want to make of it?

A life in which you'll be happy and useful? A life that will make you love and respect and admire you as a person, as a wife and as a mother? A life that will bring you children and any other children you may have in the future—proud to have had you for a mother? A life that will make your husband think you're the best wife in the world and he couldn't possibly do without you?

Or do you prefer a life in which you think of nobody but yourself? A life which you're willing to hurt another woman because you've taken a passing fancy to her husband. An idle, selfish life like that will some day make your children ashamed to remember you?

Right now is the time for you to choose. But, when you're choosing, remember this: If you choose the first kind of life, you'll never again find yourself lonely and craving for attention. If you choose the second, the day is sure to come when you'll be far, far lonlier than you are now.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

THE OCCASION DETERMINES THE DRESS

The wrong dress—no matter how beautiful—worn at the wrong time is a definite liability where a woman's appearance is concerned. Never was this brought home to us so forcefully as it was on a recent Saturday evening while dining at a small suburban restaurant. It was a nice little place, quiet and restful. Whole families occupied most of the tables but, of course, it being Saturday night, many of them were taken by young couples out on a date. Sports clothes and tall tweeds were obviously de rigeur for the place and the hour — which was early.

Suddenly the door opened and in walked two young couples. Every eye became riveted upon the foursome. The girls were a sensation and they obviously were pretty well pleased with themselves. There was no doubt at all that they had taken a great deal of trouble to look as stunning as possible. Both were black taffeta cocktail dresses—and fairly extreme cocktail dresses at that. Sleeveless and scooped and so far off the shoulder that their backs would really have come under the classification of short evening dresses. Their coiffures were elaborate and the added comb held their raven locks in place. Chandelier earrings more pretentious dining rooms of a well known hotel — and what's more important, if their escorts had been dressed accordingly! In that case you might think that they had just stopped in for a quick bite before going on to dance somewhere else. But there wasn't a place nil-able for dancing for miles around. And their escorts, as did most every other man in the place, wore sport clothes—contrasting trousers and jackets, sport shirt, open at the throat. It was really an incongruous sight. We couldn't help but feel a few quiet snickers and, as the man seated opposite us said: "Where do they think they're going?"

That one phrase should always be the deciding factor in the matter of "what to wear." "Where do you think you are going?" Before a date, if you're not quite sure what the evening's program is going to be, why not ask? Is it to be dinner and dancing? Will it be just a quiet dinner and a lot of chit-chat? Or the movies? Or dinner and the theatre? Or what? Any girl who's hep can find out if she hasn't already been told. A couple of casual questions usually do the trick. And most men would much rather have you dressed up—or down—to the entertainment they can afford than to have you make them conspicuous by Your dress, so they'll be glad to tell you what's on the program.

The foursome we've been discussing was a perfect case in point. The headwaiter happened to seat them at the table right next to ours and we couldn't help hearing the conversation. And what do you think happened? The men spent the entire evening discussing a local football game they'd attended in the afternoon. And the girls chattered together—mostly about clothes. What was this particular evening getting our dressed up gals! And where were they going? The answer was obvious. Nothing—and nowhere!

Princess Royal Visits Officers At Vimy Camp

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KINGSTON (CP)—Ermine cape and scarlet tunic was the order of dress Friday night at the officers mess, Vimy barracks.

The ermine cape was worn by the Princess Royal, colonel-in-chief of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, and the scarlet tunics by her officers at a glittering candlelight dinner and reception.

Today, the princess visits the Royal Military College and take the salute at a ceremonial parade of the signals school during the second day of her three-day visit to this city of 50,000.

The princess arrived at Vimy barracks Friday night during a rain storm. She wore a brocaded silver evening dress with floral design. The dress had a medium neckline and short train. She wore a small diamond tiara, blue sash bearing the Order of the Garter and several other decorations and a purple orchid.

As she entered the mess, trumpeters dressed in scarlet and gold sounded a royal fanfare. Some 100 officers were presented to the princess before the dinner.

SEES EVERYTHING

After being shown through several rooms, the princess asked her conducting officer, Maj. Dave Jenkins of Souris, Man., in charge of recruit training, whether she had seen everything.

Maj. Jenkins hemmed and hawed for a moment.

The princess said she would like to see the ablutions. The major was a bit taken aback for a second but didn't hesitate long.

The signal school wasn't caught short. The ablutions were spotless.

Tea was served on the lawn. The weather was humid here and theof war could possibly cause detonprincess' lady - in - waiting Miss ation of atomic weapons in the Gwynedd Lloyd, was taken ill hands of American forces. about noon.

She boarded the special car attached to the Montreal-Toronto train at 11 p.m. EST. She was to be met at Kingston by Brig. A. W. Beament, honorary colonel commandant of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals.

Thursday, the Princess Royal was one of five persons who received honorary doctorates from McGill University at its founder's day convocation.

In conferring the degree, principal F. Cyril James said: "By her splendid example during the dark days of World War One and by her encouragement in all the years that have followed, she has enhanced the care of the sick and fostered the welfare of children."

OTHERS HONORED

Others who received honorary degrees were Dr. James Bertram Collip, dean of the faculty of Medicine, University of Western Ontario; Dr. Otto Maas, professor of chemistry, Macdonald College; Dr. Everitt George Dunne Murray, professor of bacteriology and immunology, McGill; and the Very Rev. George Campbell Pidgeon, former moderator of the United Church of Canada.

Before the convocation, the Princess Royal inspected an honor guard of the Canadian Grenadier Guards at the tomb of James McGill, founder of the university.

The princess will visit Niagara Falls, Toronto, Ottawa, Winnipeg Vancouver and Victoria during her 22-day tour. She will return here to board the liner Empress of France Oct. 25 for England.

MINES TAKING TOLL

SRINAGAR, Kashmir (Reuters)—Some 130 persons have been killed by mines on the Kashmir ceasefire line since 1949, D. P. Dhar, Kashmir deputy home minister, said in the Legislative Assembly Wednesday. He said both the Indian and Pakistan armies had laid mines during the fighting in the disputed state and it has been difficult to locate them.

William Benson, left, is the object of an Ontario-wide search by police after his son, Warren, three, was removed from a nursery school in Port Credit. Mr. and Mrs. Benson have been separated for six months and the boy had been kept in the day school operated by Mrs. Hilda Mathieson, shown above with her grand-daughter. Mrs Mathieson says she tried to stop the man who abducted Warren, but he pushed her to the floor as he fled with the boy in his arms.

FLEE MEXICAN FLOODS BY AIR

Women and children crowd into a Mexican airliner as they prepare to leave flood-stricken Tampico, Mexico, where 150,000 persons have been stranded in a 20-block area. Planes are rapidly shuttling refugees to Mexico City and Monterey. Doctors and medical supplies were going to the stricken area as an outbreak of typhoid was reported. The floods have left 300 dead and 100,000 homeless. All around Tampico the flood waters extend from 45 to 75 miles. (Central Press Canadian).

BOMB HITS THEATRE

NEW YORK (AP) — A crude bomb, believed by police to have been fashioned by "the same manfiac" who left similar devices in other public places recently, exploded Sunday in a crowded Broadway movie house. One person was injured slightly. There was no panic among the estimated 1,000 moviegoers.

LABOR SETS PROGRAM

MARGATE, Eng. (Reuters)—The Labor party Monday junked a proposal urging a wholesale nationalization of industry, but agreed on a "drastic program to win back the voters" by 1958. The party overwhelmingly rejected a left-wing program for socializing several more industries.

Don't be surprised if one of these days you see a coal truck go by loaded with shining stuff that certainly doesn't look like coal. One big coal company now sprays its anthracite with aluminum paint. Not only makes it cleaner to handle; it burns better, too.

We note, too, that aluminum is involved in another fuel operation—this time in capturing heat from the sun. An aircraft company operates a solar furnace that focuses the sun's rays by means of a 120-inch aluminum reflector to create temperatures up to 8,500 F. It is used to test materials under extreme heat.

Modern Four-Lane Highway For Britain in Four Years

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Britain, the most auto-clogged country in the world, will have her first modern four-lane highway in about four years.

Transport Minister John Boyd-Carpenter announced that construction of the first 33-mile stretch from northern London to a point south of Warwickshire, will begin in 1957. The £15,000,000 road is designed to handle 30,000 vehicles a day in both directions and to carry traffic safely at 70 miles an hour.

The new strip—banned to cyclists and pedestrians—is part of a four-year £45,000,000 program of road-building and repairs. Eventually the government hopes to spend £217,000,000 to bring Britain's 130,000 miles of motorways up to date.

British roads are packed with some 6,000,000 vehicles but there has been virtually no new road construction in the last 16 years. Motorists will pay more than £400,000,000 in taxation this year but, say government critics, less than one-quarter of that will be spent on roads. In the United States, they note, about 90 per cent of all motor taxation goes to highway upkeep.

The new road to Rugby, with two carriageways each 36 feet wide and separated by a grass strip, will be extended later 80 miles to a point near Doncaster, 20 miles south of York. Total cost of the highway is estimated at £43,000,000, about £300,000 a mile.

Part of the delay in beginning the road is due to the necessity of giving ample warning to landowners. The transport ministry has announced that about 200 public and private interests will be affected by construction of the road.

Detailed plans of the scheme will be made public and anyone wishing to object to any part of the construction program may do so.

Later the ministry intends to publish proposals for alterations to about 180 side roads and public rights of way, and another three months will be set aside for lodging objections. Public hearings will be held if necessary.

The first section of road will have six fly-like verelon of the cloverleaf junction — 66 bridges over roads, eight railway bridges, three canal bridges, five river bridges and dozens more for public and private paths. Where the road splits farms, the ministry has promised to provide small cross-road tunnels for livestock, known as "cattle creeps." Hedges, fences and, if necessary, new water supplies will also be provided.

Reaction to the road program from various interested parties has been mixed. The Royal Automobile Club, the Automobile Association and the Royal Scottish Automobile Club issued a joint statement:

"The announcements marks what we hope will be a new and more enlightened era in Britain's road policy. It is nearly 20 years since any large-scale project of the kind has come so near to reality. But the fact this relatively modest scheme has created so much interest is a fair commentary on

Frogman Finds Wrecks of Five French Vessels

LOUISBOURG, N.S (CP)—A 32-year-old frogman said Sunday night he has found the wrecks of five French vessels sunk nearly 200 years ago during the British siege of this one-time French stronghold.

John Sweeney of Halifax, who has been probing the waters off here exclaimed: "I've found the French fleet, I think it's the greatest archaeology discovery in North America."

Besides the ships he found seven old cannon, two or three slubby mortars, pig iron, ballast and 14 cannon balls, all encrusted with rust and heavily corroded.

Sweeney made two attempts last fall and on the first try uncovered an old anchor chain from the French vessel Le Prudent. The chain now is in the Louisbourg museum.

Despite Loss of Both Hands In War, Vet Looks Forward To Deer Hunting Trip This Fall

OTTAWA (CP)—Allen Piper is looking forward with anticipation to hunting trips this fall for the first time since a Second World War accident cost him both his hands.

Piper, before the war one of the best rifle shots in the area, now has a .30-30-calibre carbine specially adapted for the hook-like artificial hands with which he was fitted years after the double amputation at his wrists.

When Piper first started to use his artificial hands, shooting a gun was one of his least important needs as he slowly learned the more necessary skills.

But it was something he thought about a great deal. Always an ardent outdoorsman, he had trophies and medals to prove his prewar marksmanship.

After a series of talks with various gunsmiths, he remodelled a rifle to meet his needs.

It is a short weapon, weighing only six pounds. At the butt is an extended steel plate, with a strap and swivel attachment to allow the rifle to swing down and hang from his shoulder. An attachment on the stock allows it to rest securely on his left arm.

Most complex change was the trigger mechanism. The trigger pressure required to fire was scaled down to four pounds from eight.

With no sense of touch in his right hand, Piper had to work out a trigger tension at which the rifle would fire and not be drawn off the target when he pulled the trigger.

For safety, his artificial hand rests against the trigger guard until the shot is ready. Another safety device is the use of a lever action instead of bolt-action, permitting the gun to be made safe by dropping the lever. The safety catch of a bolt-action rifle would be too slow and tricky to manipulate.

On his first test of the rifle Piper hit the target at 100 feet. "What that does to the morale is terrific," he said. "But what it will do to those bears I'm going after is still going to be better."

GARDENVILLE

Electric Organ Dedicated At Sunday Service

GARDENVILLE — The new church doors are almost completed at a cost of between $75-$80. The W.A. is also paying half the cost of the new electric organ installed this week. This was dedicated at the Sunday service by the Reverend E. V. Cook, following which Mrs. William Hendricks played the music for the service, with Mr. Lloyd Mitts rendering a beautiful solo, "Teach Me to Pray."

GARDENVILLE — Sincere sympathy is extended to the family of the late Mr. George Lander, who died suddenly on Tuesday evening, following a stroke. Funeral service was held from the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton, on Friday afternoon, with interment in the cemetery at Carrying Place. The late Mr. Lander was an excellent carpenter and was well known in this district and around Stirling, where he formerly lived, at Anson.

WOMAN'S ASSOCIATION

Mrs. Jack Baxter was hostess on Wednesday evening for the October meeting of the Woman's Association of the Carrying Place United church. Mrs. Stan Hart, president, was in charge of the business period, during which detailed plans were made for the chicken pie supper, to be held October 19, in the parish hall at Carrying Place. Plans to serve 350 to 400 people were outlined and committees set up to carry them to completion.

Taking part in the devotional period, at which the theme was "The Bread of Life" were Mrs. Lloyd Mitts, Mrs. Arnold Sleenburg, Mrs. William Hendricks and the president, who read a Thanksgiving poem by Patience Strong, which thanked God, not only for all lovely things in life, but also for hardships, disappointments, pain and care, which teach one how to live.

GUEST SPEAKER

The members were privileged to have as guest speaker, Harriet Stevens of CJBQ, Belleville, who spoke in a charming and humorous manner on the various problems and experiences of a broadcaster. "Broadcasters appreciate and value the response of their listeners," she said, "for it is their only means of evaluating their program and of choosing material most enjoyed and useful."

In thanking Miss Stevens for a most instructive and entertaining address, Mrs. Jack Baxter presented her with 'Bob White's Scrapbook,' containing poems and prose which might be blended into her radio programs.

Mrs. William Hendricks moved a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker which was seconded by the enthusiastic applause of all.

Little Benny's Notebook

Saturday morning I was startled to run out, and pop called me into the bathroom, and he was looking in the medecine chest, saying, For Pete sake, there's a confounded tube of toothpaste with a confounded paper weight on top of it making the stuff leek out all over the shelf. Now those brilliant idea was that? he said.

Me thinking, Heck, I must of left the top off the tube when I put it back. And I started to say, Well G, pop, and he said, Dont interrupt me, I want to see if I'm a good enough detective to solve the crime without assistance. Now lets me see, my extraordenary sense of smell tells me it's spearmint toothpaste, and my wide experience tells me that you are the only member of the household who can stand a mouthfull of spermint flavor the first thing in the morning, which narrows the lists of suspects to one, he said.

But jimminy roozale, pop, I said, and he said, No help from the audience, please. The top of the tube is nowhere in site, so obviously you stuck the tube back in its perverd defenceless state. There's only one baffling detail. What was the super sleuth doing on top of the tube? he said.

Oh yes, that glass paper weight, I said. It fell kind of heavy in my pockit, and I must of forgot I stuck it in there for a minute, I said, and pop said, By golies, that was one detail I could never of worked out alone.

Meaning he needed my help after all, and while he was cleaning up the spilt toothpaste I found the top of the tube for him.

Being on the washstand.

Stone Church WA Commemorates Anniversary

4th SIDNEY — Stone Church Women's Association held the anniversary dinner in the community hall on Monday night. There was a large crowd in attendance. After the dinner, the Rev. W. E. Dovey, chairman, called the gathering to order. Mr. Ivan Phillips and Miss Anna Gray, descendants of the first members of Stone Church, were asked to light the 100 candles on the beautifully decorated cake. Mr. Glenn Lane, a great grandson of Mr. Barabas Lane, the carpenter, who helped to build the church, had the honor of blowing the candles out.

Mrs. S. W. Lloyd, oldest member residing in the community and Mr. Ed. Phillips, who has resided in the community for over 70 years, were asked to say a few words and cut the cake.

Representatives from the other churches on the Sidney circuit, brought greetings from their congregations.

The Rev. H. H. Hillis, a former minister, also spoke briefly as did Mr. Ed. Montgomery, a former resident.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Jeffrey displayed a poster advertising the 75th anniversary which was celebrated October 22, 1930, and other items of interest.

After the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," a social time was enjoyed.

Much credit is due Mrs. O. Chisholm and her group for the success of the evening.

Johnstown

JOHNSTOWN — Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Wrightman and granddaughters, Sandra and Judy, were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Stickle on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Mayhew, Jr., Evan and Anne, spent the dinner hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dickens of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Perce Acker spent a few days this week with her brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Brooks.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gare were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Stickle on Sunday evening.

The people of the neighborhood would like to offer their sympathy to Mrs. Fred Meyers and Mrs. Ken Stickle in the loss of a brother this week and to Mr. Alfred Stickle and Kathleen in the loss of Mrs. Alfred Stickle.

Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Moynes and son Freddie, of Gardenville, spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. W. Hart.

Johnstown United Church held its Sunday school and church service on Sunday afternoon with a fair attendance and Mrs. Glenn Stickle as pianist. The Scripture reading was found in Ezekiel 47. This being "World Wide Communion Sunday." The Rev. Puttenham took as his text, "Do This in Remembrance of Me," found in Corinthians, chapter 11: verse 24. "Communion is one of the duties of the Christian life. A man ought to examine himself. Any I doing my best-to live the way God wants me to? We should not magnify our unworthiness as an excuse not to partake of the sacrament for we all have come short of the glory of God. It is our duty to witness to the Lord as it is the Lord's command. Regular attendance to the services of the church is most necessary. Some think they can worship the Lord just as well by not going to church and that a Christian does not need to work at being a Christian, but they find out this doesn't work. All of life should be a sacrifice for Christ. We should be a thankful and humble people if Jesus is within us."

Mrs. I. Chase spent Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Freeman French.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Smith, of Frankford, spent a day recently with Mr. and Mrs. George Mc-Lean.

The Johnstown W.A. has been postponed until October 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Soalt, of Belleville, were callers on Saturday afternoon at her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. McLean.

Mr. Douglas Harry spent Wednesday at Madoc fair.

Formosans Have Other Troubles Besides Reds

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — A male wrestler was billed in the program as a woman. . . . The losing team in a rugby match was proclaimed the winner. . . . The prize in a wrestling match was mistakenly awarded to the loser.

These are a few of the complaints voiced today by umpire Kung Shih Sheng following the Taipei City athletic meet. He charged that the meet, held earlier this week, "broke all records for mismanagement and confusion."

Other complaints by Kung: A volleyball match was cancelled after the contesting teams waited two hours for the referee to show up. He never did.

The meet started 80 minutes late.

And when Mayor Kao Yu Shu got around to announce the winners, the microphone was dead.

Martin to State Canada's Views On Atom Agency

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) Canada's views on proposals for the establishment of an international agency for development of peaceful uses of atomic energy were before the United Nations political committee today.

Health Minister Martin, chairman of the Canadian delegation, was scheduled to speak at 2 p.m. EST on the proposed agency and related matters. Canada is slated for a post on its first board of governors under the draft statute of the agency.

The draft statute, which Canada helped devise, will be submitted to individual governments for their comment.

Under the statute the agency would negotiate its own relationship with the UN. Canada has not yet taken a stand on the question of how closely the two bodies should be tied together. The United States favors a relatively loose tie while India and some other countries favor a closer link between the two.

SUPPORTS U.S.

Monday, Britain supported the U.S. on the agency's relationship to the UN. British delegate Anthony Nutting said his government felt the atoms-for-peace body should take the form of a specialized agency.

Nutting also opposed an Indian plan to have the agency's constitution debated in the committee. He said comments should be handled through diplomatic channels.

The British delegate said his country estimates that by 1975 40 per cent of its total electricity will be generated by nuclear power.

CAMPBELLFORD

Neighbors Start Fund to Replace Burned Home of Aged Woman

CAMPBELLFORD — An 87-year-old woman, who has spent a lifetime helping others and impoverished herself while doing it, is today being given help herself after her tarpaper shack burned this week.

Miss Mary Jane Coveney, who lived about six miles south of Campbellford, started a fire in her stove on Tuesday to put some water on to boil, and then went to a nearby farm to get some corn to cook. It is believed a spark flew from the stove, and within a few minutes, the shack was completely demolished. It all happened so quickly that no alar was turned into the Campbellford Fire Department.

Miss Coveney has moved into an empty turkey pen temporarily, after gratefully refusing offers of shelter. She will not have to wait long for a new home, however, as already three men, Fred Pallicer, an operator at the nearby No. 8 Hydro plant, Pat Morgan, Trent canal lockmaster, who also lives nearby, and a neighboring farmer, Arden Haig, have started a collection.

After canvassing about 60 people, they had collected about $200, as nobody turned them down. They plan to build the old lady a comfortable one-room home, which will be insulated and have a double floor for protection from the cold.

Miss Coveney lost all her possessions in the fire, including about $20 in cash and a gold watch.

Born in this district, Miss Coveney is the eldest daughter of pioneer parents. Her father was the first man in Seymour township to own a team of horses. The family prospered and Miss Coveney started a dressmaking business, which she ran for about 25 years.

She finally gave this up, however, to take care of her aunt, who was ill. She is well known for her kind heart and has given aid to many people who needed it. Many a time she has been known to sell a cow or two of her own in order to raise some money to help a friend. Lately, she has depended on the proceeds of chickens and turkeys she keeps to cover her wants.

Not satisfied unless she is doing something for someone, she spends a great deal of time re-modelling old clothes to give to "needy people she knows". Miss Coveney is very sorry for her age and does not use glasses to work with, and quite often will walk the six miles to Campbellford on errands.

The Red Cross relief fund has been her through her present needs with donations of clothing and bedding. Tom Selbourne, one of the helpers at the lock was first to contribute to the fund for her new home, and has promised his assistance in building it as soon as they are organized.

Miss Coveney was one of seven children, of which two other sisters survive. There is Mrs. Susan Butler and Miss Lillian Voveney, both live at R.R. 3, Peterborough, on the Port Hope highway.

JET'S WHINE IS MUSIC TO EARS OF NORTH DAY AIRMEN'S FAMILIES

To some people the whine of jet planes is a nuisance, but to the family of S-L Len Boucher, RCAF, it was the best music in the world when it signified the return of his squadron to North Bay after a three-month absence. The 419 All Weather fighter squadron is resuming operations in North Bay and return of the airmen was occasion for rejoicing by children and wives. Robby Boucher and Douglas evidently are following in the footsteps of their father in their interest in planes. (Central Press Canadian).

Labor Congress Plans Body To Aid Farm Organizations

TORONTO (CP)—The leadership of the Canadian Congress of Labor is giving Canadian locals of the United Mine Workers of America a chance to get back into the CCL fold despite UMW headquarters' evident intention to take its members out of the congress.

The executive committee of the CCL, meeting in conjunction with the annual congress convention, has quietly let UMW local groups know that Washington headquarters' decision to stop CCL dues does not mean they have to leave the congress.

It has approved the idea of Canadian locals o fthe UMW paying their dues directly, instead of having the money go through Washington.

Monday, the CCL voted to set up a committee to work for closer ties between farmers and industrial labor. Congress chiefs were instructed to set up a permanent body to advise and assist farm organizations "so that a better understanding of our joint problems may be obtained."

Part of the committee's work, it appeared, will be of fence-mending nature, by way of patching up divergencies in views between farmers, who look for higher agricultural prices, and labor, which customarily presses for action to hold down consumer costs.

Meanwhile, the 400,000-member CCL is expected to take it easy this week on the question of political action. The CCL has been for years designating the CCF as the "political arm of labor," but the bigger TLC has been traditionally neutral.

Indications today were that this CCL convention will renew its ties with not try to get the merged in with the CCF, but that its leadcongress to hook up with the Socialist party.

CCL president A. R. Mosher, who for years has been a strong supporter of the CCF, indicated Sunday the CCL leadership is going to leave politics to the new CLC to be established at a joint convention here in April.

"The joint convention will determine what it wants," he said to a reporter. "Both congresses believe there should be political education. Whether the new amalgamated congress should support a particular party is something else."

ASK CLOSED SEASON

WOODSTOCK (CP) — County council took steps Friday to cut down the death rate of deer and partridge in the area. The council recommended that the open deer season set for Nov. 23-26 be cancelled, and further resolved that the partridge hunting season be closed. Council members attributed the death rate of partridge in the area to overhunting and agreed to petition the department of lands and forests to close the season.

LEWIS RECOVERING

WASHINGTON (AP) — John L. Lewis, 75-year-old president of the United Mine Workers, left Emergency Hospital Friday after a two-week convalescence from "a very minor heart attack." Dr. John Minor, his physican, said Lewis was "in very good shape and first rate condition" and could soon resume his normal duties as chief of the miners' union. Minor had diagnosed Lewis' illness as "a very minor heart attack with a very minor coronary damage."

Pearson Leaves To Meet Bulganin And Khrushchev

MOSCOW (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson of Canada left by air today for a visit in the south with Russia's two highest leaders after a Moscow visit marked by goodwill and the prospect of further trade between Canada and the Soviet Union.

Foreign Minister Molotov, who has been Pearson's host in Moscow in the absence on vacation of Premier Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev, the Communist party chief, was at the airport to see the Canadian minister off. Pearson is to meet Bulganin and Khrushchev at an undisclosed location in the south.

"Our visit has been a most pleasant one," Pearson told the Soviet foreign minister, "and we hope it also has been a useful one, improving and making better relations between our two countries and, I hope, making some small contribution to the peace we are striving for here."

Pearson's visit to the Soviet capital was marked by cordiality. It wound up Monday night with a lavish reception at Spiridonovka Palace where Molotov, former premier Malenkov and Lazar Kaganovich, first deputy premier, gave the Canadian minister a send-off reserved for the highest-ranking visitors to Russia.

One major result of the visit is the prospect of renewed trade talks in Ottawa, probably in a matter of weeks. Mitchell Sharp, assistant deputy minister of trade and commerce, attended the talks here after leave was cut short today. A Soviet delegation is expected to be sent to Canada shortly.

No details on any Soviet-Canadian trade agreement have been released, but Canadian sources say it should be "quite satisfactory."

22,000 Workers Currently On Strike; Another 20,000 Threaten to Take Action

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

More workers are involved now in labor disputes in Ontario than at any other time this year. About 22,000 workers are currently on strike, and another 20,000 are threatening to take strike action to enforce their demands for wage and benefit increases.

The powerful United Automobile Workers Union (CIO-CCL) is the major union involved in the disputes, with 25,000 members either on strike or ready to walk out.

At the five Ontario plants of the General Motors Corporation of Canada, 17,000 workers have been on strike since Sept. 19 to back demands for a 15-cent hourly wage increase, better health benefits and additional holidays.

The plants involved are at Oshawa, St. Catharines, Toronto, London and Scarborough.

AT AIRCRAFT PLANT

The UAW also called a strike of 1,300 workers at the de Havilland Aircraft Co. to try to win a 10-cent hourly wage increase retroactive to Sept. 1, 1954. This strike, which started July 11, has forced the closing of the company's offices affecting another 1,300 employees.

Three Massey-Harris-Ferguson plants, employing 4,800 workers at Toronto, Brantford and Woodstock, are preparing to take a strike vote after the union virtually refused to make use of a conciliation board set up by the Ontario labor department.

The union declined to present any arguments to the board, claiming it would only delay "vital negotiations" with the company.

The union there is seeking a guaranteed annual wage, 10-cent-an-hour pay increase and higher pensions.

Thirteen hundred members of United Electrical Workers (Ind.) walked out Sept. 30 at the Canada Wire and Cable Company plant in the Toronto suburb of Leaside. The union sought a 12-cent increase in the hourly pay. It reportedly voted to strike after a conciliation board recommended a 9½-cent increase, provided that the workers gave up their daily 10-minute rest period.

At Sarnia, 270 workers at the Fiberglas Company of Canada walked out Oct. 5. The workers, members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (AFL-TLC) want a wage increase of 15 cents an hour.

A major strike is threatening in Hamilton. Workers employed at one of the Westinghouse of Canada Co. have authorized their union, in a set a date for a strike to add weight to their negotiations for an eight-cent-an-hour wage increase.

Believe Mother, Two Daughters Perished in Fire

BRANTFORD (CP) — Police today are still seeking the answer to a Burford district mystery fire Saturday where a 27 - year - old mother and her two daughters are believed to have perished.

Ontario Provincial Police, under the supervision of Inspector D. A. Nicol of the criminal investigation branch, have completed their search for the remains of Mrs. Phyllis Malek and her two children, Patricia, 4, and Barbara, 6.

Inspector Nicol said that every stone in the razed farmhouse had been moved but that nothing further than a few bones had been found. These will be sent to Toronto for identification.

A search was started today on the farm woodlot, irrigation pond and general area, the inspector said.

The fire started while Jan Hancheruk, 31, owner of the house was away shopping in Brantford.

HEARD NO CRIES

Police learned Monday night, however, that a neighbor who had spotted the fire and carried some no cies o sounds.

Inspector Nicol said the neighbor was able to get into the house when flames blew away from the front door when he opened it.

Mrs. Malek was separated from her husband, Hancharuk, who lived at the home and told police he and Mrs. Malek planned to be married, said he was in Brantford Saturday at a wedding. He said he sighted the flames while driving home.

An inquest will be held but no date has yet been set.

Churchill Warns Against Split Of U.K., U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill warned Sunday night that a split between Britain and the United States "would surely lead sooner or later to a catastrophe such as mankind has never known."

In a speech, recorded for a Freedom House anniversary dinner, the former British prime minister said: "I believe in the essential and fundamental unity of the English-speaking people—not at the expense of other countries, nor by the creation of elaborate machinery, but as the natural realization of a great truth."

Sir Winston received the Freedom House award for 1955 for "devotion to liberty, courage in adversity, leadership in victory." The award was awarded to him in behalf by Sir Roger Makins, British ambassador to the United States.

Sir Winston is the first non-American to receive the award.

Canvas City for 150,000 Springs Up in Essex County For Ontario Plowing Match

STRANGLING SUSPECT

BLYTHESWOOD, Ont. (CP)—A canvas city complete with police headquarters, fire hall and two miles of streets, today sprang into life on 60 acres of rich Essex county farmland.

It is the headquarters of the 42nd Ontario International Plowing match, biggest annual event of its kind in the world. During the next four days it will be invaded by anything up to 150,000 persons watching 600 of Canada's finest plowmen ply their ancient craft.

An army of 500 construction men Monday hustled final preparations on 47 eating stalls and 225 exhibition stands showing everything from cars and waterfowl to pioneer sewing machines and canned food.

Acreage given over to the big show, which started three years ago with selection of the site on a nearby farm, 25 miles southeast of Windsor, last week were disrupted by two days of rain.

A weekend of mellow fall sunshine and pleasant breezes has dried out the mud patch it left and enabled the three-street agricultural metropolis to be completed. Monday veteran farmers surveyed the clear skies and forecast "10 days of sunshine."

The organizers were not being so optimistic. They recalled last year's show in Waterloo county which was flattened by hurricane Hazel,

Secretary - manager Floyd A. Lashley of the Ontario Plowmen's Association looked at the dry-topped wheat stubble being turned into glistening furrows and pronounced the soil "ideal" for competitive plowing.

Long into Monday evening practising plowmen were turning the damp clay-loam pods with every type of plow and tractor, making sure the blades will be set true FROM THE TOOL

They come from several states of the U.S. and as far afield as New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Manitoba.

There are three women competitors this year, all from Ontario. They are Eleanor Armstrong, of Brampton; Vera Jacques, of Jarvis; and Betty Operhoe, of Watford.

The m5tch includes 42 different classes offering a total of $15,000 in prize money and a trip to Britain for the 1956 world plowing match for those taking first and second place in Thursday's Canadian championship event.

Organizers are most proud of the classes for young plowmen, many trained under an Ontario department of agriculture scheme, who have entered this year in greater number than ever before.

Target of 300,000 New Homes In Britain in Year Seems Safe

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The British government's economy wave is rolling toward the country's big housing schemes.

The annual target of 300,000 or more new dwellings a year seems safe. But some tenants may be asked to pay more—with the criteria a means test.

"If there is a rattle that must be grasped," he said. There were suggestions that the government should perhaps raise its subsidy—running at about £58,000,000 this year. In reality, the government is considering how the subsidy burden may be lowered and Sandys disclosed plans to talk it over with local authorities.

Britain last year built 347,000 new homes, and about one-quarter of its dwellings now are council homes. In brief, here's how the subsidy scheme works.

A municipality gets government approval of a housing project. It borrows the money, at recently-revised interest rates of five per cent. The government annually pays £22 is for each completed house for 60 years.

This amount stood at £16 per house per year in 1946 and was raised to £26 in 1952. Then it was lowered again this year.

Some municipalities argue that the government should shoulder the cost of the increased interest rate, but Sandys feels that this can be got around by use of a system of rental differentials—or rents fixed by the varying ability of tenants to pay.

Some 10 per cent of municipalities now are estimated to have such systems.

But the remainder charge a flat rental fee regardless of income, and with the result, it is argued, that many council house dwellers are getting the best orders of poorer citizens who own their own homes and pay rates and taxes.

The justification for subsidies is need," said Sandys. "The fact that we drift away from the basis of need, the most unjust, unsocial and anomalous our housing finances will become."

The law on rents picture is a delicate one politically. Conservative back-benchers are in favor of the decision, although the Labor party is expected to oppose but only in the form of a quarrel with the rental system affecting lower-income groups.

Sandys has yet to say what form government economies will take. Presumably, subsidies for houses erected in wealthier areas might be dropped. Plans for boom in old slum areas would be left alone, in line with government's program of reducing the country's slum housing.

One part of this program has been legislation designed to encourage owners of existing homes to keep in repair. Under rental ceilings in force during and since the Second World War, many owners have complained that their rental returns are insufficient to maintain the occupied houses.

The question of who should pay higher rent in council houses is not expected to be easily resolved, in view of the well-established public opposition to any kind of means test.

Pearson Denies Hearing Statement Carpenter Made

MOSCOW (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson Monday gave prompt reassurances when faced with a Halifax-dated Tass dispatch quoting Air Commodore Fred Carpenter as saying Canadian squadrons in Europe were poised for an attack on the Soviet Union.

Pearson denied that he or his associates on the board of the statement by Carpenter, wrongly described in the Soviet news agency story as chief of the air staff. (Air Marshal C. R. Slemon is Canada's chief of the air staff).

Pearson assured Russia that Canadian squadrons will never be used for aggression against the Soviet Union or any other nation.

IN AIR INTERVIEW

(Air Commodore Carpenter, chief of air operations, was quoted in 3 as saying Canada's air squadrons in Europe are maintained at full combat level. He had just returned from a tour of RCAF bases in France, Germany and Britain.)

("Our position is to make the Russians know we can knock hell out of them," he was quoted as saying. "We've got to be good and make sure any enemy knows we're good. I may add I'm sure we are.")

Soviet Deputy Premier Lazar Kaganovich produced the dispatch after an embassy luncheon with conversations were most friendly.

Pearson, obviously shocked, referred the story to his advisers and soon knew of the reported statement by Carpenter. The external affairs minister then directed an official inquiry in Ottawa, saying he was glad Kaganovich had mentioned the matter, so that he could clear up the misunderstanding.

Later, the defence department in Ottawa issued a statement that said Air Commodore Carpenter's remarks dealt only with the "defensive capabilities" of Canada's air division overseas.

At his Ottawa home, Air Commodore Carpenter declined comment until he could discuss the situation with other officials at air force headquarters. He said, however, he could not remember having been interviewed by any Tass correspondent.

Rain and Hail Hampers Rescue In Indian Floods

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Further heavy rain and hailstorms today hampered rescue work in the seventh day of disastrous floods in the Punjab as the river Ravi completely changed its course, swamping hundreds of villages on both sides of the Pakistan-Punjab border.

No accurate estimates of casualties is yet possible, but many estimate the toll at more than 1,000.

The floods are the worst on record in the Indian sub-continent, and the toll is believed to have been swollen by victims who have died of starvation or exposure, in addition to those actually drowned.

In villages around this Indian capital today, people were still clinging to rooftops as the water level slowly dropped. Many have refused to leave their ruined homes.

The only people to profit by the floods have been the snake charmers. Hundreds of snakes took refuge in the trees on the outskirts of Delhi, to be quickly collected by professional snake charmers. They removed the fangs and did a profitable trade displaying the swaying reptiles to the sound of pipes.

KILLER AT 17

Hiram Ross, 17, a New York vocational high school student, is shown in custody after, police say, he admitted killing Frank Cargiulo, 20, park department employee. According to the charges, Cargiulo was shot to death because he had played a peace-making role in an east Harlem gang war. Two other teen-agers were involved. More than 100 women and children, who were in the public park at the time, witnessed the slaying.

Grand Jury Will Consider Murder Count

BROCKVILLE (CP)—A murder indictment against 17-year-old Ronald Reid of nearby Cardinal was handed to the grand jury today for a decision on whether he will be tried for the slaying of a Cardinal merchant last August.

Should the jury return a true bill Reid's trial is expected to begin immediately. He would be one of the youngest persons ever to be tried for murder in a Canadian court of law.

Reid is charged with the killing of Benjamin Spillerman, 50-year-old drygoods merchant who was stabbed, bludgeoned and shot in his store Aug. 23 A total of $50 was taken from Spillerman's cash register but his killer overlooked $2,351 in the victim's pockets.

Reid was arrested a week later at his home. Police said they found a .38-calibre sawed-off revolver concealed behind a bathroom wall at the home of Reid's mother.

Plans to Return Keys to City

LOS ANGELES (CP)—Last February, at the Baltimore premiere of the movie, "Battle Cry," Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro presented the keys of the city to Leon Uris, author of the novel on which the movie was based.

Last month Mayor D'Alesandro gave Baltimore book distributors a list of books which he termed objectionable for reading by juveniles. The list, which the mayor said was prepared by The Catholic Review, official publication of the Roman Catholic diocese of Baltimore, included "Battle Cry."

Service Personnel Assist In Building Bee for Widow

TRENTON — (Special) — Mrs. Charlie Good of 12 Lewis Street, Middleton Park, will remember this Thanksgiving above all others although sadness struck the family an awful blow two months ago when the father F/Sgt. Good died in the prime of life at Sunnybrook hospital. F/Sgt. Good, a popular musician was one of the personnel of the supply depot at Station Trenton. Over the years on duty here he acquired many civilian as well as service friends.

There was a full military funeral for F/Sgt. Good and his body was taken to Cornwall, the place of his birth for burial. He left a wife and four children.

Mrs. Good attended the burial service and on her return to Trenton the same day was rushed to the Trenton Memorial Hospital where she gave birth to a baby daughter the following day.

Then Mrs. Good had to think of the future. She knew she would have to move from the RCAF housing development. She decided to remain in Trenton.

F/Sgt. Good's many good friends offered their help. Arrangements were made to build the family a home in the town's housing development on the east side of the river. A lot was secured on the north end of Kerr Crescent.

With meagre finances available Mrs. Good was advised to erect a five-roomed prefabricated house. The foundation was in place when the prefabricated parts arrived. The big job of erection was solved by F/Lt/Lieut. D. Craig and a band of civilian and service friends of the former RCAF F/Sgt.

Last Saturday the building bee started. The sub-floor and framework were already in place. Ed. Culloden of Belleville, a civilian contractor like the others volunteered to give his time and is superintendent of the "thanksgiving operation."

Providing construction continues on schedule Mrs. Good will be moving into her new home next month. She has planned to seek employment as soon as the baby is old enough to allow her to bring a sitter.

Yesterday Mrs. Good with baby in arms conveyed words of thanks to all those civilians and service workmen hurrying to close in the framework before cold weather arrives.

MAKING PROGRESS

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Huffman returned yesterday from Toronto where they visited their 13-year-old son Billy in the Sick Children's Hospital. They report that their son is making good progress following an operation to relieve pressure of bone on the skull. Young Huffman received a head injury a week ago when he was hit on the head by a stone while washing dishes in a stream while at camp with a local Boy Scout troop.

Yugoslav Plane Crash Kills 7

VIENNA (AP) — The crash of a Yugoslav airlines plane in the Vienna woods Monday claimed a seventh victim when Bozidor Mucic, manager of the airline's Vienna office, died in hospital today.

Doctors at the Vienna morgue said positive identification of the six badly charred bodies recovered from the wreckage of the London-bound Ringgend Convair may take several days, but police were almost certain that the dead included three Americans, the pilot of the plane and two Yugoslav passengers.

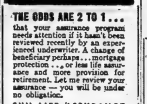
Vienna hospitals, meanwhile, seized eight of 16 persons who were either thrown free or scrambled away from the plane before it burst into flames.

Cause of the crash is still undetermined.

Hunter Drowns

TEMAGAMI (CP) — A Saskatchewan man on a weekend hunting expedition with two companions was drowned Monday in Wilson lake, eight miles south of here.

Provincial police recovered the body of 22-year-old Anton Minarz at 7:30 p.m after dragging for two hours.



Minarz, who had been working in Toronto, is originally from Thornhill, Saskatchewan. He and two companions arrived Saturday.

Monday afternoon they were in a canoe, with Minarz sitting in the middle and the other two men, names as yet unknown, paddling, when the craft overturned throwing all three into the water. His two companions made the 100 yards to shore, but Minarz went down.

ARRIVE BY AIR

TORONTO (CP) Eight thoroughbred horses bought overseas by Canadians and the first ever to be flown from England to nearby Malton airport arrived Monday.

They included My Kingdom, a son of Royal Charger and Legende II, bought by W. J. Farr of suburban Weston. He was considered one of the best milers in England and was kept out of the St. Leger by a cold.

Coldwell Hits Insurance Firms In Health Field

WELLINGTON, P.EI (CP) — CCF leader M. J Coldwell said Monday night he feels 'nothing but contempt and scorn" for insurance companies which are "human not adequate and too costly.

In a prepared address he said Canada needed a national health plan because private plans were not dequate and too costly.

Mr. Coldwell said insurance companies tried to cover "the cream of the crop" while leaving the aged, poor and chronically ill to "the care of the government and charitable services."

I have nothing but contempt and scorn for some insurance companies that have been making human misery for the purpose of reaping a rich harvest of profits. In some cases, they pay back to the customer less than 50 cents of the dollar he pays in and the average in 1933 for combined sickness and accident companies was less than 75 cents on the dollar."

Missionary Call Issued By Billy Graham

TORONTO (CP) — Evangelist Billy Graham opened his final Toronto crusade week Sunday with a call for missionaries for Christian service.

Preaching before 15,000 at the Canadian National Exhibition Coliseum, he directed his call to those under 30. He said there were enough young persons in the coliseum to "turn the world upside down."

"Every Christian should be a missionary," the United States evangelist said. "If you are not, may God have mercy on you at the judgment seat of Christ."

As 560 young men and women filed down to the platform, Graham said the mission boards of Canada are crying out for young people. For many the greatest missionary opportunity would be to bring Christ to their next-door neighbor.

WAGES OF JOY

"When you follow Jesus, he pays wages of joy. For no other reason would I be willing to spend 10 months of every year away from my wife and children."

On Saturday, Billy said people are foolish if they stay away from church because they feel there are hypocrites in the congregation. There will always be hypocrites, he added.

After hearing his invitation, 207 persons made "decisions" in front of the platform. Saturday afternoon, Billy spoke for two minutes to more than 10,000 children. Five hundred made "decisions" after a two-hour prayer meeting.

Little Benny's Notebook

After dinner pop started to change his shoes to his slippers, and I said, G, pop, you better not make yourself too comfortable. Mrs. Hews called ma up on the fone this afternoon, and you and ma are supposed to go over there and play bridge tonight, I said.

The dooce, pop said. Well, according to Napoleon and other military geniuses, the best defens is a counter attack, he said.

And he lit a cigar and leened back in his private chair, and ma came in the living room saying, You look very comfortable, William, I must say.

I cant possibly look as comfortable as I feel, my dear, pop said, I pity any man who cant recline away the evening hours in his own easy chair after a hard day in an uncomfortable office. As Kipling so truly wrote, East is East and West is West, but the middle of one's living room is absilutely best, he said.

Well yes, I suppose there's no place like home, after all, ma said, and pop said, After all and before all. In the words of Shelly O'Keefe, Let morons go out and stay out, in a frenzied serch for fun. But I'll bide by my own wee fireplace with my wife and my son, he said.

That's very pritty, ma said, and pop said, It's more than just pritty, it shines with the real beawty of truth.

I suppose so, ma said. I arranged a game of bridge over at the Hewses tonight, but Maud called me up again an hour later to tell meYewslace has been called but of town, she said, and pop said, Yee gods, you were ahead of me all the time. My dear, it's a woman's world, he said.

PRINCE ALY UNITED WITH DAUGHTER

Lake and Sea Shipowners Differ on Coastal Trade

MONTREAL (CP)—An association of Canadian shipowners today urged that coastal trade of Canada within the Great Lakes be limited to Canadian ships.

The recommendation was made by the Dominion Marine Association in a brief prepared for submission to the royal commission on coasting trade of Canada.

The commission, entering the second week of hearings in Montreal, also received briefs from the Shipping Federation of Canada and the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

Membership of the Dominion Marine Association comprises 22 companies owning 216 vessels of 734,015 tons gross. They operate on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence river.

WILL OPEN AREA

The association's brief said that completion of the St. Lawrence seaway will open the Great Lakes area to ocean-going ships of all nations of the world. The operation of these ships, said the brief, should be limited to foreign trade. Otherwise Canadian and United States ships would be driven from the lakes.

In addition efforts should be made to obtain a treaty with the United States to restrict transboundary trade to territorial waters of the two countries to ships of the United States and Canada.

The views of the association were not shared by the Shipping Federation of Canada. The federation is an association of steamship owners and steamship agencies whose members are mainly operators of Canadian, British and foreign deep-sea vessels that trade between eastern Canadian ports and countries overseas.

The federation asked that the existing coasting trade law be left unchanged. The closing of Canadian coastal trade to British-built ships would be a retrograde step, said the federation.

NOT LIKELY

Completion of the seaway, the federation added, is not likely to alter, to any great extent, the present pattern of deep-sea coasting trades.

The Canadian Pulp and Paper Association recommended that "any drastic action be postponed until experience has demonstrated that the Canadian shipping industry is being injured unduly and that it is unable to meet the competition."

Membership of the association groups together representatives of companies producing 97 per cent of all the pulp and paper manufactured in Canada.

Canada, said the association's brief, should not be entirely dependent on foreign ships and foreign shipbuilders. Especially in the event of a war, Canadian ships and facilities to build more ships would be needed.

Lord Alexander Visits Kitimat

VANCOUVER (CP) — Viscount Alexander left here by air Monday for Kitimat, 450 miles north of Vancouver, where he will inspect the giant operations of the Aluminum Company of Canada.

The former governor-general of Canada is a director of the Alcoa organization. Accompanied by Lady Alexander, he is on a 16-day tour of Canada.

In Winnipeg Saturday, Viscount Alexander said Britain's plan to reduce her armed forces by 100,000 men probably will mean "a cut in the tail and not in the teeth."

"By that I mean a cut in the administration departments and not in our fighting personnel," the field marshal said in an interview.

What's news at Inco?

HOW THE NEW FLASH SMELTING PROCESS OPERATES—First, Inco installed a $2,000,000 plant to separate oxygen from the air — 525 tons of it a day! Oxygen, piped from this plant, plus finely ground copper concentrate and flux are blown into a specially designed furnace and the mixture is ignited. Heat from the burning sulphur and iron smelts the ore and the molten copper matte is drawn off. In this process, sulphur and oxygen combine to form sulphur dioxide (SO_2). The sulphur dioxide is liquefied and sold for use in Canada's pulp and paper mills.

INCO RESEARCH HELPS STRENGTHEN CANADA'S ECONOMY

NEW FLASH SMELTING PROCESS SAVES 65,000 TONS OF COAL A YEAR

Now, Inco is smelting copper concentrates without coal. A patented flash smelting process, developed after years of Inco research and extensive pilot plant tests, produces copper matte more economically than ever before.

The principle of the new flash smelting process is based on the fact that sulphur and iron, when combined with sufficient oxygen, will burn with an intense heat.

Since the ores mined at Sudbury contain high percentages of both sulphur and iron, Inco devised this method of smelting the ore.

In the flash smelting process, Inco employs hydro-electric power to freeze oxygen from the air. Coal is no longer necessary and sulphur is recovered as liquid sulphur dioxide. Hence, Inco's production costs are lower. Like so many other developments of Inco research the new flash smelting process has helped strengthen Canada's economic position in the world today.

Stewart Warner Wins Midget Baseball Title

Ernie Young's Stewart Warner midgets captured the city baseball midget championship over the weekend by whipping Houston's 7-4 in a sudden-death fixture.

The winners took a 1-0 lead in the second but Houston's rallied for one in the fourth to knot the score and went in front with a pair in the fifth. Stewart-Warner came back to claim the victory with five big markers in the eighth. Houston's getting one in their half with the winners adding an insurance maker in the ninth.

Jackie Elliott toed the rubber for the champs, stopping the losers on eight hits, well scattered. His control was good, issuing only two base-on-balls. Joe Ryan went most of the way in defeat with Glenn Bennett throwing one inning. They also allowed eight safties but bunched the eight free passes.

The losers committed six errors and the winners three.

Jim Downs spearheaded the Stewart-Warner attack with a double and two singles. Jih Sopha and Keith Bily each helped with a brace of singles while Elliott helped himself to a single.

Joe Ryan and Keie Beeby were tops in a losing cause with two singles each while Bob Wannamaker tripled. Butch Duval, Glenn Bennett and Mike Ryan also hit safely.

Eisenhower to Help Dulles Draft Geneva Parley Plans

DENVER (AP) — President Eisenhower today was scheduled to hold his first government policy conference since his Sept. 24 heart attack — a hospital meeting with State Secretary Dulles to discuss international affairs.

The session, dealing mainly with the Big Four foreign ministers' parley opening Oct. 27 in Geneva, would mark the first presidential step back toward active direction of United States foreign policy.

Dulles flew here Monday night from Miami, Fla., where he addressed the annual convention of the American Legion. He said there that the U.S. will go to the Geneva conference with two sets of plans —one to meet any Russian obstruction, and the other to exploit any genuine Soviet harmony moves.

Dulles got to Denver as the president ended another day of satisfactory progress in his slow convalescence — at a pace his physicians now say will keep him in the hospital for at least four more weeks and possibly five.

SITS ON TERRACE

It was a day during which he got outside for the first time since he was stricken. His hospital bed was rolled onto a terrace near his eight-floor room and he spent 30 minutes there yasking in the warm autumn sunshine.

More sun and fresh air on the hospital terrace were scheduled for Eisenhower today.

One incident in connection with the session on the terrace aroused the interest of press secretary James Hagerty. Shortly after Hagerty announced that Eisenhower was outside, a helicopter carrying a Columbia Broadcasting television camera man flew over the hospital.

"The health of the president of the United States is far more important than any sneak photograph and I believe the people of the nation will feel the same way about it," Hagerty said in denouncing the flight.

FINED IN TAX CASE

TORONTO (CP)—Ottawa theatre owner John J. Ayotte was fined $6,310 or nine months Friday for non-payment of hospital tax on theatre receipts for last February, March and April. Ayotte was convicted in absentia on three charges, one for each month he was delinquent. He was fined $10 a day for each day he neglected to send in the tax money.

Summer Probe Brings Suspension To Horseman

NEW YORK (AP)—A probe of last summer's racing at the Batavia Downs harness track brought Rochester, N.Y., horse owner who allegedly tried to fix a race.

Harness racing commissioner George P. Monaghan also announced disciplinary action against another owner and three sulky drivers. Two of them were tied to the upstate course.

The commissioner accused owner Don J. Canardo, 42, of Rochester, of asking driver Joseph Hodgins, 31, of Batavia, to help a Canardo horse win a race at Batavia Downs. Canardo owns four trotters.

FAILED TO REPORT

Hodgins, leading Batavia dash winner, was suspended for 10 days for failing quickly to report the incident of July 30. The owner, Al Green, 30, of Karnak, Ill., was "censured" because he, too, failed to make an "immediate" report of having been approached to control the course of a race.

Monaghan said the incident involving Green occurred on a Saturday, but no report was made for two days. The commissioner gave no other details.

The other two drivers are Charles B. Wingate, 37, of Westbury, N.Y., and Al Manzi, 36, of Monguay Valley, N.Y. Wingate, accused of not "fairly" contesting a race at the Hamburg track last July, was set down for the rest of the season.

GRANT EXTENSION

BUFFALO (AP)—Detroit Tigers have granted a local committee a four-day extension for a campaign to raise $150,000 to buy the Tigers' Buffalo franchise in the International League.

Local campaign officials, striving to create a public ownership stock corporation to save triple-A baseball here, said Saturday a last-minute rush of stock and ticket subscriptions prompted the Detroit action. Cash on hand Saturday was almost $80,000. Pledges brought the total to date to about $110,000.

U.S. Football

NEW YORK (AP) — Michigan, bidding for its first U.S. title since 1948, moved into the No. 1 spot this week in the Associated Press football poll, overhauling Maryland's mighty Terrapins, who fell to the runner-up role.

Michigan proved its comeback as a national power by humiliating Army 26-2 Saturday. It was the third game of the season for the unbeaten Wolverines and it convinced the experts.

Wolverines were accorded top billing by a healthy 290-point margin over Maryland, which gathered a 440 record by whipping Wake Forest 28-7.

Oklahoma, its winning string now stretched to 22 games, remained in third place, followed by a general shakeup that listed Notre Dame, Georgia Tech, Wisconsin, Texas Christian, Navy, UCLA and West Virginia in that order.

Wellington Bows To Caledonia In Midget Finals

Caledonia captured the Ontario midget "C" baseball championship over the week-end when they edged Johnny Mowat's Wellington boys 12-10 in the third and deciding game of their final series in Caledonia.

The Wellington crew held commanding leads on several occasions in front 6-3 in the fourth only to have the winners plate five in the fifth to go ahead 8-6. Mowat's lads rallied for their final four markers to lead again 10-8 but Caledonia tied it in the seventh and scored the winning runs in the bottom of the eighth.

Pourland and Lawrence tolled on the hill for the champions, allowing 14 hits between them, O'Hallorem started for Wellington but a goodly number of walks chased him in the fifth while Purtelle and Platt also hurling. They allowed 14 hits in the free-swinging affair.

Lawrence pounded a home run and a double for the victors. Platt drove in seven of the loser's tallies with two home runs, one a grand-slam blow and the other with two on base. Guernsey also homered while Carson poled a pair of triples.

Petes, Orfuns Clinch Top

No matter what happens in the remaining games of Ontario Rugby Football Union Intermediate schedule, Peterborough Orfuns will be in first place.

Orfuns clinched the position by winning both Thanksgiving Holiday weekend games they played. The first game was a 10-7 victory over the previously unbeaten Hamilton Panthers in Hamilton Monday. They also won 31-12 over Stratford Rams Saturday at home.

Panthers won their Friday night game against Oakville Black Knights 25-6 at Oakville. At Port Colborne Monday, Oakville defeated Port Colborne Lakers 11-6 and East York Blue Devils and Port Colborne played to a 6-6 tie at East York Sunday.

Queen's Students Rip Down Posts, Splash Paint

TORONTO (CP)—University of Toronto officials Monday night estimated Queen's University students caused more than $500 damage by splashing paint on stadium stands before Saturday's Queen's-Varsity football game and by ripping steel goalposts out of six feet of concrete after the game.

Phil Loosemore, secretary of the Varsity Athletic Association, said: "The goalposts will cost between $450 and $500 to replace. It will take a while before we learn how much the paint job has cost us."

The tearing down of the supposedly indestructible goalposts at cross-bar down in a matter of seconds. Then by twisting and turning for 30 turbulent minutes, they wrenched from the concrete bases the sturdy steel-bar goalposts put up two years ago and carried them away.

Police did not interfere. A few punches were reported thrown by Varsity and Queen's supporters but no one was injured.

Loosemore said old wooden goalposts may be used for the rest of this season.

Expect Trabert To Turn Pro

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Amateur tennis champion Tony Trabert is expected to turn professional today.

Promoter Jack Kramer said the signing awaits only completion of attorneys' studies of the fine print in the contract and "I don't expect anything to hold up the deal."

Kramer expects not only to bring Trabert, the U.S. and Wimbledon champion, into the pro ranks but also the Australian Davis Cup aces, Lewis Hoad and Ken Rosewall. Snaring this trio, rating as the world's three best amateurs, would constitute the biggest pro tennis raid in history on the almighty pures.

The promoter declined to give the actual amount offered Trabert but said the amateur king will get more than Australia's Frank Sedgman did when he turned pro. Sedgman got a $75,000 guarantee against a percentage of the gross that carried him somewhat above that figure.

HAD PHONE CALLS

As for Hoad and Rosewall, Kramer said he has had several telephone calls from Australia "which lead me to believe that the two will sign." Reports are that Hoad and Rosewall have been offered $30,000 each.

Hoad said in Hong Kong Monday that he had not decided and will talk things over with his wife and family.

"Maybe I'll take it, and then maybe I won't," he said.

TAKES FUTURITY

NEW YORK (AP)—Nail, a big grey colt who never had won a stakes race before, humbled some of the best two-year-olds in the eastern United States Saturday when he slashed down a sloppy Widener straight course to win the $125,125 Futurity at Belmont Park.

The victory, which installs him as a factor in next year's Kentucky Derby and other three-year-old classics, was worth $100,425 to owner Mrs. Anon Bigelow of Palm Beach, Fla., who paid $20,000 for him in 1954.

Eskys Clinch Western Top Slim Hopes for Stamps, Lions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Western Interprovincial Football Union playoff picture is almost set after weekend games.

Edmonton Eskimos have clinched first place and a bye into the finals of the three-team playoffs.

Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers appear to have a big bulge to grab the other two spots. But second and third places are still undecided.

British Columbia Lions, now fourth, have only a slim chance of overtaking Saskatchewan or Winnipeg.

Calgary Stampeders, in last place, have only a mathematical chance of edging out Winnipeg for the third playoff berth.

Saturday, Eskz trounced Lions 38-2 at Edmonton and Winnipeg edged Stamps 13-12 at Calgary. Monday at Regina, Roughriders defeated Calgary 18-12 and Winnipeg trounced B.C., 18-4 at Vancouver.

With Winnipeg now showing its best form of the season and the injury-riddled Lions their worst, the possibility of B.C. overtaking either Bombers or Roughriders seems remote.

Calgary could gain a tie for third place if Stamps won their three remaining games by wide margins and Winnipeg lost its three still to be played by equally lopsided scores.

Frankie Filchok's Roughriders, idle Saturday and with one more game in hand than the other four teams, made progress toward clinching the second spot by coming from behind twice to edge out Stampeders.

It was a fourth-quarter touchdown by speedy Pete Thodos, a castoff from Calgary, that sank the Stamps.

Halfbacks Ken Marlow and Ken Carpenter counted the other Saskatchewan touchdowns and Joe (The Toe) Aguino, the veteran who gained an import alot in a last-minute change, converted all three from placement.

Calgary's points came from touchdowns by end Willie Roberts and quarterback Don Klosterman and a field goal, two converts and a single by end Tom Miner

At Vancouver, quarterback Bud Leake was the big gun for the Bombers, kicking two field goals and converting touchdowns by end Al Bruno and halfback Tom Casey. B. C. kicked for all four points, centre Ron Baker getting a field goal and halfback Vic Chapman being credited with a single when halfback Gord Rowland of Bombers was rouged after his punt.

In Regina, Thodos' touchdown came midway through the final quarter after Calgary twice had moved out front. Thodos scampered 17 yards for the touchdown after finding a big hole over tackle.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

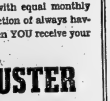
by Elmer Ferguson

A common question during the heat of the world's baseball series is this: when did the series start? And the common answer is 1903.

Probably that was the first year in which it was termed the "world series" but facts are that an inter-league series dates away back into the 80's.

Modern baseball record books don't use the term "world series" in connection with inter-league series earlier than 1884. In that year Old Hoss Radbourne, pitching his most famous brand of baseball, helped the National League champ. Providence, mow down the Metropolitans of American Association in a 3-0 series. These were the days of three strikes and six balls.

Both authorities credit Anson's Chicago team with playing its first "world series" with the St. Louis Browns in 1885 and its second series in 1886. These two sets of games really launched baseball on its "world championship" career which has led to such immense popularity and to many "million dollar gates."



In 1887, when St. Louis Browns played the Detroit team for the "world" championship, spectators witnessed for the first and only time, an unusual batting spectacle. The batsman was allowed FOUR strikes. This was done away with the next year.

In 1886, the "world series" was bitterly fought for the very good reason that it was a winner-take-all affair, unlike the winner-loser split that prevails in more modern times.

TWO SOFTBALL TITLES!

Hail to the Champions!

Not since Don McNevin's Junior "A" crew of softballers swept through all Southern Ontario opposition and went on to annex all Ontario honors at North Bay has a softball championship banner waved over a Belleville diamond. Well, if yee can annex Point Anne for the time being, at this moment twin banners flutter proudly in the breeze announcing to all and sundry that two softball titles came thisaway this season. A distinct feather in the cap of the Belleville and District Softball League.

And another title was within the grasp of Booth's TV peewee eastern Ontario champions, but they let it slip in a nerve-tingling battle with the Toronto Willowdales here yesterday afternoon. The Toronto kids, a well-coached, clever crew of youngsters, edged Lee Culhane's boys in Toronto Saturday, and matched the second game and title here Monday afternoon.

Both the Bobcats and Point Anne won their respective titles the hard way. The Cats trimmed Toronto 8-1 in the first title and endured a heart-breaking 14-inning tussle here on Saturday afternoon. In Cobourg yesterday, behind the 4-hit hurling of Vic Allen, Tiger Temple's Cats clawed out a fine 3-1 win to cop the series and the championship. It was a fitting climax to a hard-fought season on the part of the Cats and they were full value for their victory and honors all the way. It is the first OASA intermediate "AA" title to come this way. Congratulations to three teams of fine sportsmen who fought hard all the way to bring honor to themselves, their league and their city. It is too bad, it was not a trio but someone must win and someone must lose.

For sheer, heartbreaking, wear-'em-ill-but the Bobcats took the cake in that overtime Saturday tilt. Toronto had the title in their grasp in the extra innings of the 14-frame tussle. Perhaps the most heartbreaking of the lot occurred in the 13th when with none out and runners on second and third, the crown appeared to be in Bobcat claws. A ball flashed out of the infield, Carl Woods on third, streaked for home. The crown was as good as on-the-head securely in the bag. Then it happened. Woods fell flat on his fanny between third and home. He was tagged by the Toronto catcher who quickly relayed the ball to second for the twin killing. Tough luck, Woods, but nice hustle.

"Twas "Tiger" Temple's birthday and the Cats paid tribute to their sponsor-player. At a postgame get-together, the team through Captain Doug Bone took Marse Robert completely off his feet and presented him with a handsome silver set as a day gift. A lovely gesture from a grand bunch of sportsmen.

Everything comes to him who waits and the Point Anne bevy of softballers finally achieved a softball championship. They came up with a stellar performance in both games when they turned back the Waterloo Seagrams to win the first OASA Industrial intermediate championship. The championship climaxed a season that saw the Ox Potters battle in many a breathless tussle, but they won this title through sheer diamond ability and the will to win. Softball fandom joins this column in congratulations to the 1955 industrial champions. The Ox Painters have their chests out-stood you can't blame 'em. After all it isn't every village its size that can win an OHA hockey title, the Trent Valley hockey crown and an OASA championship in one season. More power to their cement.

With the Booth's TV's galaxy of stouthearted peewee softballers it was a case of heartbreak. Lee Culhane's gallant crew lost a toughie, 32-21 in Toronto Saturday and dropped the second game here yesterday by a 12-11 score when the game was practically in the bag going into the final innings. A couple of errors was the difference in a hard-fought battle between two well-matched squads. The Booth youngsters gave a fine display against a team that finished the season with 16 straight OASA playdown victories.

Black Hawks, Leafs, Rangers Humiliate Proud Champions; Bruins Yet to Notch Victory

By The Canadian Press

It may seem unbelievable, but Detroit Red Wings are dragging their jerseys in last place in the National Hockey League. Humiliating, indeed.

The Detroiters haven't won a game in the 1955-56 campaign. First they were dumped 3-2 by Chicago Black Hawks, then 4-2 Saturday by Toronto Maple Leafs. On Sunday, New York Rangers, considered to be among the weaker teams in the circuit, beat the Wings 3-2.

Not since 1938 has such a fate befallen the Wings. They dropped four in a row then and ended up in fifth spot. They've been used to riding high in the last seven seasons—seven Stanley Cups in seven years and four Stanley Cup victories thrown in.

Although the Wings are having trouble getting started, there's no cause for alarm. There are still 67 games to go before Stanley Cup time next spring.

CANADIENS IN FRONT

As the Wings were getting kicked around, Montreal Canadiens moved ahead of the pack with two victories over Boston Bruins. They blanked Boston 4-0 in Montreal Saturday and 5-2 at Boston Sunday. In the other game the Hawks beat the Leafs 5-1 at Chicago.

After the Thanksgiving weekend, the Habs were in first place with six points on three straight wins. The Rangers and Hawks were two points behind, having won two games. The Leafs were in fourth position on the strength of one victory while the winless Bruins and Wings took up the rear.

A couple of rookies paved the way for the Leafs' win over Detroit Saturday before 13,496 fans. Billy Harris, taking over the centre spot from the retired Ted Kennedy, didn't look out of place between Sid Smith and right winger Eric Nesterenko. Harris scored the Leafs' fourth goal which took the pressure off a pressing Detroit team. It came at 14:18 of the final period.

Earl Balfour, who had seen action as a Leaf during the last four seasons, scored his first NHL goal. The left winger's marker proved to be the winner at 8:18 of the middle session. Tod Sloan, playing at right wing, and centre Rudy Migay were the other Toronto marksmen.

MURPHY SHINES

New York left winger Ron Murphy scored the winning goal Sunday against Wings before 10,152 customers. Murphy, who scored three goals against the Hawks Friday night, tallied the final New York score at 8:03 of the third period.

Beliveau won the game with his goal at 2:18 of the first period. Moore added an insurance tally at 7:01 of the second.

Plante's shutout sequence was broken at 145 minutes, 36 seconds when Lorne Ferguson slapped a shot behind him at 5:36 of the second period in Sunday night's game. Thirty-seven seconds later defenceman Leo Boivin counted the

'New' Rangers Win Two Games in Row

By Ed Corrigan

NEW YORK (AP)—"What's so surprising about the Rangers winning two games in a row?" snapped coach Phil Watson today. "Those are the New Rangers, you know." He emphasized the "new."

The New York Rangers, the whipping boys of the National Hockey League for more than a decade, indeed, were undefeated when they arrived back in their home town—two victories in the first two games.

Watson might not be surprised that the club has won its first two games, but he's probably the only one in New York who isn't. The last time the Rangers captured their first two games of the season was in 1941, the last-year, incidentally, they dished stop the NHL standings.

They haven't been better than fourth since.

The first two triumphs were over Chicago and Detroit on enemy ice. Their seven goals against Chicago surpassed their one-game record of last season.

That, Mr. Watson, is what is surprising about the Rangers winning their first two games.

"Maybe so," said Watson, "but this team is just like the Rangers in the days when they were scoring the rest of the league to death. Just wait and see. Everyone on the team is great shape. Everyone wants to play and no one wants to loaf.

Watson, who played with some fine Ranger teams when he was in action, took over the coaching reins from Muzz Patrick. The Madison Square Garden manager-mentor wanted someone to put some fight in the New York Rangers. Patrick now is general manager.

"Furthermore," Watson continued, "I'm going to keep changing the lineup until I get the best punch possible despite the fact that we've scored 10 goals in two games.

"I gave the team today off, but they'll be back to work tomorrow. I'm going to keep mixing up my lines. They're not set yet. We play at Montreal Saturday and the

"I wanted him to score 20 goals this season," said Watson. "I realized how tough it might sound to him, so I put it to him this way: 'It wouldn't be asking too much to score four goals a month, would it?'

"It doesn't sound like so much that way. He's got his four already. So now I'm asking him to make it four a game."

Stamps Fire Player For 'Spy' Tactics

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders have fired Dean Bandiera on the grounds he supplied information to the enemy Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The charge is that Bandiera disclosed some of his team's plays to Blue Bombers Saturday night before Winnipeg beat the Calgary fans 13-12, in a Western Interprovincial Football Union game.

However, WIFU president Jack Howard said in Regina that what it boiled down to was a slip of the tongue by Bandiera in the presence of his old Winnipeg buddies.

"Bandiera indicated to some of the Winnipeg players which plays Stampeders were going to use," he said. "He was just a little free in talking to Winnipeg boys, and that's all there is to it. I don't think it really mattered much because they probably already knew the Calgary plays anyway."

As a result, Howard said, Bandiera was cut from the club and league officials plan no disciplinary action.

MEET TODA Y

The executive of the Calgary football club will meet today to discuss the case. Bandiera hasn't made an comment so far.

He was playing his second season with Stamps after joining them from Blue Bombers. He has also played football in Montreal and Regina and is a product of Timmins, Ont.

Cats Defeat Toronto Packers After Losing 14-Set Thriller; Pointers Trim Waterloo 4-1

Two Ontario Amateur Softball Association championship games to Belleville and district over the holiday weekend. Belleville Bobcats defeating Toronto Packers for the intermediate "AA" title and Point Anne turning back Waterloo Seagrams for the intermediate industrial honors.

Bootha TV's were edged in two games by the powerful Toronto Willowdale youngsters, the second game being played here on Monday afternoon.

The Bobcats dropped a 14-inning thriller 5-4 here on Saturday but roared back to defeat the Packers 3-1 in the third game played in Cobourg on Monday. Point Anne defeated Seagrams 4-3 in Oshawa after both teams had won a victory in the best-of-three series.

Booth's TV's lost a thrilling 22-21 battle in Toronto on Saturday and were edged 11-10 here yesterday after a valiant effort to tie up the series.

Vic Allen's superb hurling paved the way for the Bobcat triumph in Cobourg Monday, the lefty pitching a nine-hit, 8-inander four-hitting the Toronto club in an outstanding mound performance. He whiffed six and walked two.

Earl Davis, big colored hurler for the Packers, was outdueled Allen went scoreless and could garner but two clouts after the first innings. Davis struck out seven and walked two.

Toronto got their lone run in the first off Patterson's single, V. Potter's sacrifice and Gardner Hall's double.

The Cats scored a pair in the fourth off Bone's single and Creegan's double. They added another in the fifth with the first run. Emspey struck out and Carl Woods sent Creegan home with his infield out.

Loepfer's double in the seventh sent Duesberry who had walked to third, later scoring on a passed ball. That was all the scoring for the day.

TORONTO 5 — CATS 4

While it was a thrilling game it could scarcely touch the 14-inning marathon the bosom pals played here Saturday. Al Adams started for the Cats and was relieved by Vic Allen in the fifth. Adams allowed five hits for four runs while Allen gave up six clouts for one run in the nine innings. Art Simmons for Toronto went the route, being touched for ten hits, one a double by Doug Bone.

Toronto scored one in the first with the Cats coming up with two in the second. The visitors took a 4-2 lead in the fifth and the Cats scored singles in the sixth and ninth to tie the count. Both teams went scoreless until the 14th when Bird doubled, Potter singled with Bird scoring the winning run on Dean Potter's infield out.

The Cats missed two glaring chances to win the title. They had runners on second and third with none out in the 11th. Carl Woods had the title in his grasp when he fell racing home from third, paving the way to a double play.

They had runners on second and third with none out and one in in the ninth but they failed to hit in the clutches. It was one of the most thrilling games seen here this season.

Bone had a double and single as did Ross Empey with Woods grabbing two singles. Bird led the Packers with two doubles and a single with Dean Potter hitting a home run and single, brother Vic, two singles, with Meadows getting a triple and single.

Alouettes Mow Down Riders Argos, TiCats Split Thrillers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There's no uncertainty about Montreal Alouettes. They simply crush their Big Four opposition under a fearful offensive, particularly if the opponent is Ottawa. Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Toronto Argonauts figt'd it be hard way to the satisfying pleasure of the grandstand quarterbacks.

Take last week-end. The Als, who have averaged nearly 32 points a game and are the highest-scoring professional club in the country, mowed down the Rough Riders 50-7 at Ottawa Saturday and completed the rout with a 43-7 walloping Monday before a record crowd of 22,259 at Montreal.

While these slaughterings were going on, Tiger-Cats and Argonauts split their Thanksgiving weekend doubleheader on rousing, suspenseflled finishes. Tiger-Cats came up with two fourth-quarter touchdowns to nip Argos 15-11 at Hamilton on Saturday and 48 hours later at Toronto, Argos won a 16-15 thriller with a converted touchdown as the clock ticked off the final seconds.

STRAIGHTEN STANDINGS

The games straightened out the standings. Montreal broke a first-place deadlock with Tiger-Cats to go out in front by two points and Argonauts broke loose from Rough Riders to take over undisputed possession of third place, two points up on the Riders and four behind the Tiger-Cats.

In the senior Ontario Rugby Football Union, Barrie Imperials moved to within six points of first-place Kitchener-Waterloo, with a 23-18 victory Monday over winless Toronto Balmy Beach.

They scored 11 touchdowns in the weekend games, five of them on passes from quarter Sam Etcheverry, and their 79 points gave them 254 for only eight games. That is 32 more than the 251 scored by the mighty Eskimos, runaway leaders of the Western Conference, over 12 games.

The Als took a little while to warm up on their week-end job, scoring most of their points in the second and third quarters. Then it became a matter of how high they could go. They led only 9-1 at the end of the first quarter, Saturday and 2-0 at the same point Monday, and then the roof fell in on the Riders as slugging Sam found the range for his pass receivers.

A BIT DIFFERENT

Things were vastly different in the home-and-home TiCat-Argonaut series.

Tiger-Cats, behind 11-3 in the final 15 minutes Saturday, turned a blocked kick and a questionable third-down Argonaut gamble into two converted touchdowns. Saturday's Toronto loss had a tinge of sadness to it—it probably ended the comeback of Joe Krol, a onetime great triple-threat.

Krol averaged only 20 yards a kick and the start of Argonauts' downfall came late in the game when Pete Neumann broke through to block Krol's punt, pick up the ball and race 20 yards to score. Minutes later, with the ball on the Argo 36 and less than a yard to go on third down, quarter Tom Dublinski was stopped cold on a quarterback sneak and TiCats went on from there to score the winning

A crowd of 19,086 turned out at Varsity Stadium for the evening game and this time Argonauts came through with the late payoff punch. Import Henry Ford, playing his first game in Canada, hauled in a touchdown pass from Dublinski to tie the score 15-15 and Al Pfeifer booted the game-winning convert.

FLUNKED PREVIOUSLY

Twice before Pfeifer flunked in convert attempts after he scored touchdowns on passes from Dublinski. His kick was dead on and the big crowd went wild. There was time for one kickoff before the final gun sounded.

Pfeifer also opened the scoring to give Argonauts a 7-0 first-quarter lead. This was wiped out when Johnny Fenkner, a Toronto castoff, broke through the centre of the line to run 80 yards for a touchdown on the Gaels' 32 and Jack Rogers bulled over from the two-yard line to score Varsity's first touchdown.

After a scoreless first half, the Gaels went ahead when Clair Selless broke through to block a Varsity kick at the Blues' 40. Lou Bruce broke into the clear, took a long pass from Bracela at the 15 and went over standing up. Thompson kicked the convert.

Costly Fumbles Beat Gaels, McGill Redmen Tie Mustangs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Queen's University students tore down the goalposts after their Gaels dropped a heart-breaking 11-6 senior Intercollegiate Football Union decision to the University of Toronto Saturday. Maybe they shouldn't have waited until the game ended.

The posts were in part responsible for their first loss of the season that dumped them into second place, two points behind the defending champion Varsity, and only one up on University of Western Ontario Mustangs and McGill Redmen who battled to a 6-6 tie at Montreal.

SIX FUMBLES

The slippery-fingered Gaels tried hard to give the game to Varsity, losing three of six fumbles, but they had a break on the kick in the final minutes at Toronto with the score 5-3 in their favor, Here's how it happened:

A second-down pass from their own goal line to the 30 was nullified by a holding penalty. Quarter Gus Bracco faded into his own end zone for another pass and with Ron Stewart in the clear the ball was fumbled off a goalpost and fell back into the end zone.

That was it. Jocko Thompson punted out of bounds at the Queen's 31 and in nine plays Varsity was over for the game-winning touchdown, a three-yard smash by quarter Ed Skrzypek, converted by Ed Malk. Late in the third quarter Phil Muntz picked up a Green's fumble on the Gaels' 32 and Jack Rogers bulled over from the two-yard line to score Varsity's first touchdown.

That was the way it went in the Gaels' west ahead when Clair Selless broke through to block a Varsity kick at the Blues' 40. Lou Bruce broke into the clear, took a long pass from Bracela at the 15 and went over standing up. Thompson kicked the convert.

Meanwhile, Mustangs and the Redmen muffed a chance after chance in the second wound up with the deadlock. There was no first-

The south player leaped into a contract of seven no-trump for no good reason that I can imagine. Against such bidding you could make a good living. But not in this particular case.

Opening lead from west was the diamond king and to think of any better lead is unthinkable. With what the declarer sees in dummy he should start quivering in his galoshes.

It looks as if he could lose a trick in each of the four suits. With an opening diamond lead, loss of any other trick is even worse. Opponent diamonds would then tear him to shreds.

In a grand slam at no-trump a declarer has no time to let his feet drag. So, he took the first trick with his ace and ran the four spade tricks on which south slutfed his two small diamonds.

By finessing hearts he picked up the east king in three rounds. Club ace was cashed. So was a fourth heart on which dummy's slutfed a club. This left each hand with three cards.

South had the 13th heart and two small clubs. Dummy, north, kept the nine of diamonds and king with ten in clubs. West clung to the diamond queen and queen with jack of clubs.

Right here south led his last heart. The grip that west had on two minor suits is now about to be broken. He must play a card before dummy. Which card will he let go?

If he flings the diamond queen, dummy throws the club ten and takes the last two tricks with club king and diamond nine. If west fires a club, dummy takes the last two tricks with king and ten of clubs.

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Joseph L. Taborsky, 31, is a free man after more than four years in "death row." He was sentenced June 7, 1951, to die in the electric chair for the fatal shooting of a liquor store owner. Taborsky insisted he was innocent, but was convicted on the testimony of his brother, Albert, 29. Albert has since been declared insane, and this won Joseph a new trial.

Lonesome George to Introduce New Member of His Family

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Lonesome George Gobel lopes back into the television big time tonight, introducing a new member of his family.

When the droll comedian appears on his NBC show, wife Alice will be missing. Jeff Donnell, who played Alice last season, has been told she won't be a regular this year. Presumably this is to avoid the rut of husband-and-wife shows.

In her place will be Gobel's mother, Lillian. She'll be played by character actress Gladys Hurlbut. To observe the event, George's real mother, Mrs. Herman Gobel, was brought here from her home in Chicago.

Mrs. Gobel, as attractive woman with grey hair and rimless glasses, is obviously proud of her son's fame. She thinks of him more as a singer than a comedian.

"All of our friends do," she said. "They all ask, 'Why doesn't George sing more on his show?' They all remember him when he sang in Chicago."

How did he develop his talent? "My husband has always liked music—good music—and I played the piano. I was always too shy to play in recital, but I used to accompany George.

"When George was a baby we used to have a player piano, and he could sleep right next to it while it was playing. Folks said he was bound to grow up musical."

Mrs. Gobel is suspected that George developed his comedy talent by hanging around his father's grocery store and meat market. "He'd study the people who came in and then imitate them," she recalled.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wed. Oct. 12, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — There are times when we must think of others first, ourselves last. This does not mean to wholly neglect our interests, but to become a little closer to mankind. This is such a day. Enjoy your family.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Think then act — and act with firmness but due respect for all. Be careful that everyone does not already understand your sudden impulses and frequent "silent" periods.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — A fine day for reviewing or checking to ascertain whether you are headed in the wrong direction. It is always better to try again, to start again rather than continue in unsure fashion.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Do what you must do without misgivings, and get a happy, systematic start as early as possible. Then continue in like manner to insure accomplishment.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Here is a time for good will, thoughtful consideration of co-workers and family. Check whether criticism would be constructive before you make it. Do your honest best.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Nothing is too good for those we love, yet we do not always think about this when we speak or act. Speak gently today. Take your duties in stride, and have faith.

CONSTIPATED

Acts second and get relief in a few short hours with Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Truly laxative in effect, they treat you to liberal results at once. Why put up with suffering? Ready for help when they send it. Dr. Chase's mean you can rely on for fast relief.

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

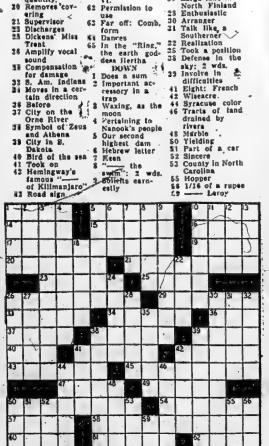
September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Why not review, as suggested to others today, before going ahead. Make sure you are on the right path. Small improvements can mean much in the end. Act sensibly.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Don't be careless with health. And don't be hasty. Haste cannot! Haste causes needless errors, but worse, it weakens vitality, nerves.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — Your eyes and nervous system may suffer through your anxiety to achieve against time or through going too long without relaxation; so be on guard. You have a good head; use it now.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — While there are many good influences prevalent, this is also a day for cautious steps and some recalculations. You will know where this applies. If sailing along smoothly, thank God.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Work, play, other interests favored — but in moderation. Today holds new stimulus for old matters.



February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Neither good for business nor pleasure is propitious for dilly-and-dally. That "happy medium" does it. Those of you who have much to do in little time, remain cool and collected. Relax in leisure hours.

You born today have a wealth of fortitude and dignity; remarkable recuperative powers (things being normal), and the ability to come back strong from setbacks. You have faith in good causes and because of this and your willingness to work hard for them, most of your battles are won from the start. You can be an inspiring example to all about you; can be too demanding at times, too. Be reasonable in all things and you will be happy.

Montreal Man Held in Shooting

MONTREAL (CP) — Police have arrested a 32-year-old machinist for questioning in connection with the fatal shooting of his brother-in-law Monday following an argument in the west-end district of Notre Dame de Grace.

Shot to death through the heart with a 2-calibre rifle was George Lachuk, 39, of suburban Lachine. Taken into custody a short time later as a material witness was John Vokey.

A coroner's inquest has been tentatively set for Wednesday in Quebec, no charges are laid in cases of violent death until after a coroner's court hearing.

General Motors Talks Resume

TORONTO (CP) — Further meetings are scheduled today between company and union officials from the General Motors Corporation of Canada plant in Oshawa.

The officials are meeting to try to find a solution to a series of local plant problems. The main negotiations to end the strike of 17,000 workers in five plants, which started June 2, will not begin until all local problems are resolved.

Local issues at the other GM plants — St. Catharines, London, Toronto and Ste. Therese — are settled, and officials from these plants are awaiting the outcome of the main talks on the United Automobile Workers Union (CIO-CCL) demands for a 15-cent hourly wage increase, two extra paid holidays and improved paid medical and health insurance.

YONKERS, N.Y (AP) — A world's record for two-year-old pacers on a half-mile track was set at Yonkers raceway Monday night when Belle Acton flew away from her field to win the $10,000 Autumn pace by 20 lengths. She covered the mile in 2:02.4, three-fifths of a second better than the previous record held jointly by Adios Boy and Quick Chief.

Tweedsmuirs Tramp 9 Miles In Deep Snow

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir hiked nine miles through deep snow in northern British Columbia during the week-end.

Rain and low cloud cancelled flights out of Kemano, 400 miles north of here, Saturday and the Tweedsmuirs decided to go on to Kidala Arm, 35 miles away, by jeep.

The vehicle bogged down in snow often waist-deep—13 miles from Kemano and the party of six covered the next nine miles on foot.

Lord Tweedsmuir, son of Canada's governor-general from 1935 to 1940, is touring Canada with his wife. The Tweedsmuirs left Sunday for Kingston, Ont.

First Civilian Prisoners Freed By Soviet Russia

CAMP FRIEDLAND, Germany (AP) — The first group of civilian German prisoners from the Soviet Union arrived in the West today. Some of them said an American soldier and four others claiming to be Americans or to have American connections are being held in Russian slave labor camps.

A total of 195 civilians arrived, 26 in West Berlin and 169 at Camp Friedland. They included 24 women and five children born in captivity. The internees said they had been arrested "for minor offences" between 1946 and 1953 at their homes in East German areas.

Several thousand military prisoners have arrived in West and East Germany. A batch of 31 today included 22 former generals.

Cypriots Steal Army Supplies

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters) — Hundreds of British commandos swooped on two Cyprus villages today, imposed a curfew and started a house-to-house search for 18 cases of army supplies stolen by bandits from a warehouse Monday.

Nothing was found, but the Greek Cypriot village headmen and a Greek Orthodox priest were detained for questioning.

Army authorities have not yet revealed the contents of the cases stolen from the army warehouse, but they are believed to have contained sub-machine-guns.

Troops on Guard As Piston Ring Plant Reopens

About 70 workers entered the foundry as it regularly employs 260—as the doors were opened for "anyone who wants to work" despite the long-drawn-out contract dispute.

Other Perfect Circle Indiana plants remained open without incident in nearby Hagerstown and Richmond. Almost 1,000 national guard troops, imposing martial law, protected all of New Castle and Hagerstown and the two plants at Richmond.

Four tanks are on the foundry parking lot here, facing the plant where about 30 newspapermen were evacuated by state police last Wednesday after an exchange of shots that wounded eight persons.

Only five pickets, without placards, marched quietly at the foundry gates, in contrast with an estimated 5,000 sympathizers who touched off the riot last week. The disorder prompted state Governor George Craig to send in guardsmen.

PROTEST ORDER

The CIO United Auto Workers Union has been on strike against Perfect Circle here and at Hagerstown and Richmond since July 25.

The governor's order of full martial law was protested by the UAW which called it "putting property rights above human rights." Union officials stayed away from a negotiation session which had been arranged by federal mediators.

"We refuse to attend any meetings within the shadow of fixed bayonets and Sh.rman tanks," said Don Ballard, Indianapolis regional publicity director for the UAW.

Newsmen Taking Defence Course

ARNPRIOR (CP) — The men whose job it is to observe and inform begin a three-day course at the civil defence college here today.

Some 70 members of the newspaper and radio news broadcasting fraternities will hear instructors at the federal government's civil defence training centre outline the many horrors to be expected should another war come and, what preparations have been taken to meet them.

The reporters, editors, and broadcasters will spend the remainder of their course — first for radio and newspaper men here — in discussions of the part news media would play should such a disaster occurs.

Civil defence officials said they hope the discussions will result in some sort of general principles which will find approval among the gatherers and broadcasters of the news.

ERECT MEMORIAL TO COL. JOHN BY

This century-old fountain, once in London's Trafalgar Square, has been unveiled at its new site in Ottawa. It was erected by the Engineering Institute of Canada in honor of Col. John By, builder of the Rideau canal linking Ottawa and Kingston, Ont. Shown at the unveiling are: (Left to right) Dr. R. E. Heartz, of Montreal, president of the Institute; Works Minister Winters; Brig. J. L. Melville, honorary colonel of the Royal Canadian Engineers, and R. F. Legget, chairman of the Ottawa branch of the Institute. (CP Photo).

U.S. Motorist Drives Jeep Into Moscow Without Trouble

Dr. Berthold Schulz, a Chicago dentist, blithely parked his British jeep outside the Kremlin walls, strolled into the National Hotel, and fraternized Soviet tourist officials. He told them he wanted to drive the jeep through the Soviet Union and come out by way of Iran or Czechoslovakia.

Dr. Schulz had driven to Moscow from Helsinki, Finland — first foreign tourist since the 1917 revolution to do so — apparently unaware of the stir he was causing.

His hobby has been long, difficult drives like one between London and Cape Town, South Africa. He calls himself a "frustrated bachelor."

The Intourist officials just did not know what to do when presented with the request.

"They seemed puzzled," Dr. Schulz reported Sept. 27.

This failed to surprise foreigners who live in Moscow. They are not accustomed just to jump into an auto and drive around the Soviet Union at will. The majority are unable even to obtain Soviet driving licences.

The dentist got a 30-day Soviet visa in Washington and went to Britain, where he bought the cream-colored Land Rover jeep. He told here of experiences on the way:

When he arrived at the Finnish-Soviet frontier, the Finnish guards scurried for an interpreter, who asked him "Do you really want to go to Russia?" Dr. Schulz replied he did.

A lone Soviet sentry was on duty 20 feet away. He fired his rifle twice into the air and a corporal of the guard came running up.

The two held a long consultation and then telephoned to Vipuri, 30 miles away. An officer finally arrived from that base and, after a six-hour delay, Dr. Schulz crossed into the Soviet Union.

The Chicagoan speaks not one word of Russian but said he did not need road maps — he just followed the signs, just to Leningrad, then to Moscow.

He spent a couple of days in Leningrad. He bought gasoline coupons and set out late one night for Moscow.

The road was hard-surfaced and good, he said, except for 100 miles under repair.

"Then I just drove through fields," he said.

The last United States Embassy official who tried the Leningrad-Moscow road with a Soviet chauffeur had to abandon the car halfway and have it shipped back to Moscow.

Dr. Schulz followed the signs right into the heart of Moscow — Red Square — where he began asking the way to the American Embassy. Someone who spoke English finally turned up and he got directions.

He found the embassy building with some difficulty.

"The sign is too small to read," he said. "They should put up a bigger one so visiting Americans can find it easier."

He was told there had been little need for this, since he was the first American to look for it without a Soviet chauffeur or guide.

Pro-West Party Cuts Nationalists Lead in Voting

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The pro - Western Moslem Masjumi party has whittled down the lead of the Indonesian Nationalist party to about 600,000 with the help of revised unofficial returns. More than 28,000,000 ballots have been counted, about 80 per cent of the anticipated total.

Heavy majority on Sumatra and Borneo in Indonesia's first popular national elections put the Masjumi in a position to challenge seriously the Nationalists' bid to capture the largest number of the 260 elected seats in Parliament and form a government for four years.

The tabulations were revised after it was disclosed that some voting districts had duplicated their initial totals, causing the National ists' vote to run over 8,000,000.

CRITICIZE EDEN

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Eden Monday came under fire from his own ranks for deferring a decision on government changes. The Daily Mail and the Daily Telegraph, newspapers which consistently support the Conservative party, say they are puzzled by Eden's determination to stand pat on his present team.

Seaway Work Is Progressing On Schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Excavation of the Long Sault canal and lock sites, a principal feature of the St. Lawrence seaway, is 21 per cent complete after six months' operations.

The St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp., the U.S agency that is building the United States portion of the international waterway, disclosed Monday the extent of its operations to date.

A total of 4,511,000 cubic yards of material has been removed. Before completion of the project, 22,800,000 yards will be removed.

In addition to the excavation work, the four contractors on the job—largely in the Massena, N.Y. area—have placed 1,381,000 cubic yards of material in embankments. Excavation jobs at the sites of the Robinson bay and Grasse river locks are 80 per cent complete.

GETS DAMAGES

TRENTON (CP) — Charles Rodgerson, former Trenton assessor, was awarded $23R damages from the town of Trenton in court here Thursday. He sought $2,700 for alleged unlawful dismissal, breach of contract and being prevented from obtaining suitable employment after dismissal. The court found Mr. Rodgerson should have been dismissed by by-law instead of motion.

CHOSE OFFICERS

STRATFORD (CP) — Reginald Carter of Stratford Monday was elected president of the general Sunday school executive of the United Missionary Church at the group's sixty-sixth annual provincial Sunday school convention here. Other officers: Ross Lehman, Petersburg, first vice-president; Rev. Alan Embree, Sarnia, second vice-president; Gordon Stauffer, Breslau, secretary.

Disarmament Problem Grows More Urgent

NEW YORK (CP) — Canada's chief spokesman on disarmament feels the problem will become increasingly urgent "as newer and more frightful weapons of destruction are developed."

Health Minister Martin, chief of the Canadian delegation to the United Nations and his country's representative on the UN's five-power special sub-committee on disarmament, suggested in a dinner address Monday night that an international check on the unknown weapons of the future may be even more vital than elimination of the known weapons of the present.

Speaking at the annual dinner of the United States National Conference of Christians and Jews, Martin particularly mentioned guided missiles — "a completely new and truly terrifying weapons system for intercontinental warfare."

If the present armament race is maintained, Martin said, all countries will be forced to engage in vast new expenditures on research, development and defence in the guided missile field.

A successful disarmament conference could reduce these "crippling" financial burdens and liberate abundant resources for peaceful pursuits.

Glamor Queen Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Alice Joyce 55, one of the movies' first glamour queens in the silent era, died Sunday.

She formerly was married to actor Tom Moore, one of the silent screen's famous Moore brothers, and director Clarence Brown, the man who filmed many of Garbo's pictures. Miss Joyce's performance in "Stella Dallas" went down in screen history as one of the great tear-inducing performances of all time.

Key Stocks Down $1 to $6 Share

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was nursing another of its Tuesday morning hangovers today after skidding downward for the third straight Monday since President Eisenhower's heart attack.

As key stocks lost from around $1 to $6 a share, there was an estimated drop of $5,000,000,000 in the quoted value of securities listed on the New York stock exchange.

Some of the fatter blue chips were down as much as $10 a share.

The latest setback brought the estimated fall in quoted value to $19,000,000,000 since Monday, Sept. 26, when Wall street reeled to its worst daily retreat since 1929 with the first news of Eisenhower's illness.

Street observers said many investors are selling stocks now that the conviction has deepened that Eisenhower will not run for re-election. They noted, however, that rallies have followed the sharp Monday declines.

Fire Hall Fire In Prevention Week Annoying

PROSPECT PARK, N. J. (AP)—The firemen of this town's volunteer company discovered their fire hall on fire Tuesday.

They said the blaze was occasioned by a member of a club of men over 80 who meet every afternoon at the fire house. He had emptied his pipe in a wastepaper basket.

Other fire houses have been known to catch fire in the past, but members of the company were particularly distressed about this blaze! This is Fire Prevention Week in New Jersey.

Says Shipbuilding Industry Needs Quick Assistance

MONTREAL (CP) — A royal commission was told today "time is of the essence" if the Canadian shipbuilding industry is to be protected.

In a brief prepared for submission to the commission on coasting trade, Canada Steamship Lines limited requested:

1. Restrictions of the coasting trade in Canada, particularly within the Great Lakes, to ships of Canadian registry;

2. Restriction of new additions to Canada's coasting fleet, after Jan. 1, 1956, to ships built in Canada;

3. Study of the effect on the United States-Canadian domestic water-borne trade of United Kingdom and foreign-flag desire to strengthen the bands of the Western Big Three at the parley.

The brief was released to the press before delivery.

The brief said "Canadian shipbuilding should not be permitted to die. It is necessary for national defence and repairing of coasting ships.

"Furthermore, since U. K. vessels have already come into the Canadian iron ore trade of the coasting waters of Quebec, time is of the essence."

Completion of the St. Lawrence seaway would mean that large U.K. and foreign ships could operate in the Great Lakes to the detriment of Canadian shipping. Wages of Canadian inland crews were "approximately 200 per cent of the wages of British crews."

Reuther Contends Reds Bent On World Domination

TORONTO (CP)—CIO president Walter Reuther said Tuesday he is convinced the Communists, despite Geneva, still are bent on world domination and to achieve it will say to "forge poverty into power."

Mr. Reuther told a gathering of the Empire and Canadian Clubs here that the Communist bent presents a challenge to free nations to abolish poverty through social justice.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Warm weather prevails over southern Ontario and the eastern States. Cold air is advancing rapidly eastward across the central states accompanied by an extensive band of showers and thunderstorms. The cooler air is expected to sweep most of southern Ontario by late tonight. Its approach will be accompanied by showers and thunderstorms.

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union warned Iran today that her adherence to the Turkey-Pakistan-Iraq defence pact might endanger relations between the two countries, Moscow radio reported.

A broadcast heard here said Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov called in the Iranian ambassador in Moscow and told him that Iranian accession to the pact "contradicts the good neighborly relations between Persia (Iran) and the Soviet Union and to the obligations of Persia."

The Soviet Union is Iran's northern neighbor. She has a friendship treaty with Iran which gives the Soviet Union the right to march into Iran if she considers the latter has become a base for an attack on Russia.

IRAN JOINS ALLIANCE

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Iran lined up officially with the U.S.-Britain-backed Middle East alliance, closing a major gap in the anti-Communist world's defence chain south of the Soviet Union.

The Iranian government Tuesday announced its adherence to the hundred-page pact which now unites Turkey, Iraq, Pakistan and Britain in a mutual defence agreement.

With Iran, the Middle Eastern group forms a solid land belt from the Mediterranean to the Himalayas. The north Atlantic alliance extends the chain on across southern and western Europe, the Atlantic and North America.

Premier Hussein Ala announced that he has sent a foreign ministry official to the Baghdad headquarters of the Middle East pact with a note advising that the Iranian government is submitting its adherence to the treaty to parliament for ratification.

Approval of both houses of parliament is necessary, but the shah's strong support of the treaty is believed to assure its ratification.

One informed source said Iran will formally announce its joining the alliance before the Geneva conference of the Big Four foreign ministers, scheduled to open Oct. 27. The timing, said the source, stemmed from an "obvious" reaction against Russia's desire to strengthen the bands of the Western Big Three at the parley.

Iranian adherence to the pact is certain to arouse the ire of her Communist neighbors on the north. Russians have charged repeatedly that the Middle East alliance is aimed at them, and also have frequently reminded Iran that she and Russia agreed in 1927 not to participate in political alliances or agreements directed against the other.

Canadian Held For Burglary

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A Canadian described as walking "like a leopard" was arrested Tuesday on charges of burglary.

There May Be Two Moons in Sky When U.S. Fires Second 70 Miles Up

By SANKY TRIMBLE

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP)—United States Air Force scientists tonight take a literal leap into the dark in a new series of upper-atmosphere research.

At approximately 20 minutes after ground sunset the Cambridge air force research centre will fire an 11-pound rocket designed to probe some of the secrets of dawn and dusk.

The project has drawn more publicity than any other rocket ever about. It started when a British scientist announced in London that the U.S. air force would attempt to create artificial moonlight.

Basically the experiment involves the introduction of sodium vapor into an altitude of 70 miles and 70 miles above earth. The Aerobee rocket, equipped with special mechanism to fire two containers of metallic sodium pellets at the proper moment, was launched from the southern New Mexico desert if weather conditions are favorable tonight.

Official air force releases on the scientific experiment have been cautiously worded to give observers a clear understanding that they may see nothing at all.

An air force announcement said the experiment "is designed to advance publicity"—its not designed to produce artificial moonlight—but a large cloud covering a great portion of the sky or an artificial moon may be made visible by the emission of the characteristic yellow sodium light and also by scattered sunlight from the cloud. The visibility of the cloud from the ground will depend on the efficiency of the process producing the sodium light. The yellow light may be so brilliant that it will be easily detected by sensitive instruments, or it may be bright enough to be seen with the eye.

RUSSIA ACCEPTS ATOMS-FOR-PEACE AGENCY SCHEME

Wants Security Veto Only on Major Points

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Western sources today said they were encouraged by Russia's conditional endorsement of an international agency to carry out President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace plan.

V. V. Kuznetsov, Soviet first deputy foreign minister, offered a resolution to the United Nations general assembly's key political committee Tuesday giving cautious hope that such an agency can be set up soon within the UN framework. But he added the provision that the proposed agency must subject to the security council and its big-power veto on major security questions, and also must be open to all countries—including Red China and East Germany, still without UN membership.

The United States wants the proposed agency to have the same status of a specialized UN agency, and thereby escape any veto authority by the major powers over the agency's normal functions. But Washington apparently feels that any question vitally affecting big-power security would have to come before the security council.

Health Minister Martin of Canada, who opened the debate by speaking to the political committee, said for example, that "if the five members on how the proposed agency should be organized, they have to consider them "most earnestly." The Canadian invitation was open to countries "other than those which are now or potentially the major contributors."

Commenting on the Russian speech, Martin later said Canada does not believe that political ideologies should interfere in any way with the work of the agency."

Such interference could occur if the veto were applied.

Western informants emphasized that although the Soviet delegate hammered away for the conditions Moscow wants imposed on the atomic agency, he did not indulge in any diatribes aimed at the West.

Kuznetsov said the political committee the proposed agency must be joined more closely to the UN than a specialized agency, submitting regular progress reports to both the security council and the general assembly.

Princess Royal Will Take Trip To Niagara Falls

TORONTO (CP)—The Princess Royal arrived here from Ottawa today for a two-day visit to Toronto and a trip to Niagara Falls.

The visit here was to begin officially at 4 p.m. EST with a welcome by Lieutenant-Governor L. O. Breithaupt of Ontario, Premier Leslie Frost, Toronto Mayor Nathan Phillips and their wives.

The day's schedule for the Princess Royal, 58-year-old aunt of Queen Elizabeth, includes a visit to Dr. F. Taylor's clinic, a reception by the English Speaking Union and a reception by the Lieutenant-Governor's suite at Queen's Park and a dinner tonight given by the Toronto Board of Control at Simpkins and their wives.

Townsend's Visit Coincides With Return of Princess

LONDON (Reuters) — Group Capt. Peter Townsend, British air attache in Belgium, arrived in Brussels today on a visit which coincides with Princess Margaret's return to London from her summer vacation in Scotland.

Margaret gets to London Thursday.

Some reports have suggested the opportunity may be taken by the Royal Family, on the governments advices, to make an official statement about the rumors which have linked their names romantically for the last two years.

The 41-year-old ex-flier arrived with his car—on an air freight—which touched down at Evere airport south of London. He had flown in Le Touquet, France.

All he told them was: "I know nothing," "I don't know," or "I can't say anything."

He stepped out of the plane at this end smiled and sunburned but still mum on the important question.

He told newspaper men who questioned him about reports of the romance: "I am not answering questions like that."

He gave this same reply to queries as whether he would see Princess Margaret, whether any "sensational announcement" was expected during his leave, and whether he would go to Balmoral Castle, Scotland, where the Royal Family is staying.

Faure's Survival Chances Seen as Still Fairly Bright

PARIS (Reuters) — The French National Assembly's three-day debate on strife-torn Algeria went into its second day today with premier Faure's government's survival still fairly bright.

Premier Edgar Faure's administration is outlining plans for reforming the territory, legally part of metropolitan France, and also "integrating" it still further. The proposals envisage closer political, economic and social ties so as to make Algerians feel they are metropolitan as well as constitutionally.

Algerian nationalists, dissatisfied by French rejection of previous reform plans, are wanting freedom for autonomy similar to that granted to Tunisia and approved for Morocco.

Faure, will probably lose the assembly backing of more than 200 Socialists and Communists whose votes saved his government in the weekend vote on Morocco, but he may make up for this in new support among the De Gaullists and conservatives, who opposed him last time. Jacques Soustelle, governor-general of Algeria who has sponsored the reform plan, is a leading De Gaullist.

In the opening round of the assembly debate the Communists were the chief critics of the government for its military operations against the Algerian rebels and its refusal to offer the territory the same home rule it has promised the protectorates of Tunisia and Morocco. The Communist position had been expected and caused no parliamentary surprise.

Labor Congress Asks Probe Into Private Radio

TORONTO (CP)—A demand for a federal royal commission to investigate private radio stations was admitted entering at least 15 homes in a well-to-do section of Miami. Some 50 homes are entered during the past few weeks.

The day's schedule for the Princess Royal, 58-year-old aunt of Queen Elizabeth, includes a visit to Dr. F. Taylor's clinic, a reception by the English Speaking Union and a reception by the Lieutenant-Governor's suite at Queen's Park and a dinner tonight given by the Toronto Board of Control at Simpkins and their wives

FOG ENVELOPS CITY IN EARLY MORNING

A fog that lowered visibility considerably enveloped the city early this morning. The sun dissipated the mist and all was clear a little before nine o'clock.

BOUNTEOUS NATURE

During the early weeks of spring, residents of the city brought to the editorial office several specimens of multiple tulips, some with two, three, and four flowers rising from one stalk. This morning, Mrs. Doug Watson, of 13 Orchard Drive, brought in a stem of yellow marigolds, or Calendulas. On the stem appeared the still good specimen of a previous flower, and rising from this at various points were eight full bloom flowers in perfect form, as well as three unopened buds, and one past bloom. Truly nature is lavish with her beauty.

Scouts Prepare For Apple Day End of Week

An apple a day keeps the doctor away.

An apple on Boy Scout Apple Day will keep Belleville Scouts at work and at play.

Keeping Belleville Scouts at work and at play is a full time job every year and next year will be no exception.

Six years ago there were 250-300 Cubs, Scouts and leaders in the city in five groups. Last year there were 16 groups and three more were added this year.

There are 701 Scouts and leaders taking an active part in the Scout movement in Belleville. This total is composed of 475 Cubs, 186 Scouts, 10 Rovers and 80 leaders.

Latest additions to the Belleville corps are Cubs, Scouts, Brownies and Girl Guides from the Ontario School for the Deaf. Superintendent J. G. Demaza, former Scoutmaster in Ferris, Ont., is solidly behind the movement. Leaders of the O.S.D. troops will be teachers Miss Ruth Wright, Miss Gwen Legault and Miss Jean Harper. Scoutmaster will be Norman Taylor.

Scouts, their motto "Be Prepared" ever in mind, will hold their annual Apple Day in Belleville on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 14th and 15th to try in raise some of the money necessary to finance them for the remainder of the next 12 months. Tents, equipment, summer camps, insurance and general administrative expenses are scouting necessities.

Money raised by the sale of apples will be spent for maintenance and improvement of local corps.

Besides, the apples are very tasty.

Arrangements for the Hasty Pees Reunion, Reception to Lord Tweedsmuir Completed Says Major Duffy

Arrangements for the eleventh annual reunion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment scheduled for this city on October 15 and 16 have been completed, Major Angus Duffy said today.

Registration and get-togethers of the famous "plowboy" soldiers will be held in the Bridge Street armouries while the more formal side of the reunion has been scheduled for Sunday, October 16.

Highlights of the reunion included the presentation of the regimental history and the presence of Lord Tweedsmuir, former commanding officer of the regiment, and Lady Tweedsmuir.

Lord Tweedsmuir and party will arrive in Belleville sometime near noon Sunday from Kingston, where he will attend the Queen's University convocation on the week-end.

The agenda as laid down by officers of the unit includes the following calls for registration and sale of tickets for dinner in the armouries on Saturday from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. and from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. also Sunday morning from 10 a.m. to noon.

At eleven o'clock Sunday morning the annual meeting of the regimental association takes place in the Bridge St. armouries under the chairmanship of Major Bill Graydon. Reports on finances and the scholarships will be given by secretary Bob Scott, the regimental history report by Major Cam Wallbridge and the "Padre Jockey" report by Ken Smith.

At 12.15 Sunday the veterans will assemble at the Bridge Street armouries and march to the collegiate institute where the annual memorial service will take place at 12.45 p.m. This will be followed immediately by the regimental history presentation with publishers, author and Lord Tweedsmuir taking the principal roles.

At 1.45 the veterans will parade for the "march-past" and return to the armouries. The salute will be taken by Lord Tweedsmuir from a position in front of the post office.

The annual banquet takes place at the Air Force, Navy, Air Force Veterans' branch auditorium, on Front Street at 2.15. Lord Tweedsmuir will be the principal speaker. At 4 p.m., a draw for the regimental blanket will be held in the Bridge St. armouries. From 4 to 6 p.m., a get-together will be held in the armouries.

At the same time a reception and tea for the ladies will be held in the Bridge St. armouries officiated over by members of the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E.

Dinner for the reunion will be berets and medals if available.

Interesting Hobby Is Breeding Tropical Fish Says Don Foster

Don Foster has a hobby — and strictly speaking — a business.

Or rather, hundreds of tails.

For Don breeds tropical fish. He's employed by the city water department as fireman on the railroad, Don lives with his wife, Joan, and the baby family, two pekinese and fish, lots of fish.

And the most beautiful and delicate fish they are too, like something out of a Disneyland cartoon where at the end of the rainbow.

Don points out that he is not a very eccentric for having that many fish in the house. Actually, tropical fish now is the second biggest hobby in the U.S. next to stamps. However, the demand here as yet — although it has reached Toronto.

Don points out that they are in actual fact a new addition to the modern living room, most people preferring to park the fish bowl on top of the TV set.

Looking at his collections, colorful, lissome, swimming back and forth in their glass tanks, it is easily understandable why they are so. They provide movement and interest to a house. Take a small round them and you'll find, amongst others:

The Siamese Fighting Fish, only two and one-half inches long, one of his peculiarities is that he can change colour almost at will, which he then blows into a "bubble nest" and keeps them there until they have hatched. Peculiar enough as soon as they do see the light of the world he eats it. The old story assumes the maternal instinct — endeavoring to keep the old lady from attacking the young un's.

MALE HATCHES YOUNG

Large Mouth-Breeder—In this family the male hatches out the young in his mouth, which he has been made swallow by the female. Opposite to them are the Egg Eaten Mouth-Breeder, a tiny fish in comparison. Here the female spawns and the male eats the young in her mouth.

Pictacinus—One of the lesser handsome of fish but interesting for all that. This species hails from the Andes. Its peculiarity lies in the fact that it feeds on nothing but algae, the green pollan that forms around water tanks. About three inches long he has a large suction mouth to facilitate his feeding.

Then there are others like the little angel fish of the Amazon with triangular-spearing bodies.

Although he's been with them for nearly a year now. Don still can't make up his mind on which is the most beautiful. Perhaps one addition to his aquarium he is looking forward to is a piranha. That's the dreaded little cannibal fish of the Amazon that strips the flesh from animals and humans alike.

The first got interest in tropical fish after a friend suggested they might help relax him. Don followed his friend's advice and put a tropical-fishbowl on top of the TV set.

Next thing was "my wife got interested and I got interested in the fish."

WILL EXTEND AQUARIUM

The interest, in little over a year, now represents nearly $1,000 in the shape of tropical fish and equipment in the basement, which he converted for the purpose. He is also presently extending the aquarium. He has installed controlled furnace, Don keeps the temperature in the tanks steady between the 70's and 80's all winter. To keep a better supply of oxygen through the water Individual fishtank Don built his own air compressor. The water used in the tanks must be aged 24 hours to filter off the chlorine content, harmful to the fish. Fresh water must never be used for tropical fish, Don points out.

Once interested, this new hobby, might even prove to Canada's big home hobby of the future. Certainly they possess a quaint and colorful attraction, each species with its separate habits, romantic-sounding places of origin.

For the present in Belleville, at least, any tropical fish, no matter its color or background appears to be assured a good foster home at 80 Emily.

Obituary

ROBERT WILLIAM GIBSON

In failing health for some time, Robert William Gibson, 38 Bettes Street, suffered a heart attack and died suddenly at his home some time on Sunday.

He was born in Belleville, 77 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Gibson and has lived his entire life in this community excepting for the time spent overseas in his country's defence. "Bob" Gibson will be especially missed by the many children whom he guided across the streets to and from their school as he was a school guard for some years. He was well known and highly respected in the community.

He enlisted with the 59th Battalion and served overseas and on his discharge resumed his occupation as a moulder. He was employed by the Foley Foundry and the Stephens-Adamson Company until his health failed.

The late Mr. Gibson was a member of Christ Church in this city, and one brother, Ralph Gibson also of Belleville. His wife, the former Gertrude Cecile Simpson, died in April of this year.

Ald. Jane Forrester to Move For Abolition of Parks Board, With Council Assuming Control

A move to abolish the city parks board and to vest control and management of public parks in the city council will be placed before council at the next meeting by Alderman Jane Forrester.

Claiming that there is duplication and overlapping among the various city departments and commissions in the matter of management, supervision, equipment and labor with regard to development and maintenance of parks and recreation areas, Mrs. Forrester gave notice of motion that she would ask council to take the matter before the electors at the next municipal election.

Alderman Forrester sought to have the matter dealt with at last night's meeting but this was ruled out of order by Alderman Hyde, acting as chairman of the committee of the whole. Mrs. Forrester then gave notice that she would introduce her motion at the next meeting.

Although council was not asked to vote on the matter last night, Alderman Forrester did express herself somewhat briefly on the matter with the local parks system.

She claimed that efficiency and economy in looking after the city's park lands and recreation areas would be best served by consolidation and co-ordination of the various agencies now doing this work.

As an illustration of the duplication now in effect Mrs. Forrester pointed out that the parks board, public works department and recreation committee all have a hand in keeping the city's properties in shape.

COUNCIL RE-ELECTED

She outlined several city-owned properties now lying vacant, which she claimed could be reserved for park or recreation area or for street widening.

Among these were properties in the vicinity of the Devil's Elbow along Dundas Street West, the Moira Street East along the river bank, and in the east end of the city.

Emphasis for large parks could be placed on the west end of Zwicky's Island. Additional small playgrounds and recreational areas, however, were badly needed and any available areas should be reserved.

Mrs. Forrester's idea is that a parks committee of city council should have the responsibility for beautification of city property such as cutting weeds, dressing up boulevards, preservation and the planting of trees on city property. The committee would also submit a budget to council each year for development and maintenance of future park and recreation areas.

WORLD TRAVELERS' PARKS

The parks committee of council would have the responsibility for actual maintenance, construction and playground areas, while the recreation committee would have responsibility for playground equipment and supervision of the playgrounds.

Business arrangements regarding leasing and renting buildings on parks area would be handled by the finance committee. Actual maintenance of buildings on park areas would be the responsibility of the property committee.

Responsibility for carrying out the parks committee's management of parks would be effected through the city manager, if such an official were hired, and a city official known as a parks superintendent.

SET ASIDE BY BY-LAW

Such a parks committee of council would have authority to add to their members from interested citizens who would act in an advisory capacity. Present parks and recreation area, the property of the city, would be set aside as such by city by-law.

Under the present system the parks board must confine its operations to keep within their allowed budget or one mill on the tax rate. From this the parks board must pay debenture debt and local improvements on properties owned by the parks board. This limited budget rules out any major program for new parks.

Proper development of Zwicky's Island as a parks area would cost an estimated $100,000, a figure completely beyond the reach of the present parks board with its limited budget.

Parks organizations, the parks board, public works department and the Yacht Club were also asking work on Victoria Park.

"Things are all mixed up," Mrs. Forrester claimed. "Everybody is having a say and what is everybody's business is nobody's business."

Three Vehicles Are Involved In Accident

CAMPBELLFORD — Three vehicles were involved in an accident on Bridge St. West near the United Church on Friday night, when a light truck driven by Donald R. Petherick, 46, RR 4, Havelock, and owned by the Ford Motor Co. was struck by a westbound car driven by H. J. Reynolds, 51, of RR 3 Havelock. The impact propelled the truck into the late model Cadillac parked at the curb, and owned by P. G. DeCarrol of Campbellford. The left rear fender of the Cadillac received $200 damage. The right side of the Reynolds car was damaged to the extent of about $100, while the truck received about $20 damage to the right and left front fenders. Constable Jam Baird of the Campbellford force investigated.

Brigadier Genet Honored By Princess Royal

Brigadier Jack Genet of Rossmore, wartime commandant of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, was specially honored at the dinner tendered by officers of the corps to HRH the Princess Royal in Kingston over the week-end.

Her Royal Highness presented Brigadier Genet with a handsome punch bowl, the gift of the officers of the regiment. Prior to the presentation the Princess Royal proposed the toast to Brigadier Genet.

The punch bowl of silver measures twelve inches in height and is eighteen inches in diameter. It is engraved with Brigadier Genet's name and the occasion of presentation from the officers of the RCCS.

The bowl was a commemoration of the six years served by Brigadier Genet as honorary commandant of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals with which he served brilliantly during the second World War.

The presentation was scheduled to have been made some time ago but Brigadier Genet'f hospitalization prevented the ceremony. Officers of the corps decided to await the propitious circumstance to make the presentation and it was decided to do so on the occasion of the visit of the Princess Royal.

Brigadier Genet is especially proud of the gift which bears the crest of his former corps. He is prouder still of the circumstances under which it was presented.

"It was one of the proudest moments of my life" he said, "it was a lovely gesture, one which I greatly appreciated. I feel honored in receiving it from the hands of Her Royal Highness, the Princess Royal."

Stock Market Shows Much Stronger Trend

NEW YORK (AP) — A strong early upsurge on the stock market today followed four straight daily declines.

Gains of around $1 to $3 a share were made in almost every major group and the ticker tape, which normally reports transactions in seconds, fell behind in the first rush.

The market went higher from the opening. As the rush of trading slackened some sales prices held close to their best.

Tuesday's setback was a hectic up-and-down affair. It closed with a good rally but The Associated Press stock average was down 90 cents at $163.40.

Shed Gutted

Fire gutted an iron shed at the rear of the premises of Morton-Parker silverplate factory on Dufferin Street South, at 11 a.m. today.

The shed housed a furnace used to pre-heat copper. Extent of damage to the furnace and to an electric motor attached to it, was not known.

Electors to Be Asked Question As to Composition of Council

At the forthcoming municipal election Belleville ratepayers will be asked to decide whether they want council to remain at 14 aldermen and a mayor, or whether they prefer council reduced to eight aldermen and a mayor.

The by-law formally directing that the question be placed before the electors was approved by council last night. The by-law was presented to council in two parts: 1—with reference to council being reduced to eight members, four to be elected each year, and 2—election of the mayor for a two-year term, which was lost on a split vote.

Also at last night's meeting council turned down a motion from Alderman Arthur Keegan, through which he sought council approval for electors to vote on whether they wished council elected by the ward system. The motion was lost 11-2.

Alderman Keegan's motion called for electors to express their wish on whether they wanted the council elected by the ward system with two aldermen to be elected from each ward and with seven aldermen to be elected each year for a two-year term. Under the motion the electors would also have been asked to decide whether the mayor would be chosen from the elected aldermen.

Mr. Keegan said his reasons for the motion were that ward system allowed for better representation of the people. Also he said the electors should have the privilege of stating how they wanted the city run.

SALE TURNED DOWN

Council turned down a recommendation that the city accept an offer committee to sell part of a city-owned lot between Hillcrest and John Streets to be used for construction of a house.

The lot in question was formerly used as a playground area but had been found too small for this purpose and was abandoned.

Council was of the opinion that the property should be reserved as a green space and turned down the recommendation for its sale. The recommendation was defeated 11-4.

Voting for the sale of the property were: Aldermen Humphreys, Hyde, Keegan and Moxam. Opposing were: Aldermen Argue, Clarke, David, Forrester, Graham, Grandame, McCabe, Sale, Smith, Tice and Mayor Bob.

Also on the question of parks a recommendation from Alderman Forrester was passed calling for the naming of a special committee to look into all available city-owned property, which might be used for park or recreational purposes. The committee is to report to council by the first meeting in November.

WILL SELL BONDS

Under a new policy adopted by the city, local residents will be given the opportunity to acquire city bonds in over the counter sales of debentures in amounts up to $25,000. Alderman Hyde as chairman of the finance committee said the move would save the city much money and at the same time would give residents the opportunity of showing their faith in their own municipality.

Council approved of the recommendation calling for land patents to be sought from the Federal government for filled property on the shore south George St. and also for property between the Church property and the Bay of Quinte Fisheries on the east side of the Bay Bridge road.

Residents in the East Mains Street area have petitioned city council opposing the proposed construction of a new city dog pound in that area. Fifty three names of residents living in the area appeared on the petition. The petition was referred to the special committee appointed to look into the need for a new dog pound.

Alderman Grandame presented a drawing of the proposed dog pound and noted that its appearance would in no way detract values in the area. Insulation would keep any noise made by impounded animals to a minimum.

Council approved in principal the erection of the dog pound, this allowing a call for tenders which will be submitted to council for approval.

Mr. Norman Jones, local contractor who purchased four 45-foot building lots on Porter Ave. with ownership to build a house on each lot, then had the properties changed into three 60-foot lots, was the topic of a brief discussion by councillors.

Council was told that Mr. Jones had turned the property into three lots without approaching council on the matter. In the future the building inspector will be called on to submit all building covenants to see that agreements are to be carried out before issuing building permits.

Council was told that the three houses built by Mr. Jones were possibly of equal value to the four smaller houses originally planned.

APPROVED CHANGES

Council approved of proposed change in the building by-law to allow construction of a warehouse on Cronition Road. The approval was given on the understanding that residents in the area be given the opportunity to voice any objection and that no permit is to be issued until the by-law is finally approved by the provincial department of planning and development.

Council turned down a request from the local board of health asking authority from council to exceed their 1955 budget to allow purchase of a new department car. With the turn-in of the present car, the new auto would cost $1,900, it was stated.

The request was lost on a split vote with seven councillors approving and seven objecting. Voting yes were Aldermen David, Forrester, Grandame, Humphreys, Keegan, Tice and Mayor Bob. Opposing were Aldermen Argue, Clarke, Graham, Hyde, Moxam, Sale and Smith.

CITY TO PLANT

Under enquiries Alderman Hyde asked if planting of grass on city boulevards was the responsibility of the city or of the resident. He was told that the city would plant the grass.

Alderman Frank Grandame wrested to know the reason behind the change in the Arena commission policy with respect to renting of the arena canteen.

In reply Arena Commission chairman Alderman C. D. Tice and member Bruce Smith said that the commission had decided to operate the canteen itself rather than rent it out on a commission basis. They felt that the canteen was worth considerably more than the $750 received last year and a year's operation by the commission itself was the only way to find out what could be realized from the concession.

GILMORE SHOULD SUE

The other day a learned judge tossed a lawsuit by Ed Sullivan into the wastepaper basket. Briefly, Sullivan wanted a sort of copyright on the name and the judge said he could not have it, because there were lots of Ed Sullivans and a number of them antedated the plaintiff. Seems reasonable enough.

A man's name is not exclusively his, but his face ought to be. Sometimes, though, Nature plays its tricks. Of course, there are family resemblances in which most of us have to share a long nose or, a drooping eyelid or a cleft chin with dozens of distant cousins, many of whom we have never seen. There ought, however, to be a law against an interloper invading the family circle and looking just like Hitler.

These thoughts are prompted by a report from Eddy Gilmore, Associated Press correspondent who, for many years, was a sort of ersatz ambassador to Moscow. This is one of the few reports by Gilmore which may have escaped the attention of the general public. It appeared in the autumn issue of "The AP World," the house journal of that newsgathering organization.

Gilmore was in Belgrade when the Kremlin kids kowtowed to Tito and kissed and made up with that devilish Stalinist. He reports two incidents. At a sandwich stand between Belgrade and Zagreb a suspicious Serb walked up and began to stare at him. Then the Serb asked Gilmore if he was Khrushchev. Gilmore said he was not. Then he departed, leaving unconvinced and menacing.

Evidently he did not like Khrushchev.

Later, in a Belgrade restaurant, a bosomy beauty sobbed in her tensely voice about love in an ugly world and then, looking at Gilmore, sang "Dark Eyes, "Two Guitars" and "Moscow, My Moscow" in Russian. "Good food," Gilmore allimated the manager as the girl departed. "Thank you, gospodin Khrushchev," was the reply.

Now it is all very well to be bosomy beauties singing love songs to one in throaty voices. If they mistake one for someone else, that is obviously no one's fault. But when a person ought to have some protection against menacing Serbs glaring at him in the Balkan night, just because somebody else has the temerity to possess a similar appearance.

Gilmore ought to be able to appeal to the International Court of Justice.

ENCOURAGING POLIO FIGURES

Dr. D. S. Puffer, Ontario's assistant chief medical health officer, says that it is too early to evaluate the effectiveness of the Salk polio vaccine.

One may appreciate the reason for his caution and yet at the same time entertain high hopes and regard as probably significant the figures released by health department officials for the number of polio cases in the province this year.

So far only 132 polio cases have been reported in Ontario. This compares with 250 cases last year and 2,109 in 1953. Now if it is true, as health department officials say, that the number of cases may be high one year and low the next. The best evidence of the truth of that statement is the sharp drop from 2,109 in 1953 to 250 cases in 1954, when the Salk vaccine was just getting through its preliminary tests. Is there not, however, good reason to suppose that the Salk vaccine was at least partially responsible for the 50 per cent drop in the number of cases this year? Remembering that even this year's inoculation program only covered a portion of the province's child population, is there not reason to hope that in future years the toll from polio may be reduced even further?

The health department is at present studying the effectiveness of polio vaccine given about 310,000 Ontario children this spring. It will be months before this study is completed, but when it is the public in general, and parents in particular, will be most interested to learn how the ratio of polio in this group compares with that among children who were not inoculated.

One note of caution is necessary. Because the incidence of polio may be high one year and low the next, it is not reasonable to suppose that the number of polio cases can always be kept as low as this year's figure. In bad polio years, the number of victims may well exceed 2,000. But this will not alter the fact that the Salk vaccine is not doing a good job, for the appropriate comparison would be not with this year's 132 victims, or the 250 persons who contracted polio in 1954, but rather with the 2,109 cases recorded in 1953.

DUTCHMAN'S THEORY

The Charlottetown Guardian reports that a Dutch economist has declared that a narrow margin of idle workers is necessary for the full and uninterrupted functioning of the nation's economy. He figures that three per cent of the total labor force should be unemployed at any given time.

There may be something to be said for this theory. The unemployed form a sort of emergency squad; they are like a regiment held in reserve by a shrewd general; or they can be compared to the strength of the baseball bench, the presence or absence of which Messrs. Alston and Stengel were so recently either regarding with glee or lamenting, as the case might be.

Nevertheless, if this theory gains general acceptance, there is little doubt of the identity of the man whom unemployed Dutchmen would prefer to be included amongst the three per cent quota of the nation's jobless economists.

BOYHOOD MEMORY

When I was small and tears I shed,
For comfort home I ran.
"I know it hurts," my mother said.
"But bear it like a man.

"That was a dreadful fall you had.
It left a nasty scrape.
But pain's a part of life, my lad,
That no one can escape.

"The bruise will fade; the cut will heal.
Come, let me dry your tears;
For there will be worse hurts to feel
Throughout the coming years."

Though long the mother's been away
Still hear her voice I can:
"I know it hurts," to me she'll say,
"But bear it like a man."

Kingston Pen Telescope

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

Among many interesting monthly magazines not generally known to the public is the K.P. Telescope. Never heard of it? The K.P. has nothing to do with the Knights of Pythias, but the Kingston Penitentiary. The fifth anniversary was marked by a special publication having been resumed recently after the magazine's printing plant was destroyed in the fire created by rioters early in the year.

The articles in the Telescope are written by inmates, and it has its own editorial and technical staff. It is published to provide an outlet for the creative expression and a forum for discussion of common problems and interests; to stimulate participation and interest in all fields of education, industrial, hobby-craft, sports and entertainment, and to help bridge the gap between the present and a free and useful future. Judging from the articles, most of which are signed by the writers, the contributors are well written and reveal a high degree of intellectual capacity. There are many articles that are good to read wistful side.

The outside reader is at first surprised by the number of recreational and cultural activities offered to the inmates. There are hockey and baseball activities, and other entertainments provided for by people in Kingston; sometimes hundreds of the citizens are permitted to attend the baseball games when an outside team meets a K.P. team. There is also a fine arts and recent photograph of which included a painting by a resident of St. Thomas, whose presence there we were not aware of.

The penitentiary inmates have a glee club. Looking at a photograph of the members, one is struck by their wondering how such nice-looking men came to get there. One of the articles in the editorial staff, and there are always a few interesting items in each issue, is devoted to the with the social activities of the penitentiary, written generally in a bright, light-hearted manner.

Those of us who, perhaps by the grace of God, are outside, would learn much about the way of living of those unfortunate souls with whom the residents are thinking, by subscribing to the K.P. Telescope. Subscriptions cost only a dollar, and may be sent to The Warden, Box 22, Kingston.

Of Sloggles And Such Guff

(Saturday Night)

A school principal in Michigan has discovered a short cut to arithmetic more quickly. It emphasis were put on symbols instead of things. A youngster who works out his addition and subtraction in terms of apples or oranges finds himself more and more lost in the numbers, so the principal and his staff propose to use words of their own invention — sloogle, rumsal and garf are examples.

Mr. Hayakawa's theory of word helps the student realize that he is dealing with neither apples nor numbers but with abstractions called symbols," it is explained.

We wish him well with his experiment, but we do not envy the task of the teacher who first states that "sloogle plus 2 equals two sloogles," and so on.

The most curious mind of the child will pounce on such a wonderfully mysterious word. What is sloogle? It must be something, because you cannot have even evil nothing. How will the teacher explain?

Our own theory is that a sloogle could be a cousin of the filthy love—a distant, less accomplished cousin because we simply can't image it ever giving or gimbling in a wake.

Solomon At Ottawa

(Edmonton Journal)

Some years ago, there was a literary agency in so-called that the tomato was a vegetable or a fruit. A similar conundrum recently has been presented to members of Ottawa, who had to decide — presumably by learning manuscripts whether radios and record players were to be considered as musical instruments or furniture.

The judgment of Solomon finally handed down was that radios, phonograph machines and record players must be musical instruments. The reasons for the decision have not been given. Possibly one was that when a record player is turned on it gives forth only music, or what passes for music these days, whereas a radio may also yield news, speech or broadcasts, political speeches or even CBC "variety" items.

Now comes the $64 question — how do you classify a combination set?

Bail-Jumpers Despicable

(Windsor Star)

The most odious of all deadbeats is the bail-jumper, who too often is a petty shifty fellow to begin with.

It is bad enough when he runs out on a professional bondman who usually has his own means of catching up with him. More reliable can be tragic when a person of small or moderate means is the victim.

One of these cases has turned up in Vancouver, where a fireman stands to lose $10,000 — his home because of a bond he put up for a fellow who jumped bail. It was the reward for a favor done to "an friend of a friend," which again emphasizes that sentiment must be duly restrained when posting bonds.

The fireman is offering $1,000 reward for the bail-jumper — "dead or alive." This incentive may be stronger than the law permits, but it is a fair indication of the fireman's feelings in the matter.

Discipline Now Canned

(Hamilton Spectator)

A news story the other day which told of the theft of a tape-recorded sermon from a Hamilton church drew attention to one more of the increasing emphasis on recorded sound in the modern world.

Another instance is that announcement from Nottingham, England. Parents there can now (if—)into the recording studio of Mr. Dudley Sutcliffe and, seated in tones wheedling or stern, messages to be played back to their youngsters.

So when mothers and fathers go to a party or attend a party the sitter engaged for the evening will be told to record what record when Junior starts to act up, beginning no doubt with mummy's patient pleas and later—if the sitter is given inconsiderate helpings of mummy's platter of Daddy's more frightful admonitions. The numbers-game will be played by Mr. Duchemin is aware of the fact that the disciplining of needed Junior smashing the messages to smithereens before the horrified sitter's eyes. "I am sorry," says unbreakable records with all the finality of a mental slate.

All the same we wouldn't be at all surprised if the next story out of Nottingham tells of a not-so-successful attempt to stop the sender of flying saucers seen in that area.

Free Drugs Not Solution

(Montreal Gazette)

Should narcotics be supplied to addicts by clinics so that they would not need to get them from illicit sources?

This argument has frequently been put forward of late. It rests on the belief that the illegal trade in narcots would dwindle away, if addicts could get legal dope at a druggist to supply them.

But it is not the illegal trade in narcos

Possible Advantages of One-Way Traffic on Front and Pinnacle Streets Will Be Investigated

As a means to relieve an ever-increasing traffic congestion in the downtown area, members of the city traffic committee will investigate the possible advantages of one-way traffic on Front and Pinnacle Streets.

This was agreed last night at city council after members had a lengthy discussion on a recommendation which called for establishing rush hour no parking on portions of Bridge Street and on Dundas Street east of Pinnacle.

The whole matter was tabled for two weeks on the suggestion of Mayor J. Both, who pointed out that a system of one-way streets was relieving traffic congestion in many centres.

The mayor said he was opposed to ruling out parking in some busy areas and not in others. "If we cut out parking in some busy areas we should rule out parking in all busy areas," he said.

Although the recommendation calling for no parking along the above mentioned route in rush hours came from the city traffic committee the move apparently did not have the support of the traffic committee chairman Enos David. Alderman David said he did not see the point of creating an extra traffic lane on Dundas St., when it funnelled into a bottleneck of only one lane on Pinnacle St.

But the move had the full support of Alderman William Argue who said it was the duty of the traffic committee to facilitate traffic wherever possible.

WANTS BOULEVARD REMOVED

He said there had been much criticism of the congestion on Bridge St. during rush hours. Elimination of parking from 4 to 5.30 in the afternoons would eliminate much of that congestion.

Alderman Jane Forrester felt the Dundas Street problem could be improved by removal of the boulevard on the north side of the street between Pinnacle and Church Streets. Cost of this work had been estimated at $2,000.

Alderman Ben Safe was opposed to any measure regulating traffic on a highway route through the city. Ruling out parking penalized the merchants, he claimed.

"I say let the government go ahead and fix their own highways," he said.

Alderman Hyde wanted to know why two weeks ago council had passed a recommendation banning parking on Dundas Street between Pinnacle and Church Sts., only to have another motion this week calling for rush hour no-parking in the same area.

Alderman Tice said he was opposed to taking parking off Bridge St. His claim was that the extra two lanes for traffic would be useless as traffic would only run into a bottleneck at the lower bridge in any event.

Alderman Moxam didn't think that changing the west-bound highway route to Pinnacle Street had speeded through traffic. "There were too many stops on Pinnacle Street," he said.

WOULD SPEED TRAFFIC, CLAIM

Alderman Graham explained that addition of another west-bound lane by eliminating rush hour parking on Dundas Street would speed traffic in this area. Congestion was caused mainly by cars waiting to make left-hand turns. Addition of another lane would allow through cars to pass on the right.

The alderman asserted that if traffic could be speeded elimination of rush hour traffic it was the duty of the traffic committee to do so.

He noted that the only merchant in the Dundas Street area was agreeable to the move.

On the suggestion of Mayor Both the recommendation on rush hour parking was laid on the table for two weeks, while later in the meeting when a by-law regulating parking on certain streets came up for passing the section dealing with Dundas Street was also returned to the traffic committee.

Council, however, passed sections of the by-law dealing with parking on the east side of Sidney Street, on Campbell St., and on the south side of Station St. between Sidney and Ashley Sts. with some dissenters.

Solon Low Tells Story of Israel To Kiwanians

Belleville Kiwanis yesterday experienced a refreshing side to a public figure yesterday when Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party, was guest to the club.

Mr. Low was scheduled to speak on the "Middle East". He ran true to schedule, but in an unexpected way.

Most of the assembly probably expected another one of those cut-and-dried commentaries of the political observer. (Mr. Low spent some time in 1954 touring the Middle East.)

Instead, Mr. Low, after a few slight preparatory comments, launched into a lantern-slide show. Shown to members were Mr. Low's own color photographs of both historical and modern locations of the young state of Israel.

Acting as his own projectionist, the Social Credit leader delighted club members for nearly 45 minutes with his description of places seen and shown during his brief stay in Israel.

A keen amateur photographer, Mr. Low combined skilful picture-taking with a deep knowledge of the Bible and Testaments for description of the many historical places of the Holy Land and the politician's keen insight to comment on present-day problems being met in the new cities and farming areas of the young Jewish State.

TRACES HISTORY

One of the oldest of settled places in the world, Israel has been scene of the ebb and flow of human history, interesting and tragic events, commented Mr. Low as he traced the history of the Holy Land.

He commented little on the present situation existing between Israel and the Arab states.

"I found that the people and their country have many, many problems . . . problems that must be solved if peace is to come to that area," he said.

With a population of about two million, Israel is a tiny state—counting only 8,400 square miles in its entire area.

"You can stand on a hill in Jerusalem and see on a clear day from one end of the country to another," said Mr. Low.

Among the cities he commented on were the seaport of Haifa—"beautiful and well-governed"—and Jerusalem, which had an atmosphere hard to explain.

"It is a presence—a spirit," said Mr. Low.

Mr. Low was introduced by Frank Creeggan and thanked by Jim Stanley.

A new member also was inducted into the club yesterday. He is Charles Lovett, Bellevue Finance Corporation.

Foundation Stone of Jewish Synagogue Laid, Dedicated

The local Jewish community moved an official step nearer its ambition yesterday.

In a structure nearly half complete, the foundation stone to the new synagogue of the Sons of Jacob Congregation at Bleecker and Victoria Avenues, was solemnly dedicated and laid.

On hand for the quiet occasion were representatives of the Congregation's 45 families and their rabbi and community president.

Workmen, hurrying to finish the structure, paused awhile to watch the little ceremony, simple and informal in official spirit and solemn in its dedication.

Inside the hollow receptacle of the stone, which bears both the date of the Christian and Jewish years, was laid a metal canister containing lists of the Congregation's executive, the Congregation membership, its past presidents, current coins and a newspaper report on the planned layout of the synagogue itself.

The stone was officially laid by J. Albert, president of the Congregation, while assisting him were Ted Schwab, chairman of the building committee for the new structure and F. Gitelman, Trenton, vice-president of the Congregation.

SIMPLE RELIGIOUS SERVICE

Rabbi Moses Lewin conducted a short, simple religous service of dedication, reciting the 23rd Psalm in Hebrew at the opening.

For a brief reminded of the perishable qualities of material things the rabbi drew on the foundations around him for his short text.

Although foundations could be shattered there is one Foundation and one Rock that cannot be, he reminded the small assembly about him.

"That is the Rock of God—the Eternal Rock."

For to that foundation there is a spiritual meaning and a spiritual meaning cannot be abolished, he added.

He prayed God's blessing on the Congregation.

When completed by the year's end, the new synagogue will display a handsome front to the district. A single-storey building it will have a facade of brick and large areas of glass in aluminum frames. Its chapel which will be the centre of worship for about 45 families from Picton, Belleville and Trenton districts, will seat about 60. On special holy days a sliding door connecting the chapel with the auditorium will be rolled back to give a seating capacity of nearly 300.

The design of the building is the work of the Belleville architectural firm of Gilleland and Wigmore and was planned with an eye to making the synagogue fit into its location and have it a credit to the residential district in which it is being located.

Farmers Victims of Liberal Policies Says Socred Leader

"Canadian farmers are being victimized by the policies of the Liberal government," Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party, said here yesterday.

"Under the Liberal administration the farmers have been the forgotten men. They have constantly been the victims of Liberal policies which have caught and held them in a squeeze between high and increasing costs of production on the one hand, and either fixed or seriously declining prices on the other.

"The Liberals have actually made goats of the farmers of Canada and have failed to keep their promises made to the farmers in World War II, which the farmers accepted in good faith, but which the Liberals have treated as mere scraps of paper," he added.

Mr. Low was interviewed after he had addressed the Kiwanis Club here on a recent trip he made through the Middle East.

He was quoting largely from the part in that address he used later in the evening to Napanee Kiwanis Club. Sections of the Napanee speech were later scheduled for televising for the CBC.

He pointed out: "When prices of farm products began to rise during the War the government stepped in and fixed farm prices and promised stabilization of farm prices over a long period of time. These prices were way below the level of world agricultural prices."

He claimed when farm prices began seriously to decline after 1951 the government "deserted" the farmers to let them "take the rap alone."

AFFECTED ECONOMY CLAIM

This, he added, has had a serious effect upon the whole Canadian economy. In 1954 farmers acquired 20 percent of the nation yet received less than 10 percent of the total national income.

A recent example of victimization was the government's permitting the import of 45 million of New Zealand cheese when more Canadian cheese was being stored than "people have had income to buy to compete for the market, which should have been reserved for the badly struggling dairy industry."

The solution to these problems as the Social Credit party sees it lies in three main parts, said Mr. Low:

((1) "The Social Credit party would see that the Canadian consumers are constantly supplied with purchasing power so that the total Canadian market will be available to the Canadian farmer.

Jury Returns True Bill In Highway Death

A Hastings county grand jury Tuesday afternoon returned a true bill against Leo D'Arcy, Montreal, charged with criminal negligence in the highway death of RCAF Airman Stephen G. Lyle, 18, last May 27th.

D'Arcy will now stand trial before The Honorable Mr. Justice Kelly and a petit jury at the fall sessions of the Supreme Court which opened here yesterday. First Crown witnesses in the D'Arcy case will be heard by the petit jury this morning. The accused is represented by Ben Hurley of the local law firm of Maraskas and Hurley.

The D'Arcy case is the only criminal one on the docket which has 13 jury cases in addition to the one now being heard, and 13 non-jury actions.

A large percentage of the jury cases are damage actions arising out of motor vehicle accidents. There are seven divorce actions.

Fashion Flash

The Star in the skirt department is the slim, tailored job, with side-wrap and trim to add interest to the stark silhouette. The side-detailed skirt is liked, for it is trim and neat. Doeskin flannel is used for a nice number, with stitched pleats and banded and buttoned pockets at opposite sides, one at one side, two at the other. Another good choice is a side-buttoned wrap-around in fine flannel or soft tweed.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOUR SISTER IS IN NO WAY TO BLAME

Beatrice Fairfax:

I have a 39-year-old sister who is married to her second husband. The first time she was married she was just a kid. She and this husband had two boys. Whenever her husband got angry with her for anything, he would say he was going to him himself. He did this in order to get his own way. So finally they were divorced, and eventually they both married again.

Well, he acted just the same with his second wife. One day he told her he was going to kill himself, and he went into the shower and put a towel around his neck as if to hang himself, but the floor was wet and his feet slipped. They cut him down, but he died a short time later.

Now my sister seems to think that if she had stayed with him, this wouldn't have happened. Her present husband is a very nice man who really loves her, and she has a nice home, and two lovely girls, nine months old. Yet she can't seem to get this other thing off her mind.

After her first husband's death, his mother sent her some nasty letters and she thought it might help if she had a visit from her grandson, so she took the two boys and let them stay with their grandparents for a week. When she went after them, the boys wouldn't even speak to their mother. She wonders if she should write to their grandparents or just forget it. The boys love their stepfather very much. He is the only Dad they really know.

I had a long talk with my sister, and told her that what happened in the past and she must forget it, but she feels it is all her fault. She is losing weight, and I am afraid she might lose her mind over it.

She reads your column, so would you please be so kind as to give her some advice. — Mrs DP

Dear Mrs. DP:

It may be that the best thing you could do for your sister is to persuade her, if you can, to have a talk with her minister or priest or rabbi. Either of these can explain to her, better perhaps than anyone else, that no one is ever at fault when some one who keeps threatening suicide actually does it, and does it. For any one who makes such threats is emotionally sick, and not responsible for what he does.

From what you say, I gather that this man was only making a theatrical gesture in order to frighten his wife, and did not really intend to hang himself; that the hanging was accidental, because the wet floor caused him to slip and fall. But this sort of play-acting showed even more than actual suicide, that the man was emotionally unbalanced. The whole matter, or something very like it, would very likely have happened sooner or later even if your sister had stayed with him, and it is tragically foolish for her to blame herself in any way.

Her former mother - in - law, obviously, is trying to make her feel guilty, but all that proves is that his mother is a very unwise woman. Otherwise she would know very well that it is a defect in her son's personality that caused the tragedy, not anything anyone else did. I can see no point in your sister writing to this woman at all.

Since you say in your letter that your sister reads my column, perhaps she will take up my suggestion herself and go and have a talk with her doctor, minister or priest.

To talk in person with a sympathetic, understanding listener and adviser is always more helpful than just to read printed words, and I am sure that she will feel great comfort and reassurance if she will do this. But I am equally sure that she will hear from whomever she talks with the same thing that I am telling her here:that she was not in any way responsible for the tragedy; that the only wrong thing is for her to brood over it and so let it interfere with her present duty, which is to put it and so to let it interfere with her present duty, which is to put it in the past where it belongs, and devote her energy and attention to making a happy home for her husband and her children.

BEAUTY

FLATTERING FOUNDATIONS

Purchasing a girdle without proper fitting is unfair to yourself—and to your figure.

It is with such care that you choose your frocks, your suits, your hats, your shoes and all your accessories. But what about the garments that don't show? Are you equally fastidious in the selection of your girdle and your bra? Or do you walk into a store, dash to the proper department and, with a positive manner, demand to see a girdle—28 inch waist, please, or a bra, size 36? And then walk out with your purchase, without a fitting? If so, you are doing yourself—and your figure—a great injustice.

Girdles and bras actually need more careful fitting than your suits and frocks since, if they are not properly molded to your figure, the smartest, and even the most expensive clothes, will not show off to their best advantage and you will not show off to their best advantage and you will have wasted your money in purchasing them.

It doesn't matter whether you're size 44 or a size 14, you should wear a well-fitted foundation. Your tummy may be flat as a pancake but you should still wear a girdle—even if it's such a small job that it could properly be classified as a garter belt. It will help you to maintain proper posture and will help keep hose in position without interfering with circulation as circular garters do. And, of course, if you're size 44, you don't need to be told that a correct girdle, allover foundation or whatever you is the absolute necessity if your clothes are to hang right. But how do you know they'll hang right if you don't try the foundation on first? It's quite true that you may know the measurement of your waistline, but do you know the exact measurement of your hips, your abdomen and your ribcage? And even if you do, can you guarantee that the model that you pick out will fit each one of these sections of your torso without alteration? Of course, you can't. That's what professional fitters are for. Girdling today is an exact science and only a properly trained saleswoman can tell you—and show you—what a girdle, bra or foundation can do for your figure. There are so many dowsn-to-size girdles on the market now, so many styles and cuts of brassieres and so many varieties of allover foundations that every figure can be fitted as though the garment purchased were custom-made. But it must be fitted, since even a half-inch off in hip, abdomen or ribcage size can make the difference between a smart or a dowdy appearance.

ENGAGED GIRL WISELY INSISTS THEIR PARENTS MUST MEET

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Please guide me about meeting the parents of my son's fiancee. My son had been going with a young lady for about six or seven months, and now they have decided to become engaged. But the girl will not accept the engagement ring until the two sets of parents become acquainted. How should we go about this? Should my husband and I go to call on her parents and introduce ourselves? And also should we take a gift of any kind?

2. When the engagement is to be announced should a party be given, and which side, hers or his, should give the party?—G.R

1. I have a feeling that your son's fiancee is trying as gently and subtly as possible, to bring about the social gestures toward her and her family that she realizes is so deeply important—and this is that you and your husband, parents of the engaged man, should at once call on her and her family, to make this significant welcoming-to-the-family call. Naturally she wants the mother and father of the man she is to marry to tell her that they are happy and proud to welcome her. Please make this call at once. You may, if you wish, telephone to find out when a convenient hour for this call would be. (And don't take a gift . . . you can if you wish, give the girl an engagement present later.) After you have made this call, you may invite the girl and her family to your house, or they may invite you and our family to their house at their entertainment-bow.

2. There may be a party to announce the engagement (not necessary, but very pleasant), , but, if there is, it is the parents of the engaged girl who give this engagement party. After this, anyone may give a party to "celebrate" the engagement

SHE'S INVITED TO A MUNICALE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have never before been invited to a musicale to be given in a private house. But now a music-loving friend of mine has recently returned here to live in her family homestead, a large and handsome house in the best section of town. Her husband is also a music-lover, and he and two teenage children are studying music. She is giving this musicale, she told me, instead of the usual housewarming, and there are, I believe, to be two or three artists on the entertainment. Now is given as "four o'clock." Does this mean one should arrive precisely at this hour, or may one come in later, as at a reception or tea? — M.S

That "four o'clock" means that the program is to begin at that hour. Therefore, as at a concert in any other place, you should arrive not later than ten minutes before hand, perhaps better, fifteen minutes beforehand. You should not plan to "come in later," unless it is really impossible for you to arrive on time . . . and if you do arrive late, remain very quietly in the background, at least until there is an intermission between numbers.

Pot Roast Know-How For Choosy Cooks

By Mary Moore

Early last week some budgeting ideas and some budget-conscious recipes were discussed here for the benefit of Pat. O.

Since then the Moore household has been budget conscious too. Maybe I'll save enough this way to buy the new charcoal grey suit I want.

So we had pot roast and as I tended it I thought of my Auntie Emily who could make a pot roast taste better than high grade expensive roast beef. She used to say to us, her three nieces, "Folks stop cooking pot roast when it's tender. It's after it's tender that it begins to scorch a bit and reabsorbs the rich juices extracted by the slow roasting in a pot."

As if Aunt Emily were standing at my elbow (she died at the age of 81 in Florida last year) I made a pot roast.

Since I did it for the immediate consumption of my own tribe, but for the general benefit of budgeting readers, the cost is important: It was a red hot day when I bought the shoulder, costing 42 cents per lb, and weighing a little over 3 lbs. The total cost was $1.53. It was quite lean but had about 1-4 inch layer of fat on one side.

AUNT EMILY'S POT ROAST

(For Pat. O.)

Buy a shoulder pot roast of red beef well weighing not more than 4 lbs. (Rump or round are suitable too but more expensive). This amount allows 1-2 lb meat per person to be served, so 8 may be served generously. If you have four in your family this is excellent sliced cold. Delicious for sandwiches too.

Sear the meat over low heat on the fat side first without adding any fat to pan or flour to meat. As soon as fat side is brown begin turning to brown meat deeply on all sides. By this time a little fat and juices have collected. Add 1 bay leaf and 1-2 onion chopped, salt meat generously—about 1 teaspoon, sprinkle with freshly ground pepper and add 2 tablespoons hot water. Cover tightly and reduce heat to very low and cook at least four hours. (If you pressure cook this give it 1 hour at 16 lbs.—omit the stuffing 25 minutes the book says.) You must turn the meat at least every 1-2 hour. It will stick a little but this is all to the good—it gives the delicate dark brown flavor. Loosen the sediment from the bottom of the kettle when you are turning the meat. The juices begin to be reabsorbed into the meat tissues after the first 3 hours of low cooking—so don't be in a hurry at this stage. Sometimes Aunt Emily started this at 1 p.m. right after the lunch dishes were washed to have it ready for six o'clock dinner.

The gravy is the best you ever tasted. So have mashed potatoes to serve it on. Add 3 cups hot water (using water from potatoes) to pot liquor. Stir 2 1-2 tablespoons flour into 1-4 cup cold water to make a smooth paste. Stir into hot pot liquor until thickened. This gravy is not thick, but just right to run in little rich pools over your mound of fluffy mashed potatoes. Good enough for Little Thanksgiving Day.

Women's Activities

ST. PAUL'S L.G.

St. Paul's Ladies' Guild, Mermora, held its regular monthly meeting on Thursday evening, in the parish hall.

The president, Mrs. C. R. Whittemore, was in the chair and opened the meeting with prayer.

Three new members were received into membership.

The financial statement disclosed a favorable balance on hand.

Plans were made for the catering at a wedding. Two other items of business were the holding of the annual turkey supper on Wednesday, November 9, and a euchre party arranged for October 13.

The president closed the meeting, after which refreshments were served.

TALK LITTLE, BOSSES TOLD

DETROIT (AP) — Most bosses talk too much, Dr. Wesley Wikself told the Systems and Procedures "Many bosses fel that their position entitles them to do all or most of the talking," said Dr. Wikself, a professor of speech at Louisiana State University. "But, actually, much of the secret of effective communication is simply letting the other fellow do most of the talking."

Canon A. Hiltz, Secretary To Synod, Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. Robert Arthur Hiltz, canon of St. James cathedral and executive secretary to the synod of the Anglican Church of Canada, died Tuesday. He was 78.

Canon Hiltz, a native of Windsor, N.S., was appointed a canon of the cathedral in 1921. He was named to his synod post in 1950, after 40 years as general secretary of the board of education of the Church of England in Canada.

He became canon of St. Matthias church, Halifax, in 1900, resigning in 1909 to take over the St. James church at Fergus for a year.

He was one of two Canadians to address the conference held in Holland in 1938 to set up a World Council of Churches. He also was a delegate to the World Council of Churches meeting in Amsterdam in 1948. He was then named to the council's central committee.

A SCRUB JOB

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's national war memorial is in for a good cleaning. An official of the public works department said a cleaning crew will begin soon the job of scrubbing off the grime that has collected on the massive stone and bronze structure in Ottawa's Confederation Square. It hasn't been cleaned for years and a thorough job is planned. Both the granite base and archwork and the bronze figures depicting service men and women of the First World War will be given a thorough scouring.

THE MOOCHER

Mules are renowned as nonconformists, and the exception to the rule seems t be "Peppo," a Spanish mule who is one of the residents of the children's zoo in London. Now that the kids are back at school, "Peppo" has time on his hands, or hooves. So he improves the waiting time by helping the zoo hostess in any little chore he can do. He is carrying a pail here, and maybe hoping that some one will put some oats into it.

Rare Jellyfish Found In Horseshoe Lake

TWEED.—A rare form of freshwater jellyfish, Craspedacusta sowerbii, has been found in Horseshoe Lake by an American tourist who reported thousands of the miniature, translucent, umbrella-like forms undulating about between the weedy bottom and surface. A number of specimens were forwarded to the district office of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests for identification, confirmed by the Royal Ontario Museum at Toronto.

This is the first known occurrence of this particular hydrozoan in Ontario and possibly in Canada, according to museum records, though it has appeared in about 50 places in the U.S.

According to meagre information obtainable, these forms have little economic importance insofar as inland lakes fisheries are concerned.

U.S. Fisherman Makes Big Catch, 150-Pound Buck

The Dearborn man and four friends climbed aboard a 28-foot cruiser Sunday and went fishing for muskie in Lake St. Clair.

Five miles from shore they made a 150-pound catch. It had a white tail, seven-point antlers and it was a buck deer.

Apparently the deer started on one of those cross-the-lake swims all by himself. Five miles out he was nearly exhausted and the fishing party had no difficulty in hauling the animal aboard, tying its feet and returning to Belle Isle to pass the buck to the coast guard.

The coast guard, in turn, passed the buck to the Belle Isle zoo.

Return to Work

WHITBY (CP) — Four hundred workers at the Dunlop Canada Ltd. plant, who went on a wildcat strike last Wednesday to protest a company ban on smoking during working hours, returned to work Tuesday.

The company suspended all the men for one day after they ignored a union request for them to return to work.

STEW BRINGS STABBING

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—An argument over the amount of meat in a 35-cent stew resulted in the fatal stabbing Tuesday of a counterman at a lunchroom, police said. They are seeking a man known only as "Sam" for the slaying of Ira S. York after York ejected him from the lunchroom when he complained there was no meat in the stew.

Protest Closing Of TB Ward

GUELPH (CP) — A protest over the proposed closing of the tuberculosis veterans' ward in Sunnybrook Hospital in Toronto will be sent to the department of veterans affairs in Ottawa, Len Owen of Guelph, Dominion president of the Imperial Division of the Canadian Legion, said Tuesday.

Mr. Owen said concern over the proposal to transfer veterans from Sunnybrook to private sanatoria or to other veterans affairs department hospitals, was expressed by delegates at the Ontario command convention in Port Colborne during the weekend. The delegates passed a resolution urging the department of veterans affairs to reconsider its decision.

Search for Boy Spreads to U.S.

TORONTO (CP) — The search for a 3½-year-old suburban Port Credit boy police say was taken from a nursery school Thursday has spread to the United States.

W. C. Becker, grandfather of Warren Benson, said he has been told a man and boy answering to the description of Warren and his father, William C. Benson, 34, have been seen in the Buffalo, N.Y., area.

William Benson is wanted on an assault charge in connection with the disappearance of the boy.

Mrs. Hilda Mathieson, owner of the nursery school, said a man who took the boy shoved her aside when she attempted to intervene.

Dulles Assists Eisenhower To Draft Reply to Bulganin On Air Inspection Scheme

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

DENVER (AP)—President Eisenhower has taken command personally of the American international program as medical bulletins reflect increasing progress along the slow road to complete recovery from his heart attack.

His 25-minute bedside conference with State Secretary Dulles Tuesday produced a new letter on disarmament to Premier Bulganin of Russia and brought another warning that the United States will not reduce its military power without guarantees that Russia will do how wise.

The president's heart stood the conference so well that his brother, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, was invited today for the first time to visit the president's attack of Sept. 24.

What Eisenhower and Bulganin in a page-and-a-half letter, will not be disclosed until the Russian premier has received it in Moscow. Jim Dulles told a Denver White House press conference:

"We do not anticipate any reduction of our total power unless we can be sure but there is a corresponding reduction elsewhere."

Dulles said this is the elaboration under questioning on his assertion that the president approved a speech Dulles made along these lines to the American Legion convention at Miami Monday.

Eisenhower's letter to Bulganin was Khan "underlies" reply to one from the Soviet premier last month throwing cold water on the American president's disarmament plan.

This was an offer, made at the "summit" conference in Geneva, to exchange military blueprints with the Soviet Union and allow mutual aerial inspection to assure the carrying out of agreements.

Dulles said that he and the president collaborated drafting the letter, which may be followed later by a more detailed answer. Bulganin's letter, he said, was long and related a great many informational and technical questions which are still under study."

Diplomats view the skebbed talk with Dulles as a bid to emphasize the absence of any lag in U.S. foreign policy on the eve of the Big Four conference.

An underlying purpose of the trip here was described by diplomatic sources as an effort to:

1. Allay Western fears that Dulles would be in a weakened position at the Oct. 27 foreign ministers' meeting in Geneva on account of Eisenhower's relaxed hold on the reins of leadership.

2. Head off any Russian attempt to blame Eisenhower's illness and consequent loss of close contact with foreign affairs as the reason for any East-West disagreements at Geneva.

Lord Tweedsmuir To Be Honored By Queen's U.

KINGSTON (CP) — A British peer, a United States political leader and a Canadian diplomatist will receive honorary degrees at Queen's University's fall convocation Oct. 28.

Announcement was made Tuesday by principal W. A. MacKintosh of Queen's.

Honored will be Lord Tweedsmuir, son of a former governor-general of Canada; Adlai Stevenson, former governor of Illinois and Democratic presidential candidate in 1952, and Dr. W. P. Thompson, president of the University of Saskatchewan and retiring president of the National Conference of Canadian Universities.

The annual fall convocation weekend will also mark official opening of the John Buchan library by Lord Tweedsmuir who is in Canada for a two-month visit.

FIRST APPEARANCE

The library is composed of the collected manuscripts, autographed first editions and reference works of the first Lord Tweedsmuir, novelist and historian who wrote under the pen-name of John Buchan. He was governor-general of Canada from 1934 until his death in Montreal in 1940.

Stevenson, 55, was governor of Illinois from 1948 to 1953. He was defeated in his bid for the presidency of the United States by Dwight D. Eisenhower in November, 1952.

He went to school in Switzerland as a boy and later took degrees at Princeton, Harvard law school and Northwestern University.

The governor-general's honorarium, 41, first came to Canada in 1936. He served for six years in the Canadian regiment of Montreal in the Second World War and is a former commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment of Belleville.

He is chairman of the editorial board of the Canada Weekly Review published in London, Eng.

CCL Convention in Uproar As CCF Link Is Reaffirmed With No Time to Talk It Up

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Merger of the Trades and Labor Congress and Canadian Congress of Labor likely will be approved this week by the CCL at its annual convention.

A TLC-CCL amalgamation agreement, already adopted by the other congress, appeared certain of ratification by the CCL, though some unions were expected to oppose details of the move.

A congress committee has been studying the merger document since the 900 CCL delegates assembled here Monday. The congress leadership planned to have it ready for a report this morning.

Expectations were the merger debate will run for most of the day, since opposition and advocates of the historic move want to get on record on the point at this 15th and final CCL meeting.

Once the amalgamation agreement is adopted, it was understood, TLC president Claude Jodoin will be invited here from Ottawa to address the convention.

Meanwhile, the convention Tuesday slipped in a reaffirmation of the CCL's long-standing endorsation of the CCF party, though its leadership passed up a political debate because of the political attitude of the TLC.

The merged congress of 1,000,000 members—to be created here in April—will be neutral also, and for that reason CCL leaders steered away from an open debate on CCL-CCF politics for fear of disturbing the unity arrangements.

But their action angered a large group of delegates who wanted to get up the CCF ite, and a shouting, booing convention gave president A. R. Mosher an unscheduled time for several minutes after he pushed through the CCF endorsation before a delegate reached a microphone.

The congress-adopted resolution on the CCF laissez consisted of just 25 words and, after the party remains the "political arm of labor," was brushed through unanimously before some delegates knew what was going on.

This perfunctory treatment of the CCL's once-cherished tie with the socialist party brought 20 more delegates storming to the microphones and demanding that the subject be reopened so it could be debated.

Mosher refused this, amid a din of booting and foot-stamping so tumultuous that at one point he was unable to get order to get order. He ordered the convention floor microphones shut off.

Delegates demanding a debate pressed so hard that Mosher had to go to a show-of-hands vote to get his ruling upheld. He won by 328 to 320.

Apart from its treatment of the CCF issue, the CCL's second day of its five-day convention waded through a miscellany of business, including a plan guaranteeing of an indirect slap to leaders of the United Mine Workers of America trying to pull their 25,000 Canadian members out of the congress.

The convention UMW delegates from the Sarnia local of CCF issue, the CCL's second day of its five-day convention waded through a miscellany of business, including a plan guaranteeing of an indirect slap to leaders of the United Mine Workers of America trying to pull their 25,000 Canadian members out of the congress.

The convention UMW delegates from the Sarnia local of Local 2995 of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' union, which has been in a long-standing jurisdictional dispute with the UMW over Canadian membership, asked the CCL executive council to "take such steps as necessary" to get the UMW out of the congress.

The executive council also recommended election of a section of the Ontario labor relations act providing municipalities to avoid collective bargaining with employees.

OFFICER'S REMARKS QUOTED IN MOSCOW

Alleged remarks by A/C F. S. Carpenter, RCAF, above, were quoted by Russia's deputy Premier Lazar Kaganovich to Canada's External Affairs Minister Pearson in Moscow. Air Commodore Carpenter is reported by a Halifax correspondent as saying that the RCAF position was to let the Russians know "we can knock hell out of them." Pearson called the remark "stupid" and said Kaganovich the matter would be taken up with the Department of National Defence in Ottawa.

Western Military Spending Must Rise NATO Heads Told By Gen. Gruenther and Aides

By EDDY GILMORE

PARIS (AP)—The defence chiefs of the north Atlantic alliance are returning to their capitals after hearing stern warnings that Western military spending must go up, not down.

The defence ministers of the NATO allies ended their three-day conference Monday hopeful that the recent peaceful overtures from Russia might warrant cuts in their appropriations for their armed forces.

They got a shock.

NATO's chief soldiers warned the ministers that cuts in their defence spending are unthinkable in the face of the Soviet Union's growing military might.

BALANCE TIPPING

Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, supreme allied commander in Europe, told the ministers the free world could win a war if it started now, but warned that the balance of power is tipping slowly toward the Communists.

He emphasized, however, that he does not believe the Russians want war, and doesn't think they will start one as long as the West provides a strong deterrent.

Gruenther said the West still has the edge in nuclear weapons, but warned that the advantage is growing less every day because Russia's technical advances previously were underrated.

With prices soaring and the Soviet Union promoting a lull in the cold war, NATO's military planners told the ministers that they must weed out all but the essentials in their defence programs.

AIR DEFENCE PROBLEM

The experts emphasized repeatedly that Europe's big problem is a strong air defence, with an adequate warning system against a surprise Red attack armed with nuclear weapons.

Defence Lawyer Draws Praise Of Magistrate

KITCHENER (CP)—A defence lawyer was thanked in magistrate's court Tuesday for drawing attention to the limitations of police powers in persons arrested on drinking charges.

Magistrate J. R. H. Kirkpatrick told John Agro, Hamilton lawyer, he wished all members of the Kitchener police force had been in court to "learn the necessity of being very careful" in their reports.

Agro questioned a constable's evidence in connection with the conviction of John Stee of Hamilton, who was charged with driving while intoxicated. The lawyer asked the constable to demonstrate some of the intoxication tests in court.

Stee was fined $50 an' costs or seven days in jail after he pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of driving while impaired.

Mystery Woman Will Again Be Called at Probe

VANCOUVER (CP)—Helen Elizabeth Douglas, veiled woman who has been made mysterious allegations against police chief Walter Mulligan, is scheduled to go back into the witness box before the Tupper royal commission here today.

Commission officials said she will be recalled for further cross-examination by John G. (Jay) Gould, chief Mulligan's lawyer.

In her first appearance before the commission, nearly four weeks ago, the plump woman testified that she had been chief Mulligan's companion from 1944 to 1949 and that he lavished gifts upon her, including a rare Chinese jade and a mink coat.

She said she knew the chief was married but that she herself had not married until 1953—four years after they broke up. The five Miss Douglas said, was to have been a place for them to retire to after the chief left the force.

USED MAIDEN NAME

The woman was permitted to use her maiden name in identifying herself only to R. H. Tupper, the man commissioned to inquire into all facets of police administration and conduct.

Her third appearance will mark the 32nd session of the inquiry which was launched following three developments:

The Senate committee on narcotic drug addiction criticized the Vancouver police force for laxity; Flash weekly of Toronto ran a series of stories charging corruption within the force; and Det.-Sgt. Leonard Mussell was dismissed sensitive suicide.

When the commission was formed last July, chief Mulligan went on requested leave for the duration of the inquiry.

In a two-hour session Tuesday, Det.-Sgt. Bob Leatherdale said chief Mulligan offered to promote him to become head of the liquor detail if he would agree to setting up a payoff scheme, Leatherdale said he refused but was promoted anyway.

Drew Calls for Global Sales Campaign to Move Wheat

BRANDON, Man. (CP)—A cold and a temperature of 102 forced George Drew to his room Tuesday night but a public meeting heard his call for a global sales campaign to move Canadian wheat.

The Progressive Conservative leader tape-recorded his scheduled address while propped up in bed in his hotel room and it was run off at the meeting at Souris, Man.

Dr. H. F. Myers of Brandon, one attending physician, was to decide today whether Mr. Drew is well enough to continue his speaking tour of southern Manitoba.

Mr. Drew, Conservative organizer for the party, told Brandon district Conservatives at a buffet supper at which Mrs. Drew was to have been guest of honor that their leader apparently suffered a chill while driving from Virden, Man.

Mr. Drew went to bed as soon as he arrived at the hotel.

In the recorded address, Mr. Drew urged that advance cash payments be made to Prairie farmers on this year's crop. He said the government should act immediately.

Bill, he said, even if the advance payments are made, there remains the long-term problem of disposition of the wheat and the resulting organization "simply does not exist that can do the job of selling the nation."

"There is not much sense producing if we can't sell," he said. "Salesmanship is almost as important as production itself. We need in recruit the best salesmen that can be found. We should go out into the markets of the world and sell and sell and sell, getting into all the markets we can be sold."

Mr. Drew said a selling job should also be done in Canada. Parts of Ontario and Quebec were short of feed grain but nothing was being written to help sell "the best wheat in the world."

Mr. Drew was ill with meningitis last fall. He entered hospital Nov. 11 after he became ill on his way home from a speaking engagement. He was released about a week later but did not return to the Commons until Feb. 17.

Haldimand Cadi Draws Criticism Of Labor Meet

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Congress of Labor today received an Ontario magistrate of "deplorable and unethical action" in dealing with strike picketers.

The congress convention adopted a resolution critical of magistrate R. C. Street of Haldimand county and provincial police in connection with a strike of county road workers around Cayuga last summer. The resolution—submitted to the convention by the National Union of Public Service Employees—said police line up and arrest strikebreakers after the county council fired the approximately 40 workers who went on strike.

It added the magistrate severely criticized the union brought before him and ridiculed unions. It condemned what it described as Mayor onagstleton and prejudicial action" by Magistrate Street.

The convention also recommended election of a section of the Ontario labor relations act providing municipalities to avoid collective bargaining with employees.

Parent-Enforced Holiday For Pupils Ended

CORNWALL (CP) — Approximately 65 pupils of nearby Eastern Corners public and separate schools were back in school this Tuesday afternoon after a half-day parents enforced holiday.

The pupils — residents of Veterans' Land Act subdivision one mile north of Cornwall—kept away from school Tuesday morning in protest against inaction of municipal township council in closing a sidewalk through the subdivision.

Township officials said work on the sidewalk will begin this week. The children were boycotting the law in keeping the children out of school. A. J. MacDonald, a spokesman for the parents, said Tuesday night: "But we didn't expect this would change 40 to 50 parents and it might be a means of expediting action on the sidewalk.

"What is just what happened so we sent the kids back to school at noon."

LAW CATCHES UP

LONDON (AP)—John McKenna has been fined $3,150 for loading steamrollers out of Britain. British law prohibits the export of scrap metal. He said witnesses for the customs service in court Tuesday McKenna shipped out his old steamrollers as working machines which would be put to service flattening roads in Belgium. The customs men said they went straight to junk yards.

Sheikh Drawing Female Sighs Across Arabia

CAIRO (AP)—A sheikh who specializes in Koran services gets Cairo radio is drawing female sighs from all over the Arab countries.

His name is Sheikh Abdel Basset Mohamed. He answers fan calls and love letters from admirers throughout the neighboring Arab states.

A woman from Aleppo, Syria, recently telephoned the sheikh after three children and flew to Cairo with the hope of marrying the sheikh.

The sheikh, a small, rather fat man, says he's been asked to a religious sermon she is unlikely to forget.

He asked police to put an end to the harassment of a wealthy Cairo family who chased him around Cairo in a car. He received incessant phone calls and offers of marriage from her.

The police exacted a promise to keep away from the sheikh.

Sheikh Abdel Basset is married and has five children.

Contempt of Congress Case Declared Mistrial by Judge

BOSTON (AP) — Spectators applauded Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) in Federal Court corridors Tuesday and Judge Bailey Aldrich immediately declared a mistrial in the contempt of Congress case against Leon J. Kamin.

McCarthy was scheduled to be a witness at the trial in which Kamin, a former Harvard research assistant who now holds a similar post at Queen's University, Kingston, is accused of contempt in refusing to answer six questions for McCarthy's sub-committee.

Judge Aldrich told the jury—11 men and one woman selected only moments before—that he was declaring a mistrial because of the "frequent outbursts of applause . . . entirely foreign to a Federal Court case."

"It must have come to your attention," he told the jury, "and even if you didn't hear it the newspapers will acquaint you with the details."

NO JURY

The judge then dismissed the jury and ordered a new trial, without jury, to begin today.

Asked to comment on the corridor applause, McCarthy said, "I never object to applause." But he had no comment on Judge Aldrich's action.

Kamin was asked if he thought his rights had been prejudiced by the applause. He said he thought they had.

U.S. marshals estimated the crowd gathered in the corridor outside the Federal building courtroom at 500. Some applauded as McCarthy came and went through the halls. There was no applause in the courtroom.

The jury was sworn in only after each juror assured the court they were impartial and had not watched the army-McCarthy hearings on television in the spring of 1954. Each juror was excused three challenges.

McCarthy was not in the courtroom when the judge declared a mistrial. He and Senator Charles E. Potter (Rep, Mich.), another scheduled witness, left the federal building when it was determined Kamin would not be needed immediately.

They were accompanied by McCarthy's wife, Roy Cohn, James Juliana and two Boston detectives assigned to watch over McCarthy after someone tried to telephone him a death threat Monday night.

Cohn was special counsel for the Senate permanent investigations (McCarthy) sub - committee and Juliana was an investigator at the time Kamin refused to answer questions about his former Communist associates.

Specifically, the questions he refused to answer involved whether he knew of Communists who might be working in defence plants or teaching at Harvard. An indictment also charged he declined to "give the names of the Communists he knew were active with him in the Communist party."

Civil Defence Plans Greatly Revised After Recent Tests

ARNPRIOR (CP)—Biggest job of civil defence authorities is getting across to the people their need to prepare for thermonuclear warfare —no destruction or main defence plans against it is flight.

"If we can't get that over, we're finished," Maj.-Gen. F. F. L. Worthington, Canadian civil defence co-ordinator, told newspaper and radio newspersonnel attending a three-day course at the Civil Defence College here. Main purpose of the course is to make newspapermen more and more conscious of the need for civil defence.

Gen. Worthington said Tuesday Canada's civil defence plans have been drastically revised since the latest details on the disastrous effects that could be expected from an H-bomb attack were learned last February.

"Previously they involved 'shelter, duck and cover'" techniques based on the known destructibility of the atom bomb. Now their basis is flight—evacuation of entire populations from heavily-populated areas.

The plans have been worked out according to the expected warning to be given by radar lines now being built to by North America and of the approach of an attacking plane.

Twelve hours' time is expected to elapse between first indications of the approaching aircraft and the actual bombing. During those 12 hours evacuation of all major centres is to be carried out.

Non-essential personnel—males and children—would first be moved up to 100 miles from the centres while the essential organization would leave during the last two hours.

Dr. G. S. Hatton, deputy federal civil defence co-ordinator, gave answers to questions that Montreal—which recently scrapped its civil defence organization—has to be evacuated in time with existing transportation facilities, he said.

But he quickly added such evacuation would require an organization "that does not exist today in Canada's largest city."

A committee of defence experts is nearing a new solution to the problem of getting industrial workers to and should a war come, Gen. Hatton said.

Gen. Hatton said it has become apparent that the air force no longer can be relied on to provide Canada's policy for years that air defence command should take over that control immediately Canada was attacked. It is vital that broadcasting be considered during such an attack since radio stations on the air would make it simple for enemy aircraft to use them as navigation guides.

Gen. Hatton said he could not give any details of what the new policy may be. But it might be ready within six months.

MADOC (Special) — A seven-run explosion by Madoc in the 5th inning overcame a 4-0 deficit on Saturday and allowed Madoc to whip Wingham 10-4 on Saturday to even their OASA juvenile "C" final series at one game each. The third and deciding game is scheduled for Toronto on Sat'day.

Wingham led 3-0-4s the first and added two more in the fourth. After Madoc took command-in the fifth with seven, they tacked on another in the sixth and finished with a pair in the eighth.

Five singles, two walks and as many errors accounted for their big seven while four hits, including a homer by Bateman, netted their eighth-inning markers.

Wayne Shaw hurled for the winners, allowing six hits and walking only one batter. Lancaster toiled in defeat, touched for 11 safeties while passing two.

B. Bateman led the Madoc attack with a home run and single while Burnside, Fox and DeMille also collected two hits each. Turfs, Johnson and Whiteman also singled.

Bain paced Wingham with three hits.

Ken Vogelsang, coupled with a convert and a field goal off the toe of Doug Rollins put BCI into a lead, which they never gave up.

An early second half touchdown by Don Deacon ended the BCI scoring, as well as their effectiveness.

Robert Hillman, who played a terrific game for OSD put them on the score sheet, when he completed Glen Skinkle's touchdown pass. Minutes later Skinkle handed off to Ogawa, who completed to Brian Meany in the end zone for OSD's second touchdown.

AMONG GERMANS FREED BY REDS

One of 34 German prisoners of war released by Russia after a decade in POW camps, this haggard survivor is aided from a bus at Friedland, Germany. The contingent, made up largely of former generals in Hitler's Wehrmacht, is the first to be freed in accordance with the agreement between German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and Russia during the recent Moscow conference. Nine thousand more are scheduled for repatriation. (Central Press Canadian).

Father Forgets Where Family In Car Parked

STRATFORD (CP)—It's not difficult to lose a friend if you're absent-minded enough, but Joseph Mero, 41, of Seaforth, lost his friend, his children and his car in one fell swoop Tuesday.

Mero walked into the Stratford police station and reported that he couldn't remember where he'd parked his car and his children, Teresa, 17, Harry, 7, David, 5, and Vernon, 3.

Constables drove Mero around town for three hours trying to locate the parking space.

Mero told police and another man had driven from Seaforth to Stratford and were to have gone to Delhi to pick up Mrs. Mero at work.

Meanwhile, Mero's unidentified friend turned up at the police station to inquire if they knew where he was. Shortly after that Mero found companion, children and car. All safely parked near the bank of the Avon river.

BOSTON (AP)—The temperature in Boston rose to 82 degrees Tuesday, surpassing the previous record of 81 set in 1914 and 1954.

FAKER FINED

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP)—A self-styled explorer was fined $250 here Tuesday and ordered to make restitution of $125 he received from high school students for two lectures on his "explorations." George Fergus Kelley, 66, was arrested when a sharp-eyed student noticed a similarity between colored slides he used to illustrate his "explorations" of the Amazon country of South America and color plates illustrating a story of New Guinea in National Geographic Magazine.

British Exports To Canada Down

LONDON (CP) — Britain's exports to Canada dropped in September but the nine-month trade picture showed a slight improvement.

The board of trade said today that Britain exported £11,600,000 worth of goods to Canada last month. This brought the monthly average for January to September to £11,300,000, a four-per-cent increase over the corresponding period of last year. In August, exports to Canada amounted to £13,800,000.

Earlier the Manchester Guardian, commenting on general conditions in Canada, said now is the time for British exporters to push sales in the Dominion. "The recovery in Canadian business this year should be a stimulus to British exporters seeking to replace markets shrunk or lost by the latest import restrictions."

The Independent Liberal newspaper says Britain is virtually the only country whose sales to Canada have fallen off.

NOT THE ANSWER

STRATFORD (CP) — Road improvement is not the solution to the traffic accident problem, Ontario Highways Minister Allen told Perth county councillors during an informal session here Tuesday. He said statistics revealed that traffic accidents increased rather than decreased when new, straight roads were constructed. Only a safety consciousness on the part of motorists could decrease the traffic toll, he added.

Take the grope and grumble out of night feedings by making some preparations before you go to bed. Put robe, slippers and flashlight within easy reach. Have a fresh diaper and receiving blanket close to baby's crib. Then see what you can do about being a cheerful riser. Irritability is easily translated, even in a little sleepyhead at 2 in the morning.

Boston Bruins Can Settle Seven-Year Grudge Against Detroit Tonight

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

FIRST HOCKEY PRACTICE

The railbirds will get their first glimpse of the senior "B" TPT's at Memorial Arena tonight when, according to Coach Danny Cox the squad will take to the ice in their inaugural workout. It isn't likely the boys will do much more tonight than finding their skating legs and getting the summer wrinkles out of hockey joints and muscles.

There is a strong possibility that Tony Parisi and Bob Wilson, two of last season's Memos' stalwarts, will join the TPT's. Wilson, in this corner's opinion, was one of the best-developed players of the 1954-55 season and was getting great guns when the curtain rang down. Besides Bob likes Belleville and it would not surprise us in the least to see him wear a TPT uniform this season. The practice will get under way at seven o'clock in deference to the Peterborough players.

MINOR HOCKEY

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association executive has decided to revise the rule-of-thumb figures used for classifications of teams into the fifteen series operated by the OMHA. Although callers, organization, etc., will continue to be the primary factors in classifying teams, the following population figures will also be one of the governing factors: D series: under 1,000 (app.) using players residing within a seven mile radius of the centre of the village represented; C series: under 2,500 (app.); B series: Over 2,500 (app.) and under 6,500 (app.); A-Minor series: over 6,500 (app.) and under 15,000 (app.); A series—all others.

The annual OHA referee instruction meeting will be held at the Royal York Hotel, Private Dining Room 9, on Sunday, October 16th, at 2 p.m. The OHA has issued an invitation to all OMHA referees, and the OMHA urges that they attend this important and instructive meeting.

MINOR SPORT

Despite the fact that no minor softball or baseball championships came this way during the season just finished, the younger fry, their coaches, managers and sponsors can look back with justifiable pride on a season of fine achievements.

In both baseball and softball two city squads fought their way through to the provincial finals only to be turned back on the threshold of the various championships.

Baseball entered five classifications in the OBA playdowns while the various leagues enjoyed a successful season with hard-fought games featuring the quests for city championships.

The Hargil Juniors in their first year of operation came up with a creditable showing. They played well in the City and District League, being defeated in the semi-finals by the Picton Lightfoots. In the OBA playdowns they bowed to more experience and finesse when Oshawa and were defeated by the strong Oshawa McCallum Transporters youngsters. Sponsor Paul Haggis and Coach Allen Kelleher deserve a lot of credit for keeping baseball alive in the city.

The juvenile squad met its Waterloo in two games at the hands of the Kingston youngsters, while the midgets whipped Cobourg but were in turn ousted by Oshawa in two games.

Vaughan's bantams deserved a better fate. These youngsters showed fine form, defeating three clubs before going out before the strong Kitchener squad 7-1 in a provincial championship sudden-death affair.

Deacon's Quakers swept all before them after a successful city league season, reaching the OBA peewee finals and bowing to the Hamilton Red Wings in two straight games.

Bill Elliott's Regents were kings of the softball bantam division this season, winning the city championship and going on to defeat Peterborough and Oshawa before reaching the OASA finals. Here they battled bravely under the management of Joe Adams and Coach Bill Hurst, but they went down to defeat in the provincial finals after losing to the Toronto squad. Rickey Locke of Tip Tops won the loop batting title with an average of .552.

* * *

Champions of the city, peewee league, Booth's TV's, sponsored by Booth's TV and Radio Ltd., marched to the Ontario finals and lost a heartbreaking series to the Toronto Willowdales. Both games were lost by a one-run margin after the teams had battled tooth-and-nail over the entire route. Booths defeated Oshawa for the Eastern Ontario title. Stu Muirhead, of Booth's, won the league batting title with a .606 average. Lee Culhane piloted the squad through to the finals with E. Vance doing the coaching.

The Rotary Club team won the peewee city championship under the managership of A. Sills and Coach J. Butcher.

Both baseball and softball league teams showed a fine spirit of sportsmanship and the efforts of sponsors, managers and coaches were well repaid by the fine results achieved in the various classifications. Next year is another year.

GREY CUP STORY

Jack Sullivan, Canadian Press sports editor, dug deeply into musty times and came up with a football classic, "The Grey Cup Story." Jack's book tells the history of the battered old mug from the turn of the century. It is profusely illustrated with pictures of old-time and modern greats while the stories of Cup lore, outstanding incidents and games make it a must for gridiron addicts. It's on the newsstands and well worth the half-buck.

50 GET PITCHERS

CHICAGO (AP) — A five-player deal between Chicago White Sox and its Memphis affiliate in the Southern Association Tuesday marked the club's first transaction since Frank Lane quit as Sox general manager.

Vice-president Chuck Comiskey announced that lefthanded pitcher Bob Cain and an undisclosed sum of cash went to Memphis for four young righthanded pitchers.

These include Jerome (Joe) Dahlke, 25, a 13-game winner as a Memphis reliefer; Bill Dufor, 22, who had an 11-9 Memphis mark; Fadi Stuffel, 27, (12-3 at Memphis) and Russ Heman.

Cain had been assigned to Memphis by the Sox last season.

With the exception of Stuffel, formerly with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, the new Sox pitchers were developed in the White Sox farm system.

Victory or Tie Against Leafs Would Dump Wings in Cellar; Clubs Level in Fifth Spot

By The Canadian Press

Boston Bruins have a chance to get back at Detroit Red Wings tonight.

One of five clubs Red Wings mistreated in their last seven years of National Hockey League titles and Stanley Cup triumphs, Boston can dump the champions into the league cellar. A tie for Bruins against Toronto Maple Leafs at Boston in the lone NHL engagement tonight would do it.

Boston and Detroit are tied for fifth place. Both teams have yet to win a game—Detroit lost three straight and Boston two. The Leafs are in fourth spot on the strength of one victory in three starts.

Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers are deadlocked for second place with one win each. Montreal Canadiens lead the pack with six points on three straight victories.

It won't be as ey for Boston to hold back Toronto, which has come up with an interesting team. Bruins showed little scoring punch in their two games against Canadians last weekend. They scored two goals while Montreal's big guns were pumping seven behind Bruins' new goalie, Terry Sawchuk.

Meanwhiler, Leafs collected five goals—four of them against Detroit—in three contests and were scored on twice, according to Vic Stasiuk. That big game was a 4-2 victory over the Wings.

Vic Stasiuk may be out of the play tonight. The former Red Wing who was among four players, including Sawchuk, traded to Boston last summer, could give coach Milt Schmidt some extra strength on the forward line.

Stasiuk was forced to sit out the first two games. The side injury Centre Fleming Mackell is still in hospital with a knee injury suffered at Bruins' training camp last month. He will be lost to Boston for two months.

Toronto coach King Clancy experimented with a couple of line changes before the team left for Boston Tuesday and he may try them out in tonight's game.

Rookie left winger Dick Duff was moved up to the first line with centre Billy Harris, another rookie, and three-year veteran Eric Nesterenko. Captain Sid Smith, a 33-goal man last season, was tried out at left wing with centre George Armstrong and right winger Ted Sloan.

Sawchuk and Harry Lumley, Toronto netminder, will be playing against each other for the first time this season. Sawchuk nosed Lumley out for the Vezina Trophy by a goal last spring. At that time Sawchuk was with Detroit.

Bandiera Denies Spy Tactics Stampeders May Protest Game

CALGARY (CP) — Guard Dean Bandiera, suspended Calgary Stampeder football player, Tuesday denied disclosing any Stampeder plays to the Blue Bombers before Saturday's game here.

"I'm innocent of everything they accuse me of," Bandiera said. "Just because I happen to be friendly with a certain ball player on the Winnipeg team, they accuse me of divulging plays."

Tuesday afternoon the executive of the Stampeder club met in closed sessions to discuss the issue.

Manager Bob Ackles said after the meeting:

"With regard to the unpleasant incident whereby it was alleged that information regarding Calgary plays was given by a Calgary player to a Winnipeg player prior to the game, the executive of the Calgary club are referring to the commissioner of the league, Sydney Halter of Winnipeg, all pertinent information in their possession together with a request for a full investigation."

"I talked to a goup of Winnipeg ball players before our own club meeting at noon Saturday," Bandiera said. "My wife and child were with me at the time and our conversations were carried out in front of the proprietor of the haberdashery shop we were in," he said.

"I'm in the middle of this thing and I honestly don't know why. I've been accused of something I didn't do and that's all I can say."

Bandiera did not make the trip to Regina with the football team for Monday's game. The lineman said he was mad at the club by Stampeder coach Jack Hennemier and told he was cut from the team because he missed Tuesday morning practice and because his attitude had not been conducive to good football.

"That was all he told me," Bandiera said. "He said nothing else to me about any of these charges. I'm prepared to play football for the Stampeders and would like to finish the season."

In his column in the Calgary Herald Tuesday, sports editor Gord Hunter said the Stampeders and Hennemier are seriously thinking of protesting Saturday's game against the Bombers.

Hunter said the executive also may ask that the score be stricken from the records and the game be replayed.

"This, if it was to come about, would be unprecedented in Canadian football," the column said. "The decision, to protest or not to protest, will be made at an executive meeting today (Tuesday) and Hennemier has stated he himself is in favor of protesting the game to league officials."

Bandiera was playing his second season with the Stamps. Before coming to Calgary he starred for many seasons with the Winnipeg club.

Referee Defends 'Call' In Grid Game

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A referee Tuesday night defended a call that may have cost Western Mustangs a victory over McGill Redmen in a Senior Intercollegiate football game Saturday in Montreal.

Umpire Richard Platt's decision in the fourth quarter nullified a perfect convert by Bob Labbett of University of Western Ontario and the game ended in a 6-6 tie.

Referee - in - chief Rec Creighton and George Hartwell, chairman of the Intercollegiate Union rules committee, of Platt, in wiping out the convert point, based his decision on a rule no longer in the books.

Platt ruled that Western was holding on the play and explained that his decision was based on the fact that two Western players had locked hips to prevent McGill players from charging the kicker.

Creighton, when asked about the play, said: "I can't release anything definite until I consult with the referee, Richard Platt. But I can say definitely that locking of the legs by players is not illegal."

RULE THROWN OUT

"There was a rule in the book at one time stating that it was illegal to lock legs but it was thrown out several years ago. I would guess about 20."

Referee Sgambati, however, defended the call.

"We can't go by the word of the rule book," he said. "We have to go by character. Although it doesn't say so, locking legs is a form of holding. It is a means of impeding a man's progress."

When asked whether Platt's call was a local interpretation of a section of the rule book Sgambati said: "I admit that the rule should be in the book. But nevertheless, we (the officials) need to go further in interpreting rules."

Abbruzzi Leads Big Four Scoring Race

TORONTO (CP)—Pat Abbruzzi of Montreal Alouettes helped himself to a three-touchdown Thanksgiving week-end in the Big Four football scoring race and a 10-point lead over runner-up Al Pfeifer of Toronto Argonauts.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show the big Rhode Island State half with 60 points on 12 touchdowns. Pfeifer, with two touchdowns and one kick over a point total of 35. Team-mate Bud Korchak had a big feast with a field goal and two converts during the week-end to climb into fifth position with 33 points.

Gino Cappelletti, quarterback with Sarnia-Imperials, took over the ORFU scoring leadership from halfback Bill Graham of the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen. Cappelletti boosted his total to 53 points on 15 converts, one field goal and five converts Monday. He is four points up on Graham.

Detroit Wings Defeat Dutchies

KITCHENER (CP)—Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League Tuesday night defeated the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League 5-3 in an exhibition game.

Earl Reibel, a native of Kitchener, spoiled Dutchmen's hopes of beating the Stanley Cup champions before a crowd of 2,656. The crafty centre scored the first goals in the final 10 minutes of the game to overcome a 3-2 Dutchmen lead. Reibel also assisted on the other two Red Wings goals.

Dutchmen, last season's Allan Cup champions, took a 2-1 lead in the first period and Red Wings tied it 2-2 in the second.

"A Fearsome Thing"

Russ-Yankee Olympic Spirit Cause for Committee Concern

By G. K. Hodenfield

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Who is going to win the 1956 Olympic games at Melbourne, the United States or Russia?

North American sports fans find that question a good topic for spirited chats. But members of the International Olympic Committee find it a fearsome thing, a danger, to their cherished ideals of Olympic competition.

Today, with physical arrangements for the Melbourne games nearing completion, the men behind the Olympics are turning their attention more and more to the fierce nationalism that spawns the question and keeps it alive.

INDIVIDUAL TESTS

"The Olympic games are contests between individuals," Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said today. "They are not—and they must not become—contests between nations to decide the superiority of one nation over another, or of one political system over another."

Brundage and Lewis Luxton, chairman of the organizing committee for next year's games, pleaded with newspaper men to do what they can to abolish—or at least minimize—the use of any unofficial point system to determine the leading teams in Olympic competition.

Luxton said point systems are ridiculous.

"How," he asked, "can you balance a gold medal won by tiny Gastonia Nilsen against a gold medal won by the United States? How can you balance a gold medal won in the marathon against a gold medal for being a member of the championship gymnastics team?"

ONE VILLAGE

Luxton said everything possible is being done to accomplish what he called "true meaning" to the Olympics. There will be just one Olympic village and competitors from both sides of the Iron Curtain will be encouraged to mix freely.

Brundage said the international committee is crossing national and political lines wherever possible. Both Red China and Nationalist China have been invited. East and West Germany were persuaded to combine their teams and enter as one nation. Even those countries which do not have diplomatic relations with Australia will be welcomed.

Luxton said 63 nations have accepted the invitation to participate, three have declined and 20 are yet to be heard from.

He said "remarkable progress" has been made in preparations and all facilities will be ready in time.

Ottawa Rough Riders Pay for Laxity Fines Are Levied, Axe May Fall

OTTAWA (CP)—Twenty Ottawa Rough Riders will learn today they have been fined $200 each for poor play in their last two games against Montreal Alouettes.

Too, some of them may be out of a job by Saturday. The executive of the Big Four football club decided to seek replacements to strengthen the team.

The club executive decided Tuesday night at a three-hour meeting with head coach Chan Caldwell to fine the 30 players $100 a game for each of the last two Ottawa games. Riders were throttled 35-7 here Saturday and 43-6 in Montreal Monday by the league-leading Alouettes.

A Club announcement said that the fines, to be announced to the players by Caldwell at today's practice, were imposed for "failure to exhibit the calibre of football of which they are capable."

SEEK REPLACEMENTS

At the same time the club said "immediate steps are being taken to secure replacements in an endeavor to strengthen the team. Further announcements will be made later in the week."

The club declined to identify the players whose cheques this week will reflect the fines.

This is the first time in at least 32 years that the Ottawa club has fined players. J. F. (Jim) McCaffery, team manager, said.

John Bove, import tackle from West Virginia who played with the Riders in 1951-52-53, drilled with the team Tuesday night. Earlier this year, Bove, 26, was released by Ottawa and tried out with Green Bay Packers of the National Football League. He was cut before the 1954 season.

Rough Riders have until midnight Saturday to declare the final roster to the Canadian Rugby Union, of which McCaffery is president.

ARGOS FINED PLAYERS

Earlier this year, Toronto Argonauts fined their imports $100 each and their hometown $50 each, for poor play in a game. At the time, Argos said the money would be placed in a pool for distribution among the players at the end of the season.

However, an Ottawa official said it was not discussed at the meeting whether the fines will be put in a pot or returned at the end of the year.

The meeting was the second in eight days in attempts to find and remedy the causes for Riders' sudden downfall which began when they were blanked 40-0 by Hamilton Tiger-Cats here a week ago Saturday.

After last week's meeting, the club relaxed backfield coach John Idzik on the grounds he did not get along with Caldwell.

Riders, with four more scheduled games, now are in the Big Four League cellar with two wins and six defeats.

Campbell Hopes To Break Water Record

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Donald Campbell today planned to inspect the "Bluebird II," the hydroplane in which he hopes to better this weekend the water record of 202.32 miles an hour he set last summer.

Campbell, 34, who arrived by air Tuesday night, said he probably will make his first trial runs on the seven-mile Lake Mead course Thursday. If all goes well he will shoot for the record Sunday.

While he has never tested Lake Mead, Campbell said he expects the course to be superior to the Ullswater, England, stretch where he set the record. Lake Mead is smoother and wider, Campbell said.

Police on Hand To Quell "Kid" Invasion

MONTREAL (CP)—Vick Obeck vice-president of Montreal Alouettes said Tuesday arrangements have been made for ample police protection at next Saturday's Big Four football game when Alouettes are host to Toronto Argos.

Obeck said he had talked with officials of McGill University as a result of swarms of kids and older persons flocking on the field at Monday's game between Ottawa Rough Riders and Alouettes. He said he was assured there will be enough police to control the crowds at the university's stadium—home field of the Als—next Saturday.

The youngsters nipped about the field and ranged themselves behind the goal lines for every convert, making off with a few footballs.

When threat of a forfeiture was announced over the public-address system, members of the Alouettes team halted play, hustled to the end zone and shooed the crowd away. The Als won 43-6. Many of the youngsters had hopped the fence to get into the game free and Obeck said police will put an end to this.

Tony Trabert Accepts Offer To Turn Pro

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Tony Trabert, regarded by many as the world's top tennis amateur, succumbed Tuesday in an offer of professional riches from promoter Jack Kramer.

Kramer's coup in getting the U.S. and Wimbledon titlist's signature on a contract paves the way for what will doubtless be the biggest raid on amateur net ranks in history.

For big Jack, onetime king of the amateurs himself, is confident that Australian stars Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall, conquerors in Davis Cup play, will follow Trabert into his fold.

Trabert, Hoad and Rosewall, with Kramer rounding out the foursome, may make a tour of the United States, Australia and Europe late this fall or early in the winter.

If he nets the Aussies, Kramer will have thrown the Davis Cup race for next year wide open.

The signing of Trabert ended weeks of speculation over whether he would turn pro. Terms of the deal were not disclosed, but Kramer said he will get more than the $75,000 that Australia's Frank Sedgman did when he forsook the amateurs to play with Jack.

Reports have it that Hoad and Rosewall are being offered $50,000 each.

Boxing Brass Wants Teamwork Not 'Thefts'

NEW YORK (AP)—Julius Helfand, chairman of the New York state athletic commission, Tuesday opposed federal investigation of boxing and called upon the "working commissions" of the country to co-operate instead of "trying to steal important fights."

Helfand, who has served nine months as New York chairman, reported on the status of boxing at a meeting of the Boxing Writers Association.

"We are striving to improve boxing, to see that we are conducting clean boxing that is fair to the best of our ability. In the final analysis, it is up to the promoters and managers. I am merely an administrator."

Helfand, a Democrat, took advantage of the occasion to deny printed reports that he had toned down his investigation of the sport.

Answering criticism that the inquiries have been a "dead line" for boxing," Helfand insisted the inquiry has been a "good thing" because it alerted the public and boxing people to realize that the commission intended to "keep looking on a clean, honest plane."

Helfand said flatly against any federal investigation and said he would be willing to list his reasons why he is opposed before any government group.

Buffalo 'Bills' Keep Bisons In League

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A price cut and a $70,000 loan from a group of local businessmen Tuesday kept International League baseball in Buffalo with a "citizens' company" buying the local franchise from Detroit Tigers.

The local group, headed by John Stiglmeier and Harry Slaggert, will pick up the option they had to purchase the triple-A franchise, but at a price of $75,000—half the original figure.

About $75,000 in cash was raised by public stock subscription. The loan will be from Stiglmeier and Slaggert through next season.

Wade Stevenson, local industrialist and chairman of the financial committee of businessmen that raised the $70,000, emphasized that the money was exactly that—a loan. He declared:

The men who put up the money do not become owners of the baseball club. To them, it is an investment in their community. They want a community-owned ball club. The sale of stock in the club will continue until the loan is repaid. The small investor still is the important power behind this team."

Shatto O.K.

TORONTO (CP)—Argonaut halfback Dick Shatto, injured in Monday's Big Four football game with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, was released from hospital Tuesday and pronounced medically fit.

Shatto's injury, suffered in the third quarter, was diagnosed as a "spinal concussion." He was badly shaken up and didn't regain consciousness until taken to hospital.

Chadwick Sets Channel Record

CALAIS, France (AP)—Florence Chadwick, the long-distance swimmer from San Diego, Calif., set a record of 13 hours, 55 minutes in her England-to-France swim across the English channel which ended early today.

Mrs. K. V. Lowe, an official observer who timed the swim, said she lopped 11 minutes off the previous unofficial mark set earlier this year by England's Bill Pickering.

The 35-year-old Miss Chadwick, who had conquered the channel in previous seasons, had hoped to make a non-stop round trip this time but gave up because of the cold water.

"I realized it was far too cold for me ever to make it back to Dover, so I decided to settle for a record," she said.

Unofficial reports earlier had credited Miss Chadwick with a time of 14 hours and nine minutes, three minutes shy of Pickering's mark.

Lead Western Scoring Race

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ken Carpenter and Buddy Leake are cooling their neck-and-neck race in the individual scoring in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press for games up to and including Oct. 10 show Carpenter, hard-running Saskatchewan Roughrider halfback, has scored opposing goal lines 15 times for 73 points, good for top spot.

Quarterback Leake of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers made up five points in the last week to move within two of Carpenter. Leake's 71 points came from five touchdowns, 22 converts, seven field goals and five singles.

Bob Dean of Edmonton Eskimos, with 64 points, and Joe Aguirre of Riders, with 50, retained their third and fourth positions respectively. Normie Kwong of Eska jumped into fifth place from a six-place tie last week.

Carpenter and Aguirre have an advantage over their rivals as Riders have five games left to all other clubs' three.

Larks Release Jim Brandt Retain Others

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four Tuesday announced the release of Jim Brandt but said they had signed the former halfback with Pittsburgh Steelers to a contract for next season.

The Als said they are retaining Jimmy Williams, another recent halfback import, and also J. C. Caroline.

Brandt will return to his home in St. Thomas, Minn.

Caroline was signed after he had been dropped by Toronto Argos.

Williams, whose home is in Los Angeles, came to the Alouettes after he was cut by the New York Giants.

Chuck Hunsinger, still out of action because of a foot injury, remains on the inactive list. In addition to 10 playable U.S. imports, one can be placed on the inactive list under a recent decision by the Big Four executive.

At Ottawa, Wes Brown, Big Four secretary, said that if a team picks up Brandt for the $500 waiver price Alouettes will lose all rights to the halfback for next year. He would become the property of the club that picked him up. However, if Brandt was walved out of the league, Alouettes could sign him to a 1956 contract.

East-West Grid All-Stars To Clash in Varsity Stadium

TORONTO (CP)—East will meet West here Dec. 3 in the "dream game" of Canadian football on behalf of Canadian crippled children.

Two teams representing the best of Canada's big nine football teams —Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Regina and Winnipeg in the West and Hamilton, Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal in the East—will clash in Varsity Stadium in the first game of its kind in Canada.

Net proceeds will go to Shriners' hospitals for crippled children in Winnipeg and Montreal. The Star Weekly and Shriners of Canada are joint sponsors.

For eastern football fans the game is expected to provide a thriller to replace the Grey Cup classic gone West this year for the first time. It will be played in Vancouver, Nov. 26.

Ticket officials at Varsity Stadium said Tuesday requests for seats started coming in while the game still was in the rumor stage.

One source said money orders and cheques for 2,000 tickets already have been received. The stadium's 27,000 seats may not hold the fans who want to see the spectacle.

The teams selected will be up to the fans. A story in The Star Weekly invites fans to choose their favorite offensive and defensive teams and supplies a ballot on which the selections can be made.

Plans first were laid down at the annual meeting of the Canadian Rugby Union in Toronto in 1954. The idea was that either the previous year's Grey Cup finalists or the second place clubs in East and West would engage in a pre-season exhibition battle.

The idea received immediate endorsement from officials of both senior unions and the nine clubs. Nine Shrine temples across Canada offered assistance. Plans for the all-star game are completed at this year's meeting of the CRU.

Omnibus Hung Another Ribbon On Its Well-Decorated Chest

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YOR K(AP) — Television lieve a word of it) merely an age took a look at both the past and of gadgets.
the future the other day.

"Omnibus" tossed in for its fourth season on CBS-TV with a portrait of the Renaissance as the first of the weekly 90 - minute programs.

At about the same time NBC-TV came along with a one-shot called "1976," which was — we were told — a survey of what life will be like in that year.

From one viewer's chair the past was infinitely more interesting than the future.

By recreating one of the most vital and fascinating periods of the world's history with extraordinary brilliance, "Omnibus" gave us the most sustaining television fare in many a month. To recreate any period of history takes television daring. It takes live and succeeding in making an audience believe that studio walls did not exist, "Omnibus" hung another ribbon on its well-decorated chest.

BIRTH AND DEATH

"Omnibus" fittingly called its program "the birth of modern times." NBC might just as fittingly have called "1976" something like "the death of modern times."

The Renaissance was an age of ideas. But 1976, as forecast and activated by NBC, was (let's not say "will be" because if didn't be

If we were to believe this program, 1976 would be the age of implemented comforts. No traffic, no slums, no hostilities. Just wish upon a star, kiddies, and you'll get what you want.

Aldous Huxley in "Brave New World" and George Orwell in "1984" have savagely satirized a world of the future dependent on gadgets. But NBC accepted such a world most eagerly and said, in effect, that it would be just peachy. Its production was slick as glass, of course, and across its surface skidded such old standbys as Sid Caesar, Wally Cox and Dave Garroway.

Yes, sir, that show had just about everything — except a single good idea of what people really will be like in NBC's age of comfort.

"The Big Surprise," NBC - TV's reply to "The $64,000 Question" on CBS-TV, had its premiere last Saturday evening. It's a real dull, mixed-up program. NBC thoughtfully provided the press with a couple of pages of explanations on how somebody might possibly win $100,000 on this giveaway. I didn't understand the directions. Looked at the show, hoping to understand them. Still don't.

FELL INTO BARREL

VICTORIA HARBOR (CP)—A 20-month-old baby was saved from drowning Tuesday when his mother snatched him from a rain barrel into which he had fallen. Mrs. Alfred Latendresse said her son Bruce had been climbing on boxes with his older brother when he fell into the barrel. Bruce's brother ran into the house and called Mrs. Latendresse. She pulled the boy from the water and a neighbor, Miss Mabel Brown, a nurse, applied artificial respiration.

CANADIAN HONORED

CHICAGO (CP)—Dr. Joseph A. Sullivan, noted Toronto ear specialist, Tuesday received an award from the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology for his contributions to surgery of the inner ear. Dr. Sullivan, head of the hearing clinic at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, was honored with eight other eye, ear, nose and throat specialists at the academy's annual convention. In the 1920s, he was the goalie for the famed Varsity Grads hockey team.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The bridge rules you learn are for buyers as well as for the paisokits. The main difference is that the experts seem to know when it pays to break the rules they know.

When using the aces and kings convention, the player who bids four no-trump decides what the final contract should be. It is almost an unwritten law that the other partner does not disturb this.

However, there are unusual circumstances that may suggest an exception to this. As may be recognized in the deal shown here:

NORTH
♠ Q J 5
♥ K J 10 4
♣ K 10 9 8 7 4

WEST
♠ 5 4 2
♥ A 9 8 7 6 5
♦ K Q 10 6
♣ Q 6

EAST
♠ 10 7 3
♥ 6 3 2
♦ J 9 8 4 2
♣ J

SOUTH
♠ A K 10 9
♥ A Q 9 8
♦ A 7 5 3
♣ A

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 Spade	2 Clubs
3 Hearts	4 Clubs
4 No-Trump	5 Hearts
5 No-Trump	6 Hearts
5 No-Trump	7 Hearts

In answer to four no-trump, five clubs is the ace shown convention. In answer to five no-trump, six hearts is the signal for two kings. That does not mean the opponents have one king.

Ordinarily, south decides the final contract and expected to when he bid six no-trump. But the north player knew that the contract was much safer in hearts and should play at that trump suit.

Furthermore, south went boldly to a small slam without first learning what will be trump. And also without knowing the extreme oddity of the north holding: unusual distribution.

In a satisfactory trump suit, north had extra values that south could not have known about from the bidding. Which is why north went to seven hearts. It made easily with a diamond lead.

A rule is a token that is meant to be broken.

New England Clambake Will Be Produced in Minute Detail

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—They were having a real shore clambake, New England style, out at 20th Century-Fox.

It was for "Carousel," the Rodgers and Hammerstein classic that is finally being made into a movie. Fans of the musical drama will be happy to know that the studio is doing things right—down to sand including the seaweed.

Meticulous Henry King was directing the clambake with an eye for detail. The feat over, 200 clambakers lay on the sand groaning happily over their full stomachs and singing about the meal that had been "fit'n for an angel" choir.

The sand may have been California, but the other props were strictly New England.

"We had everything flown out from Boothbay Harbor, Me.," said veteran director King, who did rected location scenes there last month. "Even the seaweed. It's not like the kelp we have on this coast."

COPIED EXACTLY

King attended a real New England clambake and reproduced it faithfully for the film.

"They have a circle of flat stones," he explained. "On this they build a fire several feet high.

"After wood has burned down they sweep the ashes away. Then they lay a pile of wet seaweed on the hot rocks. Over this comes a layer of lobsters and whole potatoes. Then come the clams and ears of corn, still in the husk. They cover all this with another layer of wet seaweed and place a tarpaulin over the whole works.

"On the tarp they put a big pot filled with butter. When the butter is melted, the food is ready to eat.

"And is it good! I had never tasted clams until I had them cooked this way."

SCRIPT TIGHTENED UP

Producer Henry Ephron, who wrote the script with his wife Phoebe, assured that the rest of film is being handled with the same care that the studio is taking in the clambake.

"'Carousel' is perhaps Richard Rodgers' greatest musical achievement," he explained, "But as a play it had its highs and lows. I think we have eliminated the lows. We have tightened up the script, and Rodgers and Hammerstein approved all of the cuts we made.

"All of the songs are intact except for one. We have eliminated 'Take Me Before the Highest Judge of All,' which was perhaps the weakest song in the score."

Ephron said he regretted the walkout of Frank Sinatra, who said he wouldn't make two versions in different camera techniques. (It's now being done in only one—SuperCinemascope — Cinemascope gimmick.)

"We may have lost some in acting ability," he said, "I'd be a fool not to concede that Sinatra is a great actor. But I think Gordon Macrae has a greater choice for the songs."

'NOT AS STRANGER' POIGNANT DRAMA —POWERFUL STORY

A motion picture, produced in a truly magnificent manner, and in keeping with the fine literary quality of the story it has to tell is Stanley Kramer's production of the best-selling novel "Not As a Stranger" now playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre through United Artists release. Every once in a while a picture comes along which deserves all the high-flown adjectives often used indiscriminately in describing a film. "Not As a Stranger" rates all the "colossals" "great" and "stupendous" es" that you can muster and the man almost entirely responsible for this over-all effect of a great movie is Stanley Kramer.

His selection of a cast in transferring Morton Thompson's powerful novel to the screen helped to make this a moving and memorable film. In the leading role of Lucas Marsh a man so devoted to the principals of medicine and perfection that he shuts out friendship love and sentiment, as Robert Mitchum who in this film gives the finest performance of his career. Also giving her greatest performance is Olivia de Havilland as Kristina the Swedish nurse whom Lucas marries for money but comes to love (almost too late) for the fine person she is. Frank Sinatra, as Lucas' best friend, gives a powerful that surpasses his Academy-Award winning performance in "From Here to Eternity."

Broderick Crawford, as a stern disciplinarian medical professor. Gloria Grahame as the alluring other woman," and Charles Bickford as the rugged small town doctor who turns over his practice to Lucas, round out the top rank with great performances. In smaller roles, both with none-the-less top-notch portrayals are Myron McCormick, Lon Chaney, Harry Morgan, Virginia Christine and Mae Clarke.

Edna and Howard Anhalt did a masterful job, in transforming Thompson's 800-odd page novel into a warm, sensitive yet compact script which Stanley Kramer in his debut as a motion picture director handed with great feeling for the dramatic.

TO TRAIN IN JETS

PICTON (CP) — Air force recruits will get their basic training in 50-million-dollar jets within two or three years, Wing Cmdr. C. H. Mussells of Trenton, said Tuesday. Speaking to the Picton Rotary Club he said propeller-driven trainers will be limited. He estimated the cost will run to millions of dollars and by 1960 the RCAF will be flying the fastest jets at 600 miles an hour, twice the speed of sound.

CAMPBELLFORD

Hunter Found In Dense Bush After Long Search

CAMPBELLFORD — An army of about 50 men combed through heavy swamp and bush country about eight miles north of here on Thursday night, searching for a Campbellford man, Ralph McGuigge, 33, who had become lost on a hunting expedition earlier in the day.

Although searchers expressed fear for his safety, the story had a happy ending, when the lost hunter was located by his brother-in-law, Charles Day, of River Road, Campbellford.

Mr. McQuigge, who is single and lives with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Day, had gone hunting earlier in the day. When darkness fell and he did not return home, Mr. Day went to the spot where Ralph usually hunted, and found his car, but could find no sign of Ralph.

After notifying the Provincial Police of this district, a party of a half-dozen men led by OPP Constable Geo. Louth made a search of the area north and east of the roadway where the car was found, but soon found their efforts to be useless without more men to cover a wider area.

Within about half an hour members of McQuigge's family had rounded up volunteers in the town and started out again with nearly 50 men, armed with flashlights and rifle shots as prearranged signals, in case they were needed.

Shortly after midnight, some of the party found the man about three miles from the road, and finding him to be none the worse for the stay in the bush, took him to the farm home of Ben Fice, where, where he was given food and a hot drink.

Mr. McQuigge, a veteran of World War II, was hunting rabbits with two friends when they became lost.

Slashed leg as a result of a wound received overseas during the war, and many of the searchers feared he might have fallen in the dense bush and was unable to answer their calls.

When they found him, he was resting under a tree. He told the party of men that he had been using the bush for him, that he had found himself to be hopelessly lost, when darkness fell and decided that the wisest thing he could do would be to stay put and make himself and his dogs as comfortable as he could until daylight when he hoped to find his way out.

The bush and ground were wet from recent rains, and Mr. McQuigge said his attempts to light a fire proved useless, and he had broken his rifle trying to whittle some dry wood off a branch.

His brothers and sisters told him on Friday evening after he was found: "The next time you go hunting—you'd better stay home."

Members of the family praised the efforts of the searchers who offered their assistance when they heard the man was lost, and OPP Constable George Louth, who organized the search said: "Those men were great and certainly deserved a lot of credit."

Did Not Get Chance to Answer $64,000 Question

NEW YORK (AP) — Patrick (Paddy) Keough, St. Louis baseball expert, didn't get a chance to answer the $32,000 question Tuesday night.

Keough had entered the "isolation booth" and master of ceremonies Hal Marsh just started to read the rules on the television show when he was interrupted with word that time was up.

Actually the program, "the $64,000 question," had five minutes to go but apparently the time was needed for the final commercial of the fir mbat sponsors the show.

Dr. Allan Gordon Ferguson Episcopal minister from Oxford, Ohio, earlier won $8,000. Many of his questions required the playing of records, and this was time-consuming.

150 Children In Red Lands Coming to Canada

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Edward Stanbury Brooks, Toronto, national commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross, says negotiations have been completed with Iron Curtain countries for repatriation to Canada of 150 children of Canadian war brides living in this country.

In an interview Tuesday night following his arrival fro mEurope aboard the liner Saxonia, Dr. Stanbury said there are 40 Canadian children listed by the Canadian Red Cross as missing "somewhere behind the Iron curtain."

He discussed the matter with Romanian, Hungarian, Polish and Russian Red Cross officials while attending an international meeting of the society. He said they were very sympathetic.

The Canadian Red Cross has succeeded so far in reuniting some 45 children from Communist countries with their parents in Canada.

Author Defends Novel 'Conflict' Against Charges

VICTORIA (CP)—Author William A. Pinderleith of Victoria Tuesday defended his novel "Conflict" against charges that it is obscene or anti-Christian.

He said he is puzzled by the controversy raging in Flesherton. Mr. Pinderleith is co-ordinator of creative writing in B.C. department of education.

The charges were levelled last week by John Cook, former reeve of Flesherton who lifted five books on the shelves of the local library which were "obscene, anti-Christian and not fit reading for his teen-age daughter." Included was Mr. Pinderleith's book.

He said his book deals with the era of the American revolution and the United Empire Loyalists.

In one sequence, an army deserter is attracted to a pregnant woman and Mr. Pinderleith said he thought that was perhaps the only decent thing in the book.

Mr. Pinderleith said no one had seen it before suggested anything improper.

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — The 35th national convention of the Catholic Women's League of Canada will be held here July 15-18. The national director, Most Rev. W. J. Smith, bishop of Pembroke, will attend. PLANNED SWAN DINNER

EDMONTON (CP)—Because two young boys wanted a goose for Thanksgiving, Edmonton's zoo no longer has a whistling swan. The plucked body of the rare bird was recovered by police after it was reported stolen from its cage. Police later found the culprits, aged 10 and 13, and turned the case over to juvenile authorities. Zoo officials said the bird was the only one of its kind at the zoo and that it will be costly to replace.

Eisenhower Makes New Inspection Offer To Russia

Hopes Disarmament Will Develop in Long Run

RESCUED AIRMAN

Gerhardt (Jerry) Lodz, 27, lies as he is carried on stretcher to plane at Edmonton after he was rescued from a wrecked York transport plane half submerged in a tiny Mackenzie Territories lake. He was taken to hospital for treatment of extreme exposure suffered during the ten days he clung without food to the wing of the plane. Pilot Joseph Cermak, 40, suffered fatal injuries in the crash landing after their plane was lured on an Arctic radar-line freight flight. (CP Photo).

DENVER (AP) — President Eisenhower, in a letter to Russia's Premier Bulganin, couples a formal United States offer to present a Soviet military inspection plan with a new bid for the Eisenhower "pre-disarmament" program.

The convalescing president's brief note, made public by the Denver White House late Wednesday, underscored the continuing American hope that the Soviet Union eventually will go along with the Eisenhower proposal that the U.S. and Russia exchange military blueprints and agree on reciprocal aerial inspection.

At the same time, apparently in a move to show that hope alive, Eisenhower reiterated that the U.S. is willing to combine his plan and the Soviet proposal for a view toward disarmament in the long run.

In a Sept. 19 message to Eisenhower—first made public by the president was stricken with a heart attack—Bulganin found much fault with the Eisenhower plan first set forth at the Big Four "summit" conference in Geneva last July.

So much fault, in fact, that administration officials were reported to have concluded at the time that Bulganin had chosen either to miss or ignore the opening that hope allowed. Eisenhower reiterated that the U.S. is willing to combine his plan and the Soviet proposal for a view toward disarmament in the long run.

But if the Kremlin leader did not choose to take up the plan that head on point. Eisenhower in his reply pressed it upon him anyway, and purposely in the hope that the Soviet Union eventually will come around to endorse his program.

Making no mention of Bulganin's blunt criticism of his proposal, the president elected to take note of the premier's assertion that the Eisenhower plan would be a powerful study by the Soviet high command.

"I am encouraged," Eisenhower wrote, "that you are giving such full consideration to my previous proposal."

Then, in his concluding paragraph, he formally renewed a bid to Russia for a "fair and realistic" program by combing both his own and the Soviet plan for mutually checking on military installations and movements.

"We have not forgotten your proposal having to do with stationing inspection teams at key points in our countries. And if you feel this would help to create the better spirit," I refer to, we could accept that too."

Cardinal Youth Is Poker-Faced At Murder Trial

BROCKVILLE (CP)—The trial of 17-year-old Ronald Reid—one of the youngest persons ever tried for murder in a Canadian court of law —enters its third day today.

He is charged with murder in the death of a Cardinal, Ont., dry goods merchant, Benjamin Spilleman, who was found stabbed, bludgeoned and shot to death in his store Aug. 22.

Since the trial opened here Tuesday morning, Reid has appeared calm and poker-faced as the crown case unfolded. His mother, Mrs. Isaac Lewis, has not appeared in the courtroom. Her husband's daughter, Mrs. Alice Depottie, has attended each session, visiting the youth in an ante room during brief recess periods.

Jail officials say he is eating and sleeping well.

REVOLVER TESTIMONY

On Reid's initiative expert Wednesday testified that slugs taken from Spilleman's body were fired from a .38 calibre revolver found in the accused's Cardinal, Ont., home.

RCMP constable Donald E. Champagne of Ottawa told the Assize Court he is attached to the RCMP's Ottawa crime laboratory. "Two bullets taken from Spilleman's body were definitely fired from that revolver, and a third bullet (found on the floor nearby) was very likely from the same weapon," he said.

Cardinal police chief Edward Smith testified that a broken revolver behind some broken panelling in the bathroom of Reid's home where the youth was arrested Aug. 30.

HARRIS DECLARES WHEAT POLICY CHANGE COMING

Announcement Pledged 'Within a Month or So'

TORONTO (CP)—Finance Minister Harris said Wednesday night a new policy on wheat, one which will answer many existing criticisms, will be announced by the federal government "within a month or so."

He made the announcement in a political campaign address here. Mr. Harris said much criticism is being levelled at the government for its consistent support of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and because the government is not handling the wheat problem "in the way many people think we should."

"Within a month or so we will have a policy that will answer these criticisms."

ONLY TO WHEAT

Mr. Harris said the new policy will apply only to wheat and not to the GATT.

In an interview after his address, Mr. Harris was asked whether External Affairs Minister Pearson's visit to Russia had anything to do with the new wheat policy.

"I wouldn't say that," he replied. "But it will help."

He was asked if it had something to do with Mr. Pearson's talks with Colombo plan consultative committee in Singapore later this week.

"It might," he said.

Mr. Harris spoke at a meeting of Progressive Conservatives here on behalf of Samuel Godfrey, a candidate in the Jan. 30 federal by-election in Toronto Spadina.

Arrest Man Who Took Son From Nursery

TORONTO (CP) — William C. Benson, 34, of suburban Port Credit, who police said took his son from a nursery school last Friday, was arrested and lodged in nearby Brampton Jail Wednesday night on a charge of assault.

Benson allegedly struck Miss Hilda Mathieson, operator of the school. Police said she told them Benson struck her when she tried to snatch up his son, Warren, 3, and took him away. She said Benson punched her over when she tried to stop him and she injured her back when she fell.

Police said Benson and his wife separated and he obtained legal title to her father, W. C. Becker, obtained an Ontario Supreme Court order giving custody of the child to the mother.

Benson was arrested after police were told he had taken his son to St. Joseph's Hospital here for treatment.

Police said Benson told them he took the child to a doctor, but returned car, but that near Prescott he went out of control and left the road, Benson suffered bruised ribs and the child suffered a broken arm and leg. Benson

Vancouver Police Chief Walks Out on Commission Members

By GRAHAM McMULLEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police chief Walter Mulligan, after saying he was already "destroyed," Wednesday walked out of a royal commission inquiry moments after hearing details of the love-life of mystery woman Helen Douglas.

Chief Mulligan and his counsel said they were "already destroyed" by the methods of the police inquiry and "were prepared to stand trial where there is room for evidence."

Counsel John G. (Jay) Gould, who said the inquiry was "a 1955 Spanish Inquisition," made the announcement of withdrawal after Commissioner R. H. Tupper adjourned the proceedings indefinitely.

"If tomorrow-yes, brought down an interim report in which you cleared Walter Mulligan, he would no longer be able to hold the position of chief of police.

"His name has been completely destroyed. We are prepared to take our place in another forum."

Mr. Gould's statement, climaxing a two-hour grilling of Helen Elizabeth Douglas, said the inquiry was "contrary to natural justice," and listed 11 reasons for his opinion.

Miss Douglas, who testified the chief was in her bedroom, broke down in the terms of her counsel following Mr. Gould's hammering cross-examination.

The veiled mystery woman said men-chief Mulligan wanted to divorce his wife and showered her with gifts. She testified earlier the chief told of a $39,000 nest-egg saved from gambling payoff money.

Mr. Gould cross-examined her on past associations with eight other men, some of whom she admitted "may have" stayed the night at her east end home.

She said she knew the chief was married at the time she knew him and has since been married herself.

Mr. Gould took exception to:

Mr. Tupper's interpretation of his duties, his private interviews with "star witnesses;" his cross-examination of witnesses; presence of the commission associate on the RCMP investigating team; use of leading questions during the inquiry; hearsay evidence; activity in disinterested counsel in matters in which they have "no concern;" special succor to Miss Douglas; and the "unholy rumor and lie" in definable adjournment.

Mr. Commissioner said he adjourned the inquiry to permit his RCMP investigators to pursue certain allegations, some of which "go back six years."

It was the second withdrawal from the commission. Earlier, T.G. Norris quit as chief Mulligan's counsel following publication of an article in the Toronto tabloid Flash.

Mr. Norris described the article as an attempt to blackmail him. He withdrew as he said all counsel after losing a plea for an adjournment.

Montgomery Hits Sensitive Spot With Merger Proposal

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Field Marshal Montgomery is heralding a return visit to the United States with a new commentary on the military brass-hat problem by looking at the need for eventual merger of army, navy and air forces into one service.

A year ago the outspoken British commander shook the U.S. Navy with some observations about aircraft carriers not fitting into war's future. He is speaking today, before the Royal United Services Institution, a military club in London, Montgomery is president of his previous talk, saying it frightened many in military circles in this country and even more so in the U.S.A.

In his new lecture, delivered a few weeks before he is scheduled to arrive in the U.S. for a speaking tour, the famed army leader says:

1. Directed some barbs at the present form of armies—"The day of the armored division and of the infantry division as we know them at the late war is past. The armored division is expensive in overheads, it lacks staying power, it is not suitable for the present battle action. The infantry division is unwieldy and in most countries without armored assistance, and tanks must be an integral part of the division."

2. Proposed that an American be given top command of global warfare because the U.S. has the only real strategic air force among the Western powers. Western air forces he said, should be unified in "one single mighty weapon of air power."

Montgomery's comments about merger of land, sea and air services have been the big talking point in the U.S. One of the greatest points of contention in the years long wrangle of the American services over unification was the position of the Marine Corps. Under the present setup the Marines would be absorbed in the army. Under the new system, giving over-all direction to the defence department, was worked out to protect them.

Montgomery applies his views to the U.S. and not to anybody else. Americans—but the impact of his words, will be considerable for some in the U.S. He said he realizes that a true merger cannot be achieved now, but looking into the distant future the objective from then on "must be one land, one sea, one air force more closely together—even to the extent of combining them into one force."

Progress and development in the air weapon have outmoded many of the old conceptions of the organization of military forces. But we have not, he stresses, done so in our habits and traditions. All the great lessons from the past, he emphasizes, land and air. This separate existence of the three services, he says, is in every nation, in waste of money, waste of manpower and waste of time."

Two-Man Board To Authorize Vehicle Licences

TORONTO (CP) — Appointment of a two-man board to authorize the issuing of licences for public vehicles was announced in the legislature today by the Ontario government.

It was reported that Judge Park Wednesday night that legislation establishing the highway transport board will be placed before a cabinet meeting. Applications for licences and transport rates and other matters will be handled by the board.

The Ontario highways department will supervise the board's licences. The Ontario municipal board now receives the applications.

Chairman of the board, it was reported, will be Saul Hughes, Welland lawyer. The vice-chairman will be Edward Shoniker, member of the Ontario municipal board since June, 1954.

MILLION-MEMBER LABOR CONGRESS IS NOW ASSURED

CCL Approves Merger With Trades and Labor

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Formation of the largest union body in Canada's history—with 1,000,000 members—is assured.

The Canadian Congress of Labor made this certain Wednesday as some 900 delegates at their annual convention gave a standing ovation to welcoming the Trades and Labor Congress into a unified organization.

The decision meant the two groups—the TLC with 600,000 members and the CCL with 400,000—will now emerge out of a founding convention here of the Canadian Labor Congress, as the united organization will be known.

Tentative plans for the joint convention had been made before the CCL action following the other congress' endorsation of the merger last summer. The CCL's move cleared the decks.

TO HEAR JOHNSON

Today, the congress was expected to hear from Claude Jodoin of Ottawa, president of the 110,000 TLC, who was invited to address the CCL as a fraternal delegate. Jodoin, a 260-pound former Ladies Garment Workers organizer, will be the first head of the congress under the new constitution.

Seventy-four-year-old A. R. Mosher of the CCL, who has long watched the outfit he founded vote itself out of existence, will be an honorary president. For years, he has pressed for the amalgamation.

The merger resolution—approving identically terms of a TLC-CCL merger that the TLC endorsed several months ago—was approved by the merger principle. Some delegates took exception to certain details of the agreement.

These included the way dues will be levied, the representation at conventions and the joint decision of Canadian Labor Congress conventions only once every two years instead of annually as the two existing central labor bodies now do.

WATCH THE FOREST

CCL Secretary-treasurer Donald MacDonald, speaking against these points, said: "We are concerned not to "miss seeing the forest for the trees."

These new congresses, he said, should "eliminate once and for all unnecessary growths of disunity and disorganization that in past have been exploited to the disadvantage of labor's power."

MacDonald said the amalgamation would be perfected—as it was suggested by some other delegates—in the "shortest possible time."

"The best possible job that could be done under the circumstances," he stated, "is the best."

Amalgamation also was endorsed by Bill Mooney of Toronto, assistant Canadian chief of the 75,000-member United Steelworkers of America.

With the historic merger action out of the way, the congress was expected to settle down to more lively matters. Among these, though there was a possibility of a scrap over the jurisdictional conciliation boards operate.

George Burt of Windsor, Canadian boss of the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) said recently such boards should be "scuttled."

BRANTFORD (CP) — Police were confronted with a blank wall today as an investigation into the mysterious disappearance of a woman and her two daughters after a farm house fire near Brantford entered its sixth day.

Police were rechecking neighbors and searching nearby fields and ditches for some trace of Mrs. Phyllis Malek, 27, and her daughters Patricia, 4 and Barbara 6. They are believed to have died in the fire.

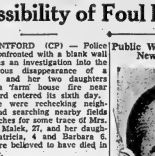
However, a close search of the farm house ruins Wednesday turned up nothing, police said.

"A handful" of bones found in the ruined house Sunday were brought to the home of Mrs. Malek, and her daughters. But investigating officers said they were mystified at such a small amount of possible human remains if three bodies were in the house at the time of the fire.

WAS IN HOUSE

Jan Hancharuk, 31, a tobacco farmer who police said lived with Mrs. Malek, said he was in Brantford at the time of the fire. He told police Mrs. Malek was making ketchup in the kitchen and the children were playing outside when he left.

After three finished sifting the ashes, Hancharuk said he no believes there were any bones in the house at the time of the fire.



He said bigger bones would have been found in the ruins if Mrs. Malek and her children had died in the fire.

Inspector D. A. Nicol of the criminal investigation branch of the provincial police said police have not ruled out the possibility of foul play.

Bank of Canada Boosts Charges For Second Time

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bank of Canada has boosted its interest charges for the second time in two months in an apparent government move to restrain credit buying.

New interest rates generally will prevent a drain of foreign investment in Canadian enterprise.

The central bank's interest tolls for loans to chartered banks were raised Wednesday night by one-quarter per cent to a record 1½ per cent. Previous charge was one-half per cent last Aug. 6.

As usual the bank gave no reason for its action, but federal officials observed that Canadian interest rates have been among the lowest in the western world. Foreign investors have been pouring in some of their Canadian holdings and taking their money elsewhere for higher investment yields.

Officials said the bank's action may lead to put a few more brakes on credit, but they felt Canada's boomlet economy is strong enough to withstand a few light punches without reeling.

The chartered banks usually do not borrow much from the central bank, so changes in the central rate influence borrowing charges generally, especially on loans extended for short periods.

30-Mile Flame-Colored 'C' in Sky Spells Complete Success in Test

By SANKY TRIMBLE

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — A gigantic flame-colored "C" in the sky 30 miles long — estimated to be 30 miles long — has spelled success for latest investigations of the upper-atmosphere secrets.

Scientists described Wednesday night's test, a sodium emission project, as "something never before done in the history of science scientifically."

The spectacular orange - red plume, shaped by winds from 40 to 70 miles above earth into the alphabetical symbol, was clearly visible more than 300 miles away shortly after its first gas bursts here. The star Vega was wrapped in its almost exact centre.

The target for the bursting out of a special Aerobee rocket from two containers of metallic sodium, was visible for 27 minutes.

Complete technical results of the widely heralded United States Air Force test will not be known for "at least two weeks and perhaps longer," said John F. Bedinger of the Air Force Cambridge research centre, whose officials worked with Holloman Air Development centre personnel in the test.

The experiment sought to determine the ozone, pressure, temperature characteristics and altitude of natural sodium in the atmosphere.

By pre-arrangement, the metallic sodium was spewed in vapor at 40 miles on the rocket's flight upward. It continued until the rocket reached an altitude of approximately 70 miles and before it began its descent.

Instruments packed into the warhead of the rocket fell north of Holloman, and recovery parties started after them early today.

200 Donations From ANAF Blood Bank

After the suggestions of a few interested members Mr. Henry Drury formed the A.N.A.F. Blood Bank which is the largest of its kind in the entire district.

After a few calls on members of the A.N.A.F. for emergency blood donations, Mr. Drury saw the need for a more ample and ready supply of blood and with the able assistance and technical advice of Dr. Hans Lucke and other members of the hospital staff the A. N. A. F. Blood Bank was formed.

Mr. Drury submitted a list for subscribers and immediately upwards of two hundred A. N. A. F. members pledged themselves available at any time. The hospital staff went to work immediately typing and grouping the prospective blood donors and issuing Blood Donor Service cards to them, making them ready at a moment's notice.

NEEDY CALLS ACCEPTED

The Blood Bank was originally intended for the members and their families of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans of the Belleville Unit who, with a membership of over seven hundred and fifty, are the first call on the supply of blood. But in the past months calls have also been accepted for rarer types of blood from needy persons and this will also be the policy for the future.

Since this Bank began a scant year ago the members have made over two hundred donations with emergency calls coming from as far east as Kingston and west to Toronto while the Bank described the generosity and popularity of the blood service.

An Honor Roll of blood donors adorns the wall of the club room and a new name is added after the donor's name and in many cases there appears four and five stars opposite a single donor.

The A.N.A.F. can be very proud of this record and Mr. Drury for forming and continuing to build this very popular Blood Donor Bank.

Approval Stamp On Re-decorating Given by Jury

Re-decorating of the main court room in the Hastings Courts rooms of house and painting of other upstairs rooms and halls in the building drew the stamp of approval from members of the Supreme Court grand jury on Wednesday. The courtroom was decorated during the summer months.

The grand jury made their report to Mr. Justice Kelly yesterday afternoon following their completion of inspection of the county buildings and after receiving congratulations from the judge in the manner in which they carried out their duties, were discharged.

The only criminal case to be tried at the current sitting of the Supreme Court was one of criminal negligence against Leo D'Arcy, Montreal transport driver. The grand jury returned a true bill on Tuesday afternoon but the accused was acquitted yesterday by the petit jury.

In their report the grand jury said the general appearance of the courtroom was very good but they agreed with former recommendations that the acoustics could be improved.

DESKS NEED RE-COVERING

The report said the ceiling of the Registry needed painting and that desks in the council chamber at Shire Hall needed re-covering. The family court room office used for private interviews should be sound-proofed.

Housekeeping and general conditions of the jail were found neat and clean and was a credit to jail governor Scott.

The two main entrance doors to the court room, however, were found to be shaking and a single door with panels on the side would improve the appearance of the front entrance. A fireproof safe was required for the sheriff's office.

The jury had been impressed with the efficiency and the management, in good housekeeping, and general operations in the county Crown Attorney and Mrs. Kenneth York were commended for their untiring efforts in the care of aged residents at the home.

Accused Acquitted Without Defence Witnesses Heard

In a move said to be very unusual in Supreme Court courtroom an accused charged with criminal negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle was acquitted by a Hastings county petit jury on Wednesday without witnesses for the defence being called.

The jury acquitted Leo D'Arcy, Montreal transport driver of a negligence charge arising out of a highway fatality near the Trenton air station last May when an airman Stephen George Lyle, aged 18, of Kimberley, B.C. was killed.

The Supreme Court judge, The Honorable Mr. Justice Kelly, following an afternoon recess at the completion of the Crown's case, asked the jury to consider whether there was sufficient evidence to warrant calling defence witnesses.

There had been no move for acquittal by Defence Counsel Ben Hurley who had the jury been addressed either by Mr. Hurley or Crown counsel, Gordon Robertson.

Mr. Justice Kelly told the jury that he was not taking the case from them but in view of the Crown evidence said the jury should decide whether or not they wanted to hear defence witnesses.

He pointed out that the underlying principle of British justice was a presumption of innocence until the accused had been proven guilty.

He cited the law with respect to criminal negligence noting that it was a wanton disregard for the safety of others.

He asked the jury to consider the evidence carefully.

JUDGE REVIEWS EVIDENCE

He noted the evidence was that the night had been rainy and that the accident occurred on a curve.

A minor accident had occurred on the highway forcing one transport driver to take to the ditch to avoid striking the cars. A second transport driver by the accused was following the first unit. The driver was unable to stop and could not go to the right because of the transport already in the ditch and swung to the left to avoid the crash.

As the transport swung to the left it collided with the car coming from the opposite direction. The judge said the transport driver's action in swinging left in the circumstances could be considered voluntary.

Mr. Justice Kelly told the jury that at this point they could bring in a verdict of not guilty.

The jury composed of ten men and two women retired to the jury room and 15 minutes later brought a verdict of acquitta'

Veterans Build Community Centre In Parkdale

There is nothing spiritless about the community spirit of Parkdale, a village outside the northwest fringes of the city.

The veterans' sub-division recently opened its own playground. However, the grass barely had time to take root on its six acres before part of it was being ripped up again to make way for the latest piece of community inspiration — a community centre.

Now half-way towards completion on the playground, the centre is being built by members and friends of the Parkdale Veterans Association under the direction of a special board set up to supervise the project.

It is hoped to have the structure completed by Spring.

When finished and in full swing the centre will accommodate from 150 people at any dance held within its 70 x 45-foot area and will present a stuccoed – cement block appearance.

Work on the construction started a month ago with volunteer labor gangs of veterans and helpers. The structure was planned and designed by the veterans themselves.

For the cement blocks the association went to War Assets and purchased the lot here from the old Frankford armouries. The blocks were hauled from the site by large gangs of workers and trucks, volunteered by members of the association.

Money for the centre was raised through raffles and dances, sponsored by the veterans. Under the Veterans Welfare Act the provincial government will meet 25 percent of the cost of the building.

Guiding the construction is a specially – formed community centre board made up of several members of the association and Thurlow county president of the board is Robert Hopwood Jones.

There are about 80 veterans' homes in Parkdale.

Safe-Crackers Rob Two Stores, Get $220, Carry One Safe Away

TRENTON. (Special.) — Safe-crackers made off with about $220 in cash from two electrical appliance stores here last night.

The stores entered were Gagne and Lundy on Dundas Street East and David's Electric, immediately across the street.

The doors of the safe on the Garrett and Lundy premises were jimmied open some time before midnight and the yeggs made a clean get-away with $20 in cash. Cheques and other papers were left untouched.

About the same time David's store was entered by the safe crackers, who sawed through iron bars covering a window at the rear of the premises.

The safe, weighing about 150 lbs., was carried bodily out of the store and so far no trace of it has been found by police.

Store manager Bill Gagne said the safe contained about $200 in cash and other papers.

Mr. Gagne discovered the break-in at 8.30 a.m. when he opened the store.

The cash register also had been smashed, he reported.

DOOR FOUND OPEN

Police found that entrance had been gained to the Garrett and Lundy premises through the rear door, which the yeggs had forced. A patrolling constable found the door open about midnight and left a note for the proprietor. The constable then put the safety-catch on the front door before departing.

Mr. Charles Lundy, who opened the store, found the note and telephoned his partner asking him why he left the door open. When Mr. Garrett said he had not, Mr. Lundy then investigated and found the safe doors hanging askew.

McCarthy Says Queen's Man Was Important Red Officer

BOSTON (AP)—Senator Joseph McCarthy says he called Leon J. Kamin before his committee in the hope that he could tell "the extent of Communist infiltration of our defence plants and the danger of that infiltration."

The Wisconsin Republican senator testified in federal court here Wednesday at the contempt-of-Congress trial of Kamin, former Harvard research assistant and now a research associate at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont. Kamin, an American, also worked for a time at McGill University, Montreal, after leaving Harvard.

Kamin was accused of contempt in refusing to answer six questions dealing with communism before the Senate permanent investigations sub-committee on Jan. 25, 1954. McCarthy then was chairman of the committee.

Testifying before judge Bailey Aldrich in the trial without jury, McCarthy said:

"We had general information about the attempt of the Communist party to infiltrate the defence plants so they could be in a position to commit espionage and sabotage in case of war with Russia.

"We knew Kamin was a press organizer for the Communist party, a paid member of the party and that he had worked in radar establishments. We hoped he might talk.

"I felt the only way we could get the Senate a complete picture of Communist infiltration was to learn the extent of that infiltration.

"For that reason, we called anyone we thought might be able to help give us names and information about the Communist infiltration.

"We knew Harvard was doing considerable defence work and were curious to know whether Communists were handling United States secrets.

"I emphasize, we were not investigating Harvard. We were investigating these individuals because of the defence work Harvard was doing."

Kamin admitted before McCarthy's committee that he once was a Communist, but he refused to name others with possible Red connections.

Hundreds jammed the courthouse corridors before and during McCarthy's 88 minutes on the stand, but there was no repetition of Tuesday's spectator applause which caused judge Aldrich to declare a mistrial. At that time he dismissed the jury and began a new trial the next day without a jury, at the request of the defence.

The prosecution concluded direct examination of McCarthy when court adjourned Wednesday. The cross-examination began with the resumption of court today.

Roy M. Cohn, the sub - committee's chief counsel at the time Kamin testified in the Boston hearing, preceded McCarthy on the stand and testified:

"I told Senator McCarthy that I felt Kamin would make an important witness, that he could identify members of the party who worked with him and who might still be working in defence plants."

Cohn testified also that the committee staff had discovered that Kamin "was an important functionary in the Communist party in this area and that documents and other testimony of Kamin's importance were available."

THE CASE FOR DISARMAMENT

Early this week two statements dealing with the disarmament problem were made by well-known statesmen. Their views, as reported, differed somewhat, or perhaps it would be more correct to say that these views dealt with different aspects of the problem. They were in accord, however, in viewing progress towards disarmament as not merely desirable but necessary in the interests of a better world.

One of these statements was by Clement Attlee, the aging leader of the British Labor Party. What the world needs, he said, is a general agreement to disarm "down to the absolute minimum required for preserving law and order." Attlee's fear is that a continuance of the present arms race between the West and the Communists will lead to an atomic war. Such a war, he said, would leave no victors. The question facing the world is whether it is going to survive or be destroyed.

The other statesman who expressed his conviction that the problem of disarmament is an urgent one was Canada's Federal Minister of Health, Hon. Paul Martin, who is chief of this country's delegation to the United Nations Assembly.

His argument is more subtle, and it may well be more compelling.

Instead of voicing the fear, as Attlee did, that the present arms race will lead to a major war, Mr. Martin argued that unless some agreement on arms limitation is reached all nations will be forced to engage in vast new expenditures on research, development and defence in the guided missile field. Such a situation would impose "crippling" financial burdens on national economies. It would make impossible the increase in the standard of living that increase in goods which scientific discoveries have made possible.

In one sense, this is a familiar argument, a line of reasoning as old as that followed by Attlee in contending that arms races have a tendency to lead to war. Nevertheless, that does not mean that Mr. Martin's views are not valid. His argument is a dangerous one which made his reasoning particularly applicable today. The heavy drain of expenses on arms on the economies of modern nations has been partially offset, however, by the vast increase in man's ability to produce goods. There is, however, no guarantee that productivity will continue to increase at this rate, while the coming of the atomic age has multiplied the requirements. It would therefore appear likely, if not inevitable, that the day will come when even the most highly industrialized and prosperous nations will have to choose, not between guns and butter but between hydrogen bombs and a continuing increase in the standard of living.

If this were the end of the argument, Mr. Martin's viewpoint might not weigh more heavily than Attlee's. It is generally acknowledged, however, that poverty is one of the evils that spawn war. There is much poverty in the world today. The prosperous nations have done much to relieve it; it is, however, imperative that they do more. This they could do if they were relieved of a portion of the present high defence costs. An increase in these costs would almost certainly force them to reduce their present aid to under-developed lands. Thus, in seeking safety in arms, they might produce the war they were seeking to avoid.

None of these arguments is an adequate answer to the contention that the western nations must be strong enough to discourage any further Communist aggression and to defeat it if it is attempted. But if Russia, as well as the West, recognizes that the arms race may lead to war; if the Soviet leaders, as well as the free world statesmen, realizes the crippling burden which a continuance of the race will place on its economy, then it may be possible for all to divert dollars and rubles, pounds and francs from armaments to peace. But nothing succeeds like success, so nothing serves as well to promote peace as peace—and prosperity.

FIENDISH IDEA

It is Dagwood Bumstead, is it not, who is sometimes depicted gritting demoniacal teeth and issuing a snort from Ottawa stating that "a four-day federal-provincial conference of premiers has ended inconclusively, leaving such issues as tax-splitting matched against the possibility of a national health insurance scheme up in the air."

Premier St. Laurent is quoted as saying that he may call another conference later this year if the leaders cannot settle their differences by correspondence.

There seems little sound reason for believing that the art of letter-writing has reached such an apex that an accord can be arranged by mail before the year end. Therefore another parley would appear almost certain. There is, however, no guarantee that this parley will succeed where the one just held has failed.

What, then, can be done?

Enter the fiendish Idea, Bumstead style.

The prime minister of Canada and the premiers of the ten provinces are really a jury, deciding the fate of the country. Why not treat them like a jury? Present the evidence. Then lock them up until they agree on a verdict. No more fireside chats ending with nothing resolved. Let them be shut off from the world until they reach a decision.

And if they reach no decision? Well, what generally happens to "hung" juries? They are dismissed, are they not, and new jurymen selected.

As Dagwood would say: "I don't know where I get these fiendish ideas."

BECAUSE

This is woman's handiest word:
Because
One that men have oftenest heard:
Because.
If the facts they ask to gain,
Uninformed they'll still remain.
This she thinks will all explain:
Because.

Ask the reason, she will say:
Because
Why a bonnet new today?
Because.

Want to go to see a show?
If her answer should be yes,
Question why, she'll let you know:
Because.

There's a word I think I'll try:
Because.
When she questions, I'll reply:
Because.
Why for dinner am I late?
One short reason, and it's great,
Just, as she, I'll simply state:
Because.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When you make a lot of money and move into a fine fashionable high district, it is pretty hard to withstand the impulse to differentiate yourself from others in many mere ways than mere wealth—For men and women never seem content to be superior to their fellow men in wealth alone. They feel their wealth is an indication of their superiority in all respects, even though they made their money out of pain killer or pork packing together with a certain nimbleness of wits and sundry lucky breaks. Thus we see the familiar disaster of wealthy men and women affecting an accent that they consider to be cultivated; both men and women assuming a new interest in works of art in furniture, design, books. Who of us has not, in shopping for some curtain material, seen some lady of obvious wealth grandly expressing her thoughts upon the quality of drapes, as she calls them, and scientifically coming to loud conclusion that she will simply have to have her curtains in a color loomed for her? How often, on getting close enough to a rich man to hear his voice, is it not pontificating on subjects far removed from painkiller, or pork, such as symphony or post-objective painting?

But the worst jam you can get into is being invited to rich man's home for dinner and they serve artichokes. I have found artichokes were little insipid things like nude and nobbly potatoes. That is the Jerusalem artichoke. But there is another artichoke that is solemnly believe was invented solely for the use of rich people in confusing their poor relations. It is a sort of small pinecone thing with spiney leaves sticking out of it like the quills of a fretful porcupine. You eat the leaves. You pull off each stubby leaf, dip it in melted butter and bite off the tender end. It is usually served by itself. You sit there with each man's object on your plate, wondering which fork to use.

One of the first things rich people learn is how to eat artichokes. Then they invite the lowly to dinner, and sit back, nobody moving, while all watch the victim.

The artichoke is one of the instruments of the mystique which wealth by which the wealthy are enabled to feel their superiority. It is even better than caviar, which I feel their superiority. It is even better than caviar, which I feel their superiority. It is even better than learning how to pronounce the word Chartreuse.

Musk Oxen in Vermont

(Dan L. Thrapp in the Los Angeles Times)

The Vermont experiment to domesticate the Canadian musk ox, thus making it a farm animal, probably won't succeed. But it will be watched with a lot of interest, because, if it does work, it will be man's first domestication of a new type of animal in recorded history.

Civilized man isn't very good at utilizing wild animals. He can only condemn them as nuisances or develop a taste for them and shoot them dead.

Every continent except Australia has contributed some creatures to man's barnyard. In Australia the only nonmarsupial animal is the dingo, a yellowish, coyotesized dog. But most authorities think he was brought to the island continent by early aborigines, and then some of them ran wild.

The Bible lists most animals we think of as domestic. Their relative importance to the economy of the Holy Land in Biblical times can be judged by the frequency of mention.

* * *

Most commonly spoken of, naturally, was the sheep. Mentions of sheep and lambs occur in more than 350 verses. One of the first animals tamed by man, the sheep in turn was responsible in large measure for bringing mankind from him to a pastoral form of existence. The first domesticated in Persia thousands of years ago, rates only about 100 mentions in the Bible.

Oxen are spoken of 133 times, while asses are mentioned 125 times; more than 150, but the latter terms often include animals other than horses.

The camel, probably most often seen by Bible readers in pictures of the Holy Land, or Christmas card representations, is also listed 60 times in references. This may be because no one loves a camel.

* * *

The horse is mentioned only 50 times, and then usually disparagingly because he was a rich man's animal. Originally domesticated by the Scythians of Asia Minor or Egypt, he was used first to pull war chariots and only many centuries later did soldiers mount him—Hittites, Egyptians and Persians being beautiful animal to his full glory.

On the other hand, the lowly jackass, or donkey, gets about equal attention. Considered a nuisance and had the honor of carrying Jesus into Jerusalem.

Fowls are listed in about 100 places in the Bible, but cats are not mentioned at all.

The dog, first animal to be domesticated, so many thousands of years ago the date can only be surmised, is referred to 39 times in the Bible. Used by shepherds for protection of the Holy Land flocks, it must have been quite common there throughout post-stone age history.

* * *

Most of these animals came from Asia, Europe and Africa, with a few from Arabia, none of them unknown origin. America has contributed to the vast pool of domestic animals, turkey, llama, various ducks, geese, and ornamental birds and Indian dogs that were half of old world origin and half coyote or wolf, as is still evident in certain places.

Attempts to domesticate the bison have always failed, although the Tibetan yak is a sort of bison and some naturalists think the musk ox is, too.

Efforts have been talking for many years of making a good try at domesticating the musk ox because of its fine wool. Tested at least as far south as Kentucky.

Because these animals stand and fight instead of running from danger, as do deer, Montana cowboys and the bulls stand horn to horn in a tight ring (or a defensive circle), they fell easy prey to any hunter with a gun and have been soon wiped out in many places where they once were common.

The U. S. government has introduced to Alaska, a government herd on Nunivak island, started with 31 animals, now numbered nearly 100.

* * *

Because they are useful for wool, meat and milk, the polar explorer, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, suggested shortly after World War II that a number of them be introduced into Vermont, where they were common long before white men appeared. It is believed that a serious attempt at domestication will be made this year.

Maybe it will. Zoo authorities who bring them in from time to time on, however, say they are extraordinary prey to such diseases as pneumonia, but this may be true only under close confinement.

The Hudson Bay Co. led an expedition to the Canadian barren lands. It captured three baby musk oxen by corralling them with an airplane on to thin ice and then rescuing them as they struggled. Water. These creatures, two females and one male, have arrived in Vermont.

How to Cure Litterbugs

(Chicago Tribune)

One way of dealing with litter bugs is a system suggested by Ben Hubly, an incident related in the Farmers Weekly, published in London. A lady attended women's institute and picked up a candy wrapper as a result attendance it addressed it and it back with the polite remark that he seemed to have dropped something. "I don't want it," exclaimed the startled offender, "I'm a respectable person." was the quiet reply.

The salute a town woman for the setting a fine precedent, although we are not incautious enough to recommend indiscriminate use of litterbugs with like rebukes. We don't want to be responsible for any mayhem that might result. Perhaps a start could be made with children, especially those on the beaches where trashy landscapes are the rule despite the presence of trash containers. If the young get into the habit of using them, after being chided into doing so, it might shame their elders into accepting similar counsel throughout the city.

Stranger In the House

(Ottawa Journal)

The warmest tribute to a pioneer was the simple statement that here hospitable ways have been abandoned with the growth of cities and the increase of unreliable strangers. The Owen Sound Times has been making accounting of what complications the everopen door can cause in modern society.

An Owen Sound visitor became confused, entered the wrong house and in the dark made her way to the bedroom. There she was turned on the light did the distracted guest discover she was in the wrong house. She tip-toed out without disturbing occupants although she did not know that she had made a man mutter.

We decline the opportunity to point out the obvious advantages of locking doors at night. What we can say is that a herd of elephants trumpeting, could push about the corridors of our house and apartment without waking the gentle creak of a window shaker will be known to everyone ready to light in the last.

Personal Health Talks

Lose or Gain Weight Slowly

A Detroit reader wants me to know how happy she is that in some six months she gained ten pounds since she began following my advice. She had never weighed more than 100 pounds before. She is just five feet tall and has a small frame, and it is so wonderful to hear people say "How good you look" rather than "and she feels better than she has felt in years."

A Boston reader thanks me for helping her reduce. She has lost twenty pounds (in how many months she does not mention, but I hope it took her eight or ten months) and she intends to keep her weight down, for it is now just right for one of her height (and here again the lady gives no figure).

It is generally best to gain weight or lose weight gradually. If it is a matter of ten pounds, it should take at least six months.

A bed-time meal is advisable for any one on the pale yellow side of forty who wishes to gain weight. Whatever substantial unadulterated food one likes, and no nonsense about it. Say a pint of fresh milk, Certified, Grade A. Raw from tuberculin tested herds, any fresh milk scalded (brought to a boil and then cooled), or even Pasteurized (parboiled), with a slice of whole wheat bread and butter, with or without sugar. Such a bed-time meal will increase weight twenty pounds in a year. Eating at bedtime is natural and physiological, and digestion is better when you are asleep than when you are awake and maybe "watching" it. Also it is natural and physiological to sleep after a hearty meal—and healthful for persons under forty.

Plump ladies who are "going on a diet" almost never make good. Anyway a reducing regimen which need not start until two o'clock next week generally aggravates malnutrition, and most persons suffer from malnutrition, from excessive consumption of refined carbohydrates and of deprived of vitamins and minerals when it is refined.

Fine Record Made by Irish

(Sidney Post-Record)

The Irish, with a history filled with fighting and strife, are now claiming to be among the most law-abiding people in the world today. This claim put forth in a dispatch from Dublin, has facts and figures to support it.

Only 1,804 persons were sent to prison or reformatories in Ireland last year. This refers to the republic and does not take in the area of Ulster coming under the Northern Ireland Government at Belfast.

Of the total sentenced last year, only fourteen were sentenced to hard labor. The average daily population in the country's six penal institutions dropped to 451.

A policeman for the Department of Justice in Dublin declared: "A good record to political peace and the growth of civic spirit. Also credited is the development of the republic's 7,000-strong Civic Guard which has reduced the rate of crime detection.

Can't fail, built in 1835 to hold 200 prisoners, is about to be closed. It has seven short-term prisoners locked after the Christmas season and six guards.

The prison for long-termers in Maryborough lacks enough convicts to fill the prison farm. Limerick and Sligo jails, now used mainly for accused persons awaiting trial, may be shut down.

If this is somewhat surprising information it is surprising also to learn of the traditional concept of the fighting Irishman, and also is due to the fact we simply have not been keeping up with life in Ireland across the sea.

Laurier On Immigrants

(Chatham News)

In his recent visit to the prairie west, where he participated in the golden jubilee of the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan, Prime Minister St. Laurent paid high tribute to the feelings of unity and tolerance among their people.

"The majority of you are sons or daughters or grandchildren of immigrants from other lands," stated the Prime Minister, "yet I know that each of you thinks of himself first and foremost as a Canadian."

Fifty years ago Mr. St. Laurent's predecessor as premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, speaking at Edmonton during the inaugural of the newest province of Alberta, voiced a plea for just such unity when he said: "We are all here, one and all, gentlemen, to those newly our fellow citizens even, that the Dominion of Canada is, in one respect, like the Kingdom of Heaven, it welcomes at the eleventh hour will receive the same treatment as those who have been in the fold for a long time.

"We want to share alike then our land, our laws, our civilization. Let them be British subjects, let them be Canadians in the full sense of this country, whether it be municipal, provincial or national, let them be electors as well as citizens.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

RECOMMENDED FOR SPIRITUAL ALIMENTS

Twenty years ago as the son of a friend of mine finished his preparatory school work, the question arose as to whether it would be possible for him to go to college. His eyesight was so bad that it was believed he could not carry the academic requirements.

But he went to college and did meet those requirements with honors. Then the war broke out and he found himself on the sea, serving his country. He became an officer in the navy, and hour after hour from the bridge he peered out over a wide expanse of water, peering into the far horizon. The result was that by the time peace was declared, his eyesight was normal. He seldom finds it necessary to use glasses even during long periods of reading.

I think of nothing particularly novel about this healing experience. Doctors have often advised people with weak eyes to take voyages or go to the mountains where they could give their eyes the experience of gazing at things far away in the distance. Often here sight has been strengthened and their ailment has disappeared.

The long look cures many things. It not only cures sore, smarting eyes and poor vision, but it also lifts the mind of man and gives him breadth and comfort. The long look—or continual peering into the distance—is a therapeutic experience for spiritual ailments.

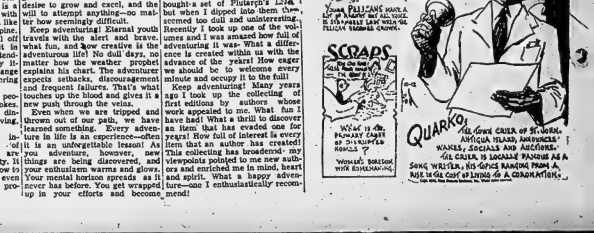
KEEP ADVENTURING

Hardly are we out of the crib before we are starting out upon the greatest of adventures—life itself! But all along the way we run into the smaller adventures that make up the sum total of life. One thing gives us initiative, ambition, the urge to venture and excel, and the will to attempt anything—no matter how seemingly difficult.



Every boy is a potential youth travels with the alert and brave, the adventuring. Every adventurous life! No dull days, no matter how the weather prophet explains his day. The adventurer expects setbacks, discouragement and temporary defeat. But what touches up the blood and gives it a new push through the veins.

Even when we are tripped and thrown out of our path, we have learned something. Every adventure in life is an experience—often it is an unforgettable lesson! As you adventure, however, new things are being discovered, and your mental horizon spreads as it never did before. You get wrapped up in your efforts and become more and more divorced from petty things which you were born selfless.

The more reading of a book can become an adventure, stimulating your mind so as to lead you into the wonderful realm of other book adventures. Many years ago I read some articles by Edgar Guest, but when I dipped into them I seemed too dull and commonplace to write. I took up one of the volumes and I was amazed how full of adventure it was. The adventurer encounters setbacks with a smile, knowing that he will win out in the end. What a thrill to discover an item that has evaded one for years! How full of interest is every item that an author has created! This collecting has broadened my viewpoints pointed to me new adventures in the realm of mind, heart and spirit. What a happy adventure! Adventure, I enthusiastically recommend.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's Church Commemorates Anniversary

WHITE'S DISTRICT — White's Church, on the Bayside Pastoral Charge, was fittingly decorated on Sunday for Thanksgiving service and also the 114th anniversary, with fruit, vegetables and baskets of flowers.

Mrs. Verna Waldron, as pianist, played quiet music as the congregation assembled, and for the choir processional. The choir rendered "Sunlight and Shadows". The Misses Audrey Bowers, Sylvia Bilham and Nancy Hockaday contributed "It Is No Secret." The Rev. A. C. McCallum, of Trenton, former pastor and now supervising minister, spoke briefly, giving the history of this fine old church, the oldest of the Bayside Pastoral Charge. Such pioneers as Captain William Meyers, William Ketcheson, George Smith, Reuben White and others carried on with the teaching and preaching of the Word of God until in 1841 the first congregation was formed. The land owned by Reuben White, was deeded to the first church in the community and was named "White's Church" in his honor.

Mr. Robert Percival chose his text from Luke 17. The ten lepers were healed by Jesus but only one, a Samaritan, returned and kneeled down to give thanks for the divine healing. Just as the nine neglected to give thanks for their miraculous healing so today too many take things for granted.

The evening service was also taken by Mr. Robert Percival, who chose his text from Mark 5. This also was a miraculous healing by Jesus when a certain woman who had been ill for 12 years was healed when she touched Jesus' garment. She knelt down before Jesus and He said to her, "Go in peace, thy faith hath made thee whole."

Today, too, we must have faith and each must give himself personally to Jesus.

The choir rendered "Angry Words O Let Them Never" and "The Voice Divine," with Mrs. Verna Waldron taking the solo part in the latter.

Friends and relatives were present from Toronto, Trenton, Belleville, Wesley, Centenary, Aiken's and surrounding district, and all felt that another anniversary could be added to the history of this fine old church.

Russia Expected to Press For UN Seat for Poland

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)— Russia was slated to add her voice today to Communist warnings that improving East-West relations will take a turn for the worse if Poland doesn't get a seat on the United Nations Security Council.

Russian delegate V. V. Kuznetsov called a press conference for this afternoon in a determined effort to push Poland's bid for the seat sought also by the American-backed Philippines.

The General Assembly will vote Friday to fill the seat on the 11-member council now held by Turkey.

Observers predicted that Kuznetsov would sound the same dark note as Poland's Julusz Katz-Suchy who told reporters Wednesday that the defeat of his country would impair the Geneva spirit and touch off resentment in eastern Europe.

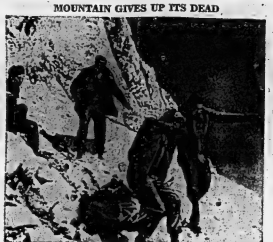
CLAIMS VIOLATION

Katz-Suchy accused the United States, by backing an Asian country, of violating the London big-power agreement of 1946 allocating one council seat to eastern Europe.

Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. chief delegate, quickly retorted that Poland had done little toward helping international peace that would qualify her for a council seat. Lodge also contended "that the so-called London agreement was a mere commitment for the first election only."

Poland says she has enough backing to get the two-thirds majority needed for election. But Philippine sources predict victory for their country on the first ballot.

Other than Russia, there has been no Soviet-bloc member on the council since the Ukraine served six years ago.



ATOMIC DEBATE

The atomic energy debate continued meanwhile in the assembly political committee, where Peru called on India and three of the big four powers Wednesday night to merge their atoms-for-peace resolutions in the hope of gaining unanimous vote.

India has entered two resolutions calling for an international atomic agency and another international atomic conference like that held in Geneva last August. Britain and the U.S. are sponsoring one resolution covering both subjects. So is Russia.

And Canada, as a leading atomic power, is assuming the mediator's role between the U.S. and India, since the Asian power is said to be dissatisfied at not being included in the board of governors of the proposed atoms - for - peace agency. Canadian delegate Paul Martin has conferred with Indian and American representatives, as well as Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

BE YOUR AGE

The Shops in the "Junior Department"—and Fools No One But Herself.

Lucky indeed is the woman whose appearance belies her years. But such miracles come from within. If she is in superb health, has always taken care of her skin and her hair, has a regal posture and dresses smartly, any woman can look ten years younger than her birth certificate indicates. But no woman can achieve this miracle if she tries to "fool the public" by wearing dresses fit for her teen-age daughter, by using too much make-up or by adopting a hairdo that's not in keeping with her age and position in life.

Because a woman has reached forty she does not, of course, have to decide that she's "old" and promptly lose all interest in clothes, cosmetics and the very latest in other beauty aids. On the contrary, she should be more aware of them than ever. But she should be aware of her limitations. The idea is not to look younger but to look lovelier. And this is eminently possible if she uses discretion.

Let's consider the matter of hair, for instance. If hair is turning gray and it is disturbing to her morale, a woman can well experiment with dyes. But "experiment" is the word. If the dye job harshens her features or conflicts with the color of her complexion, she'd better skip the whole thing. Better to let the hair gray naturally and always keep the coiffure as smart as possible. She'll look younger, feel better and, believe it or not, people won't notice the color of her tresses as much as they will if they're bleached to the color of straw or dyed to raven black.

Then there's the matter of make-up. With increasing years make-up should become more subdued. We can never forget a woman we once knew who was well on in years. She was a truly remarkable woman, highly talented, charming of manner and endowed with a figure that any twenty-year-old might envy. Her spine was beautifully straight, her posture superb and her hair was a triumph—snowy white and always beautifully coiffed. Her clothes were smart as could be and her hats were so chic that "chic lids" used to ask her where she bought them. But she spoiled the whole picture with her make-up. Inevitably when you spoke to her your eyes gravitated to the bright red circles of rouge which she insisted on applying to her aging cheeks, the snow white face powder which looked like a mask and the scarlet lipstick which looked like nothing but a gash across the lower part of her face. It was truly pathetic. You wanted to get a washcloth and soap and scrub all of the hideous make-up off and then be able to say, truly: "Now you're really beautiful!"

This doesn't mean, of course, that with increasing years, make-up should be abandoned. It shouldn't. But it should be applied subtly, with a feeling for one's individual coloring and with a sense of the artistic. The proper clothes, make-up and hair coloring for the middle-aged woman can mark her either as a beautiful, gracious woman—or as a caricature.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

BRIDE'S PARENTS SEPARATED BUT NOT DIVORCED

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother and father are separated, have been for the past two years. But they are not divorced. I live with my mother, whom I dearly love, but I see my father very often and am devoted to him also. Dad is to give me in marriage, and is to pay practically all the expenses of my wedding. The wedding reception is to be given here in my mother's home. Their separation, for which I'm truly sorry, is as friendly and courteous a basis as is possible, I'd say, and I do pray that sometime they may find they can live happily together again. However . . . my question is: under the above circumstances, which I've tried to present as clearly and concisely as possible, do you think it would be at all correct to have my wedding invitations, both for the church ceremony and for the home reception, engraved in the traditional "Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Alan Hall" form? I'd like that—and both Mother and Dad would like that, too. — Reader

I'm so happy to be able to tell you Yes, under the circumstances (your parents separated, but not divorced) it is correct, since all three wish it, to have your wedding invitations engraved in the traditional "Mr. and Mrs." form. (And how wonderful it would be if the happiness of your parents reflects on them and might bring them happiness!)

NON-CATHOLIC WANTS TO BE INFORMED ABOUT MASS CARDS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it considered right for a non-Catholic to send a Mass card? I am a non-Catholic and I've never heard of this being done. However, I would like to know, and I hesitate to ask one of my Catholic friends, in case it isn't right. And if you say it is right, how does one get a Mass card? And is there any payment to be made? — Reader

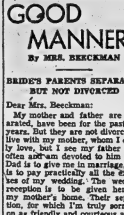
And these significant cards are very often sent by non-Catholics as well as by Catholics, to the chief mourner or to another member of a Catholic family, at the time of a death, or very often, and very thoughtfully, on the anniversary of a death. It is important to know about these cards, however, the meaning . . . the basic idea of a Mass card is that it is a statement, signed by a priest, that a Mass will be said for the repose of a soul . . . and you should never hesitate to ask any of your Catholic friends to explain and guide you about these cards. Try, by a Mass card, all you do is to ask a priest for one. And it is customary, understood by when you ask for the card, to make an offering to the church.

WHICH NEIGHBORS GOT TRIBUTEE TO MEMORIAL FLOWERS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently we had a death in our family, and we received a box of beautiful flowers with a card enclosed reading "Deepest sympathy from your neighbors." We were very much touched by this kind thought, and we want to write a note of appreciation. But since there are quite a few families, "neighbors," who may have contributed toward these flowers, just what should we do about the note or notes? W.



My suggestion is that you ask the neighbor you know best to give you the names of those who contributed, and then write each a note of appreciation. It might be dangerous to try to guess who did contribute, for you might not be able to guess the one to whom you should write notes.

MUST SAME GUESTS BE INVITED FOR POSTPONED WEDDING?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

After the wedding invitations had been sent out, I had to postpone our wedding, and sent notices to that effect. Now we will be able to set another date. Is it absolutely necessary that the same people be invited again? — Ann S.

Customarily, if possible, the same people are invited for the postponed date. However, if the reason for the postponement is something so serious that the wedding plans are for a very different type of wedding . . . for example, a very small, simple wedding when there has been a death in the family . . . then of course the number of invitations would be understandably reduced.

Fabric coats are flaunting their charms this season and many a fashion-wise woman there is who prefers a really fine fabric coat to an inferior fur coat. Straight and narrow yet easy is the line of this coat that embodies so cleverly many flattering and chic fashion points. For one the color is red, and we all know how popular that hue is. The woollen has a soft suede finish and a feature is the wide collar that rolls narrower in front. Seaming from the shoulders on either side of the back forms right angles at the waist. There is stitching on the collar and half belt in back.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

CERTAINLY INVITE HIM IF YOU WANT TO

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am 13 years old and going to have a party soon.

My problem is whether or not to invite a certain boy. He is 14 years old, and we used to like each other very much. My girl friend tells me she thinks he still likes me but is too shy to tell me so. She says she can tell by the way he looks at me.

But I know he isn't shy, and I am not a person who believes everything girl friends say. They mean well, of course, but sometimes they just tell you things to cheer you up.

Do you, or don't you, think I should invite this boy to my party?

Jerry

Dear Jerry:

It seems to me that 13 is just a little bit young to be taking any boy quite so seriously yet. And I also seems to me that a girl of 13 is a big young for the particular boy. As boys and girls get older, a difference of two years between them, with the two years on the boy's side, is just fine. But, as a rule, a 15-year-old feels a lot more than two years older where the girl is only 13. He usually considers her "a mere child." Perhaps this boy's point of view has changed about you since he learned 13.

However, since you find your present situation troubling, let me say that I can't see any reason why you shouldn't ask him to your party. I'm sure he will.

Go ahead and do it, by all means. But try not to be too disappointed if he doesn't come. As I've just said, he may be feeling right now, that he's much too old for you, which may account for the change in the way he's acted toward him.

WOULDN'T YOU RATHER HEAR HOW TO BE POPULAR?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

What are the rules of going steady?

What are the proper things to do? —B.F.

Dear B.F.: I'm afraid perhaps my ideas on the subject of "going steady" wouldn't be at all the same as those of your girl friends. For I just don't believe in a girl and boy going together exclusively, so that if either wants a date with anyone else, the other feels that they have been untrue, and the friendship would be broken up.

If you want to know how a teenager girl can be popular with everybody, however, that's another story, and I'll be glad to send you my pamphlet on "How to be Popular." I'll also send you a list of books on the subject that should give you a lot of useful ideas. Just send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope so that I can reach you directly, and I'll put them in the mail for you.

Canadian Cheese in Your Food Program

By Mary Moore

Beef—particularly in the form of steaks and roasts—has such a stranglehold on the feeding imaginations of Canadians that if you feed them the most delicious of cheese dishes for dinner they feel they have been slighted.

Small wonder so many European cooking experts are cheesed off with our unimaginative cookery efforts.

There are so many logical reasons for making cheese a main course item that this stranglehold should be easy to loosen.

Cheese is one of the purest forms of protein—that valuable foodstuff so indespensable to good health. It is easily digestible too, contrary to common belief, and easily-assimilable. Doctors tell mothers to give their babies cheese before they are a year old.

Thirteen million pounds were produced in Canada in June 1955.

Cheese has flavor—hundreds of varieties of flavor. (Did I tell you that when we were in Paris this summer we were served cheese and crackers for dessert and on the cheese board that was passed to us there were eighteen different varieties?)

Then we come to one of its dearest virtues—the cost. You can buy it for as low as 30 cents per pound—and on up.

The kind of cheese I am selling today is Canadian Cheddar, which ranks in the foreground with all top national cheeses, including French, Dutch, Italian, Scandinavian and English. World famous cheese-tasting experts say so.

As you know I have Pat. O. and her food budget in my mind these days. I hope she sees this recipe for Cheese Souffle, for it is a budget-balancer.

CHEESE SOUFFLE

(A main dish.)

This amount serves three generously, four adequately.

First you make a thick white sauce by stirring into 4 table-spoons butter or margarine, 4 tablespoons flour, and when blended 1 cup milk until thick. To this add 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon dry mustard, and shakes of pepper and cayenne. Stir into it 1 cup-well-packed, grated old or mild Cheddar cheese. Remove from heat and add to this sauce the well-beaten yolks of three eggs. Beat the three remaining egg whites with 1-4 teaspoon cream of tartar until stiff and fold them into the cheese mixture. Turn into a greased one-quart casserole (for this puffs up very high). To give it a "Top Hat" effect, made a groove, 1 inch deep, around of dish, in circle. Stand casserole in large pan containing 1 inch of hot water. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 35 minutes or at 350 deg. Fahr. for 50 to 60 minutes. Different temperatures and times are given because you may not be bas

Weddings

HUGHES—BLACK

A very picturesque wedding took place at the Sacred Heart church, Marmora, at 10 a.m., on Saturday, October 8, when the Rev. W. P. Healey, parish priest, united in holy matrimony, Veronica Therese Black, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Black, of Marmora, and James David Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Laughlin P. Hughes, also of Marmora. Giant dahlias and chrysanthemums choicely adorned the altar and sanctuary.

The Very Rev. H. J. Farrell of Perth, former priest of the parish, in his rich tenor voice, rendered three solos and Miss Genevieve Shannon combined with the organist, Mrs. Hugh Brady, for the rendition of Schwartz's "Ave Maria".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked radiant in a full-length period gown of embossed satin. The softly-draped bodice featured a sweetheart neckline, studded with rhinestones and seed pearls. The sleeves were full length and pointed at the wrist. The very full skirt formed from a pointed basque, had side panels and fell softly into a short train. Her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a crown of glassamer leaves with sequin and seed pearl trimming. She carried a crescent bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. David Crawford of Hamilton, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a waltz-length gown of burnished Chianti crystalette with matching hat, mitts and shoes.

Mrs. Clarence Shannon, sister of the bride, and Miss Joan Shannon, cousin of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids, wearing waltz-length gowns of Sherwood green and antique gold, respectively with matching hats, mittens and shoes.

Little Janice Black, niece of the bride, made a charming flower girl. She wore a floor-length crinoline frock of apple green and white net trimmed with pink rosebuds with matching hat and mittens.

The attendants and flower girl carried baskets of bronze, gold and wine 'mums.

Mr. Paul Moloney of Peterborough, discharged the duties of best man. The ushers were Mr. Ray Black, brother of the bride, and Mr. Clarence Shannon, cousin of the bridegroom.

The reception was held in the Sacred Heart Parish hall where a silver basket of Sweetheart roses adorned the bride's table. The bride's mother received in an avocado green waistella gown with matching accessories and corsage of burnt gold roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, attired in a beige lace gown...with matching hat and accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Harry Black of Toronto, brother of the bride, ably discharged the duties of toastmaster.

For the honeymoon trip to Western Ontario, and Rochester, the bride donned a two-piece ensemble of beige and autumn brown with moss green and brown accessories and corsage of bronze 'mums. Upon their return they will take up residence on North Hastings Avenue, Marmora.

SPENCER—BATEMAN

Springbrook United church was the setting for a lovely fall wedding on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, when Miss Marilyn Dawn Bateman, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harper Bateman, of Springbrook, was united in marriage to John Douglas Spencer, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, Rylstone, in a double-ring ceremony, performed by the Rev. H. E. Beare. The altar was prettily decorated with ferns and pampas plumes in pastel shades.

Miss Margaret Spencer, sister of the bridegroom, was organist and played "Romance" by Rubenstein, before the ceremony. Mrs. Ross Bradshaw of Stirling, was soloist, and sang "O Perfect Love", before the ceremony and "I'll Walk Beside You", during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a waltz-length gown of nylon net over nylon taffeta, with bracelet length sleeves and Gulpure lace medallions jewel centred. She wore a tiara shaped headdress encrusted with seed pearls and rhinestones, from which fell her fingertip length veil of silk illusion net. Her bridal bouquet was of American Beauty roses with tiny white Sweetheart. She wore nylon mittens.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. William Amm of Toronto, as matron of honor and her sister, Miss Shirley Bateman of Springbrook, and Miss Lois Cooke of Stirling, as bridesmaids. The matron of honor was gowned in turquoise taffetized faille in waltz-length with matching halo headdress. The bridesmaids were gowned alike in sky blue taffetized faille, in the same style as that worn by the matron of honor with bouffant skirts and fitted bodice with matching halo headdress. The nosegay bouquet of the matron of honor was of pink carnations and baby white 'mums entwined with pink roses. The bridesmaids carried nosegays of yellow and white baby 'mums.

The bridegroom was attended by his elder brother, Robert, of Rylstone, and the ushers were Messrs. Douglas Bateman of Toronto, brother of the bride, and Clarence Thomson, of Rylstone, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

A reception was held at Springbrook Orange Hall, where the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a gown of navy blue sheer, with feather trimmed turquoise felt hat, matching gloves and navy shoes and purse with a corsage of white baby 'mums. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a bolero type gown of Wedgwood blue brocaded nylon sheer with rosewood accessories, and corsage of pink roses. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Wesley Ray of Springbrook, attended wearing a two-piece gown of taupe crepe with black accessories.

After the bountiful wedding dinner catered to by the Women's Association of Springbrook United church, the Rev. H. E. Beare congratulated the bride and bridegroom and called on Mr. Harper Bateman and Mr. Wilfred Spencer for short speeches, which were responded to by the bridegroom and groomsmen.

Following the reception, the young couple left on an extended trip to the Maritimes and Eastern States, the bride travelling in a misty blue wool tweed suit with trapunta embroidery on the short coat. Her accessories were shell pink and she wore an orchid corsage. On their return they swill take up residence on the bridegroom's farm home at Rylstone.

Guests were present from Toronto, Napanee, Weston, Stirling, Campbellford and Kingston.

Prior to her marriage the bride was the honored guest at a shower at the Bell Telephone Company in Toronto, where she was an employee, and also at the homes of Mrs. Murray Bateman, a neighbor and Miss Lois Cooke of Stirling, a former school friend.

Kinettes Hold Hallowe'en Celebration

The Kinette Club of Belleville October meeting was held in St. Thomas' church parish house, with president Jean Smith in the chair. This was a Hallowe'en celebration with the banquet tables and hall suitably decorated and everyone in costume.

Prizes for costumes were won by Marg Bakey, most original; Jean Smith, best dressed and Helen Wilbur, comic.

The sergeant-at-arms was Eileen Martin; the song leader, Marie Osterhout and the pianist, Phyllis Fraser.

A donation of $25 was made to the campaign of Canadian National Institute for the Blind and the Kinettes voted to supply homecooking once a month to the Belleville General Hospital canteen.

A social evening will be held at the home of Helen Wilbur next Thursday.

In November, the Belleville club will be hosts to the Kinette clubs from Trenton and Tweed.

With the termination of business, the meeting was turned over to the convener of entertainment, Margaret Hallam and her committee for an hour of fun and frolic.

Teachers Shown Around Schools In Hamilton

In spite of its age—honored recurrence, children from Kindergarten to Grade 8—and perhaps their parents, wish to know "What is a Teachers' Convention?" And that is a healthy curiosity.

Possibly the best way to answer the question in these days of rapid advance, with which education is trying to keep step is, that it is a short, one-day refresher course; a chance, in this case, to see teachers and pupils at work in another group of classrooms in another city—a chance to exchange and seek new ideas, and to realize a common way of handling teaching problems. And the child and his progress and welfare is the central interest in the quest.

In view of this, on Friday last, Hamilton City staffs received the Belleville public school staffs and supervisors with the utmost cordiality and courtesy.

In the morning, groups of teachers made rounds of different class-rooms in new schools and old, to glean the worthwhile in subjects of interest. Questioning was welcomed—teachers and supervisors alike were most willing to demonstrate.

The time spent was both profitable and enjoyable. Classes in music, art, reading, and the general courses were visited by some teachers while methods of administration in intermediate, junior and primary schools were of interest to others.

The result—a holding to the best precepts of one's own experience and an enlarged view of the possibility of helping to encourage and shape the child's future into a satisfactory pattern of life for himself and toward worthwhileness in his community. Both visitors and host teachers felt that they had received greater incentive.

In the afternoon, at the administration building, Inspectors Van Loon and Rouse, who had been introduced at lunch by Belleville Superintendent L.A. Kelly, greeted the visiting staffs and gave in great detail plans on—respectively, "Suggested Marking to Determine Levels in Oral Reading" and "The Unit System of Promotion", as compared with the group system.

Mr. William Burgoyne, president of the Belleville Teachers' Association, thanked the speakers for their informative addresses.

In all that was seen or heard in the schools there was no effect of forcing a new idea because it was new—but of a levelling off in all instruction to an honest and sincere effort—and an awareness of child problems, and the part of an understanding teacher in solving them.

Order Eastern Star Sponsors Attractive Successful Bazaar

An ideal autumn afternoon with warm sunshine ushered in the first bazaar and tea of the season yesterday, held under the auspices of the Order of the Eastern Star in the Masonic Temple on Foster Avenue.

Tall, flaming sumacs and clusters of bright salvia adorned the assembly room at the western end, while at the eastern and southern were the tall flags, the Union Jack and the flag of the Order with its white ground and five-pointed star, the white, picket fence of the tearoom with its wide open, welcoming gateway and avenue of tall white standards of graceful ferns. Along the northern expanse were the various booths, each with its bands of blue, yellow, white, green and red, emblematic colors of the order, and in the southern window, a large five-pointed star bearing on its tips tiny flowers in the five colors with their mystic meanings.

RECEIVING GUESTS

In to this colorful scene the many guests were welcomed by the receptionists: Mrs. Anne Davidson, W.M., assisted by Mrs. Edna Anderson, A.G.M., of the Grand Chapter of Ontario, Bowmanville, and Mrs. Violet Hall, A.M.

The tea room was centred by the tea table with its white damask cloth, and an extraordinary combination of white, yellow and blue chrysanthemums interminglied with red carnations with touches of green, again the emblematic accord, flanking this, the tall tri-branched silver candelabra with their green and white candles, and at either end the heavy, silver tea services presided over by, Mrs. Edna Anderson, A.G.M., and Mrs. Ada McMullen, P.M., Mrs. Helen Cross, D.D.G.M., Mrs. Emily Stevens, Mrs. Irene Brown, P.M., Mrs. Thelma Liddle and Mrs. Leah Pitt.

The various booths displayed a splendid selection of merchandise including aprons in several attractive patterns and designs with pretty bands of yellow and orange and red; some with borders of green chickens, while others were banded in red and gold on dainty, rose-sprinkled backgrounds. There were dainty, half aprons and nice blue backgrounded aprons suitable for heavy duty. One very attractive apron was fashioned from green Terry towelling and displayed a voluminous pockets for the wash cloth—this was called a bath apron. Another apron with a white background and sprinkled with pink flowers was known as the 'Lucky Patch Apron'. This apron would go to the fortunate holder of the corresponding patch. Convening this unit array of suitable gifts were, Mrs. Hilda Dewberry and Mrs. Pearl Kerr, assisted by Mesdames, Susan Pigden, Emma Dowsett, Zetta McGee, Elizabeth Eggleton, Erma Clancy and Minnie Niblock.

GUMDROP TREE

The candy booth was a drawing card with its pretty gum-drop tree growing in the midst of little colored baskets of maple creams, chocolate fudge, pink creams, hand-dipped chocolates, divinity fudge, little suckers in fruit flavors, and a host of nicely packed boxes of assorted candies. In charge here were Mrs. Erma Reid and Mrs. Marion Wallbridge, with their assistants, Mesdames Bessie Bush, Betty Lough, Maude Gay, Cynthia Wright, Lelia Weddes, Rowena Carson and Jessie Warman.

A new note in bazaars was that of the 'Towel Centre' which exhibited a lovely assortment of colorful towels, attention to which was directed by a highlander pointing to a card bearing the words: "Verra, Verra Thrifty Buys". Besides the towels from terry towelling in lovely green shades with appliqued orange lilies, were pink, yellow and delph blue stripes on white; floral tea towels, dainty hackles with crocheted edges; variegated blue crocheted doily; embroidered towels, and wash cloths, fancy, linen handkerchiefs with a five-pointed star in a corner, especially made for those of the Eastern Star. Along with these attractive articles was a draw of a white, terry beach outfit, consisting of the jacket and a plastic bag containing beach slippers with plastic soles.

The homecooking booth, convened by Mrs. Dorothy Sager and Mrs. Marjorie Hatton, with their assistants, Mesdames Annie Scott, Luella Tompkins, Margaret Drummond, Gloss White, Bertha Harris, Dorcas Westover and Dorothy Milligan, was a gourmet's dream with its dainty confections: angel cakes, one with white icing jutting out in pink tipped points to be drawn for; others iced, and uniced, white layer cakes, chocolate cakes, taffy tarts, rich and luscious looking; bet-topped spice cake, jelly rolls, hermits, apple, pumpkin and plum pies, chocolate-sprinkled cup cakes, and tea buns and graham muffins.

Parliamentary Talk Given At Nurses' Alumnae

The regular meeting of the Belleville Nurses' Alumnae was held Tuesday evening in the lounge of the Ritchie Memorial Residence with Miss McGreer, the newly elected president, presiding.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Isabell Wallbridge, local barrister, spoke on "Parliamentary Procedure." Following the meeting a social hour was enjoyed.

Happy Valley Newest Town In the Labrador Wilderness

By GERALD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — An airport built during the Second World War has given birth to Newfoundland's newest town, Happy Valley, in the Labrador wilderness.

Goose Bay air base is in the heart of Labrador's Lake Melville area on the banks of the great Hamilton river.

Five miles from the airport is the town called Happy Valley, home of the civilians who stayed after building the base and others who came to work on it.

Until last summer the town was maintained by the RCAF, but in August it was turned over to the people who live there, and now it is incorporated under the wing of Newfoundland's municipal affairs department.

"NOBODY BROKE"

Ron Roberts, stocky 43-year-old chairman of the Happy Valley town council, on a visit to St. John's proudly described the place.

Happy Valley had 1,024 people at last count, he said. Everybody who wanted to do so could work on the air base, and the pay was seldom less than $1.50-an hour.

"It's a great place for a young fellow to get a start," he said. "There's nobody broke in Happy Valley."

There are two schools in Happy Valley, but only one store.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

The Hudson's Bay Company store handled everything. "We're trying to get another store," Mr. Roberts said. "If a man wanted to go into business that's the place for him. A shoe repair shop, a barber shop, anything like that would do well. There's nothing like that there now."

What's lacking in Happy Valley, however, is available at Goose Bay. Goose Bay's hospital takes care of RCAF, USAF, civilian, Eskimo and Indian cases. The Grenfell Mission has a small station at Happy Valley.

So far nobody has tried to cultivate the flat, sandy soil around Lake Melville, and all food has to be brought in to Happy Valley. The store stocks up during the fall, for ships can't sail up the Hamilton river from November to April. Air transportation skyrockets prices. A cabbage can cost $1.50, a turnip 90 cents.

Happy Valley has no running water. The only houses with electric lights have generators in the woodshed, although the town perches on the banks of the Hamilton, a river with a vast hydro power potential.

"Those things will come," says Ron Roberts.

There's plenty to do. Within a few miles is some of the best trout and salmon fishing in the world, and moose and caribou are plentiful.

Evenings "there's always something going on at the civilians club at Goose Bay. Happy Valleyites can board a regular bus for the five-mile run anytime during the day and evening, and watch late movies, dance or drink.

The latest migration to Happy Valley came from the north. Twenty-five Eskimos came to look for work on the base, and of course, brought their families with them. "We don't know what we'll do with them," says Mr. Roberts. "They're still living in tents."

SET SIMCOE DATE

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario water resources and supply committee will hold a sitting at Simcoe on Oct. 25 to study water conditions in Norfolk county, it was announced Wednesday. The committee, established during the summer, is seeking to determine where in the province water shortages exist and methods of overcoming them.

Family Has Raised Million Pheasants for Ont. Hunters

NORMANDALE, Ont. (CP)—Three generations of the Mound family have helped provide sporting thrills for Ontario pheasant hunters.

Stanley Mound, his late father, William Mound, and his brother Ted have assisted in breeding and raising nearly 1,000,000 birds on the Ontario lands and forest department's farms at this Norfolk county spot and at Codrington, since 1932.

And Stanley's family of four children is the third generation of Moundsto work on the pheasant farms.

William Mound, a Welshman, was chosen as a farm supervisor in 1935 when the department started its propagation program.

TRAINED IN CHILDHOOD

His two sons, Stanley and Ted, grew up on the farms and were handling birds at the age of 12.

Some 32,000 birds have gone out of the Normandale farms this year. They have stocked all the Lake Erie district from Niagara Falls to Windsor. Twenty-one thousand of the birds were chicks, about 500 were adult and the rest were poults a few weeks old.

Game and conservation clubs obtained the chicks for raising and release. The poults were distributed by lands and forests officers. Some of the adults were used in club conservation programs and then released.

Many hunters consider the pheasant the tastiest upland bird in Ontario since the wild turkey disappeared, and the birds raised at the department farms have provided good shooting for thousands of hunters.

In addition to the pheasants, a number of wild turkeys were released in the Rondeau Park and Turkey Point areas.

"It will be a long time yet before there is an open season on wild turkeys in Ontario," Mr. Mound said, "but it is evident that the birds for the present at least, are doing well."

Rylstone

W. I.

RYLSTONE — Last Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Fletcher Wildman was hostess to the Rylstone Women's Institute. In spite of the rain, there were 18 ladies and three children in attendance. In the absence of the president, the meeting was in charge of the 1st vice-president, Mrs. Carl Linn.

An invitation to attend the 50th anniversary of Wellman's Corners Women's Institute, was read and accepted. (This is to be on October 19). Plans were discussed about attending the Institute Area Convention in Belleville College on October 13 and 14. At this point, Mrs. Earnest Irwin, introduced Mrs. (Rev.) A.E. Toombs of "The House of Happiness," Town Line, who gave an interesting talk, on her work with retarded children. Mrs. Toombs is doing a wonderful job, with these children of all ages, and deserves a great deal of credit.

At the close of her talk, Mrs. Ellis Jones thanked her on behalf of the Institute.

A reading "The Optimistic Way" was read by Mrs. Gerald Petherick.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Robt. Reid and Mrs. Roy Fry.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN AND MILK

THIS GREAT COMBINATION AN AID TO

Health and Regularity

How two fine foods can help combat irregularity:

Taken daily, half a cup of Kellogg's All-Bran with milk gives you the natural food bulk you need. It's a safe sensible delicious food combination for fitness and regularity.

SUPPLIES THE LAXATIVE FOOD BULK OF WHOLE BRAN

A delicious dish that promotes comfortable elimination

The greatest advantage of Kellogg's All-Bran is that it corrects the cause of irregularity due to insufficient bulk.

Chemical or drug-type laxatives, on the other hand, are intended only for overnight relief of a temporary stoppage. That is why the facts about one of nature's great food combinations, All-Bran and milk, will not only interest you but may even surprise you.

For instance, did you know this about Kellogg's All-Bran? It is made from the outer layers of the whole-wheat kernel. Milled for maximum effectiveness, All-Bran not only supplies natural food bulk—but is also an excellent dietary source of niacin; which is necessary for the normal functioning of the body.

All-Bran is a wholesome, good-tasting dish. And it provides a safe, natural way to improve your "intestinal tone"—so necessary to comfortable regularity.

Many people enjoy All-Bran served with hot milk as well as cold milk. But whatever your preference, be sure to get Kellogg's—the one and only All-Bran.

Kellogg's has been making and improving All-Bran for nearly 40 years. It is the original natural laxative cereal. And Kellogg's stands squarely behind it. We'll prove to you that All-Bran and milk will give you gentle, effective relief from constipation within 10 days or double your money back. That's a promise from Kellogg's, London, Ontario.

Dean Protests Cancellation Of Sunday Concerts

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Boyd Neel dean of the Royal Conservatory of Music, says that cancellation of Sunday concerts at the University of Toronto because of objections by the Lord's Day Alliance is "antisocial, anti - Christian, anti - cultural . . . and absolutely revolting."

The dean's protests were echoed in The Varsity, the undergraduate newspaper which Wednesday devoted its whole paper to 16 pages to fire editorial criticism at Toronto's "blue laws" in general.

Joseph McCulley, warden of Hart House, announced Tuesday that a proposed series of five Sunday concerts at the university's Hart House had been cancelled after a letter of protest came from Rev. A. S. McGrath, secretary of the alliance.

Mr. McCulley said the alliance objected to the selling of membership tickets to members of the Hart House Association who wanted to attend the concerts.

Dr. Neel was to conduct the concerts.

Lake Nipissing Scene of Crash, Two Are Killed

NORTH BAY (CP) — An RCAF CF-100 jet plane crashed into Lake Nipissing five miles south of here Wednesday, killing two men on board.

Witnesses said the plane went into a tailspin and exploded as it hit the water, shooting up a stream of water and oil 150 feet into the air.

Police and RCAF searchers found parts of the wrecked aircraft and the men's uniforms. They continued to drag for the bodies.

RCAF officials did not disclose the names of the men but said their aircraft was one of six of No. 433 squadron en route from Cold Lake, Alta.

No. 433 squadron is being moved to North Bay to strengthen the base's air defences.

Walter Hutcheson, a cottager on Lake Nipissing, said he was sitting at the front window of the cottage when he saw the plane hit.

"An enormous geyser of water flew up and hung in the air long enough for me to call my wife and see it.

"Then the explosion came and seemed to shake the whole house. I thought at first was a bomb, but I couldn't figure out what they were doing bombing the lake. Then I realized it was a jet."

Walter Devulin, another witness, said he heard the plane flying and like thunder.

Campney Will Crack Down On Armed Forces

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Campney now is expected to issue a memo on public statements by members of the armed forces which he did not issue previously.

It was prepared after Air Vice-Marshal John Plant last June publicly advocated that the army be scrapped to make way for a bigger RCAF, but was not issued because of pressure of work, especially on defence estimates.

Informants Wednesday said they expect Mr. Campney may issue the memo when he returns from the current meeting of NATO defence ministers in Paris. It will be part of a crackdown on armed forces officers making public utterances on government policy.

WAS REMOVED

After Air Vice-marshal Plant's statements, made in a Toronto speech, he was removed from his position as chief of RCAF technical services and made head of the has nothing to do with tri-service air materiel command where he policy.

Last week Air Commodore Fred Carpenter, chief of air operations, was quoted in Halifax as saying "our position is to make the Russians know we can knock hell out of them" and that the Russians militarily are 20 20 years behind the West.

A garbled version of what he said was carried by Tass, Russian news agency. Soviet Deputy Premier Kaganovich showed it to External Affairs Minister Pearson in Moscow Tuesday. It quoted the air operations chief as saying that Canadian fighter squadrons in Europe were poised for an attack against Russia.

The external affairs department has received a request from Mr. Pearson for a report on exactly what Air Commodore Carpenter said in the Halifax interview.

DENIED STATEMENT

Air Commodore Carpenter denied making the statement contained in the version shown Mr. Pearson in Moscow. But one informant said he did not deny the original "knock the hell out of them" quotation. Both the defence and external affairs departments were obviously annoyed by the quotation, particularly the latter because Mr. Pearson was in the middle of his visit to Russia.

It appeared likely that Air Commodore Carpenter will be asked to explain his statement to Air Marshal Roy Slemon, chief of staff.

Vladimir Shishchenko, Tass correspondent here, said his dispatch was "based" on a CP report from Halifax but declined further comment.

Great Religious Renaissance Is Taking Place

TORONTO (CP)—Billy Graham said Wednesday "the greatest religious renaissance in 400 years" is taking place now in the Western world.

Addressing 750 members of the Kiwanis Club of Toronto, he said in the early days in the United States, which people called the "good old days," only 18 per cent of the population attended church regularly compared with 60 per cent today.

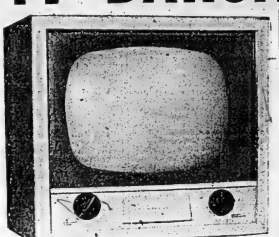
"In Scotland alone church attendance has increased 10 per cent in the last six months," he said. He conducted a religious crusade there earlier this year.

"Germany is experiencing a religious revival such as it has not seen since Luther," he added.

He gave three reasons for the religious renaissance. He said the philosophy of rationalism has failed for the intellectuals "searching for a creed to sing and a song to believe."

Secondly, modern philosophical experiments have failed. Materialism also has failed to satisfy the soul. Most people now realized economic security was not the only answer and were seeking something else.

"Man is beginning to turn again to the idea that there is a god running his business. If he isn't then we are in a mess. There is something lacking in a man's life when he feels miserable in spite of wealth, position and family. Religion can supply that lack."



This was the last club he will address during his Toronto crusade, which ends next Sunday.

Emma Elephant Annoyed by TV Phony Plants

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Emma the elephant got mad Tuesday at the phony props on a sound stage, and her peeve put her trainer and an actor in hospital with bruises.

The 40-year-old veteran of jungle movies evidently was irked because the plants she began to munch on a TV film set were made of rubber.

Emma began to shake, like a dog coming out of water. Actors Vito Scotti, 25, and Nino Marcel, 31, riding on her back, were shaken off. Emma then went for her trainer, William Gamble, 37, and pinned him against a wall.

TAKE THAT, and THAT!!

Before a new telescope-type stretcher, made of nylon and aluminum, was adopted by the Canadian Armed Forces, it got the works. They jumped on it, dropped rocks on it, tossed it out of aircraft and army lorries, frozs it in ice, buried it in mud and sand. They finally gave up — and placed the order.

Its lightness and compactness makes this rugged stretcher a natural for everything from northern air-rescue work to the needs of hospital, police, Civil Defence and other authorities . . . Another job for Canada's aluminum and the men who work wonders with it.

Fishermen Taking Annual Harvest Of Trout Eggs

THE PAS, Man. (CP) — With temperatures almost down to freezing, six hardy fishermen spent the chilly morning hours of early October on nearby Clearwater lake taking in the annual harvest of lake trout eggs.

These men, working for the Manitoba department of fisheries, handle some 10,000 trout each fall. The eggs they gather will be hatched into "small fry" trout in February and distributed to lakes all over the province.

Some of the spawn is traded to the United States' fisheries department for brook trout, rainbow and speckled trout. The brook trout spawn is seeded into Manitoba streams and lakes.

The crew under Charley Watson, a veteran fisherman, operates over gravel bars in shallow water where the fish come to spawn. They set a trap net there and string it out into deeper water to the pond net. The fish, seeking to get to shallow water, attempt to get around the trap line and are directed into the big pond net from which there is no escape.

HANDLED WITH CARE

Each morning for about 10 days the fisheries department crew moves out with a small barge. They dump the catch of the pond net into the barge and then remove the "rough fish"—whitefish, suckers and northern pike.

The trout are then "milked" for their eggs. Male sperm is added and the complicated process of fertilization is under way.

As soon as a trout is milked it is put back into the water.

The tubs of spawn are returned to the spawn camp where the eggs are placed, about an inch deep, in small metal baskets and the baskets are placed in long troughs of running lake water. For three weeks the spawn is held in the cold clear bath, until the eggs become firmer and ready for transportation.

After the eggs are hatched in the troughs the little trout are placed in lakes throughout the country.

MARMORA — Bros. J. Heath, G. Shaw, C. Neal, J. Herman, R. Varty and W. J. Cottell attended the banquet in St. John's United Church Hall, Tweed, on Monday evening, tendered by the Odd Fellows of Madoc district to Grand Master G. E. Harrison.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Linton of Barrie, visited Mr. and Mrs. Hogarth Sabine, over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Jones, of Springbrook, visited relatives here on Sunday.

Hillier

HILLIER SOUTH— The weather has been favorable; tomato picking continues and the Conley and Platt factories are running on odd days.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Way attended the wedding of their niece at Buffalo, last week.

Mrs. J. Alexander, Mrs. Best, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Mastin and Mr. and Mrs. R. Conley were among those who attended Madoc fair on Wednesday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wanamaker returned home on Friday night after visiting friends at Madoc and attending the fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Young, Toronto, spent Thanksgiving with his mother, Mrs. W. Young.

On Monday next, Hillier W. I. plays host to Wellington W.I. members at a salad demonstration.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Power and family, Miss Merle Wanamaker and Mr. W. Evans spent Thanksgiving Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. Wanamaker.

Hillier United Church will hold their anniversary services on Sunday, October 30, at 7.30 p.m.

You Can WIN $2000 This Week

Here's How to Win!

Get Free Check List at any Dominion Store.

Find the "Phantom Famous Brand" listed on the check sheet but not illustrated in this advertisement. Next, if your telephone rings between 4 and 5 o'clock next Saturday evening, DO NOT ANSWER HELLO or you will be automatically disqualified from an opportunity to win $2,000.

Instead of answering HELLO, say "DOMINION STORES" and then state the name of this week's "Phantom Famous Brand". If you do, and if the DOMINION FORTUNE HUNT calling, you will win the Grand Prize of $1,000.

$1,000 BONUS! If you win the Grand Prize and have in your home at the time a box top or label from this week's "Phantom Famous Brand" for a reasonable facsimile) PLUS a $5.00 or more, you will qualify for a bonus prize of $1,000.

$100 CONSOLATION PRIZES! If the DOMINION FORTUNE HUNT calls your telephone number and you make the mistake of answering HELLO, but can still name this week's "Phantom Famous Brand", you will qualify for a consolation prize of $100.

GRAND PRIZE MUST BE WON! If this week's Grand Prize is not won on Saturday night, it will be added to next week's Grand Prize of $1,000. This will be repeated if necessary until someone wins the accumulated Grand Prize.

Employees and agents of Dominion Stores Limited and their families are not eligible for this contest.

Mrs. Alice Cooper, 8 Forthbridge Crescent, Downsview, won the Grand Prize of $1,000 in the DOMINION "Famous Brands" FORTUNE-HUNT" last Saturday night. When her phone rang Mrs. Cooper was ready with the right answer — "Dominion Stores-Heinz Tomato Ketchup". Mrs. Cooper failed to qualify for the $1,000 Bonus Prize because she did not have a Dominion Store cash register receipt although she did have a bottle of the Phanton Famous Brand.

Personal Opinion of Comedians On TV Given by Column Writer

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Will Rogers once said that "everything is funny as long as it's happening to somebody else."

Now most of the comedians who are coming back to television this season have come back; 'everything has to be funny even though it's happening to them instead of somebody else.

George Gobel and Jackie Gleason are back. Bob Hope and Milton Berle have put in appearances. Jack Benny, Jimmy Durante, Red Skelton and Groucho Marx survive. There are new faces on the net such as Johnny Carson and Phil Silvers.

The business of judging what's funny is a pretty much personal matter between a viewer and his set. If everyone had the same sense of humor the world would be a pretty monotonous place.

WISE EXECUTION

Gobel made me laugh more on his opening show than I did at the end of last season when I was laughing pretty hard. He's wisely killed off that husband-wife routine and if he doesn't belabor his mother routine too heavily—and keeps floating lightly—he'll have me laughing all season.

Gleason, on the other hand, hasn't amused me in the openers of "The Honeymooners." I'm tired of his husband-wife bickering routine. That's his formula, of course, and he must think he's stuck with it. But I don't see why he should be.

Hope has his ups and downs, but in general he gets laughs. But since he has the writers, why doesn't he do it live instead of on film? I have a prejudice that a comedian who appears infrequently on TV is cheating when he doesn't do it live.

NOT HIS DISH

Berle strikes me as trying too hard. But Benny, as relaxed as ever, makes me relaxedly too. Durante is, in my wife's words, "a sweet little guy full of warmth," which is what much of humor should be. Skelton simply isn't my dish because nearly all his routines are hauntingly familiar.

Groucho amuses me except when I'm dyspeptic; then his insistence on topping everybody's line nettles me. Silvers, as I've said before, entertains me mightily. Carson impresses me as a witty guy and I admire his experimental approach to video.

There they are, personal opinions.

In-Between Stage Holds No Terrors for Natalie Wood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The in-between stage, that bobgoblin of all child actors, holds no terrors for Natalie Wood. She has bridged the gap with the greatest of ease.

Most of them drop out of sight. Few have been so fortunate until they have matured enough to play grown-up roles, and not many again achieve the precocity they knew as children.

But Natalie, a cute chick who started in films at 4, looks set for a brighter career than ever. She's now 17.

"I guess I was lucky," she said. "I was always skinny when I was young, so when I was 11, I could play a nine-year-old. When I was 13 I could seem 11.

"When I got to be a teen-age type I was in a TV series, 'Pride of the Family.' The show was pretty bad, but it kept me busy for a year. By the time it was over I was ready for leading roles."

Warner Brothers recognized the fact and placed her opposite the late James Dean in "Rebel Without Out a Cause." She then appeared in "The Searchers" with John Wayne. Warners has just signed her to a seven-year contract.

Natalie began her acting career in Santa Rosa, Calif., where the townspeople were enlisted to appear in a movie being made on location there. The late Irving Pichel was directing. He took a shine to four-year-old Natalie.

When she was 6, Pichel was directing "Tomorrow Is Forever" with Orson Wells and Claudette Colbert. He sent for Natalie, who visited the set of Wells' co-pleasaned ward. She won the part and scored a hit in the film.

In succeeding years Natalie played daughter to dozens of top stars.

Despite her heavy film schedule, she managed to lead a fairly normal life. After grade school she enrolled at a public junior high, returning to her regular classes after movie assignments.

Right now she is wrapped up in her career, and that's one of the reasons she dates boys in the movie business.

"Other boys get serious," she said. "I don't want to get serious yet. It's easier to go out with boys who work in the movies. We have to talk about that we

COMING HERE!

Major league baseball is coming to Belleville on October 22.

A barnstorming major league squad which includes many famous names in baseball will play a district all-star team at Exhibition Park on the date mentioned.

The visiting major league squad is headed by none other than Glen Lahine (listening' Pawee?) of the world champion Brooklyn Dodgers, while Don Hoak, third baseman of the Flatbush Faulkners will also be on hand.

Among the others are: Fitzgerald of the Washington Senator; Walter Dropo of the Chicago White Sox; Eddie Joost, of Chicago; Jim Piersall and Norm Zauchin of the Boston Red Sox; Dick Donovan of the White Sox. There will be more too.

The game is being played under the auspices of the TPT's senior "B" hockey club and was arranged through the good offices of Jack Carson, manager of the Belleville senior baseball club.

The major leaguers will use one of their own pitchers against their own club, Carson said. He added he will comb the district for the best players possible.

While many rumors were circulated around the city, the deal with the Major League All-Stars was not concluded until 8.30 last night when Mr. Carson was in telephone communication with Speed Shea, All-Stars official. Shea will play as will Chet Nichols of the Milwaukee Braves and Ted Lepsic, of the Red Sox. More later.

FIRST WORKOUT

Some 300 railbirds watched the TPT's go through their opening muscle-loosening in Memorial Arena last night. The ice was in splendid condition and some twenty aspirants shook the summer kinks and knots from joints and limbs.

Coach Danny Cox put the crew through a mild skate pester, then ordered brief scrimmages in an initial assortment of lines. The practice was brief, a typical opening night affair but grinds have been ordered each and every night, including week-ends until public skating starts.

Sammy Mulholland and Keith MacDonald caught the railbirds' eyes with flashes of mid-season speed. Tony Parisi and Bob Wilson, two of last year's Memos, worked out with the squad, although neither has been signed as yet.

Toodie Greenlaw, Bert Hill and Gus Leonard from Peterborough were on one line. Bill McMaster oozed his way around the defence. Chum Fyfe was absent due to work.

MacDonald, Davy Jones and Vern Goyer looked good for opening night, working on one line. Jackie Wardhaugh, Nobber Day and Pat Gilmour teamed on another. Rechon of the RCAF was out as was Frank Bettiol of last years Memos. Turk Barclay guarded one of the nets. Peter Jones showed flashes of his old form. Doug Murray, Jud Semark and other local faces showed up for the workout.

With the opening date scheduled for October 28 with the TPTs meeting the Whitby Dunlops, Coach Cox said he will put the crew through serious work grinds as soon as they have found their skating feet.

Condition is the main factor and as was expected some of the pucksters showed a lack of it. However, consistent two-hour practice grinds should whip them into shape and they should be fairly ready by the time the opening whistle toots.

No word has been received from Cornwall coach Frank Mario who will master-mind the All-Star squad against Kingston Goodyears on October 22nd. It is expected a front line of the TPT's will take part in the game.

GAME AND FISH

The first fall meeting of the Belleville Fish and Game Protective Association will be held in the YMCA at 8.00 p.m. on Tuesday, October 18th.

Arrangements have been completed with the Government of Nova Scotia to supply the fishes for the evening. The speaker will be Russell Whitfield, fish biologist of the Department of Lands and Forests, Tweed, Ontario. Russ will give the latest information on the various types of fish found in this area and a report of the survey requested by the association last summer. All are welcome.

Baseball Leafs Buy Players

TORONTO (CP)—Rudy Schaffer, general manager of Toronto Maple Leaf of the International Baseball League, announced Wednesday night the purchase of outfielder Eddie McGhee and pitcher Bob Lowe.

McGhee was bought from Memphis Chicks of the Southern Association. He batted .260 and drove in 44 runs in 88 games with the Chicks last season.

Lowe, a righthander, was obtained from Colorado Springs of the Western Association. He won nine and lost four last season.

WINS CESAREWITCH

NEWMARKET, Eng. (AP)—Sixteen-year-old Paul Tulk booted Curry to a three-length victory in the $14-mile Cesarewitch Handicap Wednesday—the first leg of Britain's "Autumn Double."

Tulk, who rode his first winner only four months ago, became the first apprentice to win the 117-year-old race since Len Read turned the trick on Myra Gray in 1926.

Jenny Lind, 100-8, was second and Romany Air, 100-7, third.

Clancy's Boomers Blanked 2-0 Ferguson Scores Both Goals For Beantowners' First Victory

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lorne Ferguson is off to a good start in his bid to hit the 30-goal circle in the National Hockey League again this season.

The 25-year-old left winger picked up two of them Wednesday night in leading Boston Bruins to their first win of the 1955-56 campaign—a 2-0 shutout over the hot-and-cold Toronto Maple Leafs.

Fergie started things off with a goal in the opening period and finished it with his second in the middle frame. He supplied the scoring punch and the Bruin defence provided the protection goaltender Terry Sawchuk needed to register his shutout.

ONLY A GAME

It was the only game of the night. Bruins, winless in their two earlier starts, moved into a fourth-place tie with Leafs. Each has one victory, as compared to the three by the league-opening Montreal Canadiens.

The Bruin decision also dropped the idle Detroit Red Wings, defending Stanley Cup champions, into sole possession of last place in the six-team league. The Wings lost their first game of the year.

Ferguson, a native of Palmerston, Ont., scored his 29 goals last season, poked in a rebound of a shot by defenceman Bill Quackenbush at 16:29 of the first period to give Boston a 1-0 edge. He fired a 50-footer past netminder Harry Lumley at 16:30 of the second session for his other goal. That ran his total to three goals thus far this year.

The crowd of 7,142 saw Sawchuk collect his first shutout as a Bruin, although this was a habit he developed to a fine degree during his five seasons with the Wings. Sawchuk, traded to Boston this year, handled 23 Leaf drives. Lumley stopped 11 Boston shots.

RECEIVED PENALTIES

In a pre-game ceremony, NHL president Clarence Campbell presented Sawchuk with the Vezina Trophy, awarded to the goaltender who allows the fewest goals each season. The Boston goalie last week won it last year for the third time. He let in an average of 1.94 goals a game over the 70-game schedule.

No games are scheduled until the weekend. In fact, after three more pre-season engagements, New York Rangers meet Canadiens at Montreal, the Bruins are at Toronto and the Red Wings still on the road at Chicago. On Sunday it's Canadiens at Chicago, Toronto at Detroit and New York at Boston.

Syracuse Chiefs Drop Officials

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Lamar (Skeeter) Newsome Wednesday was released as manager of Syracuse Chiefs baseball team, general manager Gene Martin announced Wednesday night.

Bessie Kenlara, who retired as an active player to become coach of the International League club last season, also was dropped, Martin said.

Several weeks ago Martin Haske announced he was stepping out as owner of the Chiefs because of heavy losses. He gave Mayor Donald R. Meade's civic baseball committee first option to purchase the franchise and a community stock drive is trying to keep the club here.

Newsome came here two years ago.

St. Mikes Meet Junior Canadiens In Cup Opener

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto St. Michael's College visits Montreal Sunday to meet the junior Canadiens in the first game of the hockey season for the Sir Wilfrid Laurier Trophy.

The trophy was originated last year for the winner of a series between junior "A" teams of the Ontario and Quebec Hockey Associations.

The junior Canadiens will play 18 Laurier Cup games. Of their nine home games, four will be played in Quebec City.

Montreal is the only Quebec team contesting for the cup this year. With the folding of the Quebec Junior Hockey League, the Canadiens are playing a series of exhibition games in this province and elsewhere and have challenged for the Laurier Trophy.

All games except those against Toronto St. Michael's are for two points each. Canadiens meet St. Mike's only twice, with each game counting for four points. In addition, some regularly - scheduled games between Ontario teams have been designated as Laurier games.

Hamilton Tigers play the Canadiens in Montreal Oct. 21 and in Quebec City St. Catherines and Pees play here Nov. 13 and at Quebec two days later.

Toronto Marlboros meet Montreal at Montreal Jan. 3 and again in Quebec Jan. 5. Kitchener-Lumcks go against the Canadiens at Quebec Jan. 19 and at Montreal Jan. 12.

Canadiens' first Ontario game is against St. Catharines Dec. 25. They play Kitchener two days later at Kitchener. Other away dates have not yet been decided.

Britain's Pirie Wins 10,000 Metres Emil Zatopek Finishes Poor Third

LONDON (CP)—Emil Zatopek, Czech distance-running star of the Communist world, ran a poor race Wednesday night as Britain's Gord Pirie and Ken Norris breezed in ahead of him in the 10,000-metre event at a track meet here.

Pirie, who ran several races in eastern Canada late in the summer, put on a blistering finish in the final 350 yards to win in 29 minutes, 19 seconds—fastest time ever recorded in England for the 10,000 metres.

Pirie's team-mate Norris finished second, 18 yards behind Pirie, while the Communist runner was 40 yards back. Norris' team-mate Santrueck. After the 5,000 metres had been covered Pirie tried to overhaul Zatopek, and for the next 2,000 the Briton calmly tried to pass.

At the 7,000 mark Pirie moved momentarily into the lead, but Zatopek forced his way back to the front. As the final lap started Zatopek was leading Pirie by a matter of feet, with Norris a similar distance away in third position.

Then Pirie launched his spurt and forged ahead to win, and Norris jumped past the Czech to take second place.

Quebec Edges Chicoutimi 3-2

CHICOUTIMI (CP) —Ludger Tremblay's two goals in the first period Wednesday night set the pace as Quebec Aces took a 3-2 victory over Chicoutimi Saguenays in a Quebec Hockey League game here.

Gene Achtymichuk provided the other Quebec goal, an unassisted marker late in the second period that proved the winner. Jacques Lacis accounted for both Chicoutimi goals.

SETS LIFTING MARK

MUNICH, Germany (AP)—Vladimir Stogov of Soviet Russia away in front in the world weightlifting championships Wednesday night by winning the bantamweight title with a world record lift of 333 kilograms (737 pounds). The 24-year-old athlete bettered by 20 kilograms the previous official world mark held by Mahmoud Namd Jou of Iran.

MONTREAL (CP)—Earl Rowe, 61-year-old member of Parliament, for Dufferin-Simcoe, drove his own entries in two races Wednesday night at Blue Bonnets harness raceway, placing in the money once.

In the seventh race, he guided his Betty Hal S. to a second-place finish behind Adeline Key for a return of $4.60 and $2.60. In the ninth race, he drove Dorothy Haddeil but finished out of the money.

Worst Defeat in Years

Kitchener Dutchies Wallop Beaches, Run Wild to Pile Up 50-0 Score

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo "Dutchmen" emphasized Wednesday night why they are in first place in the senior Ontario Rugby Football Union when they walloped Toronto Beaches 50-0.

It was the most lopsided score in senior football in Canada this season and one of the most humiliating defeats ever suffered by a Beaches team.

The only other comparable drubbing suffered by Beaches in recent years was the 41-12 defeat Sarnia Imperials handed them in 1953 in the first game of the two-game total-point ORFU final which Imperials won.

Beaches haven't won a game in nine starts this season and they won only one of 12 games last season. In 1953 they captured the ORFU title and went on to play Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Grey Cup semi-final. Bombers won 20-4.

GOOD MUDDERS

The Dutchmen extended their record to 10 points, six more than Sarnia. They played on a muddy field as if it was bone dry, throwing long and short passes and running the ends and pitching laterals at will.

Halfback Cookie Gilchrist scored two touchdowns and kicked a 33-yard field goal for 13 Kitchener points. Billy Graham took over first place in the ORFU scoring race with 61 points when he kicked seven converts and scored one touchdown. Sarnia's Gino Cappelletti was in first place with 53 points.

Enda Andy Gilmour and George Wilson and halfbacks Carl Tolzke Bobby Kuntz and Ron Potter each scored touchdowns for Kitchener.

Beachts never threatened. The deepest they got into Kitchener territory was when Bobby Lee threw a 54-yard pass to end Pat Rupert at the Kitchener 11-yard line. Dutchmen held them to a loss of a yard on three downs.

Yogi Tagged Jackie Out Says Kellert

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)— Jackie Robinson really didn't score for Brooklyn Dodgers when he stole home in the first game of the world series, Frank Kellert said Wednesday.

Kellert, part-time Brooklyn Dodger first baseman who was at bat when Robinson stole home—on the disputed play, revealed to sports editor John Crosley of The Daily Oklahoman that Yogi Berra really tagged Robinson when his slide reached the plate.

Umpire Bill Summers called Robinson safe. Kellert said he thought that was an error, but he didn't say anything at the time. Kellert, sold to Chicago Cubs Monday, and who lives here, said he had a close-up view of the play.

Berra bitterly protested Summers' decision on the play in the eighth inning. Manager Casey Stengel also came out to object.

Throws Hammer Starts Fire

LONDON (AP)—A British athlete Wednesday night threw the 16-pound hammer at White City Stadium and started a fire in an official's coat pocket.

The hammer handle just nipped the pocket of the official and set slight a box of matches.

TV No Good For Grid Scouts

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)— Football scouts don't do much by basing themselves in front of a television screen, say the fellows who make a thread of the game.

The subject of football television came up at a get-together of sports writers and Michigan State football coaches.

The writers were needling the coaches because two members of the Spartan staff were spotted watching Notre Dame play Miami on big-screen TV last Friday night in Detroit.

U.S. Big Ten rules help that scouts can only watch an opponent three times during any one season.

"I don't know why two rule against watching an opponent on TV," said coach Duffy Daugherty. "I don't think there's anything unethical about it or against the rules. Watching a game on TV is very misleading. You don't see the second-and-yard you don't see the defense. You don't see the blocking. The camera just follows the ball or tries to."

Lisc coach Lou Agase was asked whether big-screen TV was any extra help.

"The Notre Dame players just looked bigger," he said.

Wolves Nudge Owen Sound

SUDBURY (CP) — Sudbury Wolves nudged Owen Sound Mercurys 9-3 here Wednesday night in the second game of a home-and-home exhibition series. Mercurys won the first game in Owen Sound on Tuesday.

Red Leckie opened the scoring for Owen Sound at 12:13 of the first period, but two minutes later Vacker Flynn tied it.

Quinte Juniors Edge Trenton In Close Game

By ERIC MOODY

Sparked by the sensational pass-catching of Jim Phillips, Quinte Juniors squeezed out a 5-1 victory over Trenton CI in a Junior 'B' COSSA game at Quinte Wednesday.

The first half was punctuated with numerous fumbles. Quinte fumbled on their own 35 yard line and Trenton recovered. After Trenton advanced slightly Kerrish of Quinte was roughed on Cottrell's punt. This gave Trenton a 1-0 lead.

After regaining possession Quinte's John McLaurin displayed outstanding running ability. Trenton intercepted Musgrove's pass and threatened to score again, by a strong flurry of offensive plays. The visitors lost the edge on offensive and defensive playing and held the lead with a 1-0 score.

In the secon" half George Musgrove directed his team on a drawn-field sphere and climaxed it with a beautiful pass to "Flipper" Phillips who went over for the major.

Trenton were held tightly and could not advance. Musgrove again passed to Phillips on Trenton's 10-yard line. McLaurin swept around the end and was stopped 3 yards from the goal line. The Trenton squad tightened their defence and drove Quinte back to their 15 yd. line. The third down punt by Trenton gave Quinte possession on the visitors 45. A pass play from Musgrove to Phillips put Quinte in scoring position on the 10 yard line.

Eric Beeby, a star end for Quinte, after displaying outstanding playing ability, was removed from the game with an injured leg.

Lineups:

Trenton: Scott, Lawrence, Hutchison, Cottrell, Wright, Waldron, Foreman, Gervais, McKay, Almay, McDonald, Baumann, Bury, Walling, Cascoyne, Drake, Jones, Rogers, Dowden, Yardy, Holmes, Heath.

Quinte: Green, Phillips, G. Musgrove, Kemp, Beeby, Clarke, Pearce, Kelcher, Ritchie, Jamieson, Cox, McLaughlin, Gerow, McGurn, B. Musgrove, Dickey, Masters, Goodman, Kerruish, McLaurin, Aquino, Locke, Ladoucier.

Albert Seniors Defeat Picton By 11-6 Score

In a hard fought, well played game at the Picton Fair Grounds, Albert College senior football team defeated the homesters and chalked up their third victory of the season by a score of 11 to 6.

The first quarter was all Picton, with the ball seldom out of the Albert end of the field—after a series of plunges and end runs, Lindsay 'ace' Kennedy for Picton, and Claxton converted, to make the score at the end of quarter 6 to 0. Albert fought back during the second quarter, but Picton still had most of the play until the last few minutes of the half. Brewer got some good runs through the line for Albert, and some McCuaig to Gow, and McCuaig to Taugher passes clicked. On the last play of the half, Taugher caught one over the line for an Albert T.D., this was converted by Rupert to tie up the game.

The second half saw a see-saw battle in which neither team was able to make any substantial gains — near the end of the third quarter Albert worked the ball down to the Picton 30 yard line, Brewer booted, and Picton got the ball behind their goal line and attempted pass out maned by Rupert for an Albert T.D. which was not converted. Score — Albert College 11, Picton C.I. 6.

In the last quarter Picton threatened on some nice pass plays, but Albert managed to hold them off the score sheet until the final whistle.

Albert College entertains Queen Elizabeth C.I. of Kingston in an exhibition game on the Albert field on Friday at 3.15 p.m.

WORKING AGREEMENT

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles announced today they will have a working agreement next season with Vancouver, which will replace Oakland, Calif., in the Pacific Coast League.

It will be Orioles' first agreement with a top-grade minor league team.

Grid Umpire Claims Call Was 'Routine'

MONTREAL (CP)—Harold Platt, umpire of last Saturday's football game between McGill and University of Western Ontario, said the decision that cost Western the winning convert was "a routine call."

Platt called holding on the Western team, saying two visiting players had locked legs to prevent a McGill man from rushing the kicker. The penalty came in the last quarter and the game ended in a 8-8 tie.

Referee-in-chief Hec Creighton and George Hartwell, chairman of the Intercollegiate Union rules committee, said Tuesday night that Platt based his decision on a rule no longer in the books.

But Platt said "we call it that way all the time."

Admittedly, the actual words of locking legs are not in the rule book. But the book does not say that holding hands or extending arms is illegal and locking legs is probably a worse offence," he said. "In this case, as well as in many other cases, an official has to use his own judgment."

Turnstiles Played Merry Tune In Major Leagues

CHICAGO (AP)—Six clubs, the most in American League history, drew more than 1,000,000 fans as the circuit's great pennant race boosted total attendance to nearly 9,000,000 for the 1955 baseball season.

The official turnstile report of league president Will Harridge Wednesday showed that New York, Kansas City, Cleveland, Boston, Detroit and Chicago lured more than 1,000,000 customers with the flag-winning Yankees topping the list with 1,490,138, or 14,967 more than in 1954.

The league, drawing 8,942,971, showed a net increase of 12.9 per cent over 1954, or a jump of 1,030,607. The record if 11,150,999 was set in 1946.

Biggest increase was produced by the new Kansas City Athletics whose home attendance of 1,393,054 represented a whopping boost of 1,- 688,388 over the old Philadelphia Athletics of 1954.

No Sunday Sport For Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—City council voted 8 to 7 Wednesday night against submitting a plebiscite on Sunday sport to Vancouver voters in the December civic elections.

Earlier, city clerk Ron Thompson read a total of more than 2,000 letters, 1,706 opposed a plebiscite. Fifteen organizations wanted a plebiscite and 14 did not. Five groups favored Sunday sport and six opposed it.

Ti-Cats Protest Argo Game Say Referee Shouldice Erred

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats said Wednesday night they have protested Monday's Big Four football game in Toronto which they lost 16-15 to Argonauts.

Ti-Cat president Jake Gaudaur said the club has asked Big Four president Ralph Cooper to strike the game from the record because of a ruling by referee Hap Shouldice of Ottawa. Gaudaur said Shouldice erred in applying a penalty called against Argonauts for roughing Hamilton kicker Cam Fraser.

He said Shouldice imposed the penalty from the point where the ball was called dead after Argos received Fraser's kick. The rule book calls for a 15-yard penalty from the point of last scrimmage.

Gaudaur said that Shouldice told Hamilton captain Eddie Bevan that he (Shouldice) had the option of determining where the penalty should be taken. He placed the ball 15 yards from where it was declared dead and gave it to Argos as first down.

FORMAL CONTENTION

Gaudaur said Hamilton should have retained possession on their own 35-yard line, 15 yards from the line of scrimmage.

Meanwhile, Seymour Wilson, referee-in-chief of the Big Four, who acted as an umpire in Monday's game, said in Toronto Wednesday that umpire Charlie Prince resigned from the Big Four officiating staff after working in Saturday's game between Argos and Tiger-Cats in Hamilton.

He said Prince's resignation had nothing to do with his refusal to view films of Saturday's game with other officials and members of the Argonaut executive.

There was no intimidation. Prince resigned 12 hours before the films were shown," said Wilson.

Barons Defeat Springfield 8-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cleveland Barons moved into first place in the American Hockey League Wednesday night by defeating Springfield Indians 8-2. In other games, Buffalo Bisons and Providence Reds battled to a 3-3 overtime draw.

Cleveland, which scored three goals within three minutes in the second period, now has four points while Providence and Buffalo are deadlocked for second with three.

Jackie Gordon, Joe Lund and Gerry Prince scored two goals apiece for Cleveland while Jack Stewart added the other.

Providence rallied after Bisons went ahead 2-1 in the opening period as Ken Wharram, Al Dewsbury and Lou Jankowski combined for all the Bison scoring. Ken Davies drove home the tying goal for Providence in the second period.

Pierce Wins American League Earned Run Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Southpaw Billy Pierce of Chicago White Sox won the American League earned run title in 1955 with a brilliant 1.97 average—the lowest in the major since Detroit southpaw Hal Newhouser posted a 1.94 in 1946.

Figures compiled by The Associated Press also show that Bob Friend of Pittsburgh Pirates topped the National League in the earned run ratings. In carving out a 2.84 average, Friend became the first pitcher on a last-place club ever to capture E.R.A. laurels. These statistics were published first in 1912.

The 28-year-old Pierce, in his eighth big league season, allowed only 45 earned runs in 206 innings. He won 15 games and lost 10. Six shutouts were included among his 16 complete games.

'Tiger' Jones Verdicts Andrews

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Ralph (Tiger) Jones, seventh ranking middleweight contender, gave courageous Al Andrews a decisive beating Wednesday night in a bruising 10-round fight.

Cut over both eyes and bleeding heavily from the nose, Andrews had to hang on frantically in the final round to escape a knockout by the hard-pressing Jones.

Jones weighed 160¾, Andrews, fighting out of Superior, Wis., scaled 161¾.

Dr. Bell advised that Mr. Drew must rest "a couple of days" if he is to be well enough to attend the party's anniversary dinner Saturday, marking the start of the second century of the Conservative party's participation in Canadian politics.

B. Macfadden, Rugged Living Exponent, Dies

JERSEE YCITY, N.J. (AP)—Bernarr Macfadden, colorful exponent of rugged living who regarded old age as "just a bad habit," died Wednesday night at 87.

The one-time millionaire publisher, beset with money-demand troubles from two of his three wives, died at the Jersey City medical centre following an attack of jaundice. His physician said the attack, which brought him to the hospital last Friday, had been aggravated by a three-day fast.

From a sickly child, Macfadden built himself into a hardy physical specimen and amassed a fortune estimated at one time at $30,000,000. But in court disputes with his second and third wives he listed his income at $8,400 a year after taxes.

WAS ONCE PUBLISHER

Macfadden once was publisher of such magazines as Physical Culture, Liberty and True Story, and his former newspaper holdings included the New York Evening Graphic, the Detroit Daily, the Philadelphia News and the New Haven Times.

In addition, he was the owner of health farms, health hotels, sanatoriums and a military school.

During his vigorous lifetime Macfadden was wed three times and had a total of nine children. A son was with him when he died.

Old age held no peril for the lusty health enthusiast, who observed his 83rd birthday by parachuting 2,500 feet into the Hudson river.

PILOTED PLANE IN '98

While in his early 80s Macfadden still piloted his own plane and enjoyed fast games of tennis. He spurned medicines, whisky, tobacco and white bread, and avoided doctors.

It was his regular habit to go without food one day a week, frequently fasting as long as two weeks by drinking a lot of water during these periods.

"Three meals a day, regardless of need or appetite," was the great American sin, according to Macfadden. He believed in long barefoot hikes, sleeping on the floor and going nude as much as possible.

A native of Missouri, he launched his career by teaching physical culture at the age of 18. He started publishing a health booklet on a regular basis, which grew into Physical Culture magazine.

DIVORCED TWICE

His first and second marriages, to Marguerite Kelly and Mary Williamson, ended in divorce. He was estranged from his third and last wife, Mrs. Jonnie Lee.

When he divorced his second wife after 16 years, Macfadden accused her of "humiliating" him by failing to keep her "body beautiful, firm and healthy."

He wed Mrs. Lee in 1948 at the age of 79. She was 42 at the time.

AND STILL THEY GROW

COOPERSVILLE, Mich. (AP)—The Maycroft twins, believed the biggest in Michigan history when they were born six months ago, were just getting started then. Jeffrey, who tipped the scales at 10 pounds, 5¾ ounces at birth, weighed in Wednesday at 21½. Ferrell Maycroft, 22, is five-feet-five. Dan, a solid 10 pounds, two and 120.

Rundown: Always Tired; Back, Limbs Sore, Painful

Also Suffered from Indigestion, Poor Appetite, Could Not Sleep Well. Tells of Good Results He Got By Taking Syntona.

"I was badly rundown, always tired and tortured by aches and pains, but a few bottles of Syntona have me feeling like a different person," said Mr. Ernest L. Cook, 146 Cornwall Street, Chatham, Ontario, in a recent report.

"This condition had hung on for quite a long time. There were bad pains in all my limbs, back, joints and muscles. I couldn't sleep well, had no appetite and what little food I did take gave me indigestion, gas and heartburn.

"It was through a friend that I heard about Syntona. I was going home and told it to Sydney him, as I took some of it. It was not long before I noticed a difference. Backache and other aches and pains are relieved; I eat better; am getting more sound restful sleep and do not feel all dragged out as I did before. Also my food digests without causing all that gas and distress afterwards.

Whether you are 18 or 80 you can at times begin to feel rundown, tired and suffer from aches and pains just as Mr. Cook describes. Then, it's time for Syntona. This medicine has helped thousands in similar circumstances and the chances are it will do the same for you, and soon have you feeling like yourself again.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

Britons Convinced Princess Has Said 'Yes' To Townsend

Airman Says He Is Happy After Visiting Margaret

BULLETIN

LONDON (Reuters) — Princess Margaret and Group Captain Peter Townsend, both slipped out of their London homes today for secret destinations.

They may be keeping a weekend tryst at Windsor, the royal country home 20 miles from London.

Townsend, with the help of police who halted pursuing newspaper men, drove out of London in the afternoon, refusing to say where he was going.

Then, at 5:20 p.m., Princess Margaret and Queen Mother Elizabeth quietly left by a side door of Clarence House, their city home and drove away.

DISPERSE CROWDS

Earlier, there had been speculation on the possibility of Townsend spending the weekend at the Royal Family's country home, but later reports said he had gone to stay at the home of Margaret's cousin, Mrs. John Wills, near Windsor.

Townsend refused to say where he was going.

By ROBERT RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)— Group Captain Peter Townsend, escorted by four policemen through a crowd of several hundred people, this afternoon drove off alone for a weekend in the country.

"Not yet," was his reply when he was asked whether he had a comment on his reported romance with Princess Margaret, whom he visited Thursday night.

"I am going away for the weekend," he told reporters. "But I cannot say where I am going."

One report said Townsend planned to spend the weekend with his mother at her cottage in Somerset, about 160 miles from London. However, a later report said he had gone to the home of Margaret's cousin, Mrs. John Wills. The house is near the royal lodge at Windsor where Margaret and the Queen Mother often spend their weekends.

About 200 newspaper men and photographers, in addition to several hundred curious, were waiting when the 41-year-old Townsend emerged from the home of the Margaret cousin's mother-in-law where he has been staying since he arrived in London Wednesday on vacation from his Brussels air attache post.

A MARRIED MAN

Townsend is due back in London Monday afternoon.

He received a help of four bobbies to battle through the crowds to his small French car. Then he was able to drive off with a brief toot at a time as people ran alongside the car asking questions.

Finally he made his way through the crowd and drove away. The police had purposed by a pack of reporters' autos but he made a clean getaway.

Townsend has been a married man since he came to London on leave. His visit Thursday night to Clarence House stirred feverish speculation that a romance was coming in the suspense over Princess Margaret's intentions to marry Townsend, a war hero who has known her since she was 13.

Today's development appeared to strengthen the belief that an announcement of the couple's engagement — perhaps next week—about Margaret's intentions, Prime Minister Anthony Eden's cabinet met Monday, a cabinet meeting will probably be held Tuesday and the may well see the Queen Wednesday or Thursday, though there is no official confirmation.

ONE OBSTACLE

The main obstacle to marriage is the Royal Marriages Act of 1772 initiated by King George III who disapproved of his brothers' marriages.

As far as is known, Commonwealth governments have not been approached. Recently a Canadian official said privately it appeared unlikely there would be any objection.

Dead silence continued in official quarters, and no reliable information professed to know what went on at the meeting Tuesday night between the Queen's lovely 25-year-old sister and the handsome commoner hero of the Battle of Britain.

For all anybody outside the inner circle could tell the cat was certainly the princess may have said "Yes," "No," or "Let's just be friends."

SOVIET BLOC SWITCHES VOTES TO YUGOSLAVIA

Philippines vs. Poland Vote Brings Deadlock

By MAX HABBELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)— The Soviet bloc today dropped Poland as a candidate for a UN Security Council seat and switched its support to Yugoslavia after the General Assembly ran into an East-West deadlock in initial balloting.

The other leading candidate was the Philippines, backed by the United States. As the assembly adjourned for the night until next week, the Philippines appeared to be waging a losing fight.

On today's first ballot the vote was 29 for the Philippines and 28 for Yugoslavia. This was the lowest vote received by the Philippines during any of the day's six ballots and was nine votes short of the required two-thirds majority of the voting.

Yugoslavia was advanced by the Soviet bloc as a compromise candidate after indecisive ballotings.

HAD COME CLOSE

Yugoslavia, while a Communist country, is regarded much more favorably by the West than countries as members of the Soviet bloc, such as Poland.

It had ended in the voting, the U. S.-backed Philippine delegation was only one vote short of the two-thirds majority, but the assembly recessed after four indecisive ballots and two hours of consultations.

The Russians had pitched their red-hot campaign for Poland on the theme that defeat of the Soviet candidate would endanger the spirit of Geneva. The United States, on the other hand, had contended Poland was not qualified.

The two competitors — Australia and Cuba—were elected on the first ballot. They were won hold by Peru and New Zealand. But, after the seat originally held by Eastern European nation, Poland and the Philippines fell short.

Elsewhere in the UN, the social committee Thursday handed Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold a sharp rebuff when it accepted his suggestion that it turn the thorny question of self-determination for subject peoples over to a committee instead. The vote was 49 to 18, with three abstentions, to accept Hammarskjold's plan and relegate drafts with the self-determ.

During the debate delegates accused Hammarskjold of interfering in say question being debated by a committee, and warned him of exceeding his authority by making his suggestion.

In the political committee Czechoslovakia said she favored the principle of the establishment of an international atoms-for-peace agency, provided it is kept open to all countries including East Germany and Red China.

Evangelist Will Tour Far East

TORONTO (CP) — Evangelist Billy Graham said Thursday night he will tour the Far East with his Crusade for Christ early next year.

The 37-year-old evangelist, concluding a three-week crusade in Toronto, also said he will return the U.S. in mid-January and spend three months in India, Korea Japan and Hong Kong.

Two Small Starving Brothers Die At New Orleans After Eating Trash

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Two small starving brothers, who each dreamed of some day growing up to be heavyweight champion of the world, died Thursday after days of begging scraps of food from door to door and eating out of neighborhood trash cans.

Six-year-old William Baughman died with a pies for food on his lips. "Please, may I have a ham sandwich?" he murmured to hospital attendants.

Seven-year-old Lawrence, who died 12 hours later, never regained consciousness after police removed him, frail and convulsed, from the shapey, one-room apartment where the Baughmans lived with their seven children.

The five others, girls ranging in age from 1 to 9, were placed in foster homes.

Police jailed William Baughman, man, and his 38 - year - old wife, booking them with criminal neglect pending formal charges.

Laboratory tests and toxological examinations were scheduled after the autopsies, the oldest girl, told police the brothers had been eating out of an empty garbage can behind under the wooden tenement. Doctors believe it was contaminated.

Neighbors told police the squalid Thursday when neighbors complained of the stench. Lawrence was begging at all hours of the day and night and had been drinking wine from discarded bottles. One woman said she couldn't sleep because of the cries of the hungry children.

The father said he left his last job two weeks ago to seek admission to a veterans' hospital. Since then the family had lived on $7 a month of the city relief provided by nuns at a nearby convent.

Believed Five Burned to Death In Home Near Sturgeon Falls

STURGEON FALLS (CP) — The bodies of two children and an adult were found today in the smoking ruins of a two-room shack three miles northeast of here.

Ontario Provincial Police said they believe two other persons also died in the early morning fire.

They said the bodies were badly burned to be identified immediately.

The small shack was occupied by Percy Olmstead, 37, his wife Simonne, 27, and their sons, Leonard, 8, Ronald, 5 and Gerald, 3.

The glare from the fire was seen by constable Chester Moore of the Sturgeon Falls police. He called the provincial police who arrived at the scene to find a pile of smoking rubble.

They said it was several hours before the rubble cooled down enough to permit a search.

A neighbor of the Olmsteads, Garnet Martin, told police he had not seen the family since Thursday night. Police believe the flames raced through the shack before the sleeping family could rouse themselves.

Police said they believe one of the parents tried to reach the window but was knocked out by the smoke." They added:

"The others must have died in their sleep."

The Olmsteads moved into the district a few years ago. He was employed as a woodcutter and at odd jobs in Sturgeon Falls.

Olmsted's father lives at nearby Crystal Falls. A number of sisters and brothers are believed to live at North Bay.

'Not Going to Attack Anyone' Khrushchev Assures Pearson

By C. R. BLACKBURN

KARACHI (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson said Thursday night after his arrival in Pakistan's capital city that Soviet Communist party secretary Nikita Khrushchev told him the Russians weren't going to attack anyone and forecast world problems would be "worked out somehow."

Mr. Pearson flew into Karachi Thursday after a week-long visit to Russia. He left today for Colombo, and will travel on to Singapore for a conference on the Colombo plan for aid to under-developed countries.

After the Singapore conference he is expected to go to Paris for on Oct. 25 meeting of NATO foreign ministers.

Summing up what he called a useful as well as a most interesting visit to Russia, Pearson said he hoped the Soviet Union has become a little more convinced that neither the United Nations nor the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is or ever will be war-mongering but that the West is concerned only with peace and security as are the Soviet leaders.

Pearson said Khrushchev, whom he met with Premier Bulganin in the Crimea Tuesday, repeatedly stressed: "We aren't ever going to attack anyone; we'll work things out somehow."

Pearson added that the talks were bluntly frank by both sides, but were friendly, and he believed Khrushchev sincerely spoke his mind.

The Crimea talks, held at Khrushchev's summer home near Yalta, were said to have been "most cordial" with dinner lasting after midnight. Khrushchev is reported to have shown great confidence in the future existence of NATO but Pearson gave assurances that NATO was purely defensive. He said the best way to get rid of it was to make world conditions such that no peace-keeping organizations are necessary.

Of the whole visit Pearson said: "The impression is one of massive collective strength, energy and wealth along with individual deprivations, but the deprivations are decreasing especially in the past few years.

"The Russians in charge are a strong and able group who profess no other desire than to be left in peace to build up their country and solve their domestic problems, of which they admit they have many."

$1,000,000 LOSS AS FIRE BURNS WARFARE SCHOOL

Halifax Naval Building Was Nearly Completed

HALIFAX (CP)—Naval officials said today it will be two days before an accurate estimate of the damage done in Thursday night's fire, which ripped through the new $1,000,000 Maritime warfare school, can be given.

One official said a "rough guess" would be about $1,000,000. The walls of the four-storey brick and concrete building are still there but the roof collapsed with a crash at the height of the blaze.

The school was being constructed by Kenney Construction Co., Ltd., of Halifax, and had not been turned over to the navy. It is located in the heart of the navy's Stadacona training base, at the Halifax entrance to the Angus L. Macdonald bridge.

Flames and smoke blanketed most of Halifax during the night as the fire was helped along by moderate winds.

ANYMORE PLANNING

The Maritime warfare school is used for joint planning and training in sub-submarine warfare by the navy and the RCAF and work carried on within its walls is classified.

Nearly 100 naval and civilian fire fighters from the city helped to bring the blaze under control. One fireman was injured and several volunteers were overcome by the dense billowing smoke but were revived by the use of portable oxygen units.

Cause of the blaze is not known.

Firemen reported it appeared to have started somewhere in the basement of the building. They battled until midnight to control the elusive flames which burned within the walls and sped to all four floors through the ventilating shafts.

Lt.-Cmdr. J. W. Harber, who directed the fire fighting operations, said "the blaze was well under way when the alarm was turned in. When we reached the scene flames were shooting through the roof."

Jodoin Stresses Membership Drive For New Congress

TORONTO (CP)—The formation of a new Canadian labor union to be held has been set out as the most important job facing the new congress that will begin its life with a membership of 1,000,000.

The union movement not now in unions was stressed Thursday by Claude Jodoin, who will head the new Canadian Labor Congress when merger of Canada's two big labor bodies is consummated next April.

The Trades and Labor Congress president told the annual and final convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor that alliance of the two congresses is a permanent thing.

He hit at suggestions from some employers that unions be broken through the TLC-CCL wedding, is to try to get enough power to control the country.

"We don't want to control," he said. "We want to be the most extensive social security—we want jobs—for all Canadians."

FIRE IN FOUNTAIN

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Firemen were called to extinguish a fire in a water fountain Wednesday. An electric motor in the fountain had developed a short.

Eastern Ontario In Path of Cyclonic Type

Eastern U.S. Already Hit By High Winds, Heavy Rain

TORONTO (CP) — Weather officials here said today eastern Ontario is lying in the present path of a cyclonic storm which has developed out of the coast of New York and may feel its effects this evening.

The weather office at nearby Malton forecast heavy rain with winds of up to 25 miles an hour. They said the storm is known as an "extra-tropical cyclone," and is capable of attaining hurricane force. A great deal of rain fell in Toronto and area was struck by hurricane Hazel, which roared up through the United States, killing 80 persons here and causing extensive flooding.

Malton forecasters said the storm is not expected to be strong enough to cause much damage in Ontario, although it will bring high tides and danger of flooding in New York.

NEW YORK (CAP) — A frisky autumn storm — not a hurricane but trying to act like one — thrust northward along the U.S. east coast today to almost exactly the same path taken by disastrous hurricane Hazel a year ago.

The storm carried winds of 30 to 40 miles an hour as it battered Cape Hatteras, N.C., at dawn. The intensity was expected to reach 50 to 55 miles later.

In addition, its leaden clouds were bursting with rain.

The weather bureau said some areas might get as much as five inches. With the ground already soaked at numerous points in the northeast by recent downpours, extra heavy rainfall could bring serious flood hazards.

Abnormally high tides were forecast all along the coast.

By early today, with the storm centre still hours away, Washington, D.C., already had been deluged by more than 4½ inches of rain. More than 100 persons had to be evacuated by boat from flooded homes in nearby localities.

And as far northward as Elmira, N.Y., motorists were repaved over their banks and roads closed. The downpour there was measured at 2½ inches as of mid-morning.

The Washington weather bureau said its storm centre was moving inland tonight after reaching Pennsylvania. Rain was falling over the countryside about 150 miles west of New York City and across Lake Ontario in Canada.

Thus it would follow practically the same course taken by the hurricane Hazel of last Oct. 15, which swept up from Haiti and on to Ontario.

Hazel took 177 lives — 80 in the opposition to a companion proposal to export American gas to Canada to Niagara Falls, N.Y., to develop markets in eastern Canada pending the completion of the line from the Alberta gas fields to Toronto.

Uniting their forces at a meeting Thursday were the Ontario Coal Association, American Coal Sales Association, the Institute of Solid Fuel, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Fuels Research Council, Inc., which represents the coal industry and the railroads.

They declared they will fight proposals by the Tennessee Gas Transmission Company, a newly - formed affiliate, Midwestern Gas Transmission Company and import Canadian gas at Emerson, Man., for use in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois. Which ought to export U.S. gas at Niagara Falls.

The transmission companies filed their proposals Monday with the U.S. Federal Power Commission which regulates gas and transmissions.

Charles Pickett, executive vice-president of the National Coal Association and a spokesman for the opposition groups, in a statement described the proposal to furnish U.S. gas to Canada as being as temporary basis as "merely another attempt to have American industries outside the building of the all-Canadian natural gas pipeline."

Pickett said the supply of fuels for Canadians to make themselves secure in wartime commitments against U.S. natural gas reserves in the face of the cold, stark facts of insufficient supply for our own future long-term use."

PLAN STRIKE ACTION ?

BRUSSELS (AP)—Socialist controlled Belgian trade unions say they will strike next month for introduction of a 45-hour, five-day working week for 1,000,000 steel workers and civil servants.

U.S. Labor Groups Fight Plan To Import Gas

By GEORGE KITCHEN

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States national industrial coal and labor groups joined forces Thursday to fight a plan to import Canadian natural gas through the proposed trans-Canada pipeline for distribution in four, mid-western states.

The groups also declared their opposition to a companion proposal to export American gas to Canada to Niagara Falls, N.Y., to develop markets in eastern Canada pending the completion of the line from the Alberta gas fields to Toronto.

Uniting their forces at a meeting Thursday were the National Coal Association, American Coal Sales Association, the Institute of Solid Fuel, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Fuels Research Council, Inc., which represents the coal industry and the railroads.

'I Feel Good All Over' Says Girl After 755-Mile Ride on Horseback

WINNIPEG (CP) — The words were surprising,' coming from someone who had travelled 755 miles on horseback.

"I feel good," said Eva Roux. "All over!"

The 21-year-old Manitoba girl took time out to talk Thursday after completing the last leg of an 800-mile horseback ride that began in Chinook, Alta.

Eva and her eight-year-old pinto, Peanuts, will start out from nearby Marquette Monday on a two- or three-day trip that will bring them to Eva's home in Lundar, Man., 70 miles north of here.

In Winnipeg for a few days before she returns to Peanuts, Eva said she doesn't know exactly why she made the journey except that she had wanted to do it ever since I was a little girl.

It took her more than 2½ months to make it to Marquette and she's proud of the fact she can still sit straight.

She went to Chinook by train last March and worked for four months as a farm cook. In July she decided it was time to go home and she wanted to do it in the way of the Wild West.

"It was always my dream," she said.

So she bought Peanuts and set out. She slept in farm houses on the way and had to make two ferry crossings.

Stouffville Man Best Plowman In Canada

BLYTHESWOOD, Ont. (CP)—A young Stouffville, Ont., farmer won crowned best plowman in Canada Thursday at the international plowing match near this Western Ontario village. His victory came after a championship clash lasting eight hours.

But for Bob Timbers, 28, it was just another championship. He will represent Canada in matches in England next year for the third time.

With the York county farmer will go Ed Denman of Portage La Prairie, Man., who placed third in Thursday's championship class. The second-place winner, Jerry Ferguson of Croton, Ont., will not make the European trip because the rules allow only one plowman from each province.

Jordan River Development Plan Near Collapse

By JOHN A. SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American-backed Jordan river development plan, conceived as formula for peace in the Arab-Israeli strife, is reported on the verge of collapse.

Diplomatic officials fear that renewed Arab opposition may have killed any chance of accomplishing at least for the time being. That raises the prospect that Israel will go ahead to develop the river in the face of violent Arab protests. Any such Israeli move would be virtually certain to add new tensions in the region already seething with excitement over Egypt's plans to buy arms from Communist Czechoslovakia.

The United States administration has not given up hope that Arab countries, led by Egypt, will reconsider their newest objections.

Eastern U.S. Already Hit By High Winds, Heavy Rain

NEW YORK (CAP) — A frisky autumn storm — not a hurricane but trying to act like one — thrust northward along the U.S. east coast today to almost exactly the same path taken by disastrous hurricane Hazel a year ago.

The storm carried winds of 30 to 40 miles an hour as it battered Cape Hatteras, N.C., at dawn. The intensity was expected to reach 50 to 55 miles later.

In addition, its leaden clouds were bursting with rain.

The weather bureau said some areas might get as much as five inches. With the ground already soaked at numerous points in the northeast by recent downpours, extra heavy rainfall could bring serious flood hazards.

Abnormally high tides were forecast all along the coast.

By early today, with the storm centre still hours away, Washington, D.C., already had been deluged by more than 4½ inches of rain. More than 100 persons had to be evacuated by boat from flooded homes in nearby localities.

And as far northward as Elmira, N.Y., motorists were repaved over their banks and roads closed. The downpour there was measured at 2½ inches as of mid-morning.

The Washington weather bureau said its storm centre was moving inland tonight after reaching Pennsylvania. Rain was falling over the countryside about 150 miles west of New York City and across Lake Ontario in Canada.

Thus it would follow practically the same course taken by the hurricane Hazel of last Oct. 15, which swept up from Haiti and on to Ontario.

Hazel took 177 lives — 80 in the opposition to a companion proposal to export American gas to Canada to Niagara Falls, N.Y., to develop markets in eastern Canada pending the completion of the line from the Alberta gas fields to Toronto.

100 Underwriters From Quinte District Meet

About 100 life insurance underwriters met today at the La Salle Hotel in Kingston, for an all-day educational conference. Three Eastern Ontario life underwriters associations were represented: Kingston, Quinte and St. Lawrence-Rideau, which include the districts of Trenton, Smith's Falls, Prescott, Picton, Napanee, Gananoque, Brockville and Belleville. Presidents of these associations are: A. E. Garwood, C.L.U., London Life, Kingston; Mosley Rankin, C.L.U., Sun Life, 6 Hunswood Drive, Belleville, and A. Lawrence Dunstan, Quinte and St. Lawrence-Rideau, which include the districts of Trenton, Smith's Falls, Prescott, Picton, Napanee, Gananoque, Brockville and Belleville. Presidents of these associations are: A. E. Garwood, C.L.U., London Life, Kingston; Mosley Rankin, C.L.U., Sun Life, 6 Hunswood Drive, Belleville, and A. Lawrence Dunstan, Quinte and St. Lawrence-Rideau, which include the districts of Trenton, Smith's Falls, Prescott, Picton, Napanee, Gananoque, Brockville and Belleville.

The meeting was co-sponsored by the Life Underwriters Association of Canada which represents 70 other offices and agencies across the country and more than 7,200 life underwriters.

These association executives point out that annual conferences such as today's are part of the organization's continuing educational program designed to maintain the technical knowledge necessary for the underwriter in order to render professional life insurance counsel to their clients. The Association also sponsors a number of accredited courses leading to the title "C. L. U." (Chartered Life Underwriter) and provides a complete life insurance literature service for members.

They maintain that it is through the efforts of this association that the present high standard of business ethics exists among Canadian life underwriters.

Conference speakers were expert U.S. and Canadian life insurance men who are highly regarded in international life insurance circles.

Colombia Film And Talk Opens Kiwanis Serie

Colombia, colorful and full of contrasts, proved to be a very entertaining technicolor subject for photographer-adventurer Lowell Smith who showed his recently completed movie in the Collegiate auditorium Thursday night as the third annual Kiwanis World Travel Film and Adventure series opened its new season.

Colombia, a land of great riches in gold, coffee, emeralds, platinum and ancient Indian civilizations is as modern as tomorrow with the first cathedral of the atomic age carved 450 feet underground in a salt mine.

Colombia is a land of ups and downs. Geographically its ups include its capital city of Bogota at an elevation of 8,600 feet in the Andes mountains, rich cattle ranches, coffee plantations and great estates alogside gaunty cities with golden beaches and steamy seaports on both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

Socially its ups are as far up as any in the world with descendants of the Spanish Conquistadores not only inheriting their lineage but estates and fortunes that make it possible for them to live in the grandest manner. Its polygot population includes not only its mixed Spanish nobility, but descendants of the ancient Indian nations, descendants of Negro slaves, Indian and Asian workers and naked savages inhabiting almost inaccessible and unbelievable jungles at the headwaters of the Amazon river.

Native art in solid gold, peculiar stone carvings, great cathedrals, ultra-modern hotels and traditional homes and ranches whirled by in a kaleidoscope of architecture, color and culture.

Indians mining for gold and Carrier's lapidaries polishing emeralds provided a contrast in methods and personnel in two of Colombia's greatest profit-making enterprises.

Great rivers, splendid waterfalls, lush jungles and busy markets were brilliantly presented by Mr. Smith.

His smooth, easy narration added much to the enjoyment of the picture.

Belleville Man Author Of New Feature on Stamps

Beginning on Saturday, The Ontario Intelligencer offers an interesting new weekly feature written by a Belleville resident, Nicholas Mika. Each article deals with world-famous personalities and men and women of all nations are represented. Each of these personages has been honored by an issue of a special stamp. A different stamp will be used each year with each article.

Now something about the author himself.

Mr. Mika has two fascinating hobbies. He collects stamps and people and paints landscapes around his sunny Belleville. As an author he has had six books published in Germany, one of which was translated into English. Each book is illustrated by him with delicate water colors and pen drawings.

Last year CJBQ brought three times a week his short stories under the title "The Face on the Wall." These stories were carried by the Community Broadcasting Service.

PAINTINGS WELL LIKED

In 1950 he exhibited his oils and watercolors in the Y.M.C.A. and to his own surprise he sold almost all his pictures.

Mr. Mika's realistic stamp collector he organized in the same year the local "Philatelic Circle."

Mr. Mika says that he began to paint when he was a little old boy to please his neighbors' fences, houses and barns as his brush and paint pot were the only reprimands from his father.

Born in the Ukraine he is now a Canadian citizen. After graduating from high school he attended university in Prague in 1930. The German soldiers forced him to leave. Mika decided that he would be sent to Frankfurt-on-Main where he took up his art career again and began to write novels. Mr. Mika works at the Bakelite Company.

Mr. Mika's wish is to publish in Canada his new book 'Their Greatest Gift'. His second ambition is to put on canvas the beauties of Canada.

BENEFACTORS OF MANKIND

We would like to include some comments by the author on his fascinating hobby:

"The fate of famous people are the milestones of mankind. Some of them lived centuries ago, others only yesterday or today. They are like shining stars in dark sky and their names are written in the golden book of eternity.

"They built and shaped and changed the world to the way we know it today. And they changed it, indeed. The miraculous discoveries, the struggle for progress and the search for the hidden secrets of nature became the gifts of those men of destiny.

"You learn about the invention of printing, the sensational triumphs of Columbus, the dramatic conquest of the sky, the birth of telegraph and radio and the mysterious background of X-rays. You meet the masters of music and writers, the books and poems of many nations, the teachers of religion and philosophy. You read about the daring microbe hunters, the fascinating discovery of radium and dynamite, the tragic expedition to the South Pole and breathtaking adventures in the African jungle.

"Those brave men and women sacrificed their lives to protect us from misery, poverty and disease. They were the noble servants of mankind and the pioneers of progress.

"I chose the stamps which show their portrait not just as an illustration but as masterpieces of beautiful design. To the stamp collectors I suggest a new way to beautify themselves, and perhaps to you they might suggest how much can be learned from stamps."

Mining Development Around Bancroft Causes Housing Boom

Development of uranium deposits in Hastings county and adjoining Haliburton county is causing a housing boom in the village of Bancroft as out-of-town workers seek accommodation for themselves and families.

As a result rentals have suddenly doubled and trebled figures of only two years ago now having been almost doubled. The current building boom is on with new houses springing up in Bancroft and immediate area. One housing project on property formerly owned by John H. Vance and facing on James, Maple and Oak Streets, will see 23 houses erected. The houses will be of the bungalow construction, five rooms and full basement and oil heating. The homes will be eligible for National Housing Act loans.

Twelve new homes are already under construction at Bicroft Uranium, north of Bancroft, where a townsite is being developed. It is rumored that Faraday Uranium officials are considering building sites on their property at Wilbur Lake.

MANY REQUESTS RECEIVED

Provincial Police Corporal Arthur Grayling stated that his detachment office frequently receives requests from out of town persons wanting to know where they can secure accomodation. "Hotels and tourist homes here are full most of the time," he said.

Indicative of the influx of workers into the Bancroft area is the number of strangers seen on the streets.

"Two or three years ago I knew almost everybody in the district," the police corporal stated. "Now there are strangers everywhere."

Most of the mine workers are from Toronto, Kirkland Lake and the Noranda areas who have come to the Bancroft area to find work in the new uranium developments in the district.

Many of them have brought along their families and it is this influx which is mainly responsible for the housing shortage.

Bear Downed Near Marmora

MARMORA — Unofficial bear hunting netted two hunters a fine specimen of the species at Art Tompkins' apple orchard on the afternoon on Thanksgiving Day. The animal, before Art observed a trio on the prowl thereabouts, had summoned Gordon Gordon, well known hunter of Marmora village the next day and the latter succeeded in bagging the bear. About 4 p.m. they saw the bear and each fired simultaneously a shot apiece, to discover as they downed the animal that each had hit the target. They found later that it was all they could do to lift it on to Gordenier's truck. Last year a big bear was brought down near the village. He is reported to have done about three years ago a trio of marauders were accounted for.

Firemen Show Correct Way To Put Out Fires

Actual demonstrations in the correct way to extinguish fires are being seen this week by school students in Belleville as part of the Fire Prevention Week program.

Fire drills under supervision of members of the Belleville Fire Department have been carried out in many of the local schools with the remainder expected to be carried out today.

Wednesday evening's Fire Prevention Week parade was witnessed by a large crowd of local residents who lined Front and Bridge Streets for the event.

Headed by the Kinsmen's Boys' Band and two port mainlets, the parade got underway at 7.30 followed by seven units of the fighting equipment. Twenty-eight members of the department walked with the parade.

A novelty feature of the parade was the hand-drawn hose hauled by four members of the department dressed in old time uniforms and brass helmets.

The St. John Ambulance had a unit in the parade as did members of the ambulances owned by Bush's, Pinkston Funeral Home's and Thompson's also took part.

Police Start Search of Farm Seeking Bodies

BRANTFORD (CP) — Ontario Provincial Police today started a patient search of a 50-acre farm here which a mother and her two children disappeared when fire destroyed the farm house Saturday.

Police at first believed Mrs. Phyllis Malek, 27, and her daughters Barbara, 6, and Patricia, 4, died in the blaze. However, Inspector Oscar Nicol of the criminal investigation branch of the provincial police said today he is no longer satisfied the three were in the building at the time of the fire.

Breadman Bill Carson, 23, of Princeton, Thursday he called at the house several hours before the fire started and found no one home.

SHOTGUN FOUND

A neighbor has also told police he entered the burning house to try to carry out furniture and did not see anyone.

Police searching through the ashes of the burned house have found fragments definitely identified as a provincial pathologist says pieces of human bone, a shotgun and several shotgun casings.

Jan Hancharuk, 33, who was living in the house, told police he used the shotgun to kill rats about a month ago. He said he had left the house Saturday morning and returned to find it destroyed by fire.

Judge of the Chicago show, William K. Hepburn of Dalton, Pa., said "Rocket Tone is one of the immortal show bulls of all time. It is certainly one of the greatest I have ever seen, beautifully balanced bull, amazingly smooth in the blending, walks well on a good set of legs."

Dr. J. McLean, manager of the Quinte district bull unit said Rocket Tone was one of slightly more than 20 animals sent to the Chicago show from Canada.

Motorist Rams Street Hydrant

It was raining up as well as down near the McCarthy Theatre early today after an unidentified motorist rammed a street water hydrant and then drove off without notifying the authorities.

A passing taxi driver was attracted to the damaged hydrant, when he saw water spouting into the air. He notified police who in turn, notified the utilities commission.

Police are confident they have found the car which was responsible for the damaged hydrant but are still in the dark as to who the driver was. A car with a damaged right front fender and bumper was found parked on Burrell street and police tied the damaged auto in with the broken hydrant. The damaged car was listed with the Wellbanks Motors.

Col. W. G. Ketcheson, Well-Known Military Man and Farmer, Dies

The oldest and one of the best known military men in the Quinte district for nearly a half century, Col. William Gilbert Ketcheson, Sidney township, died in the Kingston General Hospital on Thursday afternoon. He has been in failing health for some time but the illness, which caused his death had been of brief duration.

Born in Sidney township, he had been identified with the Quinte district all of his life. He was a successful farmer, a most efficient soldier and one who took a keen interest in the social, municipal and church life of his native township. He was born, 83 years ago, being the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Ketcheson, who were pioneers into this district.

The late Col. Ketcheson had a large share in the military history of this district. In the second press, when health permitted he took an active and vital interest in all things military. He was a veteran of World War One and after being invalided home from service in England and France, he continued his love for the army and aided materially the transition from war to peace establishments. He reorganized and took overseas the 80th Battalion, recruited from this section of the province in 1916 and when the Battalion was broken up in England, he transferred to the 42nd Battalion, which served in France. He was also the Commanding Officer of the 49th Hastings Rifles from 1911 to 1919.

When the Frankford branch of the Canadian Legion was formed, he was honored by being, made honorary colonel of the branch, a position he held at the time of his death. He was also a member of Francis Lodge, A.F. & A.M. No. 127 of Frankford and in church life was identified with Wallbridge United church.

Col. Ketcheson was a man of friendly nature, who enjoyed and kept a wide circle of friends. For many years he spent the winters at the Hotel Quinte and it was always a pleasure to meet and chat with this fine old gentleman.

Surviving are one son, Milton Ketcheson of Saskatoon, Sask., one brother, Bleecker Ketcheson, of Sidney township, six grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon.

The weakest point in ordinary waterproof watches is the fit of the crystal. Under extremes of temperature it expands or contracts. Each little opening permits dust or dampness to penetrate. Of all water-resistant watches we consider the Seamaster best.

COMMUNITY CHEST CAMPAIGN OPENS MONDAY

The Belleville Community Chest's annual appeal for funds begins on Monday. The objective is $30,000. Every cent of this is urgently needed to finance the work of six worthy organizations during the coming year. These organizations are the Children's Aid Society, the St. John Ambulance Brigade, the Navy League of Canada, the Victorian Order of Nurses, the Boy Scouts' Association and the Young Men's Christian Association. Each and every one of these organizations helps make Belleville a better place in which to live and to raise a family. The continuance of the services which they render to the community is the concern of every one of us. All of us should give generously, in accordance with our means.

The Community Chest does not, of itself, undertake any service in the community other than the vitally important one of providing its members organizations with the money necessary to finance their work. The Chest was organized to combine the appeals of these organizations into one joint appeal, in the interest of efficiency and convenience. The officers of the Chest, the members of the committees and the canvassers are rendering an essential service to the community without any thought but the appreciation of their fellow citizens. That appreciation can best be shown by a prompt and generous response to this appeal for funds.

As for the six member organizations, their names practically explain their functions.

The Children's Aid Society looks after the interests of children who are neglected by their parents, or who are without parents.

The St. John Ambulance members are familiar figures at many community gatherings. They are first aid experts frequently ease suffering and sometimes save lives.

The Navy League of Canada sponsors the Sea Cadets, an organization of which Belleville is justly proud and which has done much for its members. The Boy Scouts' Association carries on a much similar work, of a type well known to every Canadian.

The Victorian Order of Nurses is an unique home nursing service which renders invaluable aid in times of sickness and to mothers. Those who can afford to do so pay for this service. But those who cannot pay receive just the same service. It is to pay for the cost of this free or partially-paid service that the Order needs funds from the Chest.

The YMCA and its many services are known to all. The YMCA charges for its services but these charges are not sufficient to meet the cost and were they to be increased the value of the organization could be drastically reduced. Funds from the Chest are essential to its continued operation.

A BANK'S VIEW ON MORTGAGES

"There is nothing derogatory about having a mortgage on your house," says the Royal Bank of Canada in its "Monthly Letter."

It is statements like this which bring a ray of sunshine into the life of the average householder. It is mentally comforting, as one surveys the bank balance and makes a mental subtraction to bring it into line with facts after that next mortgage payment comes due, to learn that the bank does not think less highly of you because of the imminent withdrawal.

While it is encouraging to learn at first hand of the bankers' views, most of us had long since formed the firm opinion that a mortgage was no disgrace. In one sense, therefore, the bank's statement does not qualify as news. What may rather startlingly strike you, are some figures which the "Monthly Letter" quotes from the last Federal census, in 1951. At that time, of 1,654,045 owner-occupied dwellings in Canada, 678,740 had first mortgages and 38,265 had both first and second mortgages. The Royal Bank apparently expects the readers of its "Letter" to be amazed at the number of mortgages. One wonders why. To suggest that readers will be surprised to learn that there were, in 1951, a million owner-occupied homes on which there were no mortgages. Where do these fortunate mortgage-free folk reside?

That is a puzzle which is only matched by the awe with which today's home buyer views some of the older houses. How could people acquire enough cash to erect some of these houses? Or, moments of success which are to be found in even the smallest villages? The Royal Bank assures us that "a house costs more today, compared to what it did a generation ago" and that "it is not so easy, now, to save the money to buy a house for cash."

The Bank blames the higher costs of a house today largely on the fact that "it has ceased to be a simple shell, that it is filled with conveniences." But what shells some of those old houses were!

As for it being more difficult to have money today, the Bank gets no argument on that point. One thing is certain; it could not possibly have been harder in days gone by.

JUST FOLKS

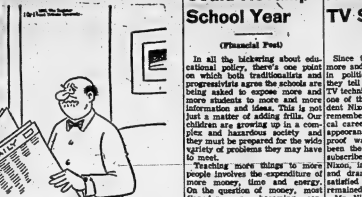
By EDGAR A. GUEST

IN AND OUT

He dressed himself in costly togs,
He drove the latest car,
He owned a home and several dogs
And proof of worth they are.
But it takes more than these, he learned,
Before a friend's esteem is earned.



He cost and vest he wore fine,
Since money pays for these.
But man must patiently design
A way to cheer and please.
And he forgot that what he did
From young and old could not be hid.

And he forgot that what he said
Meant more than what he wore.
A smile is better for the head
Than coverings from a store.
A helpful hand more joy may bring
Than that which wears a dismond ring.

Success the strongest man may win,
Of that there is no doubt.
But there is that which lies within
Worth more than what is out.
Dress up the body as man will
A shabby soul is shabby still.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On the TV the other night, nobody had enough energy to get up and fight. Instead they watched the large meal of roast beef we had eaten, and had a TV dinner that the wrestling was left on the screen. Normally, the minute wrestling appears on TV, nearly all the living room starts up from his chair to turn the button. If must be four years since a wrestling bout was left on our screen.

Today I changed. The large barny, lumpy performers stand forth. They go through the same absurd posturing before the bout, as if a kindergarten audience were to be entertained by Jack the Giant Killer. When they grab hold of each other, a man with fifty percent vision could see that their hands do not even make a dent on the flabby hide of the opponent. The fingers do not press in. When they get into a clinch and push each other savagely, even a child could perceive that all the blows are in the air. Not one of them lands. Then they are flung violently to the mat, they fall cushioned by several inches of carefully cultivated blubber, and the whole struggle and agonize like the fifures out of a comic book thriller. But it is all strictly a matter of taking up postures.

Yet, when the TV camera panned over the audience, we were astonished to see a great throng of sport lovers massed in the arena. And by their actions, they were excited and agitated by the performance in the ring. There could be not the slightest doubt of it. The audience was there, plenty—they jug up, waving its arms, shouting. It made so many echoes that then, in our community, several hundreds, maybe thousands of fellow citizens must be aroused to cry anything so phoney as professional wrestling?

The explanation is obvious. On TV, we get a close-up of the performance and can see it all its fraudulence.

It is therefore self-evident that those attend wrestling matches are people with defective vision. Short sighted people must get a terrific kick out of wrestlin. Dimly they can perceive large, massive beings throwin large massive villains, around like pillows. Obscurely they can discern huge, almost nakied bodies struggin prehistoricallyon the mat.

As for those who like wrestlin on TV—and there are plenty—they also like comic books. Proably they lippy-loe into the children's bedroom and pinch the comic books to take to bed with them, themselves.

Could Revamp School Year

(Financial Post)

In all the bickering about educational policy, there's one point on which both Conservatives and progressivists agree the schools are being asked to expose more and more students to more and more information and ideas. This is not just a matter of adding frills. Our children are growing up in a complex and hazardous society and they must be prepared for the widest variety of problems they may have to meet.

Teaching more things to more people inevitably means more and more money, time and energy. On the question of money, most Canadians are becoming convinced that one way or another we must pay for the education of Canadian children: either by providing adequate schools, or by paying the social costs entailed in raising young people to learn by experience.

On the question of energy, teachers have been just about as far as they can go; the zeal that drives a good teacher often finds itself in conflict with the need to

Time is the only variable left. Almost unnoticed, it's been that more children are staying in school for more years. It's true, for instance, that graduates enter more free years of schooling.

But what about school year itself? Why not lengthen the period of instruction and offer shorter vacations to school holidays? Why operate our immense capital investment in schools and equipment for only ten months of the year? Certainly some educators have turned to that question. Children do need time to themselves — time to learn to play together in a rigid environment.

It is doubtful, though, if children need as much consecutive time to themselves as they now have. Take the case of the Hutterites, by several shorter periods of freedom from work, the summer vacation. As to the teachers, their needs for time to rest and study could also be met by a system of leave with pay during the school year.

Altering the school year could improve greatly the whole educational system is being withou taking a look at the school year itself. Not only the work-week. No one wants to force-feed knowledge.

We should explore the idea of revamping the school year.

Tribute Paid To C.D. Howe

(Ottawa Journal)

Later this month Port Arthur is to honor Mr. C. D. Howe, mark the golden anniversary of his entry into Parliament.

It is an occasion in which most Canadians, even those who politically will want to join. For C. D. Howe has been a long time with us—not just a Liberal cabinet minister; he has been and is a great Canadian and deserves our personal gratitude.

Like most politicians, indeed like most fallible human beings, Mr. Howe has been wrong at times in the particular sphere of Parliament, never quite suited to his temperament, and his errors have been massive. But a man, must be judged by the balance of what he is done with C. D. Howe the scales tip tremendously in his favor.

There was his work during World War II, first as the high pacter he served with distinction, and tens of thousands of others gave a last measure of devotion. But it was C. D. Howe who in the domestic field "mobilized" and directed the services of value immeasurable.

C. D. Howe is not today the man who came to Ottawa in what seems like the far 1830's; the step is slower, the hair less erect. Yet the old drive and spirit remain, the old vigor and vitality, and it is The Journal's wish that theqy, whether on the treasury or administrative benches or in opposition, will long be with us.

October Dangerous

(Ontario Safety News)

Over the years, October has developed as the most dangerous traffic month of the year. Last year, while leading the other months in the number of fatal accidents and in the number of fatally injured, the month was third after August and December in the total number of motor vehicle accidents. It was seventh highest for motor vehicle travel.

Two principal reasons are differ for he month: the reintroduction of standard time, which brings sundown and dusk during the evening "rush hour" traffic, and less favorable weather conditions.

Nixon Tells TV Secrets

(Montreal Star)

Since television will become a more and more important element in political campaigning, politicians they tell us, are trying to learn TV techniques. In the United States one of the masters is Vice President Nixon who in 1952, you will remember, rescued his own political career by a single, successful television broadcast. The proof was offered that he had been the recipient of a privately financed political fund. Mr. Nixon, in a carefully rehearsed and dramatic TV appearance, satisfied the voters that he had remained pure.

Mr. Nixon is now teaching others the way to do it. On a recent visit to New York he held an audience of potential candidates and speakers the tricks of the trade:

"Nixon," writes Eric Severeid, CBS radio commentator, "has learned frank simplicity and the secrets of charming away a citizen's vote via television. In the first place, he and coming modern candidate just stay there and reads a speech; that one speech, by the reports I gather, for old timers like Lincoln who were not interested in what they said than how they said it.

"No, what you do is to ad lib, you speak impromptu, as though you had not labored over it for weeks. Nixon made clear that all good impromptu speeches are really very prompttu. The road to a real triumph of manner, of course, is through long, intense work in advance; naturalness, ease, conversational tone and great care is required in order to appear careless.

"The winning frankness Nixon took his audience behind the scenes in explaining the famous speech of '52, defending his acceptance of that private fund. The performance was given Tuesday instead of Sunday was not, as generally believed, to help General Eisenhower, but to build up more confidence in the audience and give Nixon more time for careful preparation."

Old Folk Tale Retold on TV

(New York Times)

There must be at least 64,000 folk tales about the cupboard love, the unthroned prince, the seeming simpleton who proves equal to impossible challenge in order to win the princess' hand.

Star Time, tonight, brings me a ship that moves on land, return to Frank Sinatra's variety series as the king. But, if you fail . . .

Now either the stout young hero is himself the victim of circumstances and a Hector of courage, or else he is the victim of a mysterious old lady or long-bearded elf.

His trials are great, but no greater than his perseverance and brave heart. He is always found in highest style and wins the maiden. Or, sometimes, somewhere silver in delicious contentment.

Columbia Broadcasting System has, in recent years, made a fine story for some weeks now on its Shower of Stars. Tonight, 64,000, even down to the detail of letting a contestant in the final test take a fifty-to-one gamble on a long-bearded expert.

A New York policeman, a shoemaker, a sweet-faced little girl, a housewife explain, emcee Garry Moore and Frank Sinatra, each of these slain dragons of varying sizes. They are heroes proved. Audiences everywhere have shivered in delicious contentment.

Each night remembering though, that in those folk tales there were always legions of suitors who tried and failed. They lay their heads, pr sail, and were forgotten.

To all the CBS contestants who also lost their heads would like to offer our best wishes for a speedy recovery. And we want them to know that the thinking of them in their anonmity, even if no one else is, —

Passenger Trade Costly

(W. L. Clark in The Windsor Star)

The Union Pacific had a net loss of $32,932,000 on passenger traffic last year.

The Southern Pacific's net loss was $31,441,000.

The Santa Fe lost $46,227,000.

The Pennsylvania lost $43,081,000.

The New York Central lost $38,806,000.

The Baltimore and Ohio lost $6,000,000.

The passenger loss has to be met by the revenues from freight traffic.

The Union Pacific made a net operating profit of $89,311,000 to help absorb the passenger deficit.

That's why the railroads have to charge large freight movements and revenues. They all lose on the passenger business in spite of new trains and improved services.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

Allopathic, Homeopathic And Osteopathic Physicians

Ever since Tops was a colt and I had too much time to cogitate on long drives on the mud roads of Yates County, I pondered a ranking question: Why was there so much animosity between regular, "old school," allopathic physicians and "new school" or homeopathic physicians?

This mean spirit was a heritage left us by dominant medical practitioners and we (huh, please remember I was an honest doctor for years before) I turned newspaper quack) conducted ourselves accordingly for a quarter of a century.

Eventually, however, homeopathic physicians became members or fellows of the county, state and national medical societies—as indeed they had a right to be, by law. Today, it seldom occurs to an intelligent physician to ask whether a respected colleague studied medicine in a regular or a homeopathic school.

Medicine, as the "healer" say, is making great strides.

Not great enough, however, to get away from another nineteenth century handicap—prejudice against osteopathic physicians. If there was some excuse for this fifty years ago, there is none now. Since Tony was a pup, all physicians have had practically the same training in the fundamentals of the twentieth century osteopathic physicians have been required to meet the same qualifications regular physicians are required to meet, to get a license to practice, at least in one state, and that proves my point, even regardless of what sticky, tricky tories read from as to age. Talents are not confined to every human being. Perhaps this is true, but I can't help but think of that line in a poem I learned as a youth which said: "The bird with the broken pinion never flies the path of the bird that is unbroken." On the other hand, it did sing "its sweet song of joy."

The physical loss that many have suffered usually increases the sensitivity of other organs not seriously affected. Blind people do wonders with their fingers, and their minds are very keen and alert. Being deprived of something we hear or see usually results in some added good fortune to us. Frank Woolworth, originator of the 5 and 10 cent stores, faced nothing but failure at the start but later he was compensated with a brilliant success.

In nature things balance. There the law of compensation is ever at work. So it works among us all as human beings. One, singe another

Let the politicians in the ill-fencing racket in other states may play.

The disgraceful mess the politicians of America have made of the licensing of physicians, dentists or whatever you prefer to call 'em not only retards the progress of the healing art; it increases the cost of medical care.

Consider how the slide works: A doctor licensed to practice in New York is legally qualified to practice in California upon registration of his New York license with the California board of medical examiners, and vice versa—the arrangement between the two states being what is called reciprocity. But a doctor licensed to practice in Illinois—uh-uh! His or her license doesn't mean a thing in California, and vice versa. In order to obtain a license to practice in California he or she must take not only the regular written examination, but also an oral examination. That oral examination is the gimmick which makes it virtually impossible for the supplicant to practice in California—unless he or she has the "in" with the politicians who control the racket.

Multiply such shenanigans by 48 and you'll have some idea why the cost of medical care is so high.

If a man or woman gets the M.D. degree from a school authorized to grant the degree, that should be all the qualification to practice medicine and surgery in any of the 48 states or territories.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

COMPENSATIONS

I have heard it stated that there are compensations for every human being. Perhaps this is true, but I can't help but think of that line in a poem I learned as a youth which said: "The bird with the broken pinion never flies the path of the bird that is unbroken." On the other hand, it did sing "its sweet song of joy."

The physical loss that many have suffered usually increases the sensitivity of other organs not seriously affected. Blind people do wonders with their fingers, and their minds are very keen and alert. Being deprived of something we hear or see usually results in some added good fortune to us. Frank Woolworth, originator of the 5 and 10 cent stores, faced nothing but failure at the start but later he was compensated with a brilliant success.

In nature things balance. There the law of compensation is ever at work. So it works among us all as human beings. One, singe another

Honesty, kindnesses, sacrifices for others, good deeds performed in secret—these are the things we are compensated—no matter what they may be in action. Benjamin Franklin wrote that he once paid too dearly for a whistle—but paid too dearly for a whistle—but paid too dearly for a whistle—but

'As a Woman Thinketh So Is She" Theme for Area-Convention Of District Women's Institutes

Underlining their theme "As a woman thinketh so is she" the Women's Institutes of this area assembled at the Canada on Thursday morning for their annual two-day convention. Delegates were present from the combined districts of Hastings, Prince Edward and Northumberland and with the visitors filled the auditorium. Mrs. Gordon Scholes, reeve of Warkworth, presided over the morning session.

The opening exercises included registration with Mrs. Percy Boulton and Mrs. Chumbley as registrars, and community singing led by Mrs. Wm. Insley and Mrs. Jack Parrott at the piano.

Mrs. Roy Hutchinson read the minutes of last year's area convention, the financial report and the correspondence and Mrs. Percy Bush gave the auditors' report.

Discussion of the resolutions committee read by Mrs. Ed. Heasman, Stirling, showed that according to the three districts who responded, several resolutions were discussed in various branches but none was carried.

ROLL CALL ANSWERED

Roll call of districts was answered by a 1-minute talks on "Changes I Would Like in the Institute." Those responding were Mrs. Bernard Brooks, Cherry Valley Branch, that the topic proved to be not an easy one as the Women's Institute is a well-organized association and is live up to their motto and serve home and country best. Others suggested a sincere welcome to every newcomer in the community with, a committee in every town to every family carrying some simple gifts of home-grown preserves, which would acquaint them with the health, the social activities and the facilities available to them. A study on freedom with a special study list which would be an advantage. More knowledge about the United Nations and the great organizations connected with them would be interesting and helpful. A study of cultural subjects and craft courses would have a therapeutic value that drugs cannot get out. Presidents should encourage members to do their share of the work. The delegate also suggested a mass convention of all branches closed with the words: "Look up, not down; forward, not back; look out, not in; and lend a hand."

TAKE ACTIVE INTEREST

Mrs. J. C. Miller, Hilton, spoke for Northumberland Nett with the suggestion that members should encourage tree to continue to take an active interest by visiting them, inviting them to meetings and providing transportation. These new citizens have a great deal to offer in the community. The speaker would like members to give papers rather than having speakers from outside as members can learn by doing this. Greater interest could be shown in the extension services, and more demonstrations would be interesting and educational. More use of the typewriter and mimeograph given out to the branches would enable all to know what is going on.

For Northumberland West, Mrs. Smith thought that funds might be used locally more than they are as sometimes there appears to be duplication of efforts.

Mrs. Grant Kerr, Plainfield, spoke for Hastings East suggesting the idea that much more could be done about welfare by visiting the schools and working with the teacher to provide treats and kits game for rainy days, sports equipment, hot dinners. The children should know that the Institute is interested in them.

Mrs. John Reid, Trenton, representing Hastings West, felt that more papers should be prepared by members rather than from magazines. The question should be asked, are we as progressive as we might be? Are we in Ontario leading the way or falling behind? The extension services are sent out with instructions, the choice is made and then a home economist is sent to tell what is in it. There may be some overlapping here.

Mrs. McCubbin introduced Mrs. G. MacPhatter, provincial president, and then spoke briefly about her term of office as area chairman. She expressed her appreciation for the help given her through the years and for the kindly, thoughtful ways in which the members had helped her so much.

Greetings were brought from the Indian homemakers of Alderville.

CHAIRMAN GIVES REPORT

Chairman of the district, Mrs. G. Burkitt, Frankford, addressed the convention with "Gleanings from the District Annual." In her visits to six district annuals, Mrs. Burkitt found the accommodation good, with hot meals served at noon in all districts but one which served a box lunch. The speaker was impressed with the time and care taken in defrosting. Most used printed programs and had roll calls. The chairman felt inclined to favor roll calls as they brought out new thoughts and gave more members a chance to participate. The roll calls showed a great variety of items, including outstanding meetings, many of which featured girls' work; the benefits of the extension courses; historical items from the Tweedsmuir histories. The members well summarized by the conveners but there was a noticeable lack of suggestions for future work or study. Many fine suggestions were brought out for procedure in attending meetings with a distinct report needed on the conference at Guelph with the suggestion that by sending others girls would learn a great deal.

Mrs. Burkitt was impressed by the musical numbers and entertainment which showed great talent. Most districts had displays of girls' work, including the furnishings for a girl's bedroom. The aesthetic qualities of the exhibits were enhanced with oil painting and ceramics. One district had an entry for the rug competition. One area now has a 100 per cent membership of twenty-five had been formed at Wooler-Hart in North Hastings. Five members from this branch were present at the meeting. The Ivanhoe-Hart, also in North Hastings. Five members from this branch were present at the meeting. The Ivanhoe-White School, "Northumberland East, ten dollars; and to Ridge Road, Northumberland West, who won both the area and district prizes, fifteen dollars.

REPORTS ACTIVE YEAR . . .

Mrs. Charles Jenks, Codrington, convener of Agriculture and Education, reported an active year from all branches including garden parties from a branch at Bloomfield to furnish a room at the Prince Edward County hospital at in Picton; scholarships awarded to pupils of the Consolidated school in Wooler and a grandmothers' meeting in North Hastings. Prizes were awarded for the one weighing the most, the lightest, the oldest and youngest; trips to the Parliament buildings in Ottawa; fisheries near Bridgewater and to Manitoulin and Islands. Individual members took trips and reported on these. Travelogue films and slides illustrated these as a popular form of entertainment. Also the motion, Geography and spelling matches were conducted and held. Prizes were donated to three outstanding pupils: and assistance was given by providing clothing and school supplies for a high school education. A writing contest was sponsored, and public speaking contests.

Motions used were: You never cease to learn until you cease to live; life not what we start but what we finish that counts; life is like a ladder, every step is either up or down.

MANY TALKS GIVEN

Roll calls included what can each of us do to help our community; one step I can make towards world peace; a beauty spot I have visited in Canada; something I would like to accomplish this year; and achievements of Canadian women.

Several branches reported on United Nations; a feature spoke on the partnership of parents and teachers; one member spoke of her experiences being on jury duty; a speaker told of her work with mentally retarded children at the House of Happiness.

Prizes have been given to encourage individual advantages and improvements, keep interest of members alive, improve their minds with good literature, see that children have proper reading matter. While the school plays the basic role in forming the views of our children it cannot pull the thinking and outlook of these children much above the level of the ideals, attitudes and values which prevail in the homes and the neighborhood.

MAYOR WELCOMES VISITORS

Mayor Both brought greetings from the city and welcomed the convention of a welcome from the people of Belleville, when the afternoon session convened Thursday at the Collegiate with Miss Audra Beltman presiding. Mrs. Hugh Weese, Carrying Place, graciously thanked the mayor for his kind remarks.

Mrs. Sam Armstrong of Cherry Valley, presented the report of Agriculture and Canadian Industries, quoting from a convener's report, "I believe that farmers, men and women working with nature, apart from actual labor in agriculture and its relations to Canadian industry have the same privileges and a great responsibility in this harried world today, this world where people are starving ever faster towards—what? Theirs is and must be the example to the world of the quieter way of life, the concept of the relation of man and his stewardship to his Creator."

Roll calls brought the subjects of what makes a good farmer's wife; how can we bring a better understanding between producer and consumer; exchange of bulbs, plants or slips; a favorite vegetable recipe; a milk or cheese recipe; a rural industry and location; mineral of Canada and where found.

Motions used included thought seeds should be as carefully selected as the ones we sow in the garden; have pride in our work and show it to the world because he who keeps his mind on his work goes ahead but he who keeps his work on his mind oft goes crazy; it is not enough to be without a neighbor; the farmer is God's partner in giving the world food; we have two crops the seeds we sow in our homes should be patience, kindness, humility, generosity, courtesy, unselfishness, sincerity and love.

COVERS WIDE RANGE

Papers and speakers covered a wide range of topics including tobacco farming and curing; comparing agriculture here and in Scotland; 4-H Homemaker Clubs and 4-H boys' and girls' clubs in farming methods from 1837 to present day; nylon demonstration; machinery check-up in winter for spring work; grafting of apples and pears; Quaker Oats plant at Peterborough; travelogue on India; Canada from north west to east.

Many trips were taken to places of interest such as a bus trip to Niagara Falls with a stop at the museum at Jordan; tours of the Nicola plant, Home for Aged and Canadian Legion at Picton; visit to the Dominion horticultural station at Morden; trip to Royal Winter Fair; a trip to the plant that makes radio and TV parts; trip to a cheese factory; purchase of plants for community flower garden; film on cross improvement; entered float at local fair.

The report closed with votes called "On the Farm." The leaning of rest at close of day, the fragrance that drifts from the hay, the wonder of sunlight and freshness of rain. The green of the grass and coldness of grain. The sound of cattle that drifts from the barn, the peace and quiet that belong to the farm. The fun of the young and the philosophy of old, the songs that are sung and the stories that are told, there's peace on the farm that stirs the soul. Where the music of nature predominates our goal. These are the real things to lose with alarm. We find them, we keep them down on the farm.

Mrs. Ross Bush gave two delightful vocal solos, Mrs. Harold Thompson, Bloomfield, accompanied by Mrs. Arthur Moore was heard in a soprano vocal solo.

An appeal for support was made by Miss Pride to Mrs. Parks of Toronto, speaking on behalf of the Ontario Mental Health Association. Research has done tremendous things for cancer and tuberculosis but the greatest problem at the moment was mental health, and the Institutes were asked to assist with public education. The Association will furnish services such as speakers and literature without charge.

Mrs. G. MacPhatter, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, was the main address of the afternoon. She reviewed briefly the activities of this area convention because of its name "the friendly convention." She was the first to call that the delightful memory lingered. In speaking of the three-year limit for presidents, Mrs. MacPhatter thought it was a good thing, as the duties were pleasant but exhausting, and a new president has new ideas and would commence on speakers, the president thinks that a speech is like a wheel, the longer the spoke the larger the tire.

PROJECTS UNDERTAKEN

Speaking of the projects undertaken by the Institutes, Mrs. MacPhatter outlined the Ceylon project. Women's Institutes equip villages with things women needed in their homes. It took $1,200 to equip each village. The project closed in May of this year and the total sum raised was $7,252.66 which was enough to equip six villages. It took $113.34 to be used as exchange on cheques and the members were advised to take out the exchange in the branches so it would not amount to so much in the future. The letter of thanks from Ceylon was read.

Continuing the report of convener, Hazel victims were set up by the branches. One third of the branches had sent a total of $18,- 346.18 in cash as well as hundreds of blankets, quilts, pillows and pillow cases, beds, cribs, mattresses, towels, curtains, rugs, hundreds of yards of materials of food, tea and coffee. It was all undistributed and good out of goodness of heart.

Money had been raised to send a tractor to Israel and $3,000 ago, with a man to operate it, flour to provide until the first harvest and $1,000 in the bank which was used to purchase a trailer. The project was now closed.

From a scholarship fund of $19,000 the interest was used to give five girls one hundred dollars apiece to go to MacDonald Institute. The excess interest from the fund is being used this year to send a girl from Jamaica to Guelph to Ontario Agricultural, who has met the educational standards of this country, is now attending MacDonald Institute.

Mrs. MacPhatter appealed to the branches to support the contributions to the fund to send five delegates to the ACWW convention in Ceylon. It is the intention of the provincial executive not to have a provincially sponsored project this year, so the money may be used locally.

Salada Tea is sponsoring a competition this year for the province of ten articles suitable for a hope chest, and any two of several other handicrafts. Next year there will be a national competition of Tweedsmuir histories.

Mrs. Berry of England, president of the ACWW, will be in Ontario in June and plans are being made for her entertainment.

Next year there will be a provincial conference at Guelph for branch secretaries in May, and all secretaries should have their seeds. The holidays for Women's Institutes at Guelph saw over five hundred women present, with many people registered for the whole week than ever before. At Kemptville the Institute holiday had twice as many as before.

The Institutes will have a booth at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto and an invitation was given to all to visit it.

At the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada convention in Winnipeg in June it was decided to hold the first national convention at the Chateau Laurier at Ottawa in October 25-31, 1957, It was also decided to establish a national office at Ottawa.

WA WOMEN etc

Mrs. Macarthur described her trip to the Peace Gardens to see the unveiling of a memorial to Mrs. Alfred Watt, the first President of the A.C.W.W. The memorial was in the form of a plaque nook with landscaped grounds. A roof supported by four posts shelters four tablets, one contained a bronze plaque. Mrs. Watt's last message on retiring at the age of 79 was to write on a blackboard, "I would do it" and that you keep the whole organization as shipshape as you can, with equal rights equal privileges and equal responsibilities for everyone."

A report on historical research and interesting data was read by the convener, Mrs. Floyd Hamden, Grafton, who stated that Cherry Valley had received first prize in the district and second prize in the province for their Tweedsmuir histories. Moira branch has published their history and copies have been sold. Roll calls brought out some interesting items and also something I learned from my grandmother: how to keep our children occupied during Christmas; what our community needs; what we would do if fortune twenty-one again; a dale famous in Canadian history.

MOTTOES GIVEN

Mottoes included, friends are better than money, they last longer; he who knows only his own generation is only a child; hats off to the past, coats off to the future. The world is taking your photo, look pleasant please; what a man is continually more is his happiness than what he has; a wise nation preserves its records.

Some of the activities were to aid in the renovation of the launching of the new Quinte Loyalist ferry, when costumes of Loyalist days were worn; cleaning up a neglected cemetery; showing of films of southern U. S. and Mexico; two grandmothers who had been married over fifty-five years were honored at a district picnic; a display of bedroom quilts.

Papers and speakers were heard on various subjects, great women in the history of Canada; Women of the old O'Hara mill in Madoc and Bridge; a historical site where it is one of the first water-powered sawmills in that area; history of Belleville; our village past and present; Legend of Myers Cave; early Dutch settlement with a display of Indian handicrafts; description of a tour of the United Nations building; paper on first Swiss watchmaker Gibrali; a talk on the history of bees and the honey manufacture; mystery of the hidden Bleeker cave in northern part of Hastings County.

DELEGATES ENJOY BANQUET

At the Tabernacle church on Thursday evening a dinner prepared by the ladies of the W.A., was enjoyed by the delegates to the Area Convention of the Women's Institutes. The tables were beautifully arranged and food excellent. Seated at the head table were: Mrs. MacPhatter, provincial president; Mrs. McCubbin, area chairman; Mrs. Burkitt, district representative; Mrs. C. Holmes, Mrs. R. Brickman, Mrs. Roy Boyes, Mrs. Clancy, Mrs. Rutherford, Mrs. J. Parrott, Mrs. W. Insley, Mrs. R. Robson, Miss Irwin, Miss Audra Brickman, and Alderman Jane Forrester, who proposed the toast to the Women's Institutes.

Robert and Carolyn Franklin both contributed readings in a talented manner.

A pleasant ceremony took place at the end of the banquet when Mrs. Roscoe Hutchinson, retiring chairman Mrs. Gordon McCubbin with a gift on behalf of the area speaking of the years the chairman had served so graciously.

The evening session took place at Trinity United church. Mrs. McCubbin presiding. Community singing was enjoyed at the opening of the evening. Home Economist for Hastings and Northumberland West, Irwin, expressed her gratitude to the mothers of the girls in the 4-H clubs for their support and assistance. The objective of the leaders was to encourage girls in growth and development, to share in the responsibilities of the farm home, to plan, participate and share in activities. What matters is how far each club member can develop individually not in open competition. Leaders try to develop desirable traits such as dependability, self-reliance, integrity and resourcefulness. The thrill of achievement which provides deep satisfaction to the girls in their daily growth. They get more and more experience in doing projects and progress comes in the feeling of achievement as higher standards are reached. Achievement day is the finale for all the work started and carried through.

DISCUSSES GIRLS' CLUBS

Mrs. Smith spoke of her work in Prince Edward County with girls' clubs. The leader tries to stimulate girls to bring out the best they can do. When they start a project and follow through there is a feeling of accomplishment. In judging classes they learn to give reasons for their placings. Research has increasing each year but the interest is always maintained. The clubs are primarily study and project.

Mrs. George Burkitt introduced provincial president, Mrs. MacPhatter, who took as her theme, "How to Plant a Garden." Her garden consisted of five rows of peas, three of squash, five of lettuce and three of turnips.

The five "peas" were present at meetings because every person is unique. Sincerity and understanding among members keeps the fellowship. Promptness which means starting meetings on time and being present on time. Preparation which means to be prepared to do whatever one is doing, and gathering information about the time so that a talk will be worth listening to. Perseverance consisted in getting a goal and carrying it out in spite of adversity, and not letting anything prevent duty of thought and speech which helps to speak for the best of the questions, "Is it true? Is it necessary? Is it kind? Does it help?" The five was squash gossip by applying the three questions to the gossip. If one cannot admit they love to gossip, but if the program takes up all their time they will have little time for gossip. Squash "indifference as well as gossip, because lack of organization than the member who has no interest in anything. Optimism because the wrong kind of criticism is destructive. If one criticizes be sure to criticize but starting to tear one down then help to build. Ideas should be given at the meeting where it can be of benefit.

THE TURNIPS

The "lettuce" of the garden began with let us obey the rules and regulations. The handbook was compiled by a group of wise women who gave it much thought and it is a good guide to members. Let us be true to our obligations. A promise to do some task should be of paramount importance. Let us be faithful to duties and be loyal and unselfish showing loyalty to officers and members. Let us love each other because in every person there is some truth that one can learn to like. Members can mutually attempt to like each other.

The last vegetable was "turnip". Turn up at meetings and turn up with a smile. It is more pleasant and less of an effort to work with a smile. Turn up with new ideas, they're needed to build with. Turn up with a new interest. The speaker congratulated the area on having a new branch, but said membership was down slightly in the province. Turn up with determination to make everything that is done worth while.

In concluding her remarks, Mrs. MacPhatter quoted some verses which entitled "He who makes a garden, walks hand in hand with God."

TWO READINGS GIVEN

Two readings were given by Mrs. Laver of Wesham, which the audience appreciated.

A report was read by the convener of Junior Institutes from Picton which told of the activities of the groups.

Barbara Redner who was one of four young people chosen to represent Ontario on the trip overseas, had brought many interesting experiences. This year Marilyn Parks will have the same privilege.

A Parents' night had been held when all the work was on display for the convener to see. Projects included know your material, new ideas in floral arrangements, a Christmas shower of toys for the Children's Aid. At Easter each member brought a half-dozen eggs for the hospital. A week-end was spent at the Salvation Army camp at Roblin Lake.

Mrs. Burkitt introduced the guest of the evening, Mrs. Robert McCulloch, who resides in Prince Edward County. Mrs. and Mrs. McCulloch had collected many interesting colored slides on their trip to England and Scotland. Many charming scenes were captured and shown on the screen, particularly around London. Mrs. McCulloch described the ritualistic and interesting sidelights in a running commentary as Mr. McCulloch showed the slides.

1 — LAYING OUT THE JOB

Wall surfaces should be free of any foreign substance, grease, dust, wallpaper. One coat of shellac is necessary —for unpainted walls or water-base painted walls. Patch any loose plaster and holes. Draw level line at height of desired tiling. Measure from horizontal point of floor. Tiles may be installed with joint lines running vertically or staggered.

2 — APPLICATION OF CEMENT

Apply "Craftile" mastic using a comb or notched trowel Cover approximately 4 sq. ft. at a time. Use firm, even pressure in spreading cement so that notches make even ridges in Mastic to insure tile's proper adhesion. Allow to set for about an hour for best results.

3 — PLACEMENT OF TILE

Begin laying tile at top level line, working from corner to corner. If room has an uneven corner, start there. Apply full tiles first, leave corner tiles until last. Press tile firmly into place in mastic, using a slight sliding tile. On inside corner cut and fit tile. Be sure to use enough mastic to make a tight joint. On outside corner for best results use plastic corner and fit tiles in by cutting with the cutter or a fine toothed cutting saw.

4 — APPLICATION OF COVE BASE

Apply the cove base last. Continue wall tile to the floor and apply the cove base on top of the tile. Fill-in with cement along the floor to make moisture proof.

Add fresh, glowing life and sparkling beauty to kitchen and bath . . . perk up your laundry or utility room with colorful, easy-to-keep-clean-Craftile . . . the plastic wall tile that cannot wear out or fade — "Craftile" — Will not chip, rust, peel, or craze. Weddings

AIKINS—REYNOLDS

St. Andrew's United church, Marmora, was the scene of a pretty wedding at 3 p.m., on Saturday, October 8, when the Rev. K. J. Crawford, B.A., B.D., united in marriage Marion Madeline Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reynolds of Marmora and Edward Dale Aikins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Aikins of Belleville. The church was tastefully decorated with 'mums, gladioli, and fall flowers.

Mrs. A. F. Fraser organist played traditional wedding music. Mr. Kenneth Snider, as soloist, sang "Because" as the bride entered the church, and "I'll Walk Beside You", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a ballerina length gown of hand sculptured white lace and net. The strapless bodice was of lace over shimmering satin and the skirt was tiers of lace. The bolero jacket of matching lace had long sleeves and a high lace collar enhanced with beadwork. Her chapel length circular veil was of fine silk illusion adorned with iridescent sequins and caught in a headdress of identical lace in plateau shape and shower-ed with sequins. She carried a white Bible adorned with tiny pink roses and rosebud knotted streamers.

Mrs. Eldon Killian, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, gowned in a shrimp colored nylon tulle dress of ballerina length. The very fine embroidered material styled as a tunic type enhanced the material and was topped with a bolero type stole. The bridesmaids was of the same color in feathers of pillbox style; dotted with rhinestones. Shoes and gloves were of matching color. She carried a cascade of blue baby 'mums.

The bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Dempsey and Miss Barbara Melkinthorp, in identical strapless gowns of baby blue and canary yellow nylon tulle over taffeta with matching bolero jackets. Shoes and gloves matched their dresses. Their headdresses were identical with that of the matron of honor. They carried cascades of pink and mauve baby 'mums.

Mr. Blair Wilson of Toronto, was groomsman. The ushers were Messrs. Gordon Lee and Eldon Killian.

A turkey dinner was later served in the church hall. For the reception, the bride's mother was attired in navy crepe with matching accessories, her corsage being of red rosebuds. The bridegroom's mother was dressed in grey bengaline with coral accessories, wearing a corsage of white 'mums.

The honeymoon is being spent in New York state. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Aikins will reside on the bridegroom's farm in Belleville, R.R. 2. For travelling the bride wore a royal blue suit, winter white accessories, and a corsage of pink roses.

Merrick officiated beneath an arch of scarlet sumac and white wedding bells, at the quiet six o'clock ceremony on Sunday, October 2nd.

Guests were present from Hamilton and Bloomfield.

MURIE—MOWAT

Tall candelabra, white chrysanthemums and ferns formed a lovely setting on Friday, September 30, at 6.30 p.m., in Knox Presbyterian church, Guelph, Ontario, when Barbara Janet Mowat, of Guelph and Wellington, daughter of Mrs. H. Mowat and the late Mr. Henderson Mowat, became the bride of Dr. John James Murie, of Hamilton, Ontario, son of Mrs. Thomas Murie and the late Mr. T. Murie. The Rev. Crawford Smith officiated. Mr. Harris Wilson, church organist, rendered the wedding music and Mr. Keith Barber was soloist.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. John Alexander Mowat, the bride wore a charming bridal gown of blush brocaded schelle and slipper satin in floor length, featuring a molded bodice encrusted with seed pearls, and having a classic portrait neckline and full length, sheath-like sleeves. The deep "V" front of the bodice met the two exquisitely seed pearl and cut crystal embroidered panels of the unpressed pleated skirt which fell into cathedral train enhanced with seed pearls and cut crystal and edged with a tiny frill of her veiling and silk cord. Her matching full length veil of French tulle was held by a seed pearl headdress and she carried white daisies intermingled with tea roses.

Miss Evelyn McGregor of Hamilton, as maid of honor, was gowned in laurel green taffeta and net fashioned with bodice of net and taffeta with matching apron front draped over finely pleated nylon tulle and net which swept over hip panniers forming a three-tier bustle effect of pleated tulle. A taffeta stole in graceful folds was draped around the shoulder. She wore a matching headdress and mitts of tulle and carried a basket of yellow roses.

The four bridesmaids, Miss Patricia Kreampf, of Guelph; Miss Joan Miller of Hamilton; Miss Marilyn Portch of Oakville, and Miss Mary Bates of Belleville, were attired in gowns similar in style to that of the maid of honor: Misses Mary Bates and Micky Portch in darker shades of shrimp taffeta and net, and the Misses Patricia Kreampf and Joan Miller in lighter shades of shrimp taffeta and net. All wore matching headdresses and carried baskets of white daisies and roses.

Dr. L. Mould of Baltimore, attended the bridegroom, and Messrs. Thomas Wylie, of Rockwood; Dr. V. Abramson of Ottawa; Dr. R. Craig, also of Ottawa, and Dr. D. Simpson, Barry Sound, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Royal Hotel, under the direction of Mr. W. Stewart, of Port Nelson, as master of ceremonies. The invocation was given by the uncle of the bride, Dr. Godfrey, and the toast to the bride by another uncle of the bride, Mr. Thomas Wylie, to which the bridegroom responded. Miss Margaret Stewart, of Port Nelson, accompanied by Mr. Glen Stewart, favored with "At Dawning". A toast to the bridesmaids was proposed by the bridegroom, to which Dr. Mould responded.

The wedding cake of six tiers, beautifully iced in white, pink and silver, having four matching, heart-shaped cakes placed at each corner of the larger bottom layer, which was clouded with a mist of French tulle illusion and fern, accented by the lovely floral baskets of the attendants, made a colorful and pretty head table arrangement.

Later, the bride and bridegroom left on a motor trip through the States, after which the Elizabeth room of the Royal Hotel was cleared for dancing.

For her daughter's wedding the bride's mother wore a floor-length gown of crushed three-quarter length sleeves and tight bodice, in copper rose taffeta and champagne Guipure lace. The low square neckline followed a small cut crystal trimming, and the circular skirt extended in a slight sweep. Her handmade hat was of matching feathers and rhinestones, and she wore a corsage of pale blue baby 'mums and roses.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHOW THIS SCAMP THAT YOU'RE SMARTER THAN HE SEEMS

Beatrice Fairfax:

I have been going with Bob for six months, and he says he loves me very much and wants to marry me. He said that we would be married six or eight months from now; that we couldn't get married any sooner, because he has too many expenses, including payments on his car, to consider marriage now.

The problem is that, since the first girl he was engaged to double-crossed him, he thinks that he must have an affair with a girl before he will marry her. I love him very much, but I think he should wait until after we are married.

Also, he will not give me an engagement ring saying that he does not believe in them since the other girl wore his and still went out with other men. I told him I had been true to him all this time and that I always will be to him, but he still says no ring, and that I must have an affair with him.

What should I do? He is 19 and so am I. — P.

Dear P.:

Of all the contemptible propositions, I think your boy friend's takes the cake.

Do you really mean me to believe that you don't see straight through this scamp's stupid ruse? That he isn't crystal-clear to you that what he has in mind is not marriage at all, but solely an affair? That you are honestly taken in by the feeble excuse he is giving you for wanting what he wants right now and without any preliminaries that would impede his getaway after he got it? Surely you can't be that dumb!

Well, maybe you can so let's spell it out:

Here is a cad who says he loves you and wants to marry you, but that you must wait for marriage until he is convenient for him. He doesn't care to wait, however, for the rights and privileges of marriage. These you must give him now; otherwise you needn't expect him to marry you ever. No pre-marital affair, no marriage, is his ultimatum.

You must wait, too, for an engagement ring, and here he doesn't even bother to give you the "I can't afford it" routine he gave you on the marriage question, and which would have been the natural follow-up. No, indeed. He just turns on the whine about the girl who double-crossed him again, saying he pays for nearly all the way you toward going along with his principles. And then we have it the second time: no affair, no engagement ring.

Does it flatter you that this fellow has so low an opinion of your intelligence that he expects you to fall for such nonsense? Why, he's not even a good actor! In fact, I've seen much better ones than I'm very much inclined to believe that the double-crossing girl was purely a figment of his imagination, created for the sole purpose of making you so sorry for him that you'd be eager to prove your love and faithfulness in any way he suggested.

But you're not going to be fooled, are you? You're going to show him that you're smarter than he thought. Am I right?

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

LOOK "UPWARD" TOWARD YOUTH

To achieve a youthfully alert hair should be brushed back off the face and upward.

Just as out-of-date clothes makes a woman look passe or downright dowdy, so do out-of-date coiffures and methods of make-up add years to her appearance.

You have often heard it said that to keep mentally alert at all times of life you should keep up with what's going on in the world. Lose interest in people and life and you simply vegetate. And so it is with appearance. No woman, whatever her age, should ever lose her interest in clothes. This does not mean that she has to be a "clothes-horse", but she should keep up with the styles, and have a knowledge of and interest in all the new fabrics, the late colors, everything that, combined to make a woman look her best. If skirts are being worn 14 inches from the floor and you wear yours even one inch longer, you can't be considered well dressed. And being well dressed contributes as much to youthfulness as does to appearance.

To maintain the youthful look that helps to keep a woman young in heart, a woman should be as avidly eager to follow new make-up methods and hair modes as is her young daughter or granddaughter. She should never scoff at such styles because they're "new" but, on the contrary, try to remember that what's "new" is also young. Don't ever be guilty of using such phrases as "Well, in my day . . ." Today is your day—so live up to it.

A few little beauty tricks will work wonders for you and most of them involve what is called the "upward movement". Your hair, for instance. Unless your face is unusually thin, try a "lifted" hair do—hair brushed back from the face and upward. This will give your face an alert and vibrant look. Keep your hair fairly short, too, so that is easily manageable. Long hair drawn down over the ears or fluffed out loosely over the ears accents a downward line which is definitely aging. Even very young girls look older than their years if they feature this type of coiffure.

The "upward movement" is important in make-up, too. When applying lipstick, curve your lipline upward at the outer edges. Here again, if you use downward strokes with lipstick or brush, lips will achieve a droopy effect which is not only aging but which gives an appearance of sullenness that is unpleasing to others. If using face rouge, blend it from the cheeks upward toward the temples —never down toward the jawline. And do use mascara to give a young and upward tilt to the shape of your eyes. Brush the lashes often so that they curl upward and groom your eyebrows so that they follow the general conformation of the eye itself. These are all little tricks but they'll do wonders in erasing the years from your face.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . I read your column and get many helpful recipes, ideas, etc. We are building a service station with a lunch bar in the future. Is there a book or leaflets that I could get with tips for Sundaes, Sodas, etc. . . . any help you may give me will be greatly appreciated.—Mrs. P. L.

ANSWER:

If I have a friend who is the manager of a coffee shop, as I telephoned her and read her your letter. She said "Oh, goodness! She hasn't a worry in the world. The ice cream supplier and the folks who sell her toppings will deluge her with their ice cream books and leaflets telling her how to make everything from plain sodas to banana splits and blizzards." She says that one large ice cream manufacturer well-known in your area has a book about 1-4 inches thick on ways to serve and promote ice cream sales. I will write an article on pressure cooking—so watch for it next week will you?

QUESTION:

. . . I have noticed that readers often write to you regarding recipes. . . . can a person preserve vegetables including tomatoes without salt? My mother is on a salt-free diet and many times it is difficult to buy certain canned goods in the winter that are without salt. . . . I would like to can some for her.—Doris B.

ANSWER:

Air-tight containers and sufficient processing are all that are needed to preserve fruits and vegetables. While salt is a preservative when used in sufficient amounts, not enough is used in canning vegetables to act as a preservative. It is only a flavoring. So go ahead and can your vegetables without adding water only to submerge them. For tomatoes you can use boiling hot tomato juice, unless you tamp the tomatoes down in the jar, with a sterilized utensil, enough to make juice to cover them, but that is not necessary either. Observe all of the sterilization techniques and processing times and your vegetables will keep. Of course they should be pressure-canned, as I have repeated hundreds of times in this column.

QUESTION:

Now that lunch time and vacation hotties are again coming to the fore I have a few questions to ask regarding the latter. Is it safe to use a thermos flask for soups made with milk? What is the time limit? How long is the milk safe in the flask with the separate milk container which as far as I can see, is not insulated in any way?

If you have time I would also like some pressure cooker meals and recipes suitable for a family with young children. Is there any formula for translating ordinary meat and vegetable recipes to pressure cooker times? Can casseroles be cooked in a pressure cooker? Thank you for an interesting and "clippable" column. All I need now is a good filing system.—Marie L. M.

ANSWER:

Take heart Marie. If you are anything like me you will get a filing system—it only took me 27 years to get it foolproof!

The soups made with milk and carried in a lunch box thermos will keep as long as they are hot —or cold. After the Dog Gets Iorate as quickly as anything would that has to be refrigerated —which is very fast for milk. That little separate milk container that you refer to that is attached to some thermoses of English manufacture is not good enough for milk. You would not send milk to school in a 1-2 pint milk bottle would you? With the jogging it gets it might quite readily sour at non - refrigerated temperatures. Use it for salads or canned fruits or a little cooked pudding.

Since you have requested it I will write an article on pressure cooking—so watch for it next week will you?

TABERNACLE UNITED W.M.S.

The October meeting of Tabernacle W.M.S. was held in the church parlors with the president Mrs. W. R. May, presiding and opening the meeting by reading a poem "Korea" from Dr. Florence Murray, missionary Doctor Severance Hospital School, Korea.

The recording secretary and treasurer gave their reports.

Mrs. Skeggs read an article on "Temperance".

Twelve calls had been made. The study book of Carmen United church on Wednesday was announced. Miss Margaret Brown, who had spent 42 years in India, was guest speaker.

Mrs. May introduced the new packet to be used in this year's work: "Home Mission Digest", "No Vanishing Race", "Canada's Call Way."

Three articles were read, one by Mrs. May on "Work Among New Canadians"; one by Mrs. Hagerman, "The Newcomer" and one by Miss Johns on work by Miss Rats at Port, welcoming newcomers to Canada.

Mrs. Archibald led the worship service by reading an article from the United Church Observer by Gordon White, "Holy Days".

The theme for Bible study was "Our High Calling", based on "I press toward the mark of the high calling of God."

Mrs. Archibald asked everyone to bring her Bible to the next meeting to be able to study the passages together. It is a good habit. It is still done in some parts of Scotland.

Passages were read and discussed by the members and a worthwhile meeting was held.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

GRANDFATHER KNOWS HIS ETIQUETTE!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

"A girl with whom I went, to school and who is a very dear friend of mine is to be married soon to a young man I also have known for some time. I've been shopping for a wedding present for them, yesterday found just what I thought they'd like, and last evening planned to leave it at her house. I addressed the package to "Nancy and Peter". My grandfather saw me addressing it, and told me that I had addressed it wrong, that I should address it only to "Miss Nancy Smith." But I maintain that it should be addressed to both the bride-to-be and the groom-to-be because they are both going to use the gift in their new home. Who is right, Grandfather or I? (He and I have had fun making a bet about this!) — Dorothy W.

Dear Dorothy . . . you lose. Grandfather is absolutely right! A wedding present should be addressed to the bride-to-be only. So you should not have included Peter's name. It is only when the wedding present is given after the wedding that the present is sent to both bride and groom, then "Mr. and Mrs."

PROFESSIONAL COURTESY TO PAY CHURCH ORGANIST AS WELL

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I very much want my vocal, which is quite famous church organist, to pay the organ at my wedding in November, and he has consented. Before we made this plan definite, my mother and I were consulting with the rector of our church, who is to perform the ceremony, and he told us, among other details, that the professional fee is for our church organist and also for the soloist. Yesterday, when I was talking over my wedding plans with my godmother, who usually knows the right answers to questions concerning forms and etiquette, she told me quite definitely that it is "correct procedure" to pay the regular member of the church his customary professional fee even though you make arrangements with your couin to play the organ at your wedding.

Have I any advice about this. — Bride-to-be.

Your godmother's advice about this professional courtesy is precisely right . . . that you should pay the regular member of the church his customary professional fee even though you make arrangements with your cousin to play the organ at your wedding.

A TUDOR OYSTER PRINCE—the new self-winding watch commissioned by Rolex of Geneva—was stopped to the right wrist of a nine-cutter when task it was to fashion building stone from granite blocks. He laboured with hammer and chisel for 8 hours a day (4 on Saturday) for 3 months. During the time the watch was never once removed from his wrist. The Tudor Oyster Prince was at the mercy of constant vibration—arch-enemy of ordinary self-winding watches. But when the watch, filthy with dirt and sweat, was finally unstrapped, it was still functioning perfectly. Its accuracy astonished us. Every one of the watch's 137 delicate parts was then checked against the equivalent part of a new watch, and found to be without the slightest trace of wear or strain. Now you know why the Tudor Oyster Prince is called invincible!

PICTON

District Deputy Of Rebekahs Installs Officers

PICTON.—Mrs. Reta Brown, of Trenton, District Deputy president of Quinte District No. 5, accompanied by eight Deputy Grand Lodge officers and guard of honor, paid an official visit to Macdonah Rebekah Lodge, No. 144, Picton, Tuesday night, October 11, for the purpose of installing the new officers of the Picton lodge.

With impressive ceremony, the Trenton ladies draped the charter in loving memory of the late Bro. Oscar Kerr, a member of Macdonah Rebekah and Trenton Odd Fellows Lodges. The visiting team was highly commended for the excellent manner in which they exemplified these lovely ceremonies.

PRESENTED WITH JEWEL

Prior to the installation, D.D. President Brown presented the retiring Noble Grand, Mrs. Beatrice Ralston, with the jewel of her office.

Mrs. Ralston was invited to join the P.N. Grands' Club and then formed a circle in the centre of the floor.

As each officer was escorted to her chair the Deputy Grand Marshal, Mrs. Gardiner, presented her with a pretty nosegay. Adding to the effectiveness of the installation were several beautiful vocal solos.

At the close of the business period, D.D. President Mrs. Brown was escorted to the centre of the floor by Mrs. H. Cockburn, PNG, and Mrs. Coulter, PNG on behalf of Picton lodge, presented her with a hammered aluminum tray for which Mrs. Brown gradiously expressed her thanks.

LONG SERVICE HONORED

Mrs. Cynthia Kemsley, Past District Deputy President, who recently resigned the office of financial secretary, which she capably filled for twenty years, was escorted to the centre of the hall by Mrs. Margaret Francis, PDD President, and on behalf of Macphelah lodge, Mrs. Edith McGinnis, Past D.D. President, spoke of the wonderful work Mrs. Kemsley had done and the many offices she had capably filled. On behalf of the Macphelah Lodge she made the presentation of a china tea set with Rebah emblems. Mrs. Kemsley feelingly expressed her appreciation.

Following the closing of lodge, a banquet was served in the newly decorated and renovated dining hall. The long tables were bright with bowls of autumn flowers and pastel serviettes in pink, green and yellow, while large baskets of flowers were in the dining room and lodge hall. The refreshment conveners, Miss C. Mitchell and Mrs. Rita Francis left nothing undone to make the social time a happy one. The DDP Mrs. Brown voiced appreciation to the Picton Lodge for their hospitality which had been enjoyed by 85 Rebekahs.

PICTON

Grand Master Pays Official Visit to District

PICTON — The Odd Fellows hall was the scene of a splendid gathering when George E. Harrison of Kincardine, Grand Master of Grand Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows in Ontario, paid his official visit to Bay of Quinte district. Brighton, Belleville, Trenton and Picton lodges were represented and several from Napanee and district also attended.

Noble Grand Ross Jeffrey extended a welcome on behalf of Bay of Quinte Lodge 143 to the Grand Master and visiting brethren. Regret was expressed at the absence, through illness of DDGM Russ Gardiner and best wishes extended for his recovery. Representing the DDGM, Bert McGinnis, PDDGM extended the district's welcome to the Grand Master, and later in the evening made the presentation of cuff links with Odd Fellow emblems to G. M. Harrison.

REPORTS UPSURGE

The Grand Master reviewed his visit to various jurisdictions reporting an upsurge in interest in Odd Fellowship. Commenting on the Picton Odd Fellow block newly decorated, he stated it was the nicest he had ever visited. The value of Cancer-Polio-Tuberculosis Committee sponsored by the lodges was stressed by the Grand Master who pointed out that while polio and tuberculosis cases might be fewer, there are many other ways in which such committees could aid those in distress. He urged more hospital beds, wheel chairs, etc. for loan.

You get out of Odd Fellowship only as you put into it, said the Grand Master who told what Odd Fellowship had meant to him.

MEMBERS HEARD

A number of Odd Fellows spoke briefly in appreciation of the work the Grand Master is doing, and the need for greater effort on the part of all members.

Several fine saxophone selections with Mrs. J. Mathews at the piano were given by Don King, Ken Hemmings and Ron Robinson.

In the dining hall, the Grand Master, Sydney Miller, DDGM of Napanee District, and the Noble Grands were seated at a head table while others were seated at quartet tables, each centred with chrysanthemums. A delicious buffet lunch was served from an artistically decorated table under the direction of Mrs. Dodds and George Allen to whom appreciation was expressed by Bert McGinnis.

STIRLING

Cheese--Manufacture, Food Value--Subject of Talk at River Valley W.I.

STIRLING — Mrs. Don Scott was hostess for River Valley W.I. on Thursday with 22 members and a former member in attending.

Mrs. Roy Bush opened the meeting. Mrs. Thomas Hanna gave her report and several thank-you notes were read.

An invitation to attend Wellman's W.I. on their 50th anniversary was accepted and Mrs. Percy MacMullen is to supply a reading.

Plans were completed for catering to the Junior Farmers' formal dance. All were invited to attend district day in Stirling on Saturday, October 22nd.

It was decided to donate $8 and purchase two magazines as a gift for Abbot's Leigh W.I. in England. A committee was appointed to do the choosing. Cars were arranged to take delegates and members to the Area Convention in Belleville. Committees were appointed to make all the arrangements for the October 28th. Roll call is to be noon on Friday evening, October 28th.

SUNSHINE SUSIES"

The 4-H Sunshine Susies Garden Club had a commendable garden club display at Stirling Fair and two girls won first and second on their blouses which they had made in their sewing club last winter. They were Barbara Heasman and Marilyn Conley.

NEW PROJECT

The new project is "The Club Girl Entertains," and there will probably be 20 girls enrolled for this term under the leadership of Mrs. George Heasman and Mrs. Philip Conley.

Mrs. Jack Bush was in charge of the program and the first item was a lovely film entitled "A New World of Color." This was most colorful and educational, and the ladies were delighted with the film.

Mr. A. O. Dalrymple was thanked for his kindness in presenting the film for Mr. D. Duffin, who was called out on an accident.

The roll call gave a vivid picture of the various industries in Belleville and Trenton. Mrs. Ernest Carr, assistant convener, gave a brief summary of the industries in Belleville, with emphasis on the newer ones. She also conducted a contest.

Mrs. Ernest Gifford read an appropriate poem based on "Good Cheer."

Mention was made of a write-up in a Toronto paper about Eldorado, which included the new cheese factory; a picture of the cheesemaker, Ivan Sine, was displayed along with the story. Ivan was a former cheesemaker at Shamrock factory in the River Valley community.

The convener gave an educational paper on "Cheese" and displayed a large selection of this edible food. Later, a number of varieties served on biscuits along with the usual refreshments. She said, in part:

"Cheese is a food that is eaten the world over and is made from the milk of different kinds of animals. Cottage cheese was probably the earliest form of cheese-making and the sample at the meeting was exceptionally good.

"The Old Testament contains references to the use of cheese and history records that the Greeks and Romans used cheese almost a 1000 years before Christ.

"Cheese contains all the proteins of milk and is a valuable source of energy. It also contains minerals, calcium and vitamins, and nutritionists emphasize the necessity of having cheese in the diet, especially to have it on the breakfast table. One-third of a pound of cheese is equal in food to one quart of milk and an inch cube of cheese is equal to one glass of milk.

"Cheese is slowly digested because of the high percentage of fat and it is wise to combine cheese with fruits or leafy vegetables in the meal.

"Cheesemaking is an art and about a dozen varieties have wide markets while hundreds of others are produced and sold locally in their own little place of manufacture."

VARIOUS TYPES

Mrs. Bush gave a full description of various cheeses beginning with cheddar and on to cottage cheese, then she displayed and told of various processed cheese, cream cheese and other cheese products found in the local stores, and gave an explanation of their ingredients and how they can be used.

However, cheddar cheese which is produced in the local cheese factories is a general purpose cheese and is in great demand, both in North America and England.

She also displayed packaged cheese from The Netherlands, from Switzerland, Blue Danish Roquefort and dessert cheese from France, as well as several other varieties.

All of these types of cheese are rich in food value and are quite different in flavor.

A vote of thanks was tendered for hospitality, program, the educational talk on cheese and the refreshments.

After the Institute grace was sung the lunch committee took charge.

Faure Asks Confidence Vote Giving Him Breathing Spell To Seek Lifesaving Formula

PARIS (AP)—Faced by likely defeat in the National Assembly on Algerian policies, Premier Edgar Faure composed the showdown early today by calling for a vote of confidence in his government.

The demand keeps him in office at least until Tuesday, when the vote will be held. In the meantime, the premier will try to work out a lifesaving maneuver such as spared his government last Sunday on the question of Morocco.

A government call for a vote of confidence automatically shuts off debate for 24 hours, and the deputies decided to extend the cooling-off period until Tuesday. If the government loses on a question of confidence, it resigns.

Faure's seventeenth government has been in difficulties since the Moroccan debate. Four de Gaullist ministers, in open opposition to Faure's program of reconciliation of the Moroccan nationalists, were forced out by the premier, and since then Faure, a Radical Socialist, has lacked a dependable majority in the assembly.

The large Socialist faction came to his rescue last week, supporting his Moroccan program even though serving notice that they lacked confidence in, the ability of his government to carry it out.

This time both the de Gaullists and Socialists so far are remaining aloof from the premier.

Faure made his move at dawn, after the assembly had worked itself into a tangle by refusing to take up for discussion any of six resolutions by as many different parties outlining proposed policies in Algeria. The deputies never got around to voting on the substance of any of the resolutions during the all-night session.

Four of the rejected resolutions said the assembly had no confidence in the government. Most of them called for immediate efforts to improve economic and political conditions for Algerians, but failed to agree on a formula.

Million Russians Cheer Visiting British Sailors

LENINGRAD (AP) — British Navy tars are giving Leningrad its greatest thrill since the war.

The sailors are from a visiting flotilla which received a clamorous ovation Thursday as the six ships, headed by the aircraft carrier Triumph, entered the Neva river. At least 1,000,000 Russians jammed the river banks to wave and cheer.

Sailors who went ashore had their own shore patrol of 20 picked seamen — the first foreigners ever to patrol Leningrad's streets. One group of Britons attending a ballet was a bigger attraction than the performers.

At nightfall the British vessels were floodlit, and sailors still aboard burst into song. The Russians on the bank took up the tunes, with a medley of British and Russian songs ensuing.

Brockville Youth Sentenced To Hang January 10

BROCKVILLE (CP)—A 17-year-old youth who was quoted by cellmates as saying he "carved up" Benjamin Spillerman with a pair of scissors and then shot him was sentenced Thursday to be hanged for murder.

Ronald Reid of Brockville was ordered by Mr. Justice Wilfred Judson to walk to the gallows Jan. 10 for the gun-and-bludgeon slaying of the 50-year-old merchant from nearby Cardinal. Reid was convicted by an Ontario Supreme Court jury which deliberated 45 minutes. The jury recommended mercy because of the youth's age.

Spillerman was found in his storeneat Reid's home Aug. 23. Although the cash register had been rifled, more than $2,000 was found in Spillerman's pockets. Reid was picked up a week after the body was found.

CELLMATE TESTIFIES

Lawrence Bovin, 34, of Kemptville, Ont., a former cellmate of Reid, testified that the youth told him he "killed Mr. Spillerman, that he shot him and that he carved him up with a pair of scissors."

Two other former cellmates, John Brugma, 17, of Lyn, Ont., and Donald McDade, 19, of Brockville, told of similar chats with Reid when he was held in jail here.

During the three-day trial, the crown called 27 witnesses, one of whom said Ronald laughed as he told of the slaying. No evidence was offered by the defence.

A statement police said Reid gave them was admitted at evidence. It quoted the youth as saying he shot, stabbed and beat Spillerman.

THINKING OF MONEY

The statement was taken by Inspector R. H. Wannell of the Ontario Provincial Police, quoted Reid as saying he entered the store after "thinking of all the money that Bennie had up there."

"I told him to put his hands up," the statement said. "He put them up and started walking back to where the shoes are back there. When we were going back there he turned around quick and he stabbed at me with the scissors.

"I grabbed the scissors away from him. Then he turned around and he tripped. I guess, and the gun went off, and kept going off, I guess.

"I still had the scissors in my hand and I stabbed him with the scissors. . . ."

2 DIE IN OUTBREAK

BLANDING, Utah (AP)—Three Ute Indians are dead of acute dysentery in an epidemic the director of the San Juan basin health group describes as "explosive." Dr. George Moore said Thursday 50 to 60 cases of the disease have been reported at Blanding, Utah, and Towaoc, Colo.

RCMP Official Says Volume Of Canadian Crime Levelling Off But Still Many Headaches

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's top RCMP official says the volume of Canadian crime may be levelling off, though his police force still has major headaches in fighting bootlegging and illicit drug traffic and trying to catch up with the man who won't pay his taxes.

RCMP Commissioner L. H. Nicholson, in his annual 1954-55 report made public Thursday, said the volume of crime still remains high but the declining percentage increase during the last five years "seems to indicate a levelling-off trend."

The wartime army colonel, now heading a 6,300-man force, estimated that RCMP members investigated in the 1954-55 fiscal year a total of 50,483 cases under the Criminal Code, up 1,017 from 1953-54, but the rise was less than half the 2,562 of the previous year.

MANY FUNCTIONS

The RCMP is the federal police arm in all parts of Canada, the provincial police for all provinces except Ontario and Quebec and the local police in 124 municipalities.

All told the force increased its ranks by 104 to 6,226 in the last fiscal year. The 52-year-old commissioner disclosed he had asked the government for a further increase to reinforce divisions during seasonal work peaks, but this was not granted. He is to resubmit his proposal later.

While the overall crime rate appeared to be levelling off, the RCMP still found a lot of work on its hands. Underworld wars for control of the Vancouver drug market caused some irregularity in the illicit traffic, but the RCMP found that "ample quantities" of heroin appear to have reached every major Canadian centre.

The commissioner said the RCMP could find no evidence that drug addiction was a problem among Canadian youth.

INCOME TAX PROBLEMS

One of the force's jobs is to arrest persons who fail to file tax returns into court.

"The Income Tax Act was the source of the greatest number of cases under any one statute with an increase of 2,102 over last year," the commissioner said. "Under this act, a total of 10,829 investigations were made, with 7,347 convictions being secured and 737 awaiting trial.

"The continuing increase in the volume of work under this statute is indicated by the fact that prosecutions have often steadily from 4,902 in 1951-52 to 7,472 in 1954-55."

As for highway traffic problems, the RCMP were using radar speed screens and "ghost" cars to report speedsters and other offenders to regular highway patrols. Ghost cars are unmarked patrol cars manned by plainclothesmen who report to regular patrols by radio.

EXCEED OBJECTIVE

MONTREAL (CP)—Officials of the Montreal Red Feather campaign said Thursday night the objective of $1,585,000 has been exceeded by $450, the first time in five years the campaign's financial goal has been achieved.

RELEASE MUELLER

CAMP FRIEDLAND, Germany (AP)—Kurt Mueller, former member of the Bonn Parliament who was expelled as deputy national chairman of the West German Communist party in 1950, was released from Russian captivity Thursday. Mueller, 52, was kicked out of the West German party on a charge of being an "enemy agent."

One-Time Lumberjack Known As 'The Boss' at White House

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP)—A 56-year old one-time lumberjack, known around the White House as "The Boss," is one of the most powerful and influential men in the United States.

He is Sherman Adams, No. 1 aide and right-hand man to President Eisenhower. A slight, hand-some New Englander, he bears the official title "the assistant to the president" but has become known more popularly as the "assistant president" through his emergence as a White House power. Eisenhower himself gave him the nickname "The Boss."

The president's illness, removing him temporarily from active participation in the running of the government, has catapulted the behind-the-scenes role played by Adams, former governor of New Hampshire who in two years had won a reputation around Washington as the man to see if you want something from the president.

It was Adams who headed west to take charge of the temporary White House at Denver after Eisenhower was stricken by a heart attack, the frequency with which his name entered the news from Denver led a New York Times correspondent to note that Adams, and not Vice-president Richard Nixon, was Eisenhower's chief deputy in the exercise of his presidential powers.

In Denver, Adams acts as the go-between—on government business between the president and Washington agencies. Adams decides which of the many problems that develop are important enough to be taken up with the recuperating president. In Denver as in Washington, his recommendations often carry great weight with Eisenhower.

Descendent of a distinguished Massachusetts family and a native o. East Dover, Vt., Adams served as a machine-gunner in the First World War, graduated from Dartmouth College in 1920 and went to work as a logger.

His political career began as a Republican member of the New Hampshire House of Representatives in 1941 and included a term in Congress before he became governor of New Hampshire in 1949. As governor of that New England state, he captained the Eisenhower forces in the first of the 1952 presidential primaries.

Eisenhower later picked Adams as his campaign chief in the presidential campaign and took him into the White House with him after the election. There, Adams serves as a sort of chief of staff to the president, wielding great policy - making power. Cabinet members, government officials and politicians, if they have a problem to take up with Eisenhower, must clear it first through Adams. If he okays it, the problem gets presidential attention.

Adams often has drawn fire from congressional quarters and once was described by a Republican congressman as "an iron curtain who keeps real Republicans away from the president." Be that as it may, the president obviously stands behind Adams in his actions.

In a speech in New Hampshire this summer, Eisenhower emphasized Adams' role in the White House by referring to him as a man who serves his country well "by advising me and trying to keep me from stumbling too often."

Marshal Refuses To Release Bank Teller to Canada

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—U.S. Marshal Dewey Sampson said Thursday he has refused to release to Canadian officials an Ontario bank teller accused of embezzlement.

Neil E. Dickson, 18, of Stratford, Ont., arrested at nearby Caliente Oct. 1, told police he took $22,500 from a Stratford bank. When picked up he had $16,000 in cash with him, Sampson said.

The marshal added that Canadian authorities requested that Dickson be placed unescorted on a plane and shipped back to Canada.

"If they send a man here for him, we'd be glad to release him," Sampson explained. "But if we put him on a plane without police escort, there's no telling whether he would go to Canada or not."

OTHER CHARGES

Sampson said Dickson also is charged here with carrying a false selective service card and with transporting stolen and converted money across state lines.

The marshal indicated that if Canadian authorities don't come for Dickson, he may be tried here on the two federal felony charges.

In Stratford, police chief A. Day said he will "eventually send someone down to pick up Dickson." He added that he does not know yet when the Stratford officer will go or who will make the trip.

Hutchinson Has Stiff Task With Cardinals

NEW YORK (AP) — Freddie Hutchinson, the new St. Louis manager, faces a difficult task in realigning the Cardinals' pitching staff. This is particularly true in the matter of gopher balls—pitches that are belted for home runs.

Figures compiled by The Associated Press disclosed today that the Cards' pitching corps established a major league record last season by giving up 185 home runs. The old mark was 179 set by Cincinnati's pitchers in 1953.

Harvey Haddix, who yielded 21 homers, Tom Poholsky, with 20, and Larry Jackson, with 25, were the St. Louis gopher ball leaders. Every one of the 20 pitchers the Cards used, except Vic Raschi, who lowed 31 least one homer. And Raschi worked only 1 2-3 innings before he was released.

AN AUTHORITY

Hutchison can speak with authority on gophers. The former Detroit pitcher and manager still holds the American League record of 32 home run serves, a mark he established in 1946.

None of the gopher ball troubles experienced by the Cardinals' pitchers last season, however, compared with those of Robin Roberts, the ace righthander of Philadelphia Phillies.

By allowing 41 homers, Roberts shattered the major league standard of 39 set by Murry Dickson with the Cards in 1946. Roberts, who also paced the National League in home run deliveries in 1954, partially can be excused for his performance in this category. He pitched 305 innings—the most in the majors.

Steve Gromek, Detroit's veteran righthander, topped the American League in gophers for the second straight campaign. He permitted 26 in 181 innings.

Orioles Release Eddie Lopat

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eddie Lopat's major league pitching career which covered 13 years including five as a mainstay of pennant winning New York Yankee teams, appeared over Thursday with his unconditional release by Baltimore Orioles.

The Orioles indicated no other major league team was interested in the 36-year-old hurler since he now can be bought from them for $1. They gave about $10,000 to the Yankees for him last July 30.

It was reported earlier this week that Lopat already had decided to go in the insurance business.

The chunky lefthander, known as the "Junk Man" because of his assortment of pitches, had only two losing seasons and one of them was his last.

Lopat reached the peak of his career in 1951, winning 21 and losing nine. In the world series, he pitched and won two complete games against the Giants.

Zatopek May Quit After 1956 Olympics

LONDON (AP)—Triple Olympic champion Emil Zatopek hinted Thursday that he will quit international track and field competition after the 1956 Olympics—but he left the door wide open for a change of heart.

The 34-year-old Czech relaxed at his London hotel after his defeat Wednesday night over 10,000 metres and said: "As I feel at the moment it is quite likely that I shall not run again for my country after the 1956 Olympics."

hen the fabulous athlete who holds world records from six miles to 30,000 metres added: "Even if I did not run for my country I should still compete for my club and continue running for enjoyment."

He said that everything depended on the standard of his running and how he felt about it. After his defeat in the 10,000 metres during the London-Prague track meet Wednesday night by British's Gord Pirie and Ken Norris, Zatopek said: "Now I shall think about ending my career."

Durelle Will Meet Walls

LONDON (CP) — Canada's lightheavyweight champion Yvon Durelle will challenge Earl Walls for the Canadian heavyweight title shortly, manager Harry Sheppard said today.

Sheppard, formerly of Montreal, said Durelle also has been promised an Empire title bout with Randy Turpin if Durelle wins his fight here Tuesday. The Bale Boy from N.B., boxes meets Yolande Pompey of Trinidad.

On the same card, Gordon Wallace of Toronto mixes with Turpin, British and Empire light-heavyweight champion.

Red Sox Buy Minor Leaguers

BOSTON (AP)—Boston Red Sox general manager Joe Cronin Thursday announced the outright release of infielder Eddie Joost and the purchase of eight minor league players.

Joost, picked up as a free agent in the spring to aid the Red Sox injury-riddled infield, was given his release after waivers had been received from the other American League teams. Joost, who managed the Athletics their last season in Philadelphia a year ago, saw only spot service as a pinchhitter and fielder.

At the same time the Red Sox club signed the contract of catcher Guy Morton to their Louisville farm club. Five of the added players are from Louisville.

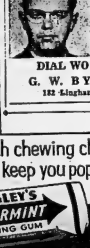
Disney Stresses Romance In New Cartoon Feature

Romantic love stories — where a boy meets girl, boy loses girl, boy gets girl — have been strangely absent from Hollywood production lists for several years. Moviemakers have been concentrating instead on dramatic spectacles, epics with magnificent scenic backgrounds, and harsh documentaries.

Even before Shakespeare penned a little ditty entitled "Romeo and Juliet", showmen showmen knew the appeal of stories about true love from the first happy meeting through the minor misadventures to the idyllic marriage.

Walt Disney, one of movietown's smartest producers, who learned-that-love-can-also offer bonanza with two of his biggest animation hits, "Cinderella" and "Snow White", as well as his live-action features, has gone all out for romance in his latest production, "Lady and the Tramp". It has all the classic ingredients — the chance encounter, that changes two lives, the courtship in a quiet, expensive restaurant, the stroll through lovers' lane, the proposal and the wedding.



There is one difference, however.

It's about dogs!

"Lady and the Tramp", the first feature - length cartoon in CinemaScope, is the story of a lady, the pedigreed cocker spaniel, and Tramp, the carefree mongrel from the wrong side of the tracks. It is based on the novel...by the noted newspaper executive, Ward Greene, and is in color by Technicolor. Singer Peggy Lee and Sonny Burke composed five new songs for the production, the musical score of which is written by Oliver Wallace.

A special added attraction on the same program is another first for Walt Disney's Switzerland's color by Technicolor, his first "people and places" in CinemaScope.

On Saturday matinee only, at the Belle, two swell color cartoons will be presented in addition to the regular program. Performances on Saturday matinee start at 1.00; 3.00; 5.00; 7.00 and 9.10, the doors open at 12.30 p.m.

Not just another "spook" show. It's different! It's out of this world. It's a gruesome adventure into fear and dread! You'll scream with insanity as horrible creatures from beyond the grave roam the theatre and land right in your lap! Fanged and fiendish vampires come you in the dark! Monstrosities from the bowels of eternity sit next to you! Headless monsters grab girls from the audience! UNHAPPY!

The sl'm attendance of Kingston Goodyear regulars at the initial workout of the 1954-55 champions left the railbirds wondering at the task facing Coach Les Douglas this season, according to Don Soulter in the Kingston Whig Standard.

Said Soulter: "Nine regulars from last season's Ontario Hockey Association senior "B" champions turned out for practice at the Community Centre as the 1955-56 season got under way loosely."

"In all 29 players answered the call sent out by the sponsoring Frontenac Club and Coach Les Douglas. However, even though some measure of satisfaction could be evident from the "safety in numbers" the absence of seven regulars and two part-time performers from last year left railbirds wondering at the task facing Douglas over the coming months.

"Returning again were goaltender Ken Johnson, defencemen Bob Loodry and Tom Goodfellow and front line veterans Don Bellringer, Jack White, Don Senior, Ted Toppazzini and Clint Tinkess. Others in action who saw action last year were goalkeepers Bert Brooks and Glynn Udell and forward Bob Vallier.

"At least three players from last year's championship lineup will be missing when the season starts in two weeks. Manager Art Casterton announced that George Macgregor, Johnny Mirke and Jim McEwen have retired from the game.

"Also missing from the two-hour workout were defencemen Ted Nicholson and Jack Irvine and forwards Don Murray and Willie Pawchuk. Stan Stewart and Joe Watts, two others who saw some Intermediate action were also released.

Headlining the 20 newcomers were Joe Levandoski, George Samolenko and Duke Doran. Levandoski has yet to receive his release from Quebec Aces but feels that it is forthcoming. Samolenko has already been signed by the club and Doran, the former Belleville player, is out to catch a spot.

PUCK DERBY!

After the frenzied race to sign players, some unknown, others heavy and some of reputed calibre by the various clubs in the senior "B" group with the exception of the TPT's, the quest for group honors should be a dynamite-packed rat fussle before the piccolo bootie taps for playoff time.

The printed word from the various centres carry stories almost daily of new faces being "signed" by the clubs, all of which is danged good reading for the hockey public—and if all these new faces grab a permanent spot in the family albums then eastern Ontario is in for some rare old hockey treats.

Strangely enough some of the players reportedly signed by the clubs, or said to be signed, are still trying out with teams said to be in the high money brackets. For instance it was reported the Goodyears had signed Lee Blakley, junior "A" goalie, yet the other day he was busy kicking out pucks for some club up west o' here.

Another report has it that Walt Samolenko is the only Kingston player signed, yet in the same breath the Kingston paper comes out with the statement the Goodies have Warren Cook, Montreal; Ian Morris, formerly of Cornwall, and Mel Chitrenki, of Iroquois Falls, all ready for inking. They hope Joe Levandoski, a professional, will get his release in time to flip pucks for the Goodies. They took to the ice for the first practice Tuesday night.

From Cornwall comes word that the Colts have signed four players and have promised help from the Quebec Aces. Players will be reporting within a week or so. The Colts expect a first practice October 18th.

Meanwhile the Brockville Magedomas are rolling along merrily on the player merry-go-round. Down in the riverside city it is reported Manager Rich Stanford has rounded up a galaxy of stars or otherwise. Tis said that besides Coach Emile Dagenais, the Magis have signed Hughie Dispelin and Allan Hinnie who used to wear a Ranger uniform. They are after Johnny Arundel and Larry Regan, both topflight puckchasers and have signed Gordie Lomer who reputedly scored 101 goals in the Scottish League last season.

Since the clubs may sign up to 25 players but dress only 16, including a spare goalie, it should be interesting to see what happens in the near future. Only four imports are allowed to each club, so the axe must fall somewhile. There is bound to be a separting of the wheat from the tare—and things might not be so easy by the time the parting of the ways comes.

From what we can gather the TPT's are not blessed with a surplus of imports. The Peterborough quintet does not come under that category nor will Parisi and Wilson if they are signed. That leaves the TPT's with no imports to date as far as we can ascertain.

Younger Edition of Rocket Now Full-Fledged Habitant; Brothers Hurt in Collision

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League has a player who has not yet celebrated his fifth birthday.

He is Henri Richard, a younger brother of Maurice (Rocket) Richard. Although he was born 19 years ago, Henri will not celebrate his fifth birthday until Feb. 29, 1956. The reason, of course, is that February has 29 days only in leap year—every four years.

Henri became a full - fledged Montreal Canadien on Wednesday when he signed a two-year contract to play for the Habitants. He still had one year of junior hockey left but Frank Selke, general manager of Canadiens, liked the way the younger Richard handled himself.

"When it comes to hockey-wise mental equipment the kid is superior to any prospect I've seen since Charley Conacher came up with Leafs," Selke said.

"He's an ideal coach's player when it comes to handling things out on the ice. Small, yet 174 hate to be in the skates of any opponent who dares lay a hand on him while the big brother is there."

FACE '3M SATURDAY

New York Rangers will face the NHL's newest brother combination Saturday when they play Canadiens at Montreal. Canadiens will be trying to stretch their unbeaten streak to four games while Rangers go for a third win in as many attempts.

Boston Bruins make their season debut on Toronto ice when they play Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings take on the Black Hawks at Chicago in the other Saturday games.

Sunday, Canadiens are at Chicago, Leafs at Detroit and Rangers at Boston.

For a time after a practice in Montreal Thursday, it seemed neither Richard would see action Saturday night. The brothers collided and it took 14 stitches to repair the damage.

CUT ON FACE

The 34-year-old Maurice, in his 14th season as a Canadien, was cut on the side of the face near the left eye and needed 10 stitches. Henri needed two stitches over his right eye and two in his chin.

A club spokesman said both will be fit for action.

That means Canadiens will send the same lineup against Rangers that won the first three games. Henri Richard, who played with Montreal Canadiens of the now-defunct Quebec Provincial Junior Hockey League for five years, will continue to play right wing while Bernie Geoffrion is out with injuries.

Dirty Play Hurt Ace Halfback Says Official

CHICAGO (CP)—Chicago Cardinal managing director Martin Wolfner Thursday charged that "dirty playing" by San Francisco 49ers helped Clarence Johnson cost his club the services of ace halfback Charley Trippi, who suffered a skull fracture and a smashed nose in an exhibition game Sept. 4.

Wolfner, vowing the Cardinals would play no more exhibition games against the 49ers in San Francisco, also said his National Football League club invariably suffers from poor officiating there, but said the Trippi-Johnson incident was one of the few against his decision.

Johnson, a triple-threat backfielder for Calgary Stampeders two years ago, was blamed by Wolfner for Trippi's injury in a game which the 49ers won 43-7.

Coach Red Strader of the 49ers, game in Detroit Sunday, said he had no comment other than to repeat an earlier statement that Johnson executed "a fine, clean block" on Trippi.

Gorman Denies Racetrack Sale

HULL, Que. (CP)—Reports were current today that Connaught Park racetrack has been sold for $300,000 but P. T. Gorman, its principal owner, said no deal has been concluded.

A report published in Ottawa said the purchasers were an unidentified group of Ottawa valley business men who planned a major renovation of the 48-acre layout in south Hull, across the Ottawa river from the capital.

Mr. Gorman, president of the Connaught Park Jockey Club, said however: "We had five or six offers. The group referred to have made us an attractive proposition but no deal has yet been made. That is all I can tell you."

The hallowed track—only one in the Ottawa area—was first opened in 1913. During the last three years it has been used exclusively for harness racing. More than $2,000,000 was bet at the track last summer.

Royals Unbeaten In Quebec Loop

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals are still unbeaten and Trois-Rivieres Lions are still looking for their first win after Thursday night's action in the Quebec Hockey League.

The Royals edged the Lions 2-1 in Trois-Rivieres on two third period goals. At Quebec, Chicoutimi Saguenens ruined the Aces' home opener by edging them 3-2.

Lulu Denis and rookie Denis Boucher were the Montreal marksmen as the Royals ran up their third victory in as many starts.

No Joke for Oaks

Vancouver City Fathers Get Blast For Refusal Sunday Baseball Vote

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Brick Laws, fizzling because city council at Vancouver refused a vote on Sunday baseball, declared Thursday he might not move his team there.

Laws, whose Oakland Acorns rallied miserably at the gate last season, had planned to move to the British Columbia city next season. That was before Vancouver city council refused to poll the electorate there on whether to rescind a law against Sunday baseball.

Thursday Laws threatened to stop the switch "if they don't stop annoying me."

"I haven't yet formally signed a contract or lease papers to bring the Oaks to Vancouver, and right now I'm of a mind not to. There are plenty of cities who want us, cities whose official families seem more inclined to help us," he declared.

STUBBORN WHEN CROSSED

Laws, who describes himself as a "very stubborn man when crossed," said he has "no argument with the people of Vancouver nor is the relaxation of the Sunday curfew a contingency in the deal that would bring the Oaks there next year.

"But when the city council votes against even giving the people a chance to speak its piece for or against Sunday baseball then I charge there is extremely poor cooperation.

"The council vote is very important to me, but maybe it isn't final. It hadn't better be as I'm tired of being annoyed and harassed by them. All I ask is that the people be given an opportunity to vote. If they vote against it, ok. I'm certainly not going to quarrel with the people."

A contract between Laws and up, he remarked, even without Sunday games.

Earlier, at Vancouver, Mayor Fred Hume said loss of the franchise would cost Vancouver at least $16,000 a year.

Calls for His Pipe

Argos' Famous Ole King Krol Won't Fiddle With Football

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ol' King Krol has given up his comeback attempt in Canadian professional football.

Joe Krol said he has quit the game again because he figures he can't get into shape in time to help Toronto Argonauts in the Big Four Football Union.

Joe is 35. He came out of a year's retirement two weeks ago. The former quarterback, one of the greatest Canadian players, kicked for Argos after three days' practice. He played two games but sat out Monday's engagement against Hamilton.

Krol announced his retirement Thursday. He obviously wasn't happy about his performance with Argos. He averaged slightly less than 30 yards a kick, about half the distance of kicks he got away in his prime.

NEED CONDITIONING

"I tried to do a three-week conditioning job in three days," he said. "I might have been better if I had started training earlier."

Krol retired midway through the 1953 season with a knee injury.

His brilliant playing carried him to Grey Cup championships with Hamilton Wildcats in 1943 and with Argos in 1945, '46, '47, '50 and '52.

Argos will use Jerry Doucette as a kicker in Saturday's Big Four game against Montreal Alouettes in Montreal.

In other football action Saturday, Ottawa Rough Riders, who lost 43-6 to Ala Mackey's Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Hamilton.

In the Western Interprovincial Football Union, Edmonton Eskimos play Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina and Calgary Stampeders move to Vancouver to play British Columbia Lions.

University of Toronto Blues will be out after their third straight win in their intercollegiate game against McGill Redmen at Toronto while Queen's Golden Gaels play host to the Universities of Western Ontario Mustangs.

Queen's will not likely be at top strength. End Lou Bruce, who caught a touchdown pass for the Gaels in Saturday's game against Varsity, and tackle Don Roy are on the sick list.

Mustang coach Johnny Metras is reported planning to dip into his intermediate team to keep his boys in the running. If they lose Saturday that's it for the season for the once-powerful Mustangs.

McGill have added an old pro to their lineup and he is expected to do wonders along the line. He's Buster Brown, former Hamilton Tiger-Cat guard.

PASS DEFENCE

Varsity coach Bob Masterson had his Blues running through their pass plays on the theory that Redmen have a weak pass defence. Masterson said he'll go along with the same defence that stopped Queen's and Western.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen take on Sarnia Imperials in Sarnia in an Ontario Rugby Football Union game.

All will be at full strength for the game with Argos, with the possible exception of Joey Pal, still limping from a sprained ankle. If he doesn't play, Tom Moran will fill in for him.

The dissension - ridden Ottawa Rough Riders, rumoring under $200 fines against 20 players, are the big question-marks this weekend. If they've mad enough they might just overcome the powerful TiCats and keep alive their slim playoff hopes.

Coach Pop Ivy of Edmonton plans to bench most of his first-string players to rest them for the western Interprovincial coach Frank Filchock says that's all right with him.

"I hope Ivy isn't kidding. We need the points to sew up second place. It should make it that much easier for us."

EAST ORANGE, N.J. (AP)—Fred (King) Lear, 61, former major league infielder, died Thursday.

CAMPBELL SATISFIED

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Speed boat pilot Don Campbell of England expressed satisfaction Thursday with the facilities "and friendliness of everyone" as he prepared to make an assault on his own world hydro-plane record with the jet-propelled Bluebird on Lake Mead Sunday.

Campbell will try to break the mark of 202.34 miles per hour he set in England last July. The run will be featured "live" on television on the National Broadcasting Company "Wide Wide World" program, affording viewers a chance to see the Bluebird and Campbell in action.

Ottawa Football Pot Boils Firings, Hirings, Resignations

OTTAWA (CP)—The football pot boiled furiously Thursday in Ottawa with a welter of firings, hirings and resignations as the dissension ridden Rough Riders scrambled to pick up the pieces before the 22nd Four's Saturday midnight deadline for final 1955 lineups.

Within 24 hours one coach resigned and another was hired, three players were fired and one sold, he was quitting, and the cash used out for four potential American replacements.

These latest developments followed by 1½ weeks the firing of head coach Chan Caldwell's top assistant, John Idzik, and by a day the club executive's get-tough policy of levying $200 fines against 30 players not considered playing up to professional standards.

CALL IN ROBERTS

Riders were slow to one coach, Caldwell, when the club Thursday called in Gene (Choo Choo) Roberts a standout Rider half for three years before his retirement this year, to act as assistant coach for the remainder of the season.

Roberts, 31, obtained leave of absence from his motor company job in Kansas City. An old Ottawa favorite—he played for Montreal Alouettes and New York Giants before coming here—Roberts might be the tonic the placid Riders need.

A club official said four new imports are being rushed here, all but one replacements for the line, where Riders are weakest. They have U.S. National Football League experience.

Although the players were not identified by club, they were reported to be Don Moomaw, all-American tackle and church minister who played for Toronto Argos last year; Ed Fouch, former Los Angeles Ram cut recently by Argos; Bob Feviani, another tackle from the Los Angeles area; and Dunker-and Arsenio Dandoy, last year with the University of California at Los Angeles.

COACH RESIGNED

The coach who resigned was Tom McHugh, Toronto here on Idzik's recommendation from a Philadelphia-area high school to be Rider line coach. His explanation: it was that his health was being affected by the troubled situation in the Rider camp.

Ted Shaffer, recruited late from Chicago Bears to become the pick of Ottawa's tackles, said Thursday he is quitting because he finds the Rider situation "too hot a cauldron relish."

But the state of mind the players are in now since the firings," he added, "it would be dangerous to go out on the field. A man could be badly hurt. . ." He apparently meant that by playing about while fellow linemen loafed, he would risk injury more than if everyone played the game.

Fired were 270-pound tackle Don King, plagued by injuries since coming here from Cleveland Browns; quarterback Don Bailey from Penn State, who called the signals for Riders' two wins in their eight games and suffered injuries in an early-season deal with Hamilton Tiger-Cats; and hometower and John Welton, in his fourth year with Riders.

CAUSE OF FIRINGS

John Bove, 230-pound tackle with Riders through 1951-54 who failed to catch on with Ottawa or Green Bay Packers earlier this season, returned this week for another tryout.

"This is pretty much of a tornup ball club," was the comment of Caldwell, only survivor of the three coaches and three quarterbacks that Riders started out with this year. "The team is pretty low in morale and it's hard to whip them up."

He has scrapped the last vestiges of the split-T formation, to which Ottawa converted this year and brought Idzik in to set up. Riders are retaining a good deal of their old plays—as Caldwell says, "It's too late to change all the horses in mid-stream"—but their play now will be closest to the orthodox T-formation.

Caldwell said he is shouldering some of the blame for Ottawa's debacle, particularly for retaining on his intention to fire Idzik as far back as March. Idzik was a "stand-pat" coach who didn't want to change the lineup, Caldwell said.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ottawa Rough Riders roster tagged still further today with release of tackle Dick Barwegan and centre Roy Smith, the latest development in a series of hirings, firings and resignations.

With the announcement of release of the two imports, the club also said four players will join Riders for a Big Four game with Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Hamilton Saturday afternoon.

'Terrible Twins' To Be Split Predicts Press

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Sydney's sporting press was predicting today that Ken Rosewall and Lew Hoad, "the Terrible Twins" of Australian tennis, are at last to be split up.

Rosewall and Hoad, who won back the Davis Cup from America in August, are dangling on the end of $50,000 offers from American tennis promoter Jack Kramer to turn professional.

The Sydney Morning Herald forecast today that Rosewall, a little man who plays tennis in a big way, will accept. But big, beefy Hoad, the paper said, will bludgeon his way through amateur tournaments for at least another year.

Hoad gave a hint of his intentions at a civic reception for the Davis Cup team in Sydney town hall Thursday. He said: "I hope, if we close the Davis Cup again, I might be a member of the team to go over and get it back."

At Los Angeles, Kramer said Thursday he is "as much in the dark as anyone else" over the prospects of Hoad joining his coming professional tour with the United States champion, Tony Trabert. •

Kramer was advised that Hoad had intimated in Australia that he might continue as an amateur.

"That's news to me," said Kramer. "I thought that if either decided to stay amateur, it would be Rosewall . . . I hope both will turn with me, of course. . . One thing is for sure, they don't have much time to work on. I must make my move soon."

REDS GET HURLER

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Redlegs Thursday night bought pitcher Bill Kennedy from Seattle of the Pacific Coast League.

Kennedy, used exclusively in relief by Seattle during the past season, pitched 94 innings in 32 games and walked only 18 while striking out 77. He had an 8-6 won-lost record.

Gaels Minus Two Stars For Western Game

Queen's University Tricolor will be without the services of Lou Bruce, star end, and Don Roy, tackle, in Saturday's game with Western. Lou is off with a leg injury while Don Roy is a patient in hospital and will be off the Gaels' lineup for an indeterminate period. Lou is one of the most versatile players on the squad and plays both end and wingback. Karl Quinn of Walpole, Mass., injured in the Balmy Beach game, will be a doubtful starter.

Coach Frank Tindall will play Scott Latimer in Roy's place. Scott is 210, 6' 1" and 22 years, and hails from Richmond Hill. Another new face on the lineup will be John Perry, final year Arts' and physical education student. Perry is from Ridgeway and played one game with the Tricolor last year. He is 175, 5' 10" and 23.

Queen's lineup otherwise will be the same as in the Toronto game, as follow: Ends, McMahon, Beck, Hilliker and probably Perry. Tackles, Hughes, Bellens, Thomas and Latimer. Guards, Thomas and Urbaliz. Centres, Abraham, Telford, Wilson. Centres, Lewis, captain; Wharrie, Wingback, Lou Bruce. Fullbacks, Surphlis, Harshaw. Halfbacks, Stewart, Schreiber, Backer, and says that Urbalis and Radchuk have made rapid strides in the guard position. Big Jim Jerome, ex-Carnell and Roughriders star, is back to lend a helping hand in this department. Tindall reports the team is in fine spirits and eager for Saturday's fray and should give a good account of itself against the Mustangs.

RYDER CUPPERS LEAVE

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng. (AP)—Britain's Ryder Cup golf team sailed for the United States Thursday with Dai Rees, its captain urging sports writers: "Don't write us off as not having a chance."

Rees described his team as "the best-balanced team ever sent to America." He pointed out that for the first time the visitors would be allowed to play with either the small British ball or the larger American one. "I think most of the boys will keep to the small ball," he added. The Ryder Cup matches will be held in California Nov. 5-6.

No Repeat Of 'Regain Case' In Junior OHA

TORONTO (CP)—There will be no repeat of the Dennis Riggin case in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League's 1955-56 season.

The OHA Junior A Council Thursday night voted that if a goaltender is injured during the season, including playoffs, he may be replaced only by a goaltender from that Junior A team's affiliate clubs.

In the 1955 playoffs, Riggin played for three different teams in the league besides his own Hamilton Tiger-Cats. The same goaltender must be brought up from a team affiliated with the Junior A club but of lower classification.

The council also nominated Hugh Bowman of Guelph as the league's publicity director.

It has been the case in the last several seasons, six teams will compete in the playoffs—the first and fourth, second and fifth and third and team affiliated with the host club against each other.

The council had a discussion on draft rules these are expected to be revised in the near future.

Longhair Gets Crew Cut

Symphony in Stands Warbles For Ballerinas in Backfield

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—This cryptic message, advertisement, conjuring attractions, hangs on the big scoreboard in Griffith Stadium:

"Oct 16 Clove National Symphony."

Translated, it means that on Sunday Cleveland Browns, champions of professional football, will be on display along with the Washington National Symphony Orchestra.

All of which is additional evidence that the so-called longhaired music has got itself a modern crewcut, and now moves gaily and unashamedly in circles that would have astounded symphony lovers of another generation.

And right out front, moving both easily and energetically, is Dr. Howard Mitchell, 56-year-old director of the National Symphony and the man who first thought of taking the orchestra to a pro football game.

AFTER A TALK

It was something over a year ago during a talk with George Preston Marshall, the owner of the Washington Redskins, that he suggested—jokingly, as he rigcalls it now—that some lively symphonic music would make ideal halftime entertainment.

"Launch tomorrow," Marshall said. They met at lunch the next day, and that led to the wedding of the musicians and athletic arts. to his 19-year-old son did it occur to him that he might have been caught with his baton down far behind the line of scrimmage. "He said to me, 'Pop, this is an all-time low.' He talked so much that he convinced my wife, too, that I had made a big mistake. After that, I had my fingers crossed."

He needn't have. He had the crowd with him from the opening strains of a snappy rendition of the team's marching song, "Hail to the Redskins." And the applause at the end was considered "the greatest ever given any halftime entertainment here.

Bobo, Sugar Sign Contracts

CHICAGO (CP) — Middleweight champion Bobo Olson and former champion Ray Robinson will sign formal contracts today for a 15-round title match in Chicago Stadium Nov. 4.

Olson will sign for a reported 40 per cent of the revenue from the net gate receipts and television and radio. Robinson will get 20 per cent.

Robinson will be making his first start since July 22, when he defeated Rocky Castellani in a rugged 10 rounder at San Francisco. Olson's last appearance was Aug. 26, when he edged Joey Giambra.

'Bums' Announce Player Deals

BROOKLYN (AP)—The Brooklyn Baseball Club announced deals players from farm club affiliates today in a move to strengthen for the 1956 season.

First baseman Jim Tenglio, pitcher Bill Harris and outfielder Bob Wilson were obtained from Montreal of the International League in return. Montreal received first baseman Norm Larker and pitcher Joe Pignatano and outfielder Clock.

From St. Paul the Dodgers obtained Jasper Spears, a promising shortstop, and catcher Mike Napoli on a trade which sent the American Association club catcher Dixie Howell and pitcher Joe Landrum. From Fort Worth in the Texas League, the Dodgers obtained outfielder Dick Williams and third baseman Dick Gray. They sent Fort Worth pitcher Bob Milliken and cash.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — More suspicious aspects than yesterday's. If work is on your schedule, accept it cheerfully and know that you can do a good job if you are persistent and efficient.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Your Venus is not very stimulating, which means that caution and tact will be necessary in handling artistic matters. Industry, trades, all sound activities can advance.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — This day's influences encourage mental agility, but suggest temperate action. Fine rays for study, writing, research, chemistry, inspection of new and valuable inventions. Also rest.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — A fine Moon aspect today, with other planets well positioned. It can be a very productive, interesting period. Avoid worry; enjoy a hobby in free time, or recreate in another healthful way.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Your Sun is inactive in tendency but the good vibrations from Mercury, Moon, Mars and Neptune can be helpful and promote benefits with your co-operation and sturdy effort. Relax, too.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Heed Gemini now. You can accomplish in your special interests or develop something new and unique in an allied field. You should be mentally keen, capable of following beneficial leads.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Personal and artistic matters may have to take second place now but that does not mean to abandon them. Put forth your best efforts. All worthwhile interests are sponsored in some way.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Show your true worth today. Be as willing to take advice as to give it and don't delay in urgent matters. Thus, you can have satisfactory and pleasant results. Enjoy some healthy diversion.

November 23 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — View plans and schedule for the day, then proceed toward objectives with faith and determination. Promising, helpful indications for worthwhile endeavors, healthy recreation, hobbies.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Interchange of ideas, conferences, community and state affairs among top rungs of activities now. Be mindful of obligations but don't crowd yourself with work when needed rest and fun are due.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — A sort of in-between day. The demands of your schedule and your obligations should determine your activities. Enjoy some restful diversion.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Neptune, among the well-aspected planets today, indicates that you are in line for gain, fresh benefits, perhaps some unexpected, and lively surprises. Don't anticipate too much, however, and you will be happier with results.

YOU BORN TODAY are magnetic; are fair arbitrators, amenable and innately capable in mechanics, artistry, at law, the judiciary. You have many assets that should be cultivated. You can be a patient, efficient teacher, manager of groups of people since you have true sympathy for the underprivileged and value character above wealth or position. You are also inclined to stubbornness about having your own way. Correct this fault now lest it smother your finer qualities. Birthdate: Virgil, Roman poet.

McCarthy Assails Head of Harvard, Nathan A. Pusey

BOSTON (AP) — Senator Joseph McCarthy concluded his testimony Thursday in his campaign for Congress trial of Leon J. Kamin, former Harvard research aide, with condemnation of Harvard president Nathan A. Pusey.

The Wisconsin Republican declared from the witness chair:

"I have no respect for a man who will harbor fifth-amendment Communists . . . I think a man who does this should not be a college president. That's why I am opposed. An educational institution which harbors Communists should be exposed."

Pusey answered McCarthy when he successfully sought re-election to the United States Senate in 1952.

Pearson Thinks Kremlin Leaders Pulling Together

COLOMBO, Ceylon (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson of Canada landed at Colombo airport at 5 p.m. today on his way to the Singapore conference on the Colombo plan for aid to underdeveloped countries.

Pearson, who has just visited Russia, told newspaper men here he did not think there was a struggle for power in the Kremlin.

He said he met members of the Politburo and he thought they were working together "quite well."

Not Sufficient Safety Measures Says Jury

OTTAWA (CP)—A coroner's jury Thursday night recommended that sports car race meets be discontinued until sponsor organizations can assure the public that all possible safety measures have been taken to protect the safety of spectators."

Following an inquest into an Aug. 27 racetrack accident at nearby Carp, Ont., airport in which two persons were killed, the jury expressed the opinion that the Ottawa Light Car Club, sponsors of the race, "did not provide sufficient safety measures to protect the spectators from crashes of this nature."

"A more thorough mechanical inspection should have been made of all cars entered in the race."

The inquest was held into the death of Angelo Spinetti, 25, of Toronto, who was fatally injured when a racing car, driven by Victor Stiles, 30, of Pembroke, Ont., went out of control rounding a curve, left the track and plunged into a group of spectators.

Mrs. Dorothy Sapsford, 43, of Ottawa, died in hospital shortly after the accident. Eleven others were injured.

Warily Travelling Recovery Road Eisenhower Enjoys Birthday in Bed

DENVER (AP) — President Eisenhower is 65 today, and while he still must travel cautiously on the uphill recovery road to complete recovery from a heart attack, it is a "happy birthday." For he is getting better every day.

His observance of the occasion is being limited, because he is not allowed out of bed as yet. But the joy of others, at home and abroad, is reflected in the scores of presents and thousands of greetings piling up by the hour at the Denver White House and Fitzsimons Army Hospital.

There is, of course, a birthday cake—a gigantic one made in secrecy so that more than 2,000 other patients and the hospital staff can share. His own section, from which he will eat a small slice, was decorated with an American flag and the inscription, "Happy Birthday, Ike."

The president, in a "happy mood," is looking forward to a stepped-up schedule of government business. Gov. George Humphrey, is flying in Saturday to talk over budgetary problems. And a conference on defense and foreign aid is set for Monday with Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

For today, however, the only business scheduled was the celebration of an anniversary for the man whose stack of coronary thrombosis Sept. 24 sent a wave of concern around the world.

Each step forward is noted carefully in the medical bulletins now released three times daily. Yesterday they gave out the news that:

1. The president had a small cup of black coffee. It was his first cup since his seizure and he had been asking for one for days.

2. He waved his hand from his elevated bed on the sun porch of the eighth floor to patients and photographers on the lawn below.

3. Mrs. Eisenhower felt it safe to leave the hospital for the first time, spending 80 minutes in a drive in the sunshine and visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. John S. Doud, where he had attacked.

4. The president's cardiogram "now shows well advanced evolutionary changes," and his "progress has been satisfactory to be maintained at the desired level."

Thursday's bulletin was the first to use the phrase "desired level" in describing Mr. Eisenhower's state of healing. The other means that the anti-coagulants being given to prevent formation of a new clot "doing fine."

BRITONS

But Townsend, asked after his visit whether he was happy, grinned at reporters and said, "Yes."

PUBLIC EXCITED

With only that cryptic monosyllable and the fact of the visit to go on, much of the British public is anticipating a happy ending to the reported royal romance.

The general guess is that there will be a public statement—any time now and not later than the opening of Parliament Oct. 25—that the princess will defy the opposition of the Church of England to wed the divorced father of two children whose custody is still living.

The Evening News says "it is generally believed that should the announcement confirm an engagement between the princess and Peter Townsend it would be made by the Queen or Sir Anthony Eden."

"The Speaker [of the House of Commons], it is thought, would then read it to Parliament when it reassembles."

The Queen is due back in London from her Scottish holiday next Tuesday morning.

VISITS QUEEN

Prime Minister Eden, now at his country home, usually visits the Queen every Tuesday evening when she is in town to give her a briefing on government business and world affairs.

The Evening Standard says Eden "will almost certainly see the Queen at Buckingham Palace this Tuesday."

Townsend's unheralded visit to Clarence House, London home of the princess and Queen Mother Elizabeth and Buckingham Palace lasted an hour and 20 minutes. As he left by car, it was the first meeting of the princess and the pilot since he was named air attache at Brussels more than two years ago. Before that they saw each other frequently over the 10 years while he was a royal equerry.

Both Princess Margaret and her mother were at Clarence House when Townsend arrived. The princess came home from Scotland Thursday morning. The Queen Mother had returned from her vacation only an hour before Townsend's visit—an ordinary business call, drove up alone in his car along the tree-lined Mall and parked in the courtyard of St. James's Palace, across a side street from Clarence House.

When Townsend emerged after the visit, he refused to say or confirm that he had talked with the princess.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A running interview ensued with reporters, with these questions and answers:

"Did you have dinner with the princess and Queen Mother Elizabeth?"

"I can say nothing."

"Did you meet Princess Margaret?"

"I can say nothing."

"Do you expect to know soon what the future holds for you?"

"I cannot say."

"Do you realize how excited the public are about all this?"

"You can't imagine the state I am in myself."

"Will rumors of a royal romance be cleared up at any time you leave has ended and you return to Brussels?"

"I do not know."

"Are you happy tonight?"

"Yes." he said accompanied with a grin.

PLAN FOR PHONES

That last answer did it, and the reporters sprinted for telephones. Almost in advance of all word from Buckingham Palace, London's morning newspapers were reduced to guessing. For instance, Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express declared flatly that as a result of the visit, it is believed an announcement of the engagement that (Here) . . . are to marry.

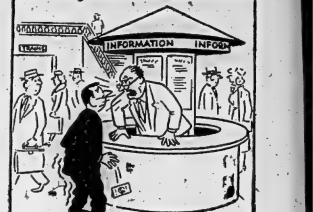
The Daily Mail commenta: Princess Margaret returned to London from Scotland yesterday, she had never looked happier or more lovely. She was radiant. And photographs show a royal romance has been those of a girl whose engagement to marry had at last been put beyond doubt.

OFFERS GRANT

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto executive committee decided Thursday night to offer the Toronto Humane Society an annual grant of $50,000 to provide free transportation for the blind and war amputation cases. Application will be made to the province to amend metropolitan legislation.

Immigration Rules for Asians Are Altered

OTTAWA (CP) — A two - way change has been made in immigration regulations on entry of Asians to Canada, thus extending the rules on entry of Asian children of Canadian citizens, and the other opening the door for the first time to aged parents of Asiatic citizens of this country.



The announcement was made Thursday by Immigration Minister Fred Gibbon.

The only Asians now admitted are wives, husbands or unmarried children under 21 of Canadian citizens able to care for their arriving dependents.

That rule now has been tightened to stipulate that children will not be admitted unless both the father and mother are living in Canada or one of them or their parents emigrates here at the same time.

The new rule on aged parents will be an expansion of one year, it added. The purpose is "to facilitate the reunion of family groups."

Applications for admission of aged Asian parents — mothers 60 or more and fathers 65 or more —now would be considered for the first time "from Canadian citizens who were in a position to receive and care for their parents."

"How would I know, being cooped up in this confounded cage day after day!"

KILL RUNAWAY COW

KITCHENER (CP) — A dozen police officers from the Kitchener and Waterloo departments fired about 25 shots into a runaway cow Thursday in efforts to bring it down. The police finally cornered the big animal at the rear of a home and finished it off with a sledgehammer.

Sunday School Lesson:

A Preacher Named John

By ROY L. SMITH

Some cynic proposed not long ago that there be a moratorium on preaching, and that no sermons be heard in the land for a period of at least ten years.

That there is all too much bad preaching, dull preaching, meaningless preaching, and even evil preaching most of us would agree. But when all that has been admitted it still remains true that the race would be vastly poorer had it not been for the real preaching it has heard through the years.

PREACHERS CONTRASTED

Odd, and perhaps revolting as it may seem, Adolph Hitler and Benito Mussolini were preachers—great preachers, in fact. Their ability to move masses of people was almost incredible. The unfortunate aspect of their preaching was that it was evil—wholly and unrelieved evil.

In contrast there was the preaching of Woodrow Wilson and Winston Churchill. No man of modern times has moved the world more profoundly than did the great wartime President of the United States with his passionate pleas for world peace and a union of nations. And Winston Churchill, "the brave old lion," became the incarnate spirit that was England through his magnificent preaching of courage.

ROOTS IN THE PAST

There is a marked tendency to discredit the past, as though it were outworn. We speak with contempt of the "horse and buggy days." We seem to assume that we must make a complete break with the past if we want to get ahead, as though a tree could grow after it was cut off at the roots.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 16 is "The Baptism of Jesus," Luke 3:1-38.

John the Baptist came calling his generation back to the path—the old, old dependable virtues, the rugged honesties, and the common decencies which will never be outgrown. There was nothing radical about his message beyond his profound conviction that the race could yet be magnificent.

We will never need another alphabet, a new spectrum, or an improved octave. Those we have will give our souls all the opportunity for great expression they can ever use. Great preaching does not have to be revolutionary in order to be great. It need only be eternal in its significance.

PEOPLE IN EXPECTATION

One of the great reasons why John's preaching was great was the fact that the people were ready to listen to great hopes proclaimed, great purposes announced, and great days described. The truly great sermon becomes tepid when it is delivered to an apathetic audience. Great preaching calls for great listening. A generation that has no faith will never hear a great preacher whose stock in trade is a great faith. It will not comprehend such a spiritual miracle.

VOICE OF CONSCIENCE

John the Baptist was the Incarnate voice of conscience for Herod and the nation. As long as John was on the loose there was hope for the king. But the moment Antipas shut the prison door on the preacher he closed the door of hope on himself. With the prophet at liberty the monarch had a chance to hear the truth; with him in prison the case was hopeless. No man ever commits a greater crime against his own soul than he does on that day when he shuts the door on his conscience, imprisoning it in expediency, lust, fear or prejudice.

Partisans Tried To Free Captives In Soviet Prison

BERLESHAUSEN, Germany (Reuters) — Another shipment of German prisoners returning from 10 years of captivity in Russia—about 600 of them — reached here with tales of desperate struggle between Soviet guards and anti-Communist partisan fighters at a prison camp.

It was the second big transport to arrive in West Germany since prisoners started returning last week.

A number of the men described a gun battle lasting several hours between Soviet guards and a force of hundreds of Russian partisans who tried to storm Orshar prison, near Minsk, in September, 1948.

The partisans came out of the surrounding woods at night, killed and wounded the guards outside the prison and broke into the inside yard.

Soviet troops from a village nearby drove the attackers out before they could reach the cells and free the prisoners.

Anti-Reds Sit On Chairs Made By Communists

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—American Legion officials hammering away at communism at the legion convention held here were sitting on chairs made behind the Iron Curtain.

Chairs on the speakers' platform in municipal auditorium were stamped under the seat with the words "made in Czechoslovakia."

'Miracle' None Die As Train Derailed

Toronto-Montreal Flyer Hits Auto At Level Crossing

40 Injured, None Seriously, As Nine Cars Leave Track

By BILL RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

RIVIERE BEAUDITTE, Que. (CP)—A lightbulling Toronto - to-Montreal passenger train smashed into a stalled car at a level crossing here Sunday night and sent nine cars spewing crazily off the track.

Provincial police estimated the number of injured at 40 but only about half of these required hospital treatment. Eight were detained in hospital at Valleyfield, Que., and another two at Cornwall, Ont.

Passengers who hacked their way out of overturned coaches with axes agreed it was "a miracle" that no one was killed. One car overturned completely and came to rest on its roof. Another crashed on its side while the other seven teetered at weird angles beside the track.

Gilles Bourbonnais, 53-year-old police constable of this village of three miles east of the Ontario border, pulled six persons out of the wreckage after smashing through a window.

STUDENTS ABOARD

The train . . . pool No. six . . . left Toronto at 5 p.m. Due at Montreal at 10.15 p.m. Among its passengers were several McGill University students and five football players returning from the Saturday game against Toronto Varsity.

They said the accident came as they were eating supper. Then, they looked out and saw nine cars derailed.

The students were among the two of the six cars that remained upright after the crash. The engine broke free of the track, grinding to a stop more than a half-mile away from the crash.

The three occupants of the car jumped clear before the train struck.

Gerard Sincennes, 25, of Eastview, Ont., a student of Ottawa, told police he was driving from Montreal. He drove slowly as he neared the track and his car stalled just as it reached the crest of the small incline.

TRIED TO FLUSH

He looked out and saw the train approaching about a mile away. Sincennes and the other two occupants of the car—Armand Parent, 26, and Jacqueline Carriere, 24, his fiancee, both of Ottawa—tried to push the vehicle across the track but were unable to budge it.

Kabaka Given Wild Welcome Home By Thousands of Uganda Africans

KAMPALA, Uganda (Reuters)—Thousands of Africans, chanting, dancing and beating drums, gave a wild welcome today to the ruler, the kabaka (king) Mutesa II of Buganda when he returned by air from two years' banishment in London.

He was carried shoulder - high from plane to car, while men prostrated themselves, kissing and clapping their hair in his honor and children waved green branches and threw wood pieces before him.

3-Day Rain Takes 34 Lives In New England

NEW YORK (AP)—Three days of drenching rain have wreaked another flood disaster on wide areas of the northeastern United States, still trying to recover from hurricane Diane's punch two months ago.

The toll from Friday through Sunday included 34 persons known or presumed dead in six states, and property losses in the millions.

The floods have caused havoc to transportation of millions of persons. Much railroad service is halted. Highways are closed and bridges knocked out.

Heavy rescues were achieved during the weekend as thousands of residents were evacuated from flood areas by helicopter, boat, duck and the arms of men afoot.

Relief operations were in high gear today, but new fears of floods and washouts spread through the affected states.

The weather bureau in Boston forecast continuing rain for today and Tuesday and warned that "rivers will continue to rise and all those in low areas should keep abreast of the latest reports and forecasts."

The big chore ahead is cleaning up and getting snarled transportation moving again. There is a threat also, to employment until flooded factories get out from blankets of mud.

The weekend weather was freakish. A two-minute twister swept through the Red Bank, N.J., area Sunday afternoon. Snow fell in western Massachusetts, southern Vermont and northern New York.

Connecticut again has been hardest hit, both in life and property. Three big rubber plants were knocked out, and more than 5,000 workers will be out of jobs temporarily.

The state had 12 dead or presumed dead by Sunday night. New York had 10, Pennsylvania seven, Rhode Island three and New Jersey and Massachusetts one each.

Danbury, Conn., reported more than 11 inches of rain from Friday through Sunday—a record.

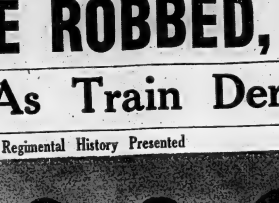
Helicopters and amphibious vehicles were used in rescue work. When a New Haven train was stranded overnight with 34 passengers, helicopters airlifted them to safety.

Thorncliffe Sold

TORONTO (CP) — Sale of the former Thorncliffe race track in suburban Leaside was announced Sunday. It has been purchased by the United States firm of F. H. Mcgraw Inc.

The company said it plans a multi - million dollar commercial and residential development on the 240 acres.

Today's Chuckle



"You'll drive me out of my mind yet," said the golfer angrily to his wife.

"That would be a putt, Dear-hardly a drive," replied his wife.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Clear skies, a thick cloud edged southward as far as the Ottawa-Mogkaka valleys Sunday evening are retreating northward again this morning, with rain feeding back into the lower lakes regions around a low pressure centre drifting up the New England coast. It now appears likely that intermittent rain will persist to day in southern Ontario, but should come to an end Tuesday morning, followed by gloomy clearing skies.

MURDER CHARGE LAID AGAINST PERCY OLMSTEAD

Thought Fire Victim, Is Trapped by Posse

NORTH BAY (CP. — Percy Olmstead, 30, today was charged with murder in the death of his 27-year-old wife, Simone, whose body was found Friday with those of the couple's three children in the smouldering ruins of a three-roomed dwelling near Sturgeon Falls.

Olmstead, arrested Sunday after a posse used tear gas to flush him from a tiny shack, appeared in court a few minutes after provincial police laid the charge. He was remanded to Oct. 25 for preliminary hearing.

The solidly - built mechanic at first was believed to have died with his family in the fire. However, district residents said Saturday they saw him after the blaze. Sunday police and a shotgun-carrying posse surrounded a shack at Crystal - Falls, 25 miles northwest of Sturgeon - Olmstead, as he tried to climb through a rear window after the tear gas bomb exploded.

The hunt for Olmstead started after police were unable to find any trace of his body in the ruins of the family cabin at Sturgeon Falls, 23 miles west of here.

The absence of any official statement about Margaret's plans — beyond last Friday's announcement that no such word would be forthcoming — has greatly stimulated much speculation. Some newspapers said the romance was on, others were thought it might be off.

The king was said to have made the remark to a reporter after the departure of the Duke of Edinburgh, who visited Denmark on his way to Germany to present colors to Canadian troops.)

Princess Returns to London, Her Intentions Still Unknown

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Princess Margaret drove back to London today. Her future intentions still unknown after her weekend meetings with Group Capt. Townsend.

The 25-year-old princess, whose affair of the heart has become an affair of state, motored back at noon to Clarence House from the country house in Windsor forest where she and Townsend spent the weekend as guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Lycett - Wills. Mrs. Wills is the daughter of Lady Elphinstone, sister of the Queen Mother.

Queen Mother Elizabeth, who spent the weekend at the royal lodge at Windsor, 10 miles from her daughter, also returned to the capital today. She smiled and waved to crowds as she arrived at Clarence House, her London home.

Townsend, after his usual morning gallop on horseback, told reporters today that he had a "very nice" weekend.

And that was the closest anyone came to an authoritative statement on the plans of the 40-year-old ex-fighter pilot and the princess whose attachment, complicated by apparent religious and constitutional obstacles, has caused a world to wonder.

One common interpretation of the weekend rendezvous was that it had been planned some time ago as a means whereby Margaret could decide for once and for all her liking for Townsend, a divorced commoner with two sons approaching high-school age, is strong enough to overcome all obstacles.

The absence of any official statement about Margaret's plans — beyond last Friday's announcement that no such word would be forthcoming — has greatly stimulated much speculation. Some newspapers said the romance was on, others were thought it might be off.

Court Will Set Date for Review Of Coffin Case

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada will set a date this week for its review of the conviction of convicted murderer Wilbert Coffin.

The attorney general of Canada today received notice on counsel for the 44-year-old prospector and the Quebec attorney general's department that a notice of motion seeking a date for the hearing will be placed before a judge of the court Saturday. However, the notice could be made earlier in the week by general agreement of all parties.

It is expected that the motion will be heard in chambers by Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin. He will set the date of the hearing and make a ruling on the type of material to be placed before the court for review.

The material likely will include evidence taken at the trial of Coffin, whose scheduled Oct. 31 execution now is to be postponed, the judgment of the Quebec Appeal Court rejecting Coffin's appeal, and briefs by counsel for all parties.

The nine-man court's review of the case will be confined to questions of law, justice department officials said. New evidence claimed by the defence in a statement to Quebec Premier Maurice Duplessis Monday night Macdonald will not be considered.

Acquitted of Murder

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Frank Cranmore, 60-year-old Devon township farmer, was acquitted Saturday night on a charge of murder in the shooting of his life-long friend, Hjalmar Danielsen.

Cranmore, 62, died to death from a gunshot wound in his left leg July 1 despite efforts of surgeons to stem the flow of blood.

An Ontario Supreme Court jury deliberated nearly two hours considering Cranmore's self-defence plea that Danielsen had threatened him.

Earlier during the trial, Paul Mikkola testified he had been drinking with the victim and other men on the day of the slaying.

'Slick' Thieves Insert New Lock, Open It With Key

Rings, Costume Jewellery, And Watches Are Stolen

Thieves stole 149 diamond rings, 285 watches and 32 sets of costume jewellery from Paul Mercier's jewellery store sometime late Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

Preliminary estimate of loss was set at $30,000 to $40,000.

The robbery was described by Belleville Police Inspector J. Clair Hayes as "the slickest I have seen in 23 years of police work." Inspector Hayes is taking charge of the investigation.

This afternoon, following the inventory, the loot was determined to be 140 diamond rings, 350 signet rings, 285 watches and 32 sets of costume jewellery, besides the week's receipts.

Thieves twisted the barrel from the barrel lock on the front door, inserted a new barrel, and using their own key, walked in. They moved the safe, which is in plain view from the street, into a side room and placed a filing cabinet of similar design in the safe's regular position making it almost impossible to detect that anything was amiss from the street.

In the side room the thieves spread cushions on the floor and then pushed the 2,000-pound safe over on its back. They broke into the safe with a crowbar.

Luggage for sale in the store was used by the thieves to carry away diamond rings, watches, jewellery and some cash.

Found in the store, and evidently used by thieves in breaking into the safe, were two small cold chisels, a six-pound sledge-hammer, a pinch bar and a five-pound crowbar.

The store's books were also badly damaged by the thieves. The books had evidently been placed between the chisel and hammer to deaden the sound of blows while breaking into the safe. They resulted in punching holes into the firm's records.

"It was a very professional job," said Inspector Hayes. "The fellows who did this one are experts on locks.

The Inspector said that the only other crime of this kind in which a lock barrel had been removed, was detected in Peterborough a week ago.

The break-in was discovered at 3:00 p.m. Sunday by Mr. Mercier who arrived at the store to find that his key would not fit the lock. Even the color of the metal in the substituted lock barrel was not the same as the original, he said.

Mr. Mercier called police and Inspector Hayes and Det. Douglas Hall immediately began the investigation.

Police have reason to think that the thieves did not leave the store until 7.30 or 8.00 a.m. Sunday.

Police have a 30-minute check on Front Street.

Mr. Mercier said that his losses are covered by insurance.

Insurance companies, sold jewellery and watches is valid only if stolen from a safe. Stolen out of the watches carried by the store are locked in a safe overnight by insurance company during non-business hours.

First Mrs. Peter Townsend Enjoys Happy, Ordinary Kent Village Life

By FERN RICH

PLANTOL, Eng. (Reuters) — Mrs. Rosemary de Lasslo, the first Mrs. Peter Townsend, has all but forgotten the 13 years she spent as the wife of the airman who rose to be equerry to King George VI.

She married again, two months after the handsome group captain divorced her in December 1952, and turned her back on royalty.

Now in Adelaide cottage, the house which the late King gave to the Townsends.

She and expert merchant John A. de Lasslo, have a baby daughter, boys, and a new baby daughter, lead a happy, ordinary life in this quiet Kent village.

The Townsends were divorced not quite three years ago on the grounds of Mrs. Townsend's misconduct with de Lasslo. The suit was undefended, and de Lasslo was ordered to pay the costs.

The divorce ended 11 years of a marriage contracted during the turbulent war years. Because of the job, the airman and his young wife were constantly on the move.

Rosemary followed Townsend from station to station. For a while she lived with relatives. Finally Townsend's brilliant wartime record won him the attention of the King who honored the flier with the post of equerry.

The ailing King came to rely on Townsend, who became friend, Peter, handsome and popular, was kept busy at the royal court. As an equerry he was at the Royal Family's beck and call, night after night.

His duties kept him so busy he seldom had time to look in at Adelaide cottage. When holiday time came, Rosemary went off to France with the boys and a nursemaid and spent lonely holidays paddling landscapes. Eventually she found her own circle of friends — one of them John de Lasslo.

Bank Teller Goes to Stratford To Stand Trial

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A Canadian policeman arrived here Saturday to take custody of a bank teller who is wanted in Stratford, Ont., on a warrant charging theft of $35,000 from the Stratford branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Sgt. E. K. Anderson said he will return to Ontario with Neil E. Dickson.

Dickson has waived extradition. He told police here he wants to get back to Canada and "get it over with." He disappeared from Stratford last Aug. 12 and was seen over to federal authorities here when he couldn't satisfactorily explain $14,000 in cash found in his possession.

U.S Inspector Dewey Sampson said two federal charges against Dickson here — carrying a false identity document, and transporting stolen and converted money across state lines — will not be dropped until Canadian authorities have returned him to that country and taken formal action in the case there.

In Belleville Sunday of $30,000 worth of precious gems was carried out by the same gang that stole $70,000 in gems in Windsor three weeks ago.

Paul Mercier, owner of the robbed Belleville store, said 149 diamond rings, 285 watches, 32 sets of costume jewellery and some cash were taken.

Three weeks ago a Toronto jewelery salesman was trailed by thieves from Chatham to Windsor. Thieves waited until he went to a restaurant for dinner and left his car unlocked. The case contained gems valued at $70,000 in gems from this motel room.

Evangelist Fox Enthralls Many At Collegiate

Scores of people accepted Christ as personal Saviour in response to the altar call of Evangelist, Lorne F. Fox, to a capacity crowd in the Collegiate auditorium on Sunday night. This climaxed a great service of music, singing and preaching of the Gospel and a vivid challenge by Mr. Fox, allegedly seen and visited in a vision by the evangelist a few years ago.

"Heaven is a real p'ace," declared the Rev. Mr. Fox. "Jesus told His disciples about it and St. John saw a vision of it. I believe the Bible. Please believe me when I tell you that God also gave me a vision of that Celestial City."

Mr. Fox held the audience in almost breathless attention as he described the beauties of Heaven and the joy, song and happiness he saw while he lay prostrate under the power of the Holy Spirit.

"There will be no more pain, or sin, or fear of the atom bomb when we get to Heaven," said Mr. Fox. "But Heaven is a prepared place for a prepared people. Some will be lost. Only those who come to Heaven eventually; but my friends, those who are saved, those who have trusted in Christ and His finished work on Calvary, will enter through the pearly gates."

HUNDREDS ACCEPT CHRIST

Hundreds of people have accepted Christ as Saviour during the first two weeks of the Fox campaign. Many have testified that many testimonies of healing have been received. The crowds that have packed the Collegiate auditorium night after night have grown to such a size that everyone very highly not only for his gifted musical talent but for the sound, sane way that he presents the Gospel. Mr. Fox is not a pulpit-pounding, hot-gospeller and he does not condone anything that borders on fanaticism in his message. His spirit of love and compassion for the soul sick and the bodily sick wins the confidence of his hearers.

Mr. Fox is quoted as saying, "we have come to Belleville primarily to preach the 'old time religion' in the old, long and strong. We are gratified to see our altars crowded with men and women who come forward courageously to publicly confess Christ. The great need in modern religious life is for a return to the simple fundamentals of the Gospel, as it was believed and practised by our forefathers in generations past. Such a revival will bring the solution to the many perplexing problems of homes, families and nations.

"It is evident to spiritual leaders everywhere, both in this country and throughout the whole world, that we face an extremely grave hour of need for a true spiritual realm. I believe, in the sincerity of my heart, that human methods in themselves have failed to meet the need. We need the anointing of the Spirit upon our lives anew."

WIFE A SOLO LEADER

Mrs. Ruth L. Fox, wife of the evangelist, is the song leader of the party. Her splendid contralto voice is heard nightly in solo renditions of favorite hymns. Other members of the party include Ray and Aden Troyer, singers and musicians. Mr. Lorne F. Fox is a sacred concert pianist and organist. He has composed many gospel songs, dramatic pianoforte works and contatas. Original compositions of the evening programs have included "The Conquerors' March," "Thanksgiving," "Battle of Armageddon," "The Storm," "The Walls of Jericho."

The Rev. Lorne F. Fox was born in Rostia, near Belleville. Many of his relatives reside in and near Belleville; among them, an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Fox of Centreville, and a brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. Fox, Isabel St., Belleville.

MOVED TO ALBERTA

At an early age, Mr. Fox moved from Ontario to reside in Edmonton, Alberta, where he began intensive training to be a concert pianist and organist. Midway in his training with the Toronto Conservatory of Music he was stricken ill, and had to desist from public work. He claims that ultimately he regained his health through faith and prayer. Thereafter he was ordained to devote his life, and musical talent, to the religious ministry.

Mr. Fox owns a large tent cathedral-seating more than 3,000 persons, which is the scene of many campaigns during the warmer season of the year. At the conclusion of the Belleville campaign near Sunday, Fox party are scheduled to open an extensive crusade in Windsor, and later on they will go to the West Indies and also to Europe.

Al Drysdale, Named Supt. Canada Cement Plant, Pres. of Kiwanis Club at Same Time

At one and the same time Al Drysdale has taken over as superintendent of operations of the Canada Cement Company plant at Point Anne and presidency of the Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Drysdale has been promoted to superintendent Belleville plant No. 5 of the company, after living and working continuously since 1946, with a short period of service previous to joining the wartime army.

He also has been named president of the Kiwanis club, to succeed Stafford McKenna, in the new year.

As superintendent of one of the district's largest industrial operations, Mr. Drysdale succeeds J. H. Legate. Mr. Legate has been appointed plant manager of the company's local branch.

NATIVE OF OTTAWA

A native of Ottawa and an engineering graduate of McGill, he joined the Belleville cement plant for a brief interval in 1941, being engaged in quarry work and finally plant engineer. Five months later he joined the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, eventually going overseas with the Canadian Army. During the war he was mentioned in dispatches.

In 1946 he came out of the army with the rank of major, to resume his position with the Canada Cement Company. Four years later he was transferred as assistant superintendent at the Belleville plant.

Since coming to Belleville he has been a prominent figure in community activities. His lively interest in his profession is evidenced by the fact that he has been past president of the Ontario branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, past president of the Belleville and District Apprenticeship Advisory Committee, while he also formed the local 27th Technical Squadron of the RCEME. He also is a member of the Bay of Quinte High School Board and a director of the Chamber of Commerce.

His connections with Kiwanis go back to January 1951, when the club he has been chairman of achievement and ways and means committees. During the past year he has been vice-president of the club.

WITH COMPANY 35 YEARS

His predecessor with the company, Mr. Legate, has been 35 years in the service. He is a native of Belleville and a graduate of Toronto University, he joined the company's engineering staff after he started with Canada Cement. His promotion as plant manager was announced on the same time as that of Mr. Drysdale.

Like his successor, Mr. Legate also has a heavy record of community activity. He is past master of the Rotary Club, the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital, a director of the Y.M.C.A., and the Industrial Acceptance Prevention of Ontario. He also is well known for his intense interest in sport, particularly in the Point Anne district. He is an ardent angler.

Countless Basements Flooded By Heavy Rains Since Thurs.

What is believed to be an all-time record rainfall in the Bay of Quinte district has seen 9.6 inches of rain since the first of October.

Since Thursday when the deluge began many homes in areas of water has fallen with 3.88 inches since midnight Friday.

Many basements in the city residential district have been flooded with sewers backing up or with water from the outside forcing its way through cracks and up basement basement floors.

City Engineer Charles Mott said today that public works employees have been on duty 24 hours per day pumping out basements and keeping drains cleared.

Many basements undergoes right from foreman down have done a "marvellous job" since the rain started," the city engineer said. "They have worked long hours, often without meals, in an effort to keep up with calls for pumping out cellars."

And the same has been true for city firemen who have had many calls for assistance.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance said that his department had answered 38 basements Saturday and Sunday, "and we still have more to do," he said.

Even a crew from the public utilities board was on with pumps to give firemen and public works a hand.

Pressure of outside water from over-flowed farm lands is the cause as much trouble in basements as plugged sewers, according to the city engineer.

However, tremendous pressure was being put on many sewers, it being almost impossible to keep ground pluss in place to prevent sewers backing up.

Normally dry creeks today are over-flowed and farm lands in the lower lying areas are inundated. The Moira River has risen several feet and a swift current is flowing.

Farmers stated that plowing in low areas will be held up for days or even weeks until the surface water runs away and the land dries.

Bill Bonnell New President Badminton Club

Bill Bonnell was elected president of the Belleville Garrison Badminton Club at the club's inaugural meeting of the 1955-'56 season held Friday at the Armouries.

Other officers elected for the new year are: vice-president Ron Walmsley, secretary Miss Wilhelmina Walden; treasurer Al Graham; ladies' team captain Betty Walmsley; men's team captain Bill Gilbert, social conveners Norma Calphan and Betty McNeely.

Approximately 30 members attended the meeting which was presided over by retiring president, Ian McDonald.

It was announced that new lighting facilities for the courts would be ready soon.

Membership fees were increased to $5 per season and it was decided that three nights per week at least would be available for play.

A membership drive was planned to bring in 45 new members.

Boeing Jet Crosses Continent in 4 Hours

SEATTLE (AP) — Boeing's 707 Stratoliner flew across the country and back Sunday in less time than it takes conventional air lines to cross the United States one way.

The 707 took three hours and 58 minutes to fly from Seattle to Washington, at an average speed of 582 miles an hour. The first American commercial jet air transport flew back to Seattle in four hours and eight minutes at an average speed of 570.

The Boeing test pilot, A. M. (Tex) Johnston, 42, called it an "uneventful" flight in the four-jet job. He predicted that such times will be common in three years.

IN MEMORIAM

CARMICHAEL — A tribute of love to our son and brother, Allan (Tiny) Carmichael, who left us October 17th, 1950, at the age of 17.
Our hearts are aching for you,
Our dear lad, so true and kind;
We came a bloody we didn't expect,
A hard and bitter blow.
Happy and smiling, always content,
Loved and respected wherever he went;
—Ever remembered by Mother, Dad and Sister.

Always thoughtful, willing and kind,
A memory we cherish in our mind,
Left behind
—Sadly missed by his Mom, Dad and Sister.

CARMICHAEL — In loving memory of Allan Carmichael, who passed away, Oct. 17th, 1950.
Sweet is the memory of him we knew,
He was so kind, so generous, and true.
On earth he nobly did his best.
Great him, Jesus, heavenly rest.
—Ever remembered by Selma.

ROGERS — In loving memory of our dear mother, Gladys Rogers, who passed away on October 17th, 1953.
Laughing and happy, always content;
Spreading sunshine wherever she went;

A beautiful memory she left behind.
—Ever remembered by Carolyn, Jane and mother.

EGGLETON — In loving memory of our dear sister, Clara E. Sprague (Eggleton), who departed this life October 17th, 1942.
Dear sister, she walks among the stars
Where grief can never go,
Among the angels and the saints,
She is not sad, I know.
She would not wish for us to weep,
For she, who lived so well,
Has left this world of sorrow and sin
To be with Jesus and dwell.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—There was a firm undertone to the industrial list during the first hour of trading on the Toronto stock exchange today. The trend was in marked contrast to the sharp setbacks suffered by the market in the opening sessions of the three previous weeks.

Business was slow at the opening but gathered some speed as trading progressed.

Among industrials, foods were most in demand. Weston's led with a $5 advance to 127 following approval on Friday by shareholders of a four-for-one stock split. Steels, refining oils, liquors and papers posted a good majority of fractional gains.

Up major fractions were Bank of Commerce, B.C. Forest Products and Russell Iver.

Base metals showed irregular improvement.

Uraniums drew little interest. In a mixed golds section, Bulolo added 30 at $2.55.

Western oils marked up a fractional index gain with Canada Oil Lands and Trinity among the lightly firmer issues.

OPP Inspector Not Satisfied 3 Died in Fire

BRANTFORD (CP)—Laboratory tests by provincial pathologist Dr. Ward Smith have shown that some of the bones found in the ruins of a farmhouse near Burford are human, Ontario Provincial Police said today.

But police said they still have no clue to the fate of Mrs. Phyllis Malke, 27, and her two daughters. They have been unrepentant since their farm home burned nine days ago.

Insp. D. A. Nicol of the provincial police criminal investigation branch said he is not satisfied Mrs. Maleks died in the fire. Aside from the handful of human bones found in the ruins, an intensive police investigation has turned up only a shot gun, two shell cases and a battered bayonet.

CHANGES MIND

Jan Theodosia, 31, who lived in the house, said he no longer thinks the three died in the fire.

"I'm convinced now . . . (they weren't) in there when the fire started," Theodosia said. "I think she may have run off to the States."

Sightseers visited the Burford township farm in droves during the weekend and littered nearby fields with discarded cups and plates.

Brewery Strike Deadline Is Set

TORONTO (CP) — Nearly 1,200 brewery workers in four Ontario cities have set midnight Wednesday as the deadline for strike action to enforce contract demands from Canadian Breweries Ltd.

Six hundred members of the United Brewery Workers' Union (CIO-CCL) at two Toronto plants of O'Keefe's Sunday joined workers in Windsor, Hamilton, and Waterloo in authorizing strike action.

Negotiations broke off following a conciliation board hearing Sept. 21.

Dragged on the highway for some distance after he was thrown from his car following collision with a truck, Joseph Bourette, Moira Street, is in serious condition in Belleville General Hospital with multiple fractures of the right leg, concussion and head injuries.

The accident occurred Saturday afternoon during the heavy rain on No. 2 highway near the Point Anne turn when Bourette's car and a truck driven by Theophile Beaudet of Montreal, collided.

Bourette was thrown from his car and was caught under the dual wheels of the truck and dragged for some distance on the highway. The injured man was taken to hospital by Bush's Ambulance.

Provincial police investigated at least four other accidents over the week-end but although property damage was heavy in two of the mishaps there were no injuries reported.

Cars driven by Jaroslav Adamik of Batawa, Norman J. Hamlin, Bay Street, Trenton, and Roman Tuszynski, Toronto, were in collision on No. 2 highway between the air station and Trenton. The accident occurred at three o'clock Sunday morning.

On highway 37 north of Belleville, a car driven by Murray Reid, Trenton, went out of control and struck a hydro pole.

6,000 in Red Slave Camp Stage Revolt

CAMP FRIEDLUND, Germany (AP)—Dark secrets of the Soviet police—a slave labor revolt crushed by tanks and numerous Westerners held in nameless captivity—were buried Sunday by Germans returning to freedom from Russia.

A survivor said 2,500 men and 2,500 women held in three desolate prison camps at Kingir, in desert Kazakhstan, staged an uprising for six weeks last year against their guards.

"Never before have foreign and Russian workers challenged the Soviet power for so long a time," said Karl Paffen, 50, of Cologne. "Then army units with tanks arrived and wiped out resistance. The camp I was in had 300 dead."

Swims for Life As Floods Carry Away Her House

NORWALK, Conn. (AP). — Mrs. Susan Kelly, 71, swam for her life early Sunday when the rain-swollen Norwalk river carried away her two-storey home.

Mrs. Kelly, clinging in the darkness to a piece of lumber, was hauled out of 15 feet of water by Norwalk policemen after the city's mayor spotted a bread bobbing in the flood, by the light of his flashlight.

New Zealand Has Custody Of Rare Animal

AUCKLAND, N.Z (CP) — The police at Mount Maunganui, New Zealand, have the strangest mystery on their hands for some time. They have taken custody of an animal which has the front end of a cat and the rear end of a rabbit.

Named a "rabbit" for want of any other name, the animal has been trained to walk on a leash. It walks with a strange motion, catlike in front, but hopping at the rear. Its head and front forelegs are those of a cat, but the rest, including the tail, is like a rabbit.

Experts think it might be the offspring of a cat and a rabbit. But whatever it is, the cat end is in control of diet. It lives on milk and meat, but scorns carrots.

Lord Tweedsmuir Captivates Audience at Reunion Dinner

"It is not the size of a dog in a fight, but the size of the fight in a dog. That I learned when serving with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment."

Cheers from 230 throats rang out in the ANAF auditorium Sunday afternoon as Lieut.-Colonel Lord John Tweedsmuir uttered these dramatic words to members of the regimental association.

The tall slim former commanding officer who led the regiment in its spectacular assault on the heights of Assoro, Sicily and later was wounded in Italy, and Lady Tweedsmuir were special guests of the "plowboy soldiers" at their Eleventh Annual two-day reunion.

He was the guest speaker at the banquet held in the veterans' spacious club auditorium. Lord Tweedsmuir captivated his soldier audience and special guests with a droll humorous speech that was only too clearly marked by its brevity.

In moments of serious vein he paid eloquent tribute to various members of the regiment, who served under him. His address was punctuated by vociferous applause that clearly demonstrated the fact that his popularity today is as strong as in the dark days on the battle fronts.

Lord Tweedsmuir was singularly honored when Lieut.-Colonel E. R. Fairman, commanding officer of the reserve battalion formally announced that the former CO. has been made honorary colonel of the battalion. The honor was accentuated with the presentation of gold-plated buttons, a crown and two stars symbolic of his rank and a set of buttons for a blazer. The official notification of the appointment as honorary colonel of the regiment Command was presented to the new honorary colonel.

Taken by surprise Lord Tweedsmuir said "This is the most exciting moment of my life. I shall wear these badges with enormous pride."

Amid laughter Lord Tweedsmuir said his former comrades in arms "This is the first time I have ever had an extra cap badge. The first one I had was polished on an anipad by Charlie Keene, that only the bearer is visible."

GREAT HONOR

"You have done me a very great honor, one that I shall remember with pride and pride all my life."

Lord Tweedsmuir, who had recently returned with Lady Tweedsmuir from a tour of the Canadian west, said in jocular vein, "Everyone asked us when we were going to leave. I told them we leave for Britain on October 20, but the most important is our engagement on October 19 with the Hasty Pees."

Referring to his tenure as commanding officer, the British peer smilingly said: "It only lasted a short time. I was almost lost in the mist of iniquity."

He paid tribute to Farley Mowat, author of the regimental history, "The Regiment." "It is the finest thing he has written. As a writer Farley has a tremendous future."

"The Hasty Pees left Canada as an obscure regiment," he said. "Now many of its sins have gained distinction. It has a member the Chief of the General Staff and nearly others has gained fame."

The regiment left for England an "amateurish bunch of citizens, but after three years' training in England it was one of the most highly professionized armies that ever left its shores. Wellington, Marlboro had nothing to compare with these men," Lord Tweedsmuir said.

Paying tribute to "The Regiment," he said it was a brilliant book. He added, amid cheers and laughter, "I have been referred to as a blasphemy-shield by bloke. Farley should have been more careful with the word "Limey." It originated from the fact that British naval crews used to drink lime juice as a prevention against disease."

ANAEMIC BEVERAGE

"If any anybody in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, or any other regiment," Lord Tweedsmuir said with a solemn expression on his face, "to say they ever saw me indulge in this green, anaemic beverage. I prefer the amber-colored fluid with a high octane content." The auditorium shook with laughter and cheers.

"I have been in the Hasty Pees, Lord Tweedsmuir said. "But you usually find these guys everywhere. There were enough to make me feel at home. He said he had been doing various things such as dabbling in politics, a United Kingdom delegate to the United Nations, and had been in business. "But one thing always stays with me and that is the "Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. When I went down in the dumps I always remember that great truth. It is the size of the dog in a fight, but the size of the fight in a dog. That I learned while serving with the battalion."

GENERAL GRAHAM'S GREETINGS

Major Bill Grayden acted as master of ceremonies at the banquet and in the head table were former commanding officers of the regiment, Brigadier Don Cameron, Lieut-Col. W. N. Davern; Lieut.-Col. George Renison and others here, Lieut.-Col. R. Fairman, Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, Major Colin Hepburn, Lieut.-Col. T. E. McLaughlin, Bownanville; Warden James Sprackett of Hastings County; Lieut.-Col. R. R. Widdifield, Ottawa, and others. All gave brief greetings to members of the regiment and the association.

Major Grayden read telegrams from Lieut-General Howard Graham, chief of the general staff now in the Maritimes and from Hasty Pees in Vancouver. Lieut.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, Green Sound and ex-commanding officer, sat with the "troops".

Major Grayden later presented Ken Smith, editor of the regimental publication the "Plow Jockey" with a handsome brief case in appreciation of his services.

At the annual meeting of the regimental association held in the morning Major Jack Bird was elected president succeeding Major Graydon and Sergeant Coate was elected secretary-treasurer re-elected.

County Assessor Chosen From 9 Applicants

PICTON. —A. W. Jennings of Peterborough has been engaged as county assessor. Prince Edward County Council, in session on Thursday, heard nine applications for the position. Salary will be $3,000 per year with $500 travelling allowance. The county will provide an office and stationery. Mr. Jennings will commence his duties on December 1.

Decision to engage a county assessor followed claims that the equalized assessment of Prince Edward municipalities was not equal and that some were assessed too low and others too high.

Half the salary of a county assessor is paid by the provincial government.

COUNCIL MAKES THREE WISE DECISIONS

The city council is to be congratulated for its decision to provide Belleville ratepayers with the opportunity to reduce the size of the council.

Last Tuesday the council passed a by-law directing that at the next municipal election a vote will be taken as to whether the number of aldermen should be reduced from the present seven to eight.

Ratepayers should authorize the change. A fifteen-member council is too large. A council consisting of eight aldermen and a mayor is quite large enough to assure the presentation of every viewpoint and the consideration of every phase of a question. A larger council merely tends to lengthen debate, without improving it.

With a smaller number of members to be elected, ratepayers will be able to exercise greater discrimination. There will be less likelihood of a candidate getting a vote merely because the ratepayer prefers him, or her, to some other candidate, rather than because of a sincere conviction on the part of the voter that the candidate would make a good alderman.

The council is also to be congratulated for refusing to endorse a vote on a two-year term for mayor. The mayor of a city usually occupies important a position to render a two-year term attractive to the electorate. Sometimes a man with little municipal experience is elected to the mayor's chair. It would be inadvisable to make it impossible for the mayor to be defeated after he has served for two whole years. There is nothing wrong with the present one-year term.

Also encouraging was the council's refusal to order a vote on the ward system of electing aldermen. Ald. Arthur Keegan, who sponsored a motion for such a vote, said that it would silence for better representation of the people. In the sense that problems peculiar to a certain section of the city would be certain of receiving adequate attention, Ald. Keegan is right. It might be pointed out that this advantage is more than offset by disadvantages. The ward system has a tendency to promote sectional interests, with aldermen more interested in pleasing the voters in the particular ward which they represent than in serving the best interests of the city as a whole. If, as is generally the case, the alderman for a ward must be a resident of that ward, it drastically limits the choice of ratepayers in the selection of a council. It is quite possible that two, three or more excellent candidates may all reside in one ward, while in another ward there may be no citizen of comparable calibre prepared to stand for council.

TWO-MONTH SUMMER

Brrr.

That's canard about there being eight months of winter in Canada is only 80 per cent of the horrible truth, as far as Bancroft is concerned.

We declare this shock-producing statement from "Agricultural Statistics for Ontario—Year 1954," prepared by the statistics and publications branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Figures for 1954 precipitation and the long term average are provided. In only two months in the year, July and August, does Bancroft normally escape snow. June and September generally produce a trace. Bancroft is, therefore, entitled to the warmest congratulations, somewhat belated to be sure, on its achievement in 1954. Not only did it have a snowless July and August, but only four inches all told and a trace of snow in June and September, but it actually stretched its customary two-month summer to six months, by dodging snowflakes in May and October.

Coming farther south, we find Belleville is in line for plaudits. It beat Trenton in precipitation by over 2½ inches, and this in spite of a handicap for Trenton inasmuch as the exactly three quarters of an inch more precipitation than Belleville.

(P.S.—After the week-end we are not so sure that higher precipitation is reason for congratulations.)

PLANT'S COCKTAIL HOUR

A vote of thanks is due to Joseph Henderson of Haltwhistle, England. He has discovered that lemonade is a better plant food than beer. Some folks in England were watering plants with beer. This struck Henderson as a criminal waste. He tried lemonade, and on a diet of three cups weekly his chrysanthemums grew ten feet tall.

That should cure the Englishman in Haltwhistle and perhaps the village's name will be changed. Folks there will no longer be too dry to whistle.

But wait! A horrible thought occurs. Could it be that when the lemonade was used up, the vitamin C went to delphiniums the lemonade would have to be spiked? Perhaps plants have different tastes too. Ale may be the only cure for ailing alysaum.

AIRPLANE FOR $1,143

The French "Sipa 1000", also known as the "Coccinelle" and the "Flying Scooter," is a neat little airplane made by the Societe Industrielle pour l'Aeronautique to sell for $1,143, or less than most low-priced European automobiles. It is about 20 feet long, weighs 660 pounds, is easy to fly, does 106 mph, and can take off from a football field. It will make almost 40 miles on a gallon of gas.

The instrument panel is as simple as the dashboard of an automobile. All of which seems to make it the plane that almost anyone can afford to fly. (France Actuelle.)

THE FAMILY BIBLE

Other books we gave away,
Lent to friends or loaned aside.
But for comfort, day by day,
On the Bible we relied.

Ours we called it. Ours it stayed,
There for all who wished to see
Names and dates of birth displayed
As our family history.

Now it stands upon my shelf,
Mine to cherish while I live.
I've bought others for myself,
Some to keep and some to give,

That's the Bible mother read.
That's the record father penned.
That's the Bible at her bed,
Kept and treasured to the end.

In the family may it stay.
This my hope, when I have gone
That, as I, my children may
To their children pass it on.

THE FIRST ST. MICHAEUS CHURCH. In connection with the opening and consecration of the new St. Michael's Church on Sunday by His Grace Archbishop Gauthier, it is interesting to note that the first altar in a Roman Catholic Church in Belleville was set up in the year 1827 in a small wooden building about twenty feet by fifty feet which stood on the southeast corner of the same lot upon which the present church stands. The Rev. Father Michael Brennan was the first parish priest and under his care the parish of St. Michael's flourished. In the year 1837 the second church, a stone edifice, was built and in it the congregation of St. Michael's worshipped for about fifty years. Eventually it was found to be too small and also falling into a bad state of repair. The building of the beautiful new church, which was destroyed by fire last December, was commenced in 1886, the corner stone being laid on August 22 and the church was opened for services on October 7, 1888.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DESERVE CONFIDENCE

You tie to the person in whom you have confidence, and it is this confidence that makes another tie to you—and deserve it! Runs on banks and business depressions have as the basis of mistrust this lack of confidence. Will the organization you have no fear when times get low, or when rumors are falsely given circulation.

A friend of mine who has saved from his earnings for years told me that when he had confidence in a business, in which he had invested his savings, nothing could make him liquidate that investment. He said me of how over the years his confidence had brought forth growth and stability to his holdings.

A wellrun business deserves the confidence of its stockholders. They have a part in its success and usefulness. Those few who had confidence in the dream of Henry Ford at 5 dollars a day, were fortunes. It was because of the confidence people had in the 10 cheap car that millions became purchasers. And today that company has so improved its cars that it is forging ahead, constantly improving its latest models and increasing the confidence of those who have watched the growth of this now giant concern.

Millions contribute to the success of railroads because passengers have confidence in the engineers and those who are at the controls. When we lose confidence in a person, or enterprise, we have no more to do with either. The great prosperity of America is due to the confidence that the people have in its free way of life.

Deserve confidence and people will give it to you. It's a sort of capital that cannot be bought or sold to buy. It is one of the major ingredients of character. Integrity is but another way of spelling it. Deserve confidence and you will learn one of the great secrets of success and happiness.

Psems Fscilly

(Sunshine Magazine)

The examination was a real puzzler. It asked why "psychic" is spelled with a "p."

The young man in the far corner did not have the answer, but he felt he could not leave the question unheeded. Shaking his head, he wrote, "It positainly does pseem pelly."

Magic Lights

(Montreal Gazette)

The artist, James McNeily Whistler, has spoken of the magical effects that changes of light may make upon a scene, and the beauty that may arise with the kindliness of mist. In the hard clear light the scene may be drab enough, perhaps nothing nor than warehouses. But given an evening light, and a mist rising from the riverside, and the whole scene changes before the eyes.

Whistler speaks of such a time "when the evening mist clothes the riverside with poetry, as with a veil, and the poor buildings lose themselves in the dim sky, and the tall chimneys become campanili, and the warehouses are palaces in the night, and the whole city hangs in the heavens, and fairyland is before us . . ."

It is at such time that the ordinary and the familiar take on marvellous forms, as if they were revealing another side of their nature. Of such a moment recently Wordsworth wrote in his sonnet "Composed upon Westminster Bridge" (Sept. 3, 1802)." The city, forgetting its smoke and noise, rose before the eyes of the poet glittering in the light of the dawn. Though a great human city, it was described as taken on the majestic stillness of one of the works of nature.

Never did sun more beautifully steep
In his first splendor valley, rock, or hill;
Ne'er I, never felt, a calm so deep!
The river glideth at his own sweet will:
Dear God! the very houses seem asleep;
And all that mighty heart is lying still.

The sliver of moonlight is, of course, one of the most magnificent effects of light, drawing the world into a new mood or mode. Walter de la Mare once made a list, almost a prosaic list, of ordinary things seen in pictures of the world of moonlight:

Of how the cameramen catch
Her beams beneath the silvery thatch,
Couched in his kennel, like a dog;
From their shadowy cotes the white sheep peer,
Of doves in a silver-feathered dovecot,
A harvest mouse goes scampering by,
With silver claws, and silver eye;
And moveless fish in the water gleam,
By silver reeds in a silver stream.

To feel these changes, to be sensitive to the magic, may require a mood, something that may not be induced by the change before the eyes, but also by a change in the heart. A mood of stillness, of sadness, or disappointment, or an unexpected achievement may make a mind welcome the subtle changes that may steer over the commonplace scene.

This is finely described in Thomas Hardy's novel, "Jude the Obscure." Far off isthe city, and theboy, climbing a high slope, beholds it in the night. The lights are no seen separately, like stars, but with a soft glow, perhaps suggested perhaps against the mist of the night sky. It is the silent glory. It is not just as something seen. It is the symbol of inner feeling—the faraway longing of life.

There are journals of a missionary bishop who did much hard travelling with many discomforts, but who was full of enthusiasm and faction in the mysterious wonders of the night. He loved its mood and sound. He was Rt. Rev. J. G. Mountain, the Anglican Bishop of Quebec from 1837 to 1850.

Bishop Mountain had a quality of mind that responded to the changing impressions. It appeared to him that "night is the time for poetry, but of romance, is an addition to our happiness." He admitted that in crossing wild wintry mountains on horseback, he would rather draw a cloak over his head than button up a great coat.

Declared through his journals and letters which describe how quick he was to catch those changing impressions which he once described how, riding horseback, he "enjoyed the sight of ample covert of trees, and heard, in the stillness of the night, the rivulet flowing, which, perhaps, would have been swelled by the recent rains."

Alone in the darkness it was a wild romantic sound, as if for a brief hour the autumn wind and night brushing its way through the forest trees.

What are these impressions? They are more than brief lights of light and sound, passing fancies, momentary departures from sober reality.

The answer will depend upon God's conception of the nature of man. But there will always be those who will feel that—

The hope that lost in some far distance scene,
May be truer life, and this the dream.

Summer 1955 Made History

(Christian Science Monitor)

It is easy enough for a stormy season to get itself talked about — indeed almost celebrated. Give a season a bad name and it will go down in history. But a pleasant spring, an easy winter, or a summery summer has to be superlative in order that a good deal may live after it.

Yet almost two conline-ts, North America and Europe, the summer of 1955 has succeeded in becoming memorable. Not that it was all well upon us people are remembering that it was a time to be relieved to be the summerist summer in perhaps fifty years.

Many people, it seems, so being broiled a few times a summer; they have come to expect it as an even crisper brown. Britons expect to be nine days out of ten somewhat ill least, as some of them say, on the third Wednesday of July Americans to be a little chilled. So this year they have enjoyed what they have considered a rare treat—a balmy, almost spring-like summer.

The result of all this may prove to be a boon to the whole world touristically. There have been more tourists in Britain this year than ever before, representing many of the nations in the western alliance. And they have gone home in many cases disabused of the notion that Britons are a fog-and-smoke ably unitalkative people. For the one thing they will talk about is the weather.

And good weather is still serving to mislead people about it. Second and at home. It has helped Americans to look like the most sunkissed people of all in the last few days. You see, it was even being good — for the World Series.

Poor Timing By Bennett

(Windsor Star)

All in one day, Premier W. A. C Bennett of British Columbia declares himself a Socialist and suggests abolition of the federal 10 percent sales tax. Ottawa is currently engaged in deficit financing but the Social Credit premier did n't pry for the abolition of such a b le proposal. Perhaps Mr. Bennett knows a political "trick," foolish consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds adored by little statesmen and philosophers and doctrines." But the author of those lines, Ralph Waldo Emerson, went on: "Speak what you think today in words as hard as cannon-balls, and tomorrow speak what tomorrow thinks..." Mr. Bennet should have the decency to put at least a day or two between his propositions.

Talking Over Rays of Sun

(New York Times)

Talk to a friend over the telephone and the voice weakens so much with distance that it must be amplified if it is to reach its destination. Into the vacuum tube — the Aladdin lamp of the electronic age. It can make he walk-ie-talkie of the G-man possible, the ticking of a watch like a trip-hammer, the conversation of doctors being germanium or silicon in the transistor radio. The impurities convert the germanium or silicon into what are called "semiconductors" able to drive, with their samples, into all the villages of the countryside. Some of the towns, to call upon the general storekeepers, who are the very important volume of the country's retail trade. Few people travelled in those days, except on business and other important occasions. To get from a village to the nearest big town was a serious undertaking, done by horse and buggy or horse and sleigh. The rural business of the country was done by the village store, which bought and to accommodate the travelling men who made the busy rounds, there grew up at strategic villages in each area good hotels and afforded good beds, and were the community of their townships. They vied with one another for the commercial trade, and the travelling men knew well where the best accommodation was, and arranged their trips by buggy and sleigh through the countryside accordingly.

When the motor car killed the horse and buggy, it also killed the village hotels. For twenty years, they have operated on in passing, rather tumbledown, and converted into housing for village residents; but in the past year or so a few grandiums in its cans in the winning, almost-lost battle.

The tourist trade is giving a great many of them a lively resurgence. Some towns are back — partial to the motels or tourist cabins around the edges found in rural areas. An old hotel, refurbished, is in some ingenious feeling of the antique in its furniture and decoration, has a definite attraction.

One such resurrected village hotel which I visited recently has been doing a prosperous business all summer.

"And now," said its proprietress, "I have some of the summer visitors coming back for repeat weekends in the fall. You would be astonished at the number of reservations I already have for Christmas and New year. I think backroad villages are coming to life."

The Pathology of Chronic Joint Disability

Any standard medical textbook deals with the disease or diseases which the author or authors feel competent to discuss, in the same orderly way as did the great Dr. William Osler in his famous Practice of Medicine. Osler on the subject of pneumonia Osler first defined pneumonia and told something of the history and incidence of the disease. Next he presented the views or opinions of himself and others about the cause or causes of pneumonia. Then a page or two about the pneumonia germ (Pneumococcus). And then two pages on the pathology — the changes which occur in lungs and other structures involved in the disease.

But neither Osler nor any recognized authority today, as far as I have been able to learn, deals with "arthritis" or with the rheumatic or with chronic joint disability of any kind in any such orderly way.

No, indeed. Authors waste little time or space on pathology, for the good reason that they don't know any more about the nature of chronic joint disability today than the medical authorities knew fifty years ago.

Osler describes the "rheumatoid arthritis" and "chronic rheumatism." ascribes both conditions (if they are not essentially the same), to "exposure to cold and damp", says that in both the cartilages undergo changes and may show erosion; the ends of bones may become eburnated, muscular atrophy occurs. Neuritis and trophic disturbances may occur. In both there is thickening of capsular ligaments, etc, etc, so that it is hard to tell without turning back to the heading of the chapter, just what the author is describing.

I am convinced there is just one explanation for the great majority of cases of chronic joint disability — which I call rheumatic, not rheumatism nor arthritis, and that is physical degeneration of joint tissue.

Though I have talked about it until I'm blue in the face, there'll always be plenty of paying customers who smugly think "arthritis" is something only well-to-do people can afford.

Let me remind you what the Bulletin on Rheumatic Diseases, published May 11, '54, by Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, said about these latter-day ailments, for which you pay and pay and pay:

"The principal shortcoming of modern drug therapy" of rheumatic joint disability or, as the Bulletin says, "of arthritis and rheumatism") "is that while the results are more dramatic and immediate, they are temporary when medication is discontinued. Because of the potent drugs in use today have not shown conclusively that they can alter the natural course of the disease or prevent crippling."

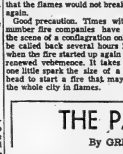
WATCH OUT FOR SPARKS

The Bible speaks of making our way thru a city recently, where fire in house was partly consumed. Fire companies from all over the city converged upon the point and put out the fire after considerable effort. But one fire company remained on the scene of the fire to see that the flames would not break out again.

Good precaution. Times without number fire companies have left the scene of a conflagration, only to be called back several hours later when the fire started up with renewed vehemence. It takes only one little spark the size of a pinhead to start a fire, but that may put the whole city in flames.

Satan is like that. He is constantly trying to start fires in the lives of men. He knows well where the best accommodation was, and arranged their trips by buggy and sleigh through the countryside accordingly.



He knows well where the best accommodation was, and arranged their trips by buggy and sleigh through the countryside accordingly.

He knows well where the best accommodation was, and arranged their trips by buggy and sleigh through the countryside accordingly.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The tourist is giving back what the commercial traveller stole away, long years ago.

Old, decayed hotels in back-road villages are coming to life again in response to the tourist trade.

Before the advent of the motor car and the highway, commercial travellers moved by railroad from town to town, and there rented livery stable buggies to drive, with their samples, into all the villages in the surrounding countryside. Most of the towns, to call upon the general storekeepers, who are the very important volume of the country's retail trade. Few people travelled in those days, except on business and other important occasions. To get from a village to the nearest big town was a serious undertaking, done by horse and buggy or horse and sleigh. The rural business of the country was done by the village store, which bought and to accommodate the travelling men who made the busy rounds, there grew up at strategic villages in each area good hotels and afforded good beds, and were the community of their townships. They vied with one another for the commercial trade, and the travelling men knew well where the best accommodation was, and arranged their trips by buggy and sleigh through the countryside accordingly.

Hasty Pees Roll Back Curtain Of Time to Stage 71th Battalion Reunion, Honor Former Head

(BY GEORGE H. CARVER)

The famous Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, "Fighting-est Infantry unit in the First Canadian Division, World War 11", rolled back the curtain of time here on Saturday and Sunday.

Dubbed the "plowboy soldier" by envious regiments, the Hasty Pees once more left farm, home, factory and office to "mobilize."

There was the smell of leather, of sabres, the clink of accoutrements, the harsh commands of instructors, nor the blare of martial trumpets. This was the eleventh reunion of the stanchy unit—but it that whole history in Canada's golden book of military achievement.

The camaraderie born in battle, and known to none but returned veterans blazed anew as nearly 500 Hasty Pees, a lot of them of the gallant "originals" assembled again under an armouries roof to re-live the days under sullen battle skies, the training in England and Canada and the part they played in crushing Hitler's hordes before final victory.

FROM ALL DISTRICTS

From all parts of Canada and some from the United States came these men of Assoro, the Liri Valley, the Hasty, the Golden Line, the Navigio and other well-known battle honors to meet again in heart-warming reminiscence.

But they lived in the past, too. They paid solemn memorial tribute to their comrades of the "White Battalion" at a service held in the Collegiate auditorium. They reached a highlight of regimental pride, when they received the first copies of the regimental history at special ceremonies. They marched-past in all the mechanical tempo of never-forgotten drill days and they paid tribute to and heard a former commanding officer, Lord Tweedsmuir, when they banqueted in typical reunion style.

TWEEDSMUIR HONORED

The forty-year-old British peer, who led the regiment in the assault on Assoro, sold by Intortuna to be a relic of the most spectacular offensives of the Second World War, was paid signal honors by the reserve battalion of the regiment. He was made an honorary colonel of the regiment and presented with gold-plated shoulder badges to symbolize the honor.

He received the first official copy of the regimental history at an official ceremony held in the B.C.I. auditorium and, wearing a wartime beret of his regiment, led the marching veterans in the collegiate where the memorial service was held. Lord Tweedsmuir also took the salute from a proudly-marching veterans in a march-past in the armouries following the service and presentations.

Lord Tweedsmuir with Lady Tweedsmuir was given a heart-warming reception by the men he led during the Sicilian and Italian campaigns. Dressed in a plain business suit, bereft of war honors, he mingled freely with his former comrades, chatting with them and greeting old "buddies" with warm handshakes.

A LIVELY SCENE

Following registration on Saturday afternoon the armouries was a lively scene as old comrades met again under pleasant reunion circumstances. They came from Peterborough, Oshawa, London, Picton, Trenton, and many other Ontario points. "Yank" Sullivan was here from Chicago; Jack Air was here from Buckingham, Quebec. Telegraphed greetings came from Hasty Pees living in British Columbia and other parts of the west.

Former "brass" of the regiment also was present. There was Lieut.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, Owen Sound; Brigadier Don Cameron, Camp Borden; Lt.-Col. Geo. Henless, Kemptville; Lt.-Col. D. M. Widdifield, Ottawa; Lt.-Col. W. N. Davern, Wellington, Ontario. Other high-ranking military men included: Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, Fonthill; L. T. McLaughlin, Bowmanville; Col. Lyle Carr, Port Hope; Major Herb Long, Port Hope, present in-command of the reserve battalion. Major Bill Graydon, president of the regimental association was one of the busiest men during the two-day reunion, acting as general-master of ceremonies at the various functions.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

Under sullen rain-dripping skies and headed by the red-berreted regimental drum and trumpet band under Sergeant George Gaffney, the veterans marched from the Bridge Street armouries early Sunday afternoon to the Collegiate auditorium where the memorial service and history presentations were made.

Proudly marched the men he commanded in wartime was Lord Tweedsmuir, his breast agitter with medals.

Capt. the Rev. A. E. McConnell, reserve battalion chaplain, was in charge of the service. Flag-draped drums and a memorial wreath were on the stage. Looking proudly down from points of vantage were "Chief Pelaware-Much," wooden Indian mascot of the regiment and the bullet-scarred battle flag of the first battalion.

Prior to the service, Major Graydon introduced the many guests present which included Mayor John Both and Mrs. Both, Written James Sprackett of Hastings County and regimental and other notables.

Mayor Both extended the civic welcome to Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir and the assembled veterans. The city council was represented by Alderman Claude D. Tice, Alderman Bram Humphreys, Alderman Enos David and Alderman Mrs. Effie McGee.

"Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir have accorded this city a high honour," Mayor Both said. "We paid tribute to the Hasty Pees, saying they should be extremely proud of the fact that a wartime commander had travelled so far to visit them. We hope you find our hospitality fits the occasion and you will take away fond memories with you."

PRESENTED GIFTS

His Worship then presented Lord Tweedsmuir with a copy of the history of Belleville and a golden key to the city. Mrs. Both graciously presented a beautiful bouquet of red roses to Lady Tweedsmuir.

Both the distinguished guests signed the visitors' book of the regiment.

"It is a distinct pleasure for us to accept these gifts of the book and the key," Lord Tweedsmuir said. "Belleville is a city that has a long and honorable history. It is a city that is dear to the hearts of my wife, myself and our family."

The memorial service followed with hymns and prayers led by the Robert Bell, organist St. Thomas' Church. Captain McConnell in a brief memorial address recalled the fact that from two lovely country homes had come forth the men of the Hasty Pees. "Their homes were here and they loved them. They knew the concepts of freedom. They fought for the things they believed in.

"They knew the price of devotion. Many of them lie in England, many fell on various battle fronts, especially in that most spectacular action of the war at Assoro."

"This is a moment of proud remembrance. Today we remember how they died and how they lived.

We hold our heads high in pride for them. They stood fast by the regiment, for Canada and the Commonwealth of Nations to which we shall always belong. They fought for the freedom of the world. May we always remember."

The haunting notes of "Last Post" rang out in the auditorium, followed by the lively strains of "Reveille."

HISTORY PRESENTATIONS

The history of the regiment, entitled simply "The Regiment" was then formally dedicated by Captain McConnell. It was written by Mr. Farley Mowat, a former officer of the Hasty Pees, after three years research and work.

In his dedicatory address Captain McConnell said: "It shall always be and remain a symbol of the courage and loyalty and memory of those who gave their lives in conflict. To the Glory of God and the memory of the regiment I dedicate this book."

Mr. Hugh Kane, vice-president of McClelland, Goodchild and Stewart, publishers of "The Regiment," and Mr. Mowat, the author, then presented Lord Tweedsmuir with the first copy of the book.

"We consider Mr. Mowat's book a superb accomplishment," Mr. Kane said. "It is no ordinary regimental history, no dull chronicle of events. It will become a model for all regimental histories of the future."

Mr. Mowat paid tribute to the outstanding co-operation he had received from members of the regiment. "All gave freely of their experiences and anecdotes. I want to especially thank Padre Goforth for the tremendous assistance he gave me.

"It is indeed a great honor to me to be one chosen from 1,000 men who served with the regiment, to accept this book," Lord Tweedsmuir said. "Mr. Mowat has a very gallant officer and a writer who has gained for himself far more than national reputation. I have reviewed parts of the book and I must say the course of Farley's book is that the success of the regiment was, in a measure of the genius of a few, but the excellence of many.

"I accept this book." Lord Tweedsmuir went on, "on behalf of the gallant men who served; those of the 'White Battalion,' and those who will join the regiment in the future and will want to know the manner of men who served before them. It is a great honor for me. I accept most humbly."

OTHER COPIES PRESENTED

Major Graydon then presented Lt.-Col. F. S. Fairman, commanding officer of the reserve battalion with a copy of "The Regiment." "This is a complete surprise," he said, "I accept it on behalf of the regiment with sincere thanks."

Urges U.S. Firms' Subsidiaries Be Separate Units

BOSTON (CP) — Changes in the practices of many American companies operating in Canada were urged today by Dr. G Edward Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario.

Addressing the Boston Conference on Distribution, Dr. Hall particularly urged that Canadian operations be set up as distinctly Canadian companies, that they be subject to the same financial statements as truly Canadian companies," and that Canadians be given an opportunity to invest in them.

Canadians, said Dr. Hall, hold 80 per cent of all investment in Canada, but more than one-third of all investment in Canadian manufacturing is in companies controlled in the United States and in many cases the Canadian investor cannot invest directly in the Canadian subsidiary.

"It seems inconceivable to me," Dr. Hall continued, "that United States firms operating on any sizable business in Canada through branch plants, offices or subsidiaries, should not realize the desirability of organizing their Canadian units as strictly Canadian companies."

SHOULD HAVE MEANING

The term "Canadian," or "of Canada," associated with a company name should be significant and meaningful. It should imply that its stock was available to the Canadian public, that it was listed on Canadian exchanges, that its financial statements were made public and reflected the Canadian operation, "and that, as one enlightened American put it, 'our company is not just an American company doing business in Canada but rather is a company jointly owned by Canadians and Americans doing business in both countries.'"

Dr. Hall said he didn't think Canadians were "suffering from an overdose of American economic imperialism," as some had stated.

"American investment has been essential for certain phases of Canada's economic development.

The real problem was not one necessarily of dollars and cents, but of human contact, of understanding and mutual participation.

Major Graydon, paying tribute to the county councils of Hastings and Prince Edward for their generous financial support for the book, presented copies to Warden Ernest Brackett, warden of Hastings and Warden Murney Donaldson, replies of acceptance through Lieut.-Col. W. N. Davern, former commanding officer, of Wellington, Ont. In the absence of the latter, Lt.-Col. Fairman made appreciative replies of acceptance.

MARCH PAST

Colonel Lyle Carr, commander of the 13th Militia Group, of Port Hope, led the parade back to the armouries, via Church, Campbell and Front Streets.

The regimental band and trumpet band under Sergeant Christopher gave an outstanding performance of precision marching and playing. The band was followed by the regimental mascot "Chief Petawawa-Much, Princess Minnehaha and their "papoose," "Little Chieftain."

Following the dismissal of the parade, the regimental drum and trumpet band under Sergeant Christopher gave an outstanding performance of precision marching and playing. The band was followed in the procession by the veterans and the large crowd of civilians who thronged the upstairs balcony.

At 2.15 the veterans went to the spacious auditorium of Branch 201, Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada, where the regimental dinner was held.

From two to six, tea was served in the armouries officers' mess to the ladies of the association and regimental officers and their guests. Among those meeting Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir was a former commanding officer of the Hasty Pees, Lt.-Col. B. C. Donnan and Mrs. Donnan.

Lady Tweedsmuir Delights Newsmen With Talk On Hunting and Politics

By GEORGE H. CARVER

The mountain goat stood poised on a rocky crag some 7,000 feet above sea level in the mountains in British Columbia.

Far below him a small boat moved sluggishly on the placid waters of a lake. A shot crashed in the morning air. The goat crumpled and fell dead.

What the goat did not know was that he had met his demise at the hands of one of Scotland's ladye sex shots, a peeress of the realm who loves hunting next to her home and busy political life.

Lady Tweedsmuir, tall slim blonde wife of Lord Tweedsmuir sat with her husband in the Hastings and Prince Edward officers' mess, Sunday morning and conversed with newspaper men.

The distinguished couple were special guests at the 11th annual reunion of the regiment. They talked easily of their recent trip across Canada, three weeks of which were spent hunting, fishing and mountain climbing.

Lady Tweedsmuir is a delightful conversationalist. She speaks easily with a slight trace of Scottish accent. She said her hunting trip in its stride and the fact that she shot a mountain goat, a caribou and wounded a grizzly bear, did not affect her charming manner.

Asked of she had kept any trophies of the chase, the attractive peeress smiled and said: "Oh yes I have the caribou's head, the goat's jacket, but not a part of the bear."

"The head's perfect" a newsman asked inquiringly.

Lady Tweedsmuir smiled. "Oh excuse me, I believe the Canadians call it the 'hide'. I am going to have a rug made of it."

The Tweedsmuirs viewed for the first time Tweedsmuir Peak in the Rockies named after the late father of Lord Tweedsmuir, who was a former governor-general and a distinguished author, who wrote under the name of John Buchan.

"We escaped for three weeks and left no address," Lady Tweedsmuir said. "And we had a jolly time. We were fogbound and forced to walk four miles in deep snowbanks on one trip, but it was fun."

WOULD LIKE TO STALK DEER

Between political activities Lady Tweedsmuir indulges in hunting in the mountains, moors and heather of her native Scotland. "I do quite a bit of deer stalking and I would like to try to stalk some of the Canadian deer."

She brought down the goat with a single shot from her Austrian .375 Mannlicher rifle, heavy hunting piece but it took two shots to end the caribou's career.

While hiking in a lake the Tweedsmuir party spotted a huge grizzly climbing a shore hill. The boat was quickly beached and Lady Tweedsmuir took a snap shot with her rifle at the bear. He disappeared over the brow of the hill closely followed by her fellowship. "But it was gone" she said when I reached the top of the hill. I'm sure I wounded it."

The Tweedsmuirs live in Potterton House near Aberdeen, Formerly, Miss Priscilla Thompson, Lady Tweedsmuir has been garnered twice. Her first husband, a baronet, was killed in action early in World War II. She has three children by her first marriage and one by the second.

She leaned over and whispered confidentially. "Can you keep a secret. I am becoming a grandmother in February."

Lady Tweedsmuir is serving her fifth term as member of the House of Commons for the Aberdeen East constituency. She thinks elections are a lot of fun and hard work.

"In the last elections," she said, "the Commies painted Aberdeen with signs. Tweedsmuir wants war. Tweedsmuir wants the hydrogen bomb." It went down to the fish markets, the parks and the soap boxes and quickly dispelled that campaign lie," she chuckled.

Ardent rugger fans in Scotland, the Tweedsmuirs saw their first Canadian football game in Kingston on Saturday, when they witnessed the Queen's-Western game.

"I was thrilled with it and enjoyed myself immensely," Lady Tweedsmuir said "It is slightly rougher than Indian rugby."

CHEERED FOR QUEEN'S

Which team did she cheer for, Queen's, of course. "But", Lady Tweedsmuir added, "the other players were exceptionally good at times — and I managed to get in some encouragement for them, too."

Lord Tweedsmuir said some 20,000 Canadian soldiers took their discharge and remained in England after the war. Among them were a number of Hasty Pees, most of whom were working for the Southern Railway. Canadian ex-soldiers formed legion branches of their own whenever their were sufficient numbers. Lord Tweedsmuir is a president of the Aberdeen branch.

"He has no connection with the British military," he said. "He is the honorary reserve of the Canadian Army and if called would serve with his old regiment the Hasty Pees."

Asked the reaction of the British people now to vulnerability to the atomic bomb, Lord Tweedsmuir said "I expect they would muddle through."

"Yes," injected Lady Tweedsmuir, "it would be a methodical muddle-through."

Lord Tweedsmuir was greatly impressed with Canada as a country. "I have toured it from Labrador to the Pacific coast. It is Missionary Work in Cuba Told to W.M.S.

The October thank-offering meeting of St. Andrew's Missionary Society was held in the church with the president, Mrs. Weir, presiding.

The meeting was opened with a thanksgiving message and hymn.

Reports were read and a discussion of the Missionary Conference to be held in the church in November took place.

There are to be two meetings held in the church with refreshments being served by the ladies.

After the singing of a hymn the thank-offering was received and dedicated by Mrs. Moore.

Mrs. Bell favored with a solo accompanied by Mrs. Boyce at the piano.

The Scripture was read by Mrs. Craig, followed with prayer by Mrs. Rollins.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker, Mr. William Spinks of Cuba, told of the missionary work, which he and Mrs. Spinks are doing among the people there. He also related the work done in prisons and institutions and his talk was made more interesting by illustrating with lantern slides.

The need of missionaries in Cuba is great and the prayers of the Society go out this month to Mr. and Mrs. Spinks in their work among the needy.

A vote of thanks was tendered the speaker by Mrs. Darvell.

After the close of the meeting, refreshments were served and a social time spent.

Regimental Tea At Armouries Much Enjoyed

In the pleasant atmosphere of the officers' mess on Sunday afternoon a reception and tea was given by the wives of the regimental officers and associated ladies of the Hastings-Prince Edward regiment in honor of Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir.

The tea table was charmingly appointed with a lace cloth, a low bowl of yellow mums and dalsies and twin candelabra holding blue and yellow candles. The regimental colors of gold and blue were carried out again in the dark blue serviettes lettered in gold with "Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Reunion 1955." Small, colorful sandwiches and cakes were served with the tea.

The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. William Graydon, Mrs. Angus Duffy, Mrs. E. S. Palmer, Mrs. Robert Scott and Mrs. C. Wallbridge.

Those pouring tea were, Mrs. Bruce Sutcliffe, Toronto, Mrs. William Davies, Wellington, Mrs. George Renison, Toronto; Mrs. B. C. Donnan, Mrs. M. Porritt, Mrs. P. H. Wills, all of Belleville.

Assisting with the serving for the first part of the afternoon were, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Black, Mrs. Vaughan, Mrs. Bristol, Mrs. Ross, Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. Hepburn, Mrs. Armand Duffy and Mrs. Riordon.

In the latter part of the afternoon the serving was done by Mrs. Andrews, Mrs. Keller, Mrs. Geen, Mrs. McBride, Mrs. Fullerton, Mrs. Clarke, Mrs. Cunningham, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Serymgeour, Mrs. A. Smith and Mrs. Burtt.

200 'Little Helpers' Present Mite Boxes

Last Wednesday afternoon the Little Helpers of Christ church gathered together for their annual mite-box service in the W.A. room.

The Harvest festival decorations were still in place, the altar of the chancel entrance was a beautiful picture alide of Christ talking to the little children, and Mr. John Withers at the organ played appropriate music.

The short service was conducted by Archdeacon H. Cregan and the children heartily sang "Jesus Loves Me" and "Jesus Bids Us Shine".

MITE BOXES PRESENTED

During the singing of "Tell Me the Stories of Jesus", the little ones deposited their mite boxes in the decorated containers at the chancel steps. The boxes were then carried to the altar by Nancy Watkins, Lenore Dixon, Gaylon Flindall and Eric Reid.

A film entitled "Wonders of the Creek" was shown. This described how God cares for and protects the little fishes in the creek and near the water and how he also cares so lovingly for the little children and protects them at all times.

Everyone then went to the parish hall where the tables were covered fables, gay with vases of fall flowers and colored candles. The members of the W.A. served the 200 children and their mothers ice cream and cake.

HOW-TO READ COMFORTABLY IN BED

by PEGGY LIDSTONE

Home Lighting Specialist

Do you love to read in bed—but find it difficult because the lighting is poorly placed when faded either of these two recipes and read for hours without eye strain?

If you are using a table lamp the bedside table on which it rests should be about 28" high. For reading comfort, your lamp shade should be approximately 16"-wide and the bottom edge should be 20" above your bed mattress.

If you prefer a wall lamp, see that it's centred above your bed at a height of about 30 inches from the bottom of the shade to the bed mattress. Check that the shade is about 12 inches wide at the bottom. For both these lighting recipes, use the 50/100/150 three-lite bulb.

If you want further information on modern lighting, just write to PEGGY Lidstone c/o Lighting Institute, Canadian General Electric Ltd., 163 Dufferin Street, Toronto, and I will send you FREE a 48 page illustrated booklet "How to Light Condition Your New Home."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YES, EMOTIONAL CONFLICT IN PARENTS DOES UPSET A CHILD

Beatrice Fairfax:

Sam 35, my husband is 48. He is a good provider, a good man, too, but—

My problem concerns our 7½-year-old adopted daughter. My husband and I never see eye to eye on her upbringing.

I believe in certain limited discipline, such as a slap on the behind when necessary. When this happens, my husband is highly insulted, and we have big arguments. He won't even correct her when she is 'fresh to me. All he says is: "She's only a baby. She doesn't mean what she's saying," all of which, of course, our daughter takes in, for she is old enough to understand what he is saying.

Also, when my husband and I have these arguments, it leaves me all shaky and nervous and, of course, the baby reacts to such things. I try so hard to be calm, but sometimes it's impossible, especially when my husband will shout out: "I never got slapped or spanked when I was a boy, and I don't believe in doing to any one else, let alone my daughter."

The fact that my mother lives next door doesn't make things any easier, because when, for instance, I make my girl kneel down for being naughty, my mother explodes: "If you're not careful, I'll have the law on you! You're mean! She's only a child! Leave her alone!" and calls me all the dirty names she can think of. Believe me, I am not mean to my daughter, and even when she's very, very naughty, I only make her kneel down for 15 minutes. I'm only bringing her up as my very own, for I love her. But I can't bring her up alone, and I do wish my husband would help me. I'm also afraid all this nonsense is going to make the child neurotic. Lately, she's been getting fidgety and nervous and having headaches. — Mrs. C.G.

Dear Mrs. C.G.:

You're quite right. Conflict of any kind in a home will upset a child nervously, especially if the child realizes that the arguments between the father and mother are over her. It is very important that you and your husband come to some understanding on this matter, before you disturb the child as much that it may affect her whole later life.

Here are two suggestions you might consider:

1. Try to make an opportunity when you could sit down and have a quiet talk with your husband about this problem. Don't begin by repeating your own ideas and try to bring him around to your way of thinking. Instead, say that you feel the child is disturbed by your arguments, that you yourself feel very much upset by them, and that you want to have the kind of happy, peaceful home that will be best for all of you. Tell him you feel very much for the two of you to work together as a harmonious mother-father team, and to have the child's entire upbringing be the result of a joint plan.

If you can be calm and reasonable yourself through such a talk, he may be, too.

2. Go by yourself to your local family advisory agency, tell them the problem and ask for advice. Or, if you can afford to spend the money for the fee, consult a good marriage counsellor in your town. Do either of these without saying anything about it at home, lest that bring on another argument between your husband and yourself.

As for your mother, try to keep the child as much away from her as you can. It might help there, too, if you asked her advice from time to time. People often stop criticizing when they're put on the spot that way, or when another person makes them feel that their advice would be really appreciated.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

IT'S FINE TO DIET, BUT EXERCISE, TOO!

The bicycle exercise is an old standby but, starting from the same position, a less spectacular one produces fine results.

Watching your calories will surely take off the pounds, but if you want to trim off inches, you've just got to exercise, since exercise tones muscles and fat can't accumulate on well-toned muscles. If you can join and exercise class, fine, but if you can't, there are still some calisthenics you can do at home which will do wonders for your figure.

An exercise which is a standby in many a gym is the old one of hoisting the heels into the air and pumping the legs vigorously in the "bicycle" motion. It is a good exercise. But there's a catch to it. You may perform it so strenuously that you expect results in one portion.

A less spectacular exercise performed from the same starting position — shoulders down on floor, heels high in air, legs straight, and hands braced under hips, almost guarantees results you will like. Just keep the legs straight and, very slowly, pushing hips upward with hands, lower legs overhead as if to touch toes to floor back of the head. Hold it for a second, then slowly return to the starting position.

This exercise forces you to use the big, lazy hip muscles, strengthens the stomach muscles and strengthens your legs. At first you should not attempt it more than three times and the increase should be easy and gradual.

Instead of trying to increase the number of times you do the exercise quickly to prove you are not in such bad shape, aim at increasing the reach of your toes toward the floor back of your head. Then, after your leg muscles have become accustomed to the stretching with toes pointed, pull your toes in and try to point them with knees straight and lower feet to floor.

You can lie on the floor to start another effective workout for trimming your midsection: Lie full length, on your back, on the floor, with arms stretched out on either side in line with the shoulders; legs straight down and feet together. From that position, draw your knees up over your stomach. Then, keeping knees and feet together, turn them slightly sideward and thrust legs straight down but a few inches off the floor. Hold that for a second, then swing legs to opposite side; draw them back over abdomen, thrust straight down to starting position, and rest. Relax all through your body. Let your spine sag into the rug, your arms go absolutely limp, your legs the same.

Relaxing after an exercise is just as important as putting the right muscles into it. Once you learn how it feels to tense and relax your muscles you can almost see the improvement in your figure with each 15 to 30 minutes' stints—and you are unlikely to ever again be at the mercy of your nerves.

Tea for Five at an Outpost

By Mary Moore

Three hundred miles north of Winnipeg is Little Grand Rapids —an Indian settlement with five white inhabitants.

One of them is a former theatre manager, now a candidate for the ministry doing field work, and another is his wife Marie, the teacher at the Indian school.

The Hudson's Bay man and his wife and child are coming for tea at "the Reverend's" house.

There are no fresh eggs or milk to be had for love or money. But just the same tea was served in fine style.

Marie is not one to be stopped by restrictions. When her guests arrived by outboard motor from across the lake she had little cupcakes made up from the following recipe for

BOILED RAISIN CAKE

Boil 1-2 lb. of raisins in 1 cup water until raisins are plumped up well. This reduces the water to half or less. Add 1-2 cup cold water, then 1 1-2 teaspoons baking soda, 1-4 cup shortening, 1 cup sugar. Stir until melted then add 2 cups sifted flour, 1-2 teaspoon each salt, cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg. Mix well. Bake in greased 8x8 pan (or in muffin tins or paper cups, as Marie did) at 325 deg. Fahr. for about 25 or 30 minutes. Some bakers think 300 deg. is better temperature for this cake. Just before putting cake in oven, if desired, sprinkle chopped walnuts over top.

COMMENTS:

Wash the raisins of course in hot water first. Although this batter is not thick the raisins do not sink and the nuts stay on top. It has good keeping qualities. I know one girl who bakes this cake, after mixing it, in the same saucepan in which the raisins were first boiled!

O. O. McIntyre, the famous columnist who wrote New York Day by Day, used to go to a restaurant in New York simply because they served fresh Apple-sauce Cake every Friday night.

This recipe is excellent and the cake is moist and will keep well, but it is at its most delicious when fresh of course.

APPLESAUCE CAKE

One-half cup shortening, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 2 beaten eggs, 1 cup thick, unsweetened applesauce, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon each baking powder and cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon each soda and cloves, 1 cup seeded raisins, chopped. Thoroughly cream together the shortening and the sugar—they should be airy and light. Add eggs and beat well. Add applesauce, then sifted dry ingredients. Beat until smooth then add raisins. Grease and line 8-inch square pan with waxed paper. Turn batter into it. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 45 to 55 minutes. This cake may be served plain while it is fresh —but if any is leftover I think you would like to frost it.

WHEN NAME IS MISSPELLED ON CHECK

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a first name which isn't an unusual name, but my mother insisted on it being spelled in a most unusual way. Therefore many complications! And now perhaps another. For I recently started a bank account. If it happens that I receive a check made out with my name incorrectly spelled, should I endorse the check as the name is written on the check, or as my name should be spelled? — Reader

Reply: That is, (1) endorse the check just as the name is written on the face of the check. . . and (2) write your correct signature (your name spelled as you spell it) directly below.

Canada's Calmness in World Amid Confusion, Uncertainty Lauded by Adlai Stevenson

KINGSTON (Staff) — "A patient and level-headed poise in a world in convulsion," was Adlai E. Stevenson's tribute to Canada in a convocation address delivered at Queen's University following his admittance to an honorary LL.D. degree Saturday morning.

"If we are to ride out the tests and trials, the storms, of our time on earth, we need the kind of built-in gyroscope which you Canadians seem to have. It is a great national virtue to be able to calmly endure what cannot be immediately remedied."

"Between winter and fall, the world has seen Communist diplomacy swing from storm to fair, while opinion among the free nations has swung as widely from apprehension to hope. There has, however, are surface changes, and underneath, there is reason to suspect that very little has really changed."

In speaking of the "spirit of Geneva" he said that "while our anxiety has been diminished, it has been in spite of the fact that no major Soviet policy has been modified to speak of. Hope must not become, in the free world, a substitute for policy, nor must faith outstrip their works."

"Some of us have become so obsessed with the Communist menace, so hypnotized by the division of the globe into two camps that one sight of Marshal Bulganin with a smile on his face, or Mr. Khrushchev and Mr. Bohlen in the same motor car, has a suddenly relaxing effect—a warm and welcome feeling that the division of mankind may really be coming to an end and with it all the evils that have plagued us for the last half century.

"But, of course, it isn't so. Communism feels on but does not create all the frictions and conflicts of our small world.

"The rights and claims of nation states, the divisions between diverse racial and religious groups, the hard clash of competing economic interests—all these precede Communism and exist today independently of it."

EXAMPLE TO WORLD

In comparing the peace and friendly relations between Canada and United States Mr. Stevenson said that such a relationship gives hope that "some clue can be found to the international good life in an atomic world."

"For this, much more than communism, is, I believe, the riddle which we must solve."

In speaking of the "unguarded frontier" between Canada and the U.S. Mr. Stevenson said, "the only formalities this trip imposes on me is to report to your officials that I am not going to stay more than six months, which must be a relief to you — if not to some folks back home."

"But the greater significance of this frontier is, of course, that we have long since given up the idea of using force and have accepted in our relations with one another, the rule of law, of meditation of peaceful adjustment. And the result is at least one working model of an international society in which force is not the final arbiter. There can be no more vital contribution to the atomic age."

Mr. Stevenson stated that the conflict between Asian and African national necessity to seek economic assistance from abroad and their fear of economic dominance by the capitalistic West "ideologically and politically, may well be the greatest single obstacle in the way of a general mobilization of resources to aid the underdeveloped areas."

In lauding Canada's independence of Canada's policy makers, and-by citing the growth of the Canadian economy as a "rare combination "of momentum and stability" Mr. Stevenson said, "economic co-operation with a powerful neighbor has brought no lessening of political independence."

Mr. Stevenson, speaking of the joint development of the St. Lawrence waterway, and comparing its development with rivalries over lesser waterways in Europe, said that "by any historical comparison it would have been more normal to have fought for the control of the lakes than to have developed them jointly."

Mr. Stevenson, in noting that seventeen years ago at Queen's University, President Roosevelt affirmed his faith in the interdependence of our two nations, said that "military strategy must be underpinned by firm economic foundations" and urged every effort to make our economic relations as close and as confident as our strategic co-operation."

EQUAL PARTNERS

In speaking of joint Canadian-American problems Mr. Stevenson said: "I do not want for one moment to suggest that Canada has made its distinguished contribution simply as a partner and coworker with the United States. On the contrary, I believe that the Canadian people have achievements to their credit of incalculable importance in this new age in which nations of the world are jostled into compulsory neighborliness.

"In Canada, we can witness as it were a triumph of internal coexistence in the peaceful integration of the French provinces in a wider Canadian Commonwealth. There has been no loss of entity —of language, culture or religion. But the divergence has made for richness, not division and strife. It has created a pattern which, in its preservation of national identity and the merging of it in a greater whole, may prove the finest example that the New World can give the Old, and the best proof that the fratricidal national rivalries of the past can be resolved without surrender or those rugged natures of which we old are so long in healing, as we Americans well know from our own Civil War experience."

"Nor do I think this achievement would have been possible without another outstanding and admirable feature of Canadian political life — I mean its stability, its tolerance and its good sense."

"Canada's settled political system and mature public opinion appear to give public life a good sense and a restraint valuable indeed in all domestic matters, but without price in the angry, uncertain world of hot, cold and cooling wars."

"It is no coincidence I am sure, that your government has earned

WAS 'MIRACLE'

The impact was so great that part of the car remained pasted to the front of the locomotive when it came to a stop. Some 300 yards of track was uprooted as the cars swerved and then plunged off.

Five coaches, a baggage car, and another cars and one diner were derailed. Passengers in the two coaches next to the front bore the brunt of the impact as the cars flipped over.

Those called a number of passengers were treated on the spot for cuts and bruises by the local druggist, who was called to the scene with first-aid supplies. They were then loaded aboard a special fleet of buses for Montreal.

HADN'S MY NECK

Alex Pierson of Belleville, who was in one of the front cars, described the crash as "awful."

"The first thing I heard after the crash was a little girl calling 'Mommy, Mommy,'" he said. "I looked up and she was hanging from a coathook by her neck."

Campbell McCurry of Montreal, another passenger in the forward car said "It was just marvellous that no one was killed."

"Seats were turned over we were piled all over each other," he said. "I figured the emergency axe but I still had a hell of a time breaking those windows. A nine-month baby boy, son of Cpl. Don Wanamaker, was unhurt in the crash. Cpl. Wanamaker was travelling from Trenton, Ont., to Quebec City with his wife and three other children.

"The train started to shake and I grabbed the baby," he said. "My wife landed on someone else's lap. We were scattered all over the place. We were lucky — none of us was hurt."

PULLED AT LEGS

Bourbonnais was in the lobby of the hotel facing the track when he heard the crash.

"I ran out and went up to the first coach. It was overturned and I broke open one of the windows. I could hear moaning and crying inside.

"The first thing I saw was a leg and I pulled on it. A man came tumbling out. I pulled out about five others that way."

Trains were rerouted to another track seven miles north of here. Service was expected to be resumed on the line shortly after noon today.

CNR officials compiled a list of the 10 passengers detained in hospital but said they would not be able to make a complete list of all those injured.

In the councils of the British Commonwealth, of NATO, and of the United Nations, a weight and influence which numbers alone could never give. It is the recognition the nations extend to the still, small voice of reason, conciliation and compromise. And upon the world's willingness to heed such voices our ultimate hopes of peaceful coexistence depend."

MARMORA

Canadian Legion L.A. Marks 9th Anniversary

MARMORA — Artistically decorated for the occasion with befitting colors and a vase of silken Union Jacks set impostingly on the head table, the banquet room of the Royal Hotel accommodated 64 members of Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion at the turkey dinner held by the Marmora Auxiliary on Thursday evening to commemorate its ninth birthday.

Constituting a genial foursome with the local ladies were their fellow members of the Madoc, Tweed and Belleville auxiliaries.

Presiding at the function was Mrs. Percy Gray, the president, of the celebrating organization, and the gathering was most happy to have the presence and fellowship of Mrs. Charles Jeffs, of Belleville, the Zone Commander.

INFORMAL EVENT

It was a truly informal event without the imposition of speeches following the excellent repast marked with first rate service, a few games of bingo were indulged in. Like their warrior husbands, the ladies of the auxiliaries are ever ready to demonstrate their ear and voice for song and Miss Marion Darrah engaged for the piano, proved a popular accompanist for the sing-song and succeeding dance period.

PRESENTATIONS

Happening to occur on the president's own birthday, that lady and the zone commander were presented with corsages and T. V. refreshment sets.

The birthday cake came in for laudable comment, and when the party ended, all felt they had participated in an anniversary doing credit to the home auxiliary and also felt grateful to Mrs. Matt Sergeant, manageress of the hotel for piloting things along as she did. Both she and Mr. Sergeant were accorded a vote of thanks for their hospitality.

Chances are you get a "helping" of aluminum as part of your daily diet. Most cities use aluminum sulphate to purify the water from lakes and rivers. Ochawa, for instance, has used it for this purpose for 25 years.

Usually, however, aluminum is associated with the outside of foods. In cooking utensils, cups and foods food containers—in wrappings for cakes and candy and roasts and left-overs—in bottle tops and hoods—aluminum helps keep what we eat and drink fresh and pure and wholesome.

Ontario's First Producing Uranium Mine, 'The Pronto' Officially Opened Saturday

Canadian Press Staff Writer

BLIND RIVER (CP)—Ontario's first producing uranium mine, the Pronto, officially opened Saturday, pioneer in a 1,000-square-mile field on which the province's minister of mines put a billion dollar valuation tag.

W. J. Bennett, president of the crown-owned Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., declared the mine open in the afternoon. Later, in a dinner speech, he asserted his confidence that Canada's large expenditures on its nuclear research program at Chalk River will bring great benefits to the national economy and, in particular to the uranium industry.

Mr. Bennett, who also heads the federal government - owned Eldorado Mining Corporation which has contracted to buy $55,000,000 of uranium concentrates from Pronto by 1962, said cost of the Chalk River program to next March 31 would amount to $150,000,000; and another $100,000,000 would be spent by 1960.

From the demonstration power reactor it planned to build in cooperation with Canadian General Electric and the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario near Hydro's Des Joachims plant on the Ottawa river, Atomic Energy Ltd. hoped to obtain "the kind of engineering, cost and operating experience which will make possible the design of economic" plants for production of electrical energy.

A. W. Manby, Hydro's general manager, emphasized the need for power from nuclear sources, forecasting that Ontario's demand for power would outrun supply by 1962. The future of the Blind River field was linked to solution of the technical problems of developing electrical power from atomic sources.

"And in the long-term view, it appears probable that economic generation of electric power from nuclear sources will be an established fact," he said.

Hon. Phillip Kelly, Ontario's minister of mines, in an extemporaneous speech forecast that by 1958 Ontario's mineral production would amount to $800,000,000 annually compared with $500,000,000 last year through development of the Blind River field where three more mines were due to begin production by 1957.

Mr. Kelly's remarks substituted for a prepared text distributed to the press in advance of delivery in which he said that reliable estimates are that on the basis of existing prices $1,000,000,000 worth of uranium ore has been outlined in the Blind River field and another $2,000,000,000 worth is indicated.

The prepared text saying the Blind River region has "perhaps the world's greatest single potential source of radioactive material," reported that the Canadian government through Eldorado has signed firm contracts with Pronto and three other mines—Algom Quirke, Algom Nordic and Consolidated Dennison—for delivery of uranium worth $500,000,000 by 1962.

The four mines, along with plant being built in the district by Noranda mines to make sulphuric acid for recovery of the uranium, would provide employment for 930 men. A new town at Elliott lake, toward the north end of the field, might attain a population of 20,000 persons.

Projected capital investment of mine development in the area totalled $90,000,000. In addition, the Ontario government planned a 26-mile highway, running from the south end of the field on Lake Huron to the north, to be completed by next summer.

A special train from Toronto brought 180 mining, financial and newspaper men here for the day. They visited the Pronto, 12 miles to the east, and inspected its underground workings, shallow compared to most Ontario mines with its deepest point at a depth of about 500 feet. The dinner speakers included Mr. Bennett who joined forces to give the field its start—Frane Joubin, the geologist who established the presence of uranium and financier Joseph Hirshhorn who raised the money for development.

Mr. Joubin spoke highly of the Pronto staff which solved the problem of working with a rare "uranium mineral called brannerite that never before in the world had been commercially exploited." As other uranium mines, the element is in pitchblende of which only an occasional trace is found in the Blind River field.

Graham Crusade In Toronto Ends, 27,000 Attend

TORONTO (CP)—In the sawdust of the Canadian National Exhibition grounds. Above the rows of empty chairs a placard reads: "I am the Way, the Truth and the Life."

In the last four weeks, 247,200 persons have read that text, as they watched evangelist Billy Graham and listened to his sermons. Inspired by his appeal, 7,288 converts have filed forward, through the dusty aisles to the foot of his platform in the Canadian National Exhibition Coliseum.

Now the Graham crusade is over. It ended Sunday in pouring rain, which 27,000 people ignored to push for seats or standing room.

It finished as a record 848 men and women and children answered Graham's appeal to declare themselves for Christ.

"MAGNIFICENT CRUSADE"

"Lots of lives have been changed," Dr. Graham said. "This has been a magnificent crusade."

He had one regret—that his team was not able to stay longer.

"In my opinion, we should have stayed 19 weeks," he said. "The people we have been trying to reach, the non-churchgoers, have been coming in larger numbers in the last two weeks of the campaign. They have been telling their friends and bringing other people along. The crusade has snowballed."

Dr. Graham also noted that the use of closed-circuit television had proved its worth.

"Radio is in semi-darkness," he said. "People can see my face and emotions on the screen. We have had more converts per capita from the television room than from the large arena in which I have been speaking."

The United States evangelist said he also found Toronto people generous. The campaign budget of $100,000 was exceeded by at least $26,000.

After paying last tributes to ministers who worked with him, Graham left Toronto Sunday night for his mother's home in North Carolina. There, he had arranged to spend a week with her driving the 120 miles to his mountain home at Montreat, where he will rest for eight days.

Eisenhower Plans Conference On National Defence Issues In March Toward Recovery

DENVER (AP) — Recuperating President Eisenhower planned to discuss national defence today after passing a few more important milestones toward recovery during the weekend.

Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, were flying out from Washington for a military conference with the president at Fitzsimons Army Hospital.

The meeting, Eisenhower's fourth at the hospital with administration leaders, is part of the program of steadily increasing official activity the doctors are permitting the president. Sessions with other key government men are also scheduled for later in the week.

LEAVES BED

They follow these encouraging new developments in his convalescence from a Sept. 24 heart attack:

1. For the first time since he entered the hospital, Eisenhower on Saturday was out of bed and sat in an easy chair for 15 minutes. Sunday he was in the chair for 30 minutes — and he got a report there on the new floods ravaging the northeastern states, and on the federal governments relief activities. Attendants lifted the president from his bed and back again.

Eisenhower later sent word to the stricken areas that all necessary steps will be taken under the disaster relief laws to provide help for the flood victims.

2. The president's physicians announced that daily cardiograms no longer will be taken because of the steady improvement in his condition. That decision came 24 hours after Friday's cardiogram showed that his heart performance had stabilized at a satisfactory level" —apparently sooner than the doctors had expected.

French-Spanish Rift Widens Over Aid to Moroccan Rebels

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — An official charge that Moroccans in Spanish Morocco cross across the border on French troops has fanned an increasingly bitter international controversy in the strategic corner of North Africa.

Sharp French - Spanish disagreement mounted today as dissension broke out over the newly appointed four-man regency council given before it could begin functioning.

French Premier Edgar Faure's government finally set up the council in the hope that it would lead to an end of two years of revolution and the beginings of popular rule. But immediately it was in the middle of a fight between the protagonists of two ousted sultans —a nationalist sympathizer and his successor who bowed to French friendship.

The charge that French troops had been fired upon from Spanish Morocco was in response to a Spanish complaint that France was counterfeiting peace. Spain appeared to take a complaint to the United Nations if the French did not quit talking about alleged Spanish aid to Moroccan rebels. Spain is not a UN member, but presumably she could get some of her friends to push any action she desired.

Resident-General Pierre Boyer de Latour in a press statement said the troops were fired upon Oct. 14 but did not shoot back across the border.

Since Oct. 1 French troops have been engaged in a good - sized operation trying to suppress hit-and-run bands of Moroccan rebels in a triangle along the border of Spanish Morocco.

Speaking unofficially, the French have charged repeatedly that the rebels are getting aid from the Spanish side of the border, that the guerrillas are trained at a camp at Nador, Spanish Morocco, and that a hospital for their wounded is across the border. The Spanish government has denied these charges.

No Criminal Intent

GUELPH (CP) — James E. Nicholson, superintendent of buildings at the Ontario Agricultural College, has been acquitted of taking college building materials for his own use. He was charged with stealing $363 worth for use on his cottage in Algonquin Park. County judge R. Stewart Clark ruled in a written judgment Saturday that Nicholson failed to advise here to regulations regarding the taking of materials for his own use. But, the judge added, this practice is accepted at the college with members later replacing the stores. He said: There definitely appears to be no criminal intent in the action of the accused."

Duke to Present Colors to RCR's

SOEST, Germany (Reuters) — The Duke of Edinburgh arrived today by helicopter at nearby Fo York to present colors to the 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regt ment, of which he is colonel-in-chief.

The duke flew from a British air base at Guetersloh, about 80 miles from here, after landing there after an official visit to Denmark.

About 400 officers stood on the parade ground for about 1½ hours in a temperature approaching freezing because bad weather had delayed the duke's arrival.

The 60-man regimental band, brought from Canada for the occasion, and the battalion's corps of drums stood shivering in their tropical-style pith helmets and scarlet tunics with blue trousers — a traditional uniform dating from the Boer War. . .

Drew Calls for Changes In Present Government Policies

By RICHARD ANCO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Progressive Conservative leader George Drew says Canada has before it "the brightest future" of any country but it can grasp it only by making changes in present policies.

Unless the changes materialize, he said in an address Saturday night to 600 party workers celebrating the 101st year of Conservative participation in Canadian politics, Canada is "going to throw away one of the greatest opportunities ever offered any nation."

Mr. Drew left a hospital bed only long enough to attend the "second century" dinner. Later he returned to Winnipeg General Hospital to rest for a few days before leaving for Ottawa.

The party leader is recovering from a cold which forced him to cancel the Manitoba section of a western tour in Brandon last Tuesday. He entered the hospital Wednesday. Saturday Mr. Drew accused the government of "encouraging" the export of raw materials to the United States and of neglecting the problem of marketing western grain. He said the Liberals are attempting to take "the people's business" out of the control of Parliament.

When the government "attempted to write into our permanent laws powers which would have placed in the hands of a single minister almost unlimited power over our whole economy" it was the Conservative party alone which fought for and "re-asserted the authority of Parliament as it has not been asserted for many years," Mr. Drew said.

He referred to the grain situation as a "grave problem affecting all Canadians and the whole Canadian economy" and said top-flight salesmen must be recruited to go into every part of the world to do a "re-i" selling job.

Immediate steps must be taken to provide cash payments (to prairie farmers) necessary for current expenditures, taxes and preparation of next year's crop, if this is not done then there are going to be disastrous consequences."

"We are in a position to meet the demands of the world with products made here in Canada from Canadian raw materials. But present policies are encouraging the export of raw materials which will feed the hungry, mass-producing machines of the United States . . . instead of creating employment for millions of Canadians."

The dinner, a tribute to Sir John A. Macdonald, founder of the Conservative party in 1854, heard reports from PC members of Parliament of the growing strength of the Conservative-party across Canada.

Mr. Drew praised the party for building "a united nation here in Canada." Against "vigorous, well-financed and well-organized efforts to separate the West from the East" it bound the country together, he said.

He described as "part of the Liberal mythology" the adoption of the theme of national unity by the government. Each party has played its vitally important role, he said, but not apart from the other.

"Surely it is not too much to ask that with so much of the mechanisms of propaganda now under their control that our Liberal friends . . . fairly recognize the contribution of both parties to our growth and development."

The government, Mr. Drew said, is "suffering from the corruption of power . . . the symptom of an underlying and deadly disease in our body politic."

Argos Pick Up Homebrew Star; Dempsey Cut

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union said Sunday they have picked up homebrew John Welton on waivers from Ottawa Rough Riders. Welton, a six-foot-five, 230 pound end, played last year with Queen's University.

Argos announced they will play the remainder of the season with imports Bill Albright, Billy Shipp, Cas Wijucki, Bruno Banducci, Al Pfeifler, Jim Haslim, Bucky Curtis, Tom Dublinski, Henry Ford, Corky Tharp and Dick Shatto.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats said they have cut import linebacker Frank Dempsey and will go along with Carl Garrigus, Nobby Wirkowski, Gerry Sazio, Ray Collins, Tom Lauderback, Bucky Rilloux, Hal Waggoner, Lou Kusserow, Ray Ramsay, Paul Bischoff and Frank McDonald.

Dempsey, a former Chicago Bear of the National Football League, was involved in a $150,000 lawsuit between TiCats and Bears. The suit was settled out of court.

GOES TO OTTAWA

Now he goes to Ottawa, picked up on waivers by Rough Riders, who likely will use him as a linebacker.

The Big Four clubs are allowed to keep 10 active and one inactive import for the rest of the season. Deadline for naming them was midnight Saturday.

On Saturday, Montreal Alouettes declared 10 imports and one man on the inactive list.

The 10 are those who played Saturday against Toronto Argonauts and the man on the inactive list is Joe Zaleski, who has been used as scout and spotter and would be used at the quarterback position should Sam Etcheverry be injured.

The Als dropped Chuck Hunsinger, who has missed several games because of an injured ankle. He is leaving for his Illinois home.

Junior Canadiens Hand St. Mike's 6-1 Trimming

MONTREAL (CP) — Centreman Forbes Kennedy and linemate Bob Courcy notched two goals apiece to lead the Montreal junior Canadiens to a 6-1 triumph over Toronto St. Michael's in Sir Wilfrid Laurier Trophy play Sunday.

The Baby Habs tallied three times in the first period, once in the second and twice in the final frame. Rearguard Ralph McNiff and Bob Marquis added the other tallies for the Canadiens.

Louis Angotti scored the lone marker for the Saints in the first period after neat solo efforts by Courcy and McNiff in the opening minutes had put Montreal ahead.

The game, first in the Laurier series, was worth four points. Because Montreal plays St. Mike's only twice during the series, both games have been given a four-point value. All others are worth two points for the winner.

Unbeaten Teams Cut to Three

NEW YORK (AP)—Not an undefeated team remained in the National Football League today as Baltimore Colts and Los Angeles Rams, last of the unbeaten, were sent sprawling in Sunday's games to throw the Western Conference title race into a three-way tie.

Detroit Lions, meanwhile, still are without a 1955 victory after winning three consecutive eastern championships. San Francisco handed the Lions their fourth defeat, scoring 21 points in the final quarter to win 27-24.

Baltimore Colts won their first of the season, thumping the Colts 38-10. Green Bay Packers downed the Rams, scoring a 30-28 triumph on Fred Cone's 26-yard field goal with 24 seconds left in the game. That deadlocked the Colts, Packers and Rams for the conference lead with 3-1 records.

In the eastern conference, Cleveland gained a share of the lead with Pittsburgh Steelers by handing Washington Redskins their second defeat, 24-14. Pittsburgh qualified for the lead with a 13-7 decision over Philadelphia Saturday night. Chicago Cardinals wound up in a tie with Washington for third after a 10-0 loss to New York Giants.

Weightlifting

Lifters are expected to compete from Kingston, Peterborough, and as far west as Toronto. This is creating much enthusiasm in this region which on Oct. 29th will bring the best men to the front.

This weeks totals with small improvements should place them well in the running. Ken Carpenter 555 lbs., Don Cherry 620 lbs., Len Yanke 525 lbs., Joe Cox 530 lbs., Bob Juby 435 lbs., Len Furnie 390.

LIFTS 1,130 LBS.

Russian athletes, who did not compete in the heavyweight class, ran away with the big award of the five-day festival. The "Prize of Nations" for the best team. Russian lifters collected a total of 29 points while the United States was second with 25 points.

Bob Mitchell Named Head Basketball Body

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—R. A. (Bob) Mitchell of Dundas was elected president of the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association Interm ediate B and junior B teams, formerly restricted to centres with 12,500 or under population, now are open to centres under 20,000 population.

The protest fee was raised from $10 to $25 and teams defaulting one game in a playoff series automatically will forfeit the entire series.

Players in the OABA now may play with only one team in one year. This prevents high school boys from playing with both their school and an outside OABA team.

Howard Campbell, president of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, presented a brief on plans for the selection of the basketball team which will represent Canada in the Olympic Games in Australia during November and December, 1956.

A tournament will be held in Vancouver comprising four teams—one each from Ontario, British Columbia and Alberta, and one selected from preliminary eliminations between Quebec, Ottawa valley and Manitoba.

NHL to Honor Bill Chadwick

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Chadwick, who was born and raised in the shadow of Manhattan's tenements, looked back on his 14 years as a National Hockey League referee and decided "it was well worth it."

Chadwick, now general manager of a country club here, will be honored by the NHL Wednesday night before the New York Rangers' home opener in Madison Square Garden against Toronto Maple Leafs. He retired from the game last April.

"I think I made a lot of friends in hockey, for a referee, that is," said Chadwick in an interview. "But I think it was time to quit. At 40, you start losing some of your efficiency. I wanted to stop when I was on top, not when they threw me out."

No less an authority than Carl Voss, referee-in-chief of the NHL, calls Chadwick "the best referee of all time and I've seen them all since 1916."

Close Race In American League

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only two points separated the first five clubs in the American Hockey League today with Pittsburgh and Cleveland deadlocked for the lead.

Providence Reds nipped the Hornets 6-5 in overtime and Buffalo Bisons trounced Cleveland 8-2 in the only games played Sunday night. Pittsburgh and Cleveland have six points each, while Providence and Buffalo are tied for third place with five and Springfield is fifth with—four points. Hershey is in the cellar without a point.

Rookie Jim Bartlett's goal in the overtime period handed Pittsburgh its first loss in four starts. The Hornets trailed 5-2 midway in the third period, but came on strong to score three times in two minutes to send the game into overtime.

Buffalo poured in four goals in the final period as defenceman Al Dewsbury, center Ken Wharram and winger Ed Slowinski each contributed two goals to the Buffalo victory. Fred Glover and Joe Lund tallied for the Barons.

FAO, Now Ten Years Old, Formed During Grave Days of Second War

Editor's Note: A world organization dedicated to the eradication of hunger was 10 years old Sunday. Here is the story of how the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization was born and how it functions today in its battle against man's most ancient enemy.

By JAMES M. LONG

ROME (AP)—Seventy per cent of the world's population is under nourished.

Huge surpluses glut warehouses in a lucky few countries while the world diet daily scrapes close to the bottom in vast areas. Millions are hungry.

What are we doing about it?

A lot—through an outfit called the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization. FAO was 10 years old Sunday. The idea of FAO originated—appropriately enough—over a luncheon table during the grave days of the Second World War. Australian food economist Dr. Frank McDougall got to talking about a plan for a world food planning organization.

His hostess, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, was impressed.

"Dr. McDougall, would you like to discuss that idea with my husband?" she asked. "I think he might be interested."

President Franklin D. Roosevelt was. He called a food and farm conference at Hot Springs, Va., in 1943, to draw the plans. Two years later, at Quebec, 20 nations signed the Oct. 16, 1945, agreement establishing FAO. Twenty-two other nations joined within a few weeks.

Now 75 days short of the two great marble buildings in Rome which Italy turned over to FAO as a world headquarters for a token annual rental of one dollar each.

After 10 years, hunger still is as menacing as ever. But FAO reports many beachheads have been won, particularly in lands where want is greatest.

World food production has increased by 25 per cent in less than 10 years. But production is uneven —there is glut in one area and famine in another.

Soviet Russia has been hitting hard after a decade of abstention she may join FAO. Her membership would be a powerful aid in world food planning, for Russia is among the big food producers.

FAO has two sides. One is in the headquarters here in Rome, which is sometimes criticized for being bureaucratic and aloof. The striking arm is elsewhere—1,100 technicians in some 50 countries teaching farmers and fishermen how to produce more food.

A sun-tanned Welsh fisherman shows fishermen in Ceylon how to use outboard motors instead of oats, thus giving them more hours fishing and greatly increasing the fishing harvest.

An Iowa farmer in Afghanistan shows turbaned Afghans how to use the scythe instead of the hand knife for cutting wheat, or a sturdy Australian demonstrates modern sheep breeding techniques to Libyans. This is the heart of FAO's work.

In distant lands FAO technicians have worked wonders. Here are sample victories:

Thirty per cent of this year's commercial fish catch in Haiti's inland waters was of species introduced there by FAO since 1951.

In 1947, FAO began introducing North American Lespedeza corn into Europe. Five years later, will-only five per cent of Europe's native acreage planted in the new hybrid, the yield increase was worth $21,000,000 a year. Cost for the entire seeding was $40,000.

"The dread 'white terror,' or red baby disease, is gradually being brought under control in South America, Africa, Indian and Asia by making up protein deficiency with skim milk powders.

FAO hasn't a loaf of bread or an ear of corn in its native army or in all. It has no free seeds to distribute. Its job is to co-ordinate international effort.

Probably the only time FAO ever actually contributed supplies to a country in need was during the locust plague threats the last four years in East Africa.

Then FAO made available locust poisons, sprays and some equipment which it was able to obtain quick supply.

Who pays for FAO? All members contribute, in assessments based on national wealth and production.

Federal-Backed Bank Loans May Be Offered West

OTTAWA (CP) —Government-backed bank loans may be the federal answer to prairie appeals for ways of turning a huge stockpile of farm-held grain into cash.

Federal authorities are delving into ways of grappling with the prairie request and some feel the best way to meet the situation is to revive and overhaul the 1951 legislation under which the government guaranteed bank loans on unthreshed grain.

Only in this case it will not be wet grain lying in fields but dry threshed, dry grain housed in bins that the farmers will have as security.

As a result, the maximum loan to each individual farmer of $1,000 under the 1951 legislation may be raised, though it does not appear likely that the maximum interest of 5½ per cent will be lowered. However, the final decision is still some weeks away. And it appears likely any federal proposal will require parliamentary approval before it becomes operative. Parliament is not expected to be reconvened before mid-January.

KABAKA RETURNS

Reserves Decision

LINDSAY (CP)—Magistrate R. I. Moore Friday reserved decision on a motion to cite the publisher of the Haliburton County Echo and the alleged writer of a letter in last week's edition for contempt of court.

D. M. Thompson, counsel for Roy Leboutillier in a forthcoming trial on a charge of criminal negligence, read the letter, signed with the name of George Brennan of Haliburton, to the magistrate. It commented on accidents in the Haliburton area.

Leboutillier was charged in connection with an accident last month in which Gash Wilkinson, 8, suffered severe injuries after she was struck by a bus driven, police said, by Leboutillier.

PLAN ANTARCTIC BASE

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A Soviet coastal scientific base will be set up in the Antarctic as part of Russia's research activities during the International Geophysical Year in 1957-58, an article in the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda says.

READY IN 1956

WUERZBURG, Germany (AP) —West Germany's chief military planner said Sunday that German troops will engage in atomic manoeuvres under NATO command next year. Former Lt.-Gen. Adolf Heusinger, director of the new Wehrmacht's chief of staff with his old rank, said some German units will be ready for the joint NATO exercise in 1956.

Pinky Lee Became Big Time When NBC Took Him Over

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A sensitive fellow is 'Pinky Lee.

He has been the butt of other comedians' jokes, and this hurt him deeply.

"I'm not a suave comedian, like Herb Shriner or George Gobel or Jack Carson," he says. "I've got a speech impediment, I'm ugly. So the things that make people laugh at me and then feel sorry for me. Little wistful things that might bring a tear to your eye."

For years he lingered on the fringe of top stardom, rising from burlesque to night clubs and movies and then television.

But he never really clocked big until NBC slotted him in an afternoon program for children. The Pinky Lee show took off like a shot and soon overpowered even Howdy Doody in the daytime ratings.

MOUSE CREESED HIM

Then along came a little mouse. Well, it wasn't just any little mouse. It was the Mickey Mouse. Backed by $15,000,000 of sponsors' gold, the Mickey Mouse Club was scheduled on ABC opposite Pinky. People said the Walt Disney show meant curtains for the little mouse.

"I was worried sick over it," Pinky admits. "I love those kids. I didn't want to lose them."

Pinky began working even harder. He already had a herculean schedule—six half-hour shows a week. He was knocking himself out like a trouper throughout each show. Even so, he stepped up the pace, brought in new gimmicks.

"The climax came when I had to give a commercial for Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck watches," he said. "Imagine, plugging the opposition during my own show! The only way I could get through it was to say, 'Buy a Mickey Mouse watch so you can tell what time the Pinky Lee show is on.'"

"That was the day I collapsed."

OUT FOR A WEEK

Right in front of the cameras, Pinky did an el foldo. His doctor said it was due to strain and worry, plus an attack of indigestion. He took a week's rest.

Now Pinky's back to the old six-week routine and he hopes he can hold out until June. Next season he'll seek an easier schedule.

But he isn't surrendering to the mouse.

"I think Disney is a great creator," he says. "But you must remember that I'm a rival. They love me and I love them. I know they'll stay with me."

The Kibitzer

Lady Luck is a fickle jane with the sweet and sinful beauty. For some she has a bug of gain; for some a lake of death.

Grand slam is often a nip and tuck affair that can go either way according to the mood of some odd card. An experienced player, however, makes advance plans for the safest results.

South became the declarer at seven hearts in this deal:

♠ Q J 5
♥ K J 10 4
♣ K 10 9 8 7 4

WEST	EAST
♠ 8 4 2	♠ 10 7 3
♥ 8	♥ 7 6 5 3 2
♦ K Q 10 6	♦ J 9 8 4 2
♣ Q 9 5 3 2	♣ 7

SOUTH
♠ A K 9 6
♥ A Q 9 8
♦ A 7 5 3
♣ A

Opening lead from west was the diamond king. After dumping one of the dummy clubs on it, south won with the ace. Great was the temptation to establish clubs for stuffing the south diamonds.

If no safer play was evident, such might have been the plan of declarer, but for him, however, a better play offered itself here. In fact, the better play was practically a cinch.

A small diamond return was ruffed high in dummy. A trump return from there was overtaken by south. Another diamond was ruffed high in dummy and the last dummy trump was overtaken by south.

Now South led his remaining two trumps and picked up the rest of the hand by east. Ace of clubs was cashed and dummy got into the lead by a small south spade to the jack.

Dummy cashed the club king on which south stuffed his final small diamond. Spades then took the balance of the tricks and 13 tricks were the result.

Virtually a cinch.

With the fancy distribution shown in dummy, something unusual could be held by an opponent. Such as the trumps in one hand. Or a void in clubs. Or even both these lo'the same hand.

With only four diamonds in the combined hands of declarer, the likelihood of a second round ruff is remote. Even so there was not the least danger from this when dummy can ruff high.

Times are when you could not go wrong if you wanted to.

Detroit Wings Turn Hot; Break Slump With Wins Over Chicago, Toronto

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

A GOOD JOB!

If the 1955 edition of the senior "B" TPT club here is not a success, financially or otherwise, it won't be the fault of the hard-working executive that has aligned itself behind the organization.

It is a grim determined, conscientious group of men acting in a behind-the-scenes capacity in a wholehearted collective effort, that are toiling in conjunction with the players themselves to bring to the city a topflight club that should be a serious contender for group honors.

Working in a fine co-operative spirit with the club executive, is the city arena commission. The commission which sponsored the club for the past two years has nothing whatsoever to do with the administration of the club. Instead it is standing by ready and willing to give a helping hand when necessary and possible.

It is no secret perhaps to publish the fact that the commission donated, without solicitation, the entire proceeds of the first scheduled game to the senior "B" club. This in itself is a fine gesture of co-operation and sportsmanship and none is more appreciative of the fact than the club executive not to mention the players themselves.

There have been, we understand, clubs operated on a player participation basis before, but these did not secure very great amount of success since the players administered the club and were minus the guiding hands of an experienced executive.

The executive elected and approved by the players themselves this season are doing yeoman service. Nothing is being left undone for the welfare of the club as well as efforts to produce an outstanding representative team. President Frank Grandame is doing an excellent job. He has everything at his fingertips and a hard-working capable crew of assistants is facilitating his presidential efforts.

Coach Danny Cox and manager "Red" Doran are looking after the players and are members with "Twig" Woodley of a player-procurement committee. Vern Goyer and Peter Jones are the players' representatives and these always are the last one of them, sits in at every executive meeting and gives his or their opinions and approval of business done by the executive proper. Nothing is considered finished business until it has the players' approval through their representatives.

Bill Bell is the chairman of an equally capable finance committee and it is mainly through the efforts of Bill and his energetic gang that the season ticket sale and other financial endeavors are meeting with such success. Jim Nevin is looking after a "draw" and is reported to be meeting with singular success. The matter of personal and organizational donations is also in the hands of Mr. Bell and his crew and Bill reports plenty of success in this endeavor.

An illustrated program is in the process of being readied for publication with Jim Driscoll as the master of production ceremonies. The program, a colorful affair, will be ready, it is stated in time for the scheduled opening of the group here.

Transportation problems, always knotty affairs, are in the hands of Bruce Bishop, who is working hard in an effort to round out the proper ways and means, as well as the cheaper way of transporting the players.

The executive as a whole is working all the time. President Grandame insists that his merry men go at top speed so that all will be in readiness for what is hoped one of the best hockey seasons in the history of the city. And we forget, there is the keeper of the privy purse, Drury Deanes, another hard-working executive who keeps close tabs on tickets and the finances of the organization.

The executive is functioning smoothly. It meets regularly and discusses or irons out the many problems that crop up. There is no internal dissension and with the fine co-operation of the players and the arena commission everything points to a good season.

Interest in the TPT's has marked 's pre-season upsurge if attendance of rainbirds at initial practices can be judged a criterion. Upwards of 300 turned out for the first workout and the "rinkside referees" are showing up in goodly numbers at each practice session looking over the situation.

The sale of season tickets not only to former subscribers but to new ones as well, is said to be highly satisfactory, and if the players can come thru' with the right brand of hockey and the club appears to be a contender even at this point—and the club appears to be a contender even at this point—then the city is in for an exceptional season of puck-chasing.

CANADIENS HERE!

The 1955-56 edition of Belleville's senior "B" hockey team, the TPT's, will face their initial test of the year this Thursday night when the Montreal Canadien Juniors will make their appearance here for an exhibition game. The strengthened TPT's, under coach Danny Cox, will have a week's practice under their belts come Thursday night, but the Canadiens are one of the stronger Junior "A" clubs and will certainly test the strength of the local squad. Montreal handed the highly rated St. Michael's Majors a 6-1 defeat on Sunday without the services of "Pocket Rocket" Richard, who led the club last year. They meet the Kingston Goodyears in the Limestone City on Wednesday even, hence straight to Belleville for the Thursday night affair. The TPT's will have Tony Farisi and Don Barclay for goaltending duties with Bob Wilson, Bill McMaster, Jud Samaroden and possibly another rearguard of high ability on defence. Several line combinations will be in action with the Peterborough trio of Bert Hill, Toody Greenlaw and Gus Leonard likely forming one line. The big line of the playoffs last season, Vern Goyer, Keith MacDonald and Dave Jones might also be intact for this fixture. Then there's Chum Fryia, Peterborough star, along with Pat Gilmour, Sam Mulholland, George Jacklin, Pete Jones, Jackie Wardhaugh and Doug Day.

TAKES TABLE TENNIS

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Max Marenko of Toronto, former member of the Czechoslovakian national table tennis team, held the spotlight in the two-day central Canada open table tennis championships here Saturday and Sunday.

Marenko, who came to Canada a little more than a year ago, captured the men's senior title, the men's open crown and shared the men's double laurels with Steve Jelenich of Toronto and the mixed doubles with Jessie Kapostins, also of Toronto.

WINS GOLD CUP

CHICAGO (AP)—Hasseyampa, four-year-old colt who had won only one of 11 starts this year, scored a smashing triumph over three powerful eastern contenders to capture the $94,050 Gold Cup race which closed the Hawthorne racing season Saturday.

Hasseyampa, ridden by Billy Pirk, ran a strong race over the 1¼-mile route to win by a neck over Mister Black, Hasty House Farm contender whose stablemate Sea O'Erin placed third. Hasseyampa returned $50.40, $18.60 and $10.40.

High-Geared Champions Hang 6-0 Collar on Hapless Leafs; Canadiens Remain Undefeated

By the Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings finally broke out of their slump. As expected, they did it with a vengeance.

Nobody around the National Hockey League figured the Wings could go on losing games. They dropped three in a row but came back during the weekend to take two straight victories.

The Red Wing power machine went into high gear in rolling over the Black Hawks 4-1 at Chicago Saturday and 6-0 against Toronto Maple Leafs at Detroit Sunday night. Veteran right winger Gordie Howe scored four goals as the Wings jumped from last place in the league race into a fourth-place deadlock with the New Rangers.

Free-scoring Montreal Canadiens made it four straight wins Saturday as they defeated the Rangers 4-1 in Montreal. At Toronto, Boston Bruins pulled themselves up to a 3-2 tie with Leafs in the other Saturday game.

CHICAGO 1 DETROIT 4

The Hawks partially held Canadiens Sunday night as the teams battled to a 1-1 draw. Chicago Hawkers suffered their second loss in a row as Bruins dumped them 4-1 at Boston in the other Sunday contest.

Howe took over the league's scoring leadership with his pair of goals in each weekend game plus two assists.

Left winger Ted Lindsay, Howe's linemate, and centre Alex Delvecchio scored the other Detroit goals at Chicago. Defenceman Frank Martin was the only player to beat goaltender Glenn Hall in two games as he scored the Black Hawks' goal at the mid-way mark of the final period.

A crowd of 12,543 saw the first big temper outburst of the season Sunday at Detroit's Olympia. Bedlam broke loose in the third period. Referee Frank Udvari handed out 74 minutes in penalties as most players got into the two flareups late in the period.

KELLY PENALIZED

Detroit defenceman Red Kelly was the last man. He collected a total of 22 minutes in penalties. That was only six minutes below his all-time high for a season.

Lindsay picked up a minor, major and 10-minute misconduct penalty for 17 minutes. Leafs' greatest skinner was defenceman Jim Thomson who sat out 19 minutes of penalties.

Lindsay, Delvecchio, Norm Ullman and Marcel Pronovost scored the other Detroit markers.

It was Hall's first shutout of the season. He had to handle only 16 Leaf shots. Toronto netminder Harry Lumley faced 29 drives.

The Richard brothers went into a goal-scoring act Saturday before 23,637 fans at Montreal Forum. Maurice bagged a pair of goals and his young brother, Henri, counted the first NHL marker of his career.

The Rocket's first goal came at 16:14 of the first period and his second at 18:07 of the third. Henri's score was at 3:14 of the second. Near the 15-minute mark Jackie Leclair made it 3-0 for Montreal. Dave Creighton opened the scoring in the final 20 minutes as he saved Rangers from being shut out.

TWO QUICK GOALS

Bruins took advantage of George Armstrong's boarding penalty at 15:06 of the third period Saturday to score two quick goals and earn a 3-2 tie.

Marcel Bonin cut Toronto's 2-0 lead in half at 15:26 and Orv Tessier deadlocked the count 80 seconds later.

Rookie centre Billy Harris picked up his second goal of the campaign early in the first period. Right winger Ron Stewart added another Leaf goal five minutes later before a standing-room crowd of 13,001.

Leafs outshot Boston 32-25 but Sawchuk was showing the old form which won him the Vezina Trophy last season by one goal over Lumley.

Maurice Richard scored the 427th of his NHL career Sunday before 9,118 fans in Chicago. And it was an important one because it gave Canadiens a tie and their fifth game without a loss. The right winger's tally was at the 14-minute mark of the third period.

Black Hawks took a 1-0 lead in the first period when defenceman Allan Stanley's long shot bounced off a player into the net. Tom Johnson tied the score just past the midway point of the period.

SET THE STAGE

In the third period, Chicago again went out in front when Nick Mickoski fired a goal at 5:42, setting the stage for Richard's tying counter later in the frame.

A crowd of 11,358 at Boston Sunday saw the Bruins keep the pressure on Ranger goalie Lorne Worsley all night with fiery Leo Labine

Dutchies Grab Top Grid Spot

SARNIA (CP)—Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen clinched first place in the senior Ontario Rugby Football Union Saturday night by tying Sarnia Imperials 10-10.

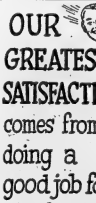
It was the first tie of the league this season. Dutchmen now have a record of eight wins, a tie and a loss. Imperials are six points behind Dutchmen in second place. Toronto Beaches, the other team in the league, are winless in nine starts.

Kitchener held a 6-1 lead after the first quarter but Imperials moved out in front 13-12 in the second quarter. Dutchmen went into the lead 18-13 during the third. Early in the final 15 minutes, Imperials made it 19-18 before quarterback Bob Celeri kicked a single late in the quarter to earn Kitchener a tie.

Celeri's kick occurred with five minutes to go in the game. It came after Imperials had run three punts by Celeri out of the end zone in the fourth quarter. With a few seconds remaining Sarnia quarterback Gene Cappelletti kicked from the Kitchener 30-yard line to the dead zone and Celeri made the single kick.

With one play left in the game Cappelletti kicked again and Dutchmen's Steve Fechuck ran the ball out of the end zone to preserve the tie.

Cookie Gilchrist scored the Dutchmen's first touchdown on a one-yard plunge in the first quarter. Celeri and Bobby Kuntz made the other Dutchmen to score touchdowns. Billy Graham converted two of Kitchener's touchdowns and Celeri added a single besides his game-tying punt.



Dick Dixon and John Chorostecki scored for Sarnia touchdowns in the second quarter and Cappelletti added one for the other touchdown in the fourth. Cappelletti converted the three Sarnia touchdowns and kicked a single in the first quarter.

Sarnia made 21 first downs to 19 by Kitchener. Imperials threw 15 passes and completed seven, with two intercepted. Celeri threw 26 Kitchener passes and completed eight with one interception.

Sam 'The Rifle' Beats Argos As TiCats Claw Ottawa 28-1; Riders Nip Eskys; Stamps Out

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sam Etcheverry got in a bit of a jam last night when he signed contracts with two teams—Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League and Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four. He finally decided to return to the Als, which was sad news to the other clubs in the Canadian league.

The Regina-bred quarter, voted Canada's outstanding player of 1955, has made life miserable for Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders this year. He was downright mean Saturday when he led the Als to a convincing 44-23 victory over Argonauts at Montreal.

The former Denver University star threw five touchdown passes, set up another with his deadly passing and preserved the Als' lead point lead at the top of the stand. The Tiger-Cats who rolled over the Rough Riders 28-1 at Hamilton.

IGNORED DRIZZLE

More than 21,000 fans were lured to McGill Stadium by an expected aerial duel between Etcheverry and Toronto's Dan Dubinski. Detroit Lions quarter who left the Canadian club to play in Canada, but ignored a steady drizzle throughout the game and hooked up in a sensational passing battle with Sam the decisive winner.

Dubinski fired four touchdown passes—three to Al Pfeifer and one to Henry Ford—but five timely passes were snared by Montrealers. Only one Etcheverry pass was intercepted and he licked up 18 of 33 for 314 yards against 14 of 34 for a gain of 305 yards by Dubinski.

Etcheverry's favorite target was Joey Pal who caught six for three touchdowns. His other payoff passes went to Hal Patterson and Red O'Quinn and only once did he stick strictly to ground play for a touchdown march.

In the second quarter, with Alouettes ahead 30-17, he moved Als steadily along the ground from the 35, finishing off the drive with a five-yard smash through the line by J. C. Caroline, an Argonaut castoff. Pat Abbruzzi scored Montreal's final touchdown from one yard out after Sam directed a 56-yard march with his accurate passing and a series of well-mixed ground plays.

CONVERTED SIX

Bud Korchak converted six of the seven Montreal touchdowns and added a field goal and Pfeifer missed one convert in four tries.

A hometown halfback, Johnny Fedosoff, scored two touchdowns to lead Tiger-Cats to their victory over Ottawa's patch-work Rough Riders. Riders, who fired five players for what they termed indifferent play in the two previous games, were reinforced by three American linemen but they couldn't withstand the Tiger-Cat offensive which netted 18 points in the final 15 minutes.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders are out of the playoffs and Edmonton Eskimo Roughriders are almost in as the Western Interprovincial Football Union enters its final two weeks of regular play.

The Stampeders lost their last hope of a play-off spot Saturday by falling 36-18 to the British Columbia Lions, while the Rough riders edged the league-leading Edmonton Eskimos 4-3 to move within one victory of the total of nine wins they need to assure themselves a berth.

The 16 games a team schedule ends Oct. 29. Eskimos are already definitely in and Blue Bombers and Lions will probably be battling for the third playoff spot, granting Roughriders get the one win they need. If a tie occurs Winnipeg will get the nod if they can keep their ice and against record better than Lions.

Eskimos now have 24 points, Roughriders 18, Winnipeg 12 and Lions 10. Calgary has only six.

It was a battle of bench warmers in Regina. The Eskimos left six imports at home and the Roughriders also used second stringers most of the game.

Roughriders fashioned their win with a rouge in the first quarter and a field goal in the second. Then the Eskimos managed only one field goal in the first quarter. Rod Pantages boosted the single for the winners and Joe Aguirre scored the field goal. Bob Dean booted the Eskimo points.

In Vancouver, the Lions took advantage of interceptions, Calgary fumbles and an air attack to sideline the Stampeders as far as the playoffs are concerned. They scored six converted touchdowns while the Calgary club scored three. Five touchdowns were scored in the last quarter.

Ron Clinkscale and Primo Villanueva quarterbacked the Lions in the absence of injured first-string quarterback Arnie Galiffa. Both scored touchdowns, as did Ken Ross, Don Edwards and Gil Bartosh. Bartosh scored two.

Jack Meskimo, Willie Roberts and Lynn Bottoms counted majors for Calgary.

A crowd of only 9,300 saw the Riders battle on almost even terms for three quarters. They trailed 3-1 at the end of the first, 9-1 at the half and 10-1 going into the last 15 minutes.

Fredosoff scored his first touchdown in the second half and the other near the end of the game. Other Tiger-Cat touchdowns were scored by Hal Waggoner and Lou Kusserow. Ray Trusnt kicked the convert on all four and Steve Onschuk kicked a field goal and a single.

Avatus Stone booted Ottawa's single in the opening quarter.

Trounce Redmen

Blues Headed for 2nd Title Gaels Defeat Western in Mud

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

University of Toronto Blues appear to be headed to their second senior intercollegiate football title in a row today and they may not have to do it the hard way as they did last year.

The season is only half over but Blues are sitting on top with six points, two more than Queen's of Golden Gaels.

The 1954 Blues just squeezed into a playoff spot when they beat Queen's 11-6 in the last game of the season's Toronto. The win produced a three-way tie for first place and a three-game series Gaels and University of Western Ontario Mustangs. Varsity drew a bye and then defeated Mustangs 5-0 for the championship.

This year there probably won't be a playoff. Blues trounced McGill Redmen 31-6 here Saturday to complete their round of wins over intercollegiate opposition. Previously they beat Western 20-3 and Queen's 11-6.

WON EASILY

Blues scored five touchdowns and a field goal to win in easy fashion over the hapless Redmen, tied with Western for last place with one point.

They piled up a 21-0 lead by the half and then relaxed their hawk-eyed pass defence enough to let Johnny Bennett slip through to catch two touchdown passes.

But they put on the steam in the fourth quarter and end Dave Creswell, playing in his first game this season, shook loose for two more V.-ality touchdowns.

Varsity's three other touchdowns were scored by Phil Muntz, Gerry Lansky and Bert Kellock and Pete Maik kicked all five converts and a field goal.

THREE MINUTES DID IT

Queen's might have been on the losing side in their game with Western Saturday, but for three minutes in the third quarter.

It took them just that long to score two converted touchdowns, both by halfback Bill Surphlis for a 12-4 win. Before that Western had a 4-0 lead on a field goal and a single by Bob Lathbet. The game, played in a steady rain, appeared to be going to end that way until Surphlis went wild.

Western piled up 25 first downs to Queen's 17.

Only Queen's are sig likely to catch Varsity now, but they have to beat them when they meet in Kingston Oct. 29, besides winning their two remaining games with Western and McGill.

AGGIES TAKE SOCCER

GUELPH (CP) — Ontario Agricultural College Aggies handed McMaster University of Hamilton a double defeat Saturday in soccer games Saturday. The senior Aggies won 6-0 and the intermediates 7-0. Dave Courtice led the seniors with three goals.

'Bluebird' Fails To Crack Record, Sinks in Lake

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Don Campbell of England with his water-cooled jet propelled hydroplane Bluebird, hopes for another day of speed but not like Sunday.

The Bluebird failed to break its own world record and then sank in Lake Mead while being towed back to shore an hour after the attempt.

Vicious swells brought on by Sunday's gusty wind drivers in scores of boats probably were the reason for the twin misfortunes. Campbell and his crew of many helpers, working far into the night, pulled the 4,000-pound craft out of the water from a depth estimated at 50 feet or more and hauled it back ashore.

The engaging young Briton, who set an international record in England last July with a speed of 248.225 miles an hour, said it would take about four weeks to get the Bluebird ready for any more speed runs.

RUN OF BAD LUCK

Events Sunday climaxed a run of bad luck for the 35-year-old son of the late speed king, Sir Malcolm Campbell.

The first run of the Bluebird over the measured mile course was timed at 162.33, but the official timed in 147.179 m.ph As Campbell refuelled the 50-gallon tank for the second run he announced he had no hopes of breaking the record. The second blast-away was timed at 162.822, and the official average was a flat 155 miles an hour.

Even before the two runs he told intimates he did not fancy the prospects. There were too many boats swishing around on the lake. The least commotion of the water can be fatal for a jet boat banging away at 200 miles an hour.

AFC LEAGUE FOLDS

STELLARTON, N.S. (CP)—The Antigonish - Pictou - Colchester Hockey League, oldest established senior circuit in the Maritimes, decided Sunday it will not operate this winter.

Only Pictou Royals and Truro Bearcats expressed willingness to compete. Harry Trainor, league president, said 'there seems no other alternative but to suspend play.' The loop had operated for nearly 35 years.

Matthews Leads Blackpool Win

LONDON (AP) — Stanley Matthews, sidelined for three weeks with a groin injury, returned to English League soccer action Saturday and inspired Blackpool to a 3-0 victory over Leicester City.

The win sent Blackpool into a clear lead in the first division. The ace 40-year-old winger carved big holes in Charlton's defence as Blackpool took a 2-0 lead in the first half on goals by inside forward David Durie and centre forward Jack Mudie.

Durie got another in the second half and Mudie added two more, the second from a perfect centre by Matthews, still one of the greats of English soccer despite his age.

Blackpool now sets the pace with 21 points from 12 games, pulling ahead of Manchester United and West Bromwich Albion which were even with Blackpool on points last week but trailed on goal average.

Manchester United carved a point from a 4-4 tie with Aston Ville while West Brom lost 3-1 at Sunderland and dropped to fourth place. Scottish international Charlie (Legs) Fleming scored both goals for Sunderland which, like Manchester United, trails Blackpool by a point.

Biggest upset of the day was Birmingham's, 5-0 win at Portsmouth.

Aggies Swamp Queen's 56-1

GUELPH (CP) —Ontario Agricultural College Aggies pulverized Queen's University 56-1 Saturday in an intermediate Intercollegiate game Saturday.

Bob Ilart and Don Sproule each had two touchdowns. Spud Murphy, Wayne Gerrie, Bill Dimson, Phil Green, Jack Brethet and Bill Weber were the other touchdown scorers. Bob Billis converted five touchdowns and Dave Francis one.

Green ran 115 yards when a Queen's field goal attempt failed and he picked up the ball in his own team's end zone.

Bill Trowsdale kicked Comets point.

WINS CROSS COUNTRY

HAMILTON (CP) — Dick Carmichael of Toronto Olympic Club won the Canadian senior cross-country championship Saturday, recovering the six miles in 30 minutes and one second.

Nashua Sets All-Time Mark For Earnings

NEW YORK (AP)—Belair Stud's Nashua set an all-time mark for one-year earnings when he pounded through the rain and slop of Belmont Park Saturday to win the 36th running of the $79,950 Jockey Club Gold Cup, a classic two-mile, weight-for-age test. Nashua won by five lengths in the moderate time of 3:24 4-5.

Nashua earned $52,850 to jack his earnings for this year to $752,850, surpassing Citation's record of $709,470 set in 1948 when the Calumet colt also was a three-year-old.

Now all that stands in the way of the Belair beauty is Citation's all-time money-winning mark of $1,085,760. Nashua, retiring for the year, has total earnings of $943,145. His victory Saturday put him ahead of Stymie, who retired with $918,485.

Barring accident, Nashua appears to have the all-time money record at his mercy as a four-year-old. Citation achieved his millionDollar bankroll with 45 starts. Nashua has been to the post but 20 times, winning 16, finishing second three times and third once.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro was content to let Jockey Paul Bailey on Christiana Stables' Thinking Cap set the pace until the backstretch when he sent Nashua up alongside to run head and head with the leader until the last mile pole. Then Nashua slowly but steadily forged to the front and opened up a commanding lead heading into the stretch.

Dutchies Win First Game

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A, won their first of six exhibition games Saturday night when they defeated Stratford Indians of the same league, 4-3.

A crowd of about 1,700 fans watched centre Ken Laufman score two goals in the seven minutes. Right winger Buddy Horne and left winger Ron Hope were the other Dutchmen marksmen.

George Aitken, with a pair of goals, and Harry Paulka scored the Indians' goals.

Kramer Kut Up

Rosewall, Hoad Simon Pures Turn Backs on Pro Contracts

By GORDON TAIT

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Ken Rosewall and Lew Hoad, Australia's 20-year-old Davis Cup twins turned their backs on lucrative professional contracts today and announced they will remain tennis amateurs.

American promoter Jack Kramer had offered the two $50,000 apiece to join his troupe. Only last week, Kramer signed America's No. 1 Davis Cupper Tony Trabert, for an estimated $75,000.

But Rosewall and Hoad decided to stay with the sporting goods companies for which they work. In addition, Rosewall has been freed to do part time work for a milk company, which will bring his salary to an estimated $6,000 a year.

"I'm going to remain an amateur at least for three years," said Rosewall. "It's been a worry and I'm glad the decision has been made. Lew made his and I made mine. We didn't influence each other."

KRAMER IS STUNNED

When he heard of their decision in Los Angeles, Kramer admitted he was stunned.

"It's not quite a ton of bricks," he said. "But I still have Trabert and the obligation to make the best possible tennis show with him."

Kramer said he is considering asking pros Pancho Gonzales and Frank Sedgman, himself a former great professionals in Sedgman and Gonzales."

Hoad said it was a great relief to have settled the "real dilemma" of deciding about Kramer's offer.

"I want to win the Wimbledon and United States singles titles and if I accepted Kramer's offer, I would have to leave my wife Jennifer at home," Hoad added. "Anyway I'll be able to play in the next Davis cup. If Kramer's offer comes after that, then I will probably accept."

The news was published with glee in Sydney's afternoon newspapers.

"Twins Refuse Pro Offer," said The Mirror on the front page.

"Amateur Twins Say No to Kramer."

Aussie Davis Cup star, to join the troupe. Both have played for Kramer before.

"A professional tour with both Rosewall and Hoad in it would have great appeal to the public," he said. 'However, if they won't be in the groups, we would have two sports page story.

Japanese Barley Commission Will Tour Canada

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian methods of growing and handling barley will come under scrutiny in the next three weeks as a fourman Japanese barley commission tours the country under the leadership of the Canadian Wheat Board.

The commission, headed by the Japanese deputy-minister of agriculture and forestry, Kyuei Kikkawa, arrived here Saturday night from Tokyo. They will inspect barley storage facilities in Vancouver before flying here for Edmonton by air Tuesday evening.

From Edmonton the party will go to Calgary, Banff, Winnipeg, Toronto, Peterborough, Ottawa and Montreal. The commission will return to Vancouver Nov. 6 and leave for Japan the next day.

One of the purposes of the tour, Mr. Kikkawa said, is to inspect this year's Canadian barley crop before setting the Japanese import quota. He said last year Japan imported 800,000 tons of barley. This year the figure may even go higher since consumption of the grain in Japan is increasing.

During the tour the commission will pay a courtesy call on the departments of trade and commerce in Ottawa and inspect the rolling mills of a large Canadian grain mill.

How Will Tell His Riding First When He Retires

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—If and when Premier Frost leaves provinces to retire, his constituents in the Port Arthur district will be the first to know about it.

He made this promise to a gigantic gathering in the exhibition coliseum Friday night. Several of the 500-odd guests attending the testimonial dinner in honor of the senior cabinet minister's 29th anniversary in the service, voiced their objections at even the suggestion by shouting: "Don't even think about it, C.D."

Mr. Howe said:

"It's getting now so I pick up a newspaper and read one day that I'm retiring. The next day I read that I'm not.

"When I feel I can't do the proper job in Ottawa I'll let you know. You'll be the first to know, since I'm a resident of Port Arthur. In the meantime, don't pay too much attention to any of these predictions by persons who seem to have too much knowledge."

Quebec Hotelman Stabs Woman, Then Kills Self

ILE PERROT, Que. (CP)—The 33-year-old assistant manager of a plush hotel here stabbed a woman to death Saturday with a kitchen knife and then turned the weapon on himself, provincial police said Sunday.

Dead are Roger Houle, assistant manager at the Manoir de Sherbrooke in this small island community 25 miles west of Montreal, and 29-year-old Adrienne Provencal, an employee at the same hotel.

Police said the motive may have been jealousy.

British Warships Leave Leningrad

LENINGRAD (Reuters — Five British warships ended a five-day Russian goodwill visit today and headed home after being stranded all night on Lake Ladoga by heavy fog.

The cruiser Superb and the destroyer Saintes left Leningrad at 9 a.m. (1 a.m. EST) and were expected to leave at noon.

Earlier Soviet authorities had insisted that the British ships leave during the night. Naval sources said the Russians did this to prevent the visitors from seeing secret construction on new dockyards in the Leningrad area. But they relented when the weather worsened, making navigation very difficult on the trip to the sea highly dangerous.

Houses for Ministers Will Be Opened Oct. 27

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The official opening of Albright Heights, a housing development for retired United Church ministers and missionaries, will take place Oct. 27, it was announced today. The development is located in nearby Beamsville.

Rt. Rev. George Dorey, moderator of the United Church of Canada, will open the project.

Funds to build the 12 cottages in the development were donated by Miss Elsie Watt of Toronto, Rev. Ray Albright of Toronto donated the land.

Eventually 60 cottages will be built on the site. The development may also be linked with a new home for the aged.

PAPER PRICES GO UP

LONDON (AP)—Britain's 11 national Sunday newspapers will increase their prices by one half penny a week because of the recent rising production costs. Nine of the newspapers will go up from 2½ pence to three pence and the other two from 3½ pence to four pence.

Fishermen Take Holiday When Prices Weaken

PORT STANLEY, Ont. (CP) — Fishing for captains and their crews took a "holiday" from north shore of Lake Erie fishing grounds during the weekend.

The time off in the midst of a busy season when a seven - day week is normal, was taken as a protest against weakening prices for fish. Catches have been good lately but prices have slipped.

Knowing a lean year from industrial disputes, the men took a holiday and met with market men at St. Thomas Saturday. Capt. Jack McDonald of the Port Dover fishing tug Trimac II, said he thought the rest would benefit the hard-pressed industry.

TENTATIVE PLAN

Out of the St. Thomas meeting, attended by representatives from Wheatley on the west to Port Maitland on the east, came a tentative plan to promote more systematic marketing of the catch to avoid over production at times when the market is not likely to be the catch. Tug operators, who work on a profit sharing system with their crews want a 12-cent-per-pound minimum for blue pickerel, the mainstay of the autumn catch.

The idea for a "holiday" spread to the Wheatley and Erie ship repair docks on Friday.

At Port Dover, the harbor was jammed with idle fishing tugs and fishery warehouses were locked up.

Seven Rescued After Cruiser Upsets in Lake

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — "We just tied each other together and started to swim ashore when we clung to an overturned cruiser in Lake St. Clair said after they were rescued from the lake early Sunday.

Frederick C. Hauck, 36, of Dearborn, Mich., said he and six passengers in his 40-foot cruiser clung to life preservers after the boat swamped in rough water.

Pilotless, the boat drifted with Hauck were his wife, Marjorie, 29; their son Frederick, 4, and Marsha, 5; Mr. and Mrs. John Allmand and their small son, John Jr. Also all Dearborn.

Hauck said he instructed the other six to cling to their life preservers after they were pitched into the water. But it was half an hour before Hauck knew his wife and another couple spotted the boat in the 20-degree water—and pulled them to safety in the Krider boat.

The Hauck girl was hospitalized for treatment of shock. The others escaped injury.

Pope's Health Appears Better

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Pius, now nearing 80, faces the coming winter with especially better physical condition than he did when he was 10 years younger.

Thousands of people who have seen him in recent big audiences and during his visit today at his summer residence have been impressed by his vigor, according to the head of the Roman Catholic Church.

The summer months spent at Castel Gandolfo, plus a careful diet to build up his weight, have done him much good. Those close to the pontiff, however, say he still insists on working too hard, and that this sometimes tires him.

The pope will be 79 years old March 2, the 17th anniversary of his election to St. Peter's throne.

FIND TWO YOUTHS

EGANVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Two 18-year-old Eganville youths were found by a search party early Sunday after having spent the night lost in thick woods near this community 85 miles northwest of Ottawa. The youths—Michael McCann and Jimmy Connaughan—were not and could not otherwise unhurt. They became lost while partridge hunting.

Russia Invited To Join Air Transport Body

NEW YORK (AP) — The incoming and outgoing presidents of the International Air Transport Association today invited Russia to enter the world airline organization.

The invitations came from Juan Trippe, president of Pan American World Airways, and IATA chief, and from the retiring president, Max Hymans, president of Air France.

But their welcome was tempered by a remark from Charles Ross, Risley of the United States civil aeronautics board that only their governments can permit expansion along the Iron Curtain airways.

Trippe acted as official U. S. spokesman.

Only governments can properly negotiate for the expansion of your operations," he said. "It is fitting that government in such case without interfering unduly with airline management judgment and flexibility."

Three Killed By Nitro Blast

WILSON, Okla. (AP) — A bomblike oilfield explosion killed three Oklahoma City well shooters—and injured six others near here Saturday night.

The three men were blown to bits when 100 quarts of nitro-glycerin exploded with the force of a 5,000-pound bomb as they prepared to loose underground oil sand from the well.

What caused the explosion probably will never be known. Police think the nitro, a jelly-like substance, was detonated when wires accidentally touched it.

The shooting left wife with nitroglycerin, cause of many oilfield explosions in the past. Most are often used now. New techniques employing sand and oil are replacing the nitroglycerin explosives.

PEARSON SAYS

the future of the plan, and the decision is certain to be its continuation with the same or probably larger sum contributed and some additional aids such as Canada's gift of an NRX reactor to India.

Pearson said events since the plan began had probably exceeded the expectations even of its most optimistic supporters.

But he reminded the ministers: "We should not forget that our ways of living, the systems of society which we have chosen, must in order to develop, or even to survive, prove their spiritual values as well as their material superiority."

Canadians, though far away from south and southeast Asia, liked to feel that their experience in economic and political development from a colony by evolution to a state was relevant and helpful—based on more than one race — was not too different from those which had brought tangible evidence of new factories, dams, power stations, roads, housing, irrigation projects and the like."

But "although the plan is well under way, economic development is a never-ending process, particularly in face of rapidly expanding populations."

PRINCESS RETURNS

The Associated Press reported that the Duke of Edinburgh is advising strongly against a union between his 25-year-old sister-in-law and the divorced war hero who will be at next month.

One London newspaper quoted Princess Marie Louise, a great-daughter of Queen Victoria, as saying such a marriage would be unthinkable.

And the Sunday paper, The People, told its 4,000,000 readers that assuming that the marriage had been arranged was "a big mistake."

"Her friends in the court circle — say that the meetings of the last few days are nothing more than a royal way of enabling her to say goodbye to an old friend of the family," the weekly asserted.

The AP said there were unconfirmed reports that the Archbishop of Canterbury would voice his disapproval publicly if the supposed engagement were made official.

The Church of England, which the Queen is head, opposes the remarriage of divorced persons of whose former mates are still alive.

Townsend was the innocent party in a divorce after the war. His ex-wife has since remarried.

Townsend and the princess were due to return separately to London later today from the country home of Margaret's cousin, Mrs. John Lycet Wills, with whom they spent their weekend, awaiting the verdict of Canterbury would voice his disapproval publicly if the supposed engagement were made official.

The first meeting was at Clarence House, home of the princess and the Queen Mother, after Townsend's arrival from his post as air attache in Brussels last December.

PRESS PURSUED HIM

Townsend emerged alone from the house this morning and went for a horseback ride—pursued by a fleet of press photo cars.

To reporters' questions, he replied sharply: "Leave it, will you?"

Later, when he returned from the ride, he answered "Yes, a very pleasant one," when asked about the weekend.

"Have you changed your plans?" another reporter asked.

"No," Townsend replied, then, after some hesitation, added: "No. I haven't changed my plans because I haven't any."

day, but the princess and Mrs. Wills drove some 10 miles to Windsor Castle's royal chapel to attend church services with the Queen Mother. Unsmiling and tense, the princess omitted her customary waves and smiles as she drove past the crowd outside the Wills estate.

At the same time in Scotland, where Queen Elizabeth is still at her summer residence, speculation centred on a visit by Dr. John Lamb, chaplain to the Royal Family in Scotland, who lunched with the Queen at Balmoral Castle. He is a member of the Church of Scotland, which has no ban on the remarriage of divorced persons.

The Queen leaves Balmoral for London today with Prince Charles and Princess Anne. Wednesday night she, the Duke of Edinburgh, the Queen Mother and Margaret are having dinner with Archbishop of Canterbury after a service rededicating the bomb-damaged chapel of the archbishop's London home, Lambeth Palace.

Prime Minister Eden, also returned today to London. He had spent the last two weeks at his country home.

Eden is expected to have his usual weekly audience with the Queen, during which time the monarch returns from Scotland.

There has been much speculation that there will be an announcement—if any—is made on a Townsend - Margaret marriage, the Queen will give Sir Anthony the first word.

As his press continued its full-dress coverage in both news and editorial columns, the teachers of Oxford University's Balliol College voted to ban all but four of British-circulated newspapers from their club room "until Princess Margaret's private life ceases to be treated as headline news."

The London Times, Manchester Guardian, the Sunday Times and the Observer were exempted from the ban.

Churchill Grain Port Winding Up Greatest Season in History

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — A freezing wind swept in off the bay, beating the Churchill river into a white frenzy. Flurries of snow danced along the dock as stevedores, parkas and parka - clad against the cold, anchored down giant grain spouts that sent torrents of wheat into the naked holds of waiting ships.

This was the scene in the closing days of the shipping season at Churchill, on the west coast of Hudson's bay 610 air miles north of Winnipeg. The port and town were alive. Everyone was in the race against time and weather.

The grain port is winding up its greatest shipping year in history. Soon the bay will be choked in ice.

38 SHIPS MADE PORT

Never before had so many ships sailed in the waters of the Churchill. Nor had so much wheat moved through the port's Canadian National Harbor Board's grain terminal. Nor had the town ever been prosperous.

H. H. (Slim) Wilson, the board's new port manager, said 38 ships made port during the season, two more than last year. The last ship, the Finland oil tanker Neptunia, arrived Oct. 7. One vessel, La Hacienda of London, made an unprecedented three trips. Two ships were turned away.

Before the shipping season opened in July the Canadian Wheat Board confirmed the sale of 35 cargoes, representing more than 12,000,000 bushels of wheat. Mr. Wilson expected the final total to reach 15,000,000.

The boom has prompted the harbor board to plan a $1,423,000 construction program to improve the port. Almost ready for use is a 2,500,000-bushel annex which will double the terminal's present storage capacity.

CUSTOMS CLEARANCE

Last May Revenue Minister J. J. McCann announced his department would provide complete customs clearance services at Churchill under certain conditions. Previously, goods shipped into Churchill went to Winnipeg, Regina or Saskatoon under bond before getting customs clearance.

Four ships brought mixed general cargo to Churchill this season but most vessels travel light from the United Kingdom. Nearly 30 passengers sailed to and from Churchill, at a cost of $185 for a one-way passage.

The ships' business is handled by two agents. Three representatives of charter the grain and two stevedoring concerns handle cargo.

Mr. Wilson said the harbor board staff totalled 279 this season but only a few are on permanent staff.
